ALLIED ARMIES MEET NEAR SALERNO

French Town Of Modane Hit By R.A.F.

Low-Level Attack Smashes Antheor Viaduct

LONDON, Sept. 17 — (CP).—A large force of R.A.F. and Canadian bombers swept deep into south-eastern France last night to make a concentrated attack on the enemy railway stations at Modane on the French-Italian frontier, it was announced to-day, and Mosquitos again hit Berlin.

Big, home-based British and Canadian Lancasters, striking directly at enemy efforts to rush reinforcements into the Italian battlegrounds, also made a low level attack on the Antheor Viaduct near St. Raphael on the French Riviera route.

At Modane, a French frontier town near the opening of the Mont Cenis Tunnel, a "heavy and concentrated attack was made" on the freight yards, it was announced.

"First reports indicate both attacks were effective," the communique said.

Four of the night bombers were reported missing, and R.C.A.F. headquarters said one of them was Canadian.

Several Halifax squadrons of the Canadian bomber group helped the R.A.F. in blasting the French rail centre, headquarters said, while R.C.A.F. Mosquitoes and Mustangs aided in intruder work over the low countries and France. One Canadian fighter is missing.

Cut Main Road

In hitting at the Modane area, the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. bombers probably disrupted traffic through one of the few remaining railroad channels through the Alps over which the Germans can funnel reinforcements into Italy.

The big Alpine Mont Genis tunnel, around which Germans and Italians have been reported fighting, is 50 miles northwest of Turin on the rail route to Lyon and Paris.

The attacks carried the new

Fierce battle is raging between Allied and German troops for control of the Naples-Salerno area in Italy. British troops have seized the strategic ports of Cotrone and Brindisi and captured Catanzaro to overrun all of southern Italy.

Soviets Make Gains On 4 Fronts

Unusual Advance Demoralizes Huns East Of Dnieper

LONDON, Sept. 17. — (CP). — Three Soviet armies, surging westward through the Southern Ukraine, are closing in on Krasnograd, Nazi bastion and rail junction in the Kharkov-Dnieperopetrovsk railway, a Reuters News Agency dispatch from Moscow said to-day.

Other Red Army columns, having scored four impressive victories yesterday, were plunging forward on many sectors of the 600-mile battlefront, intent on throwing the Germans back across the formidable Dnieper river barrier before the heavy autumn rains render large scale military operations impossible.

A DNB broadcast from Berlin today admitted that the Germans had lost Novorossisk, the Russian Black Sea naval base in the Caucasus.

A triumphant Moscow communique heralded by two special orders of the day signed by Premier Joseph Stalin and a salute of 24 salvoes from 124 guns in the Russian capital, recorded gains on four widely separated sectors which apparently doomed the entire system of Nazi defence and communication lines east of the Dnieper. They were:

1. Capture of the great Black Sea port of Novorossisk, an important naval base and springboard for an assault upon the German held Crimea.

2. Seizure of Novogorod Severski 90 miles southwest of Bryansk and bastion of the 'German eastern wall' guarding White Russia.

Cuts Railway.

3. Capture of strategic Lozovaya, cutting the Kharkov-Crimea railway, northern artery for German forces in the Crimea, which placed Russian troops only 35 miles from the Dnieper River bend.

4. Storming of Nosovka, southwest of Nezhin, and 55 miles from the great middle Dnieper, German base of Kiev.

The speed with which the Soviet columns were eating up German-held positions east of the Dnieper, encouraged the belief they might reach the river within the next few days, launch a drive against the White Russian frontier, 80 miles west of Novogorod Severski, force a German retreat from the Caucasian bridgehead above captured Novorossisk, and complete the investment of the citadel of Bryansk.

The Germans fought for Novogorod Severski with bloody tenacity, but the Red Army troops blasted their way across the wide Desna river southwest of Bryansk and drove the enemy in headlong retreat, the Moscow bulletin reported. More than1,500 Nazi dead were counted in this assault. The storming of Lozovaya and Romny to the northwest, accounted for another 1,100, including a German regimental commander, while additional thousands fell before fierce Russian thrusts on other sectors, the communique said.

Rout 50,000 Nazis.

Novorossisk capitulated to Soviet infantry, sailors and airmen after a five-day battle in which 50,000 Axis troops, three German divisions, one Rumanian Alpine division and

Huns Round Up Italians For Slave Labor

BERNE, Sept. 17—(AP). — Nazi authorities have begun requisitioning Italian workmen, adding their former Allies to the long list of countries from which the Reich is gathering slave labor.

Heads of German labor camps have been instructed to prepare to receive "great numbers" of Italian farm workers, a dispatch to Geneva's La Suisse said, adding that it had been "confirmed" that Fritz Sauckel, Nazi high commissioner for labor employment, had been charged with requisitioning Italian peasants.

Germany's need for slave labor was reported to have increased enormously since the latest mobilization to replace Italian troops in France and the Balkans.

Italian men from 18 to 40 whose jobs were eliminated through the bombing of northern Italian industrial cities were reported in border dispatches to have been rounded up by the Germans. Other reports said the Nazis were seizing all persons unable to show adequate identification and hustling them off to undisclosed destinations.

Warns Families.

Printed notices have appeared in occupied Turin warning that work must be resumed and asking the population to "reflect on the terrible tirals to which families of workers will be subjected if work is not resumed."

A Vienna dispatch said that Italians who "voluntarily" go to the Germans will receive favored treatment and their families will be helped.

German factory workers have been ordered into northern Italy to work Italian factories should they be closed through strikes or sabotage, the dispatches added.

The Germans, using an August decree by the Badoglio government militarizing factory workers as a basis for their action, have warned that the workers may be "considered soldiers and treated, should the case arise, as prisoners of war," the dispatches said.

Bring Top Prices

DUNDALK, Ont., Sept. 17—(CP). — Mervy Gould's auction sale proved farm implements are a gold mine. A binder used on eight crops brought $285 — $19 more than cost price. A disc drill used 15 years drew $100, a tractor plow $150, and a used tractor sold for $830.

3 New Convoys Steaming Toward Salerno

LONDON, Sept. 17 —(CP)—Nazi propagandists who declared earlier in the week that Allied forces were evacuating the Salerno area in Italy reversed their field today, admitting that the British 8th Army had made contact with the Anglo-American 5th Army and reporting that three Allied convoys totalling 60 ships were steaming for Salerno.

The international information bureau, German propaganda agency, asserted in a Berlin broadcast recorded by the Associated Press that both American and British forces in the Salerno bridgehead "have received reinforcements from the 8th Army."

It added that "among other" 8th Army units which have arrived at Salerno was a tank brigade. It claimed that "the 36th American division must be considered almost entirely wiped out" but conceded that the Allies in the last 48 hours "considerably widened the southern part of the bridgehead through new landings.

"It may be estimated," said a Berlin broadcast by the German news agency D.N.B., "that Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's tank formations and motorized units landed on the American bridgehead at a fighting potential of about one and a half divisions. We may also presume that American reinforcements will continually be brought up by sea."

90 Ships At Palermo

"We may safely conclude," said the International Information Bureau, "that the enemy fears no sacrifice and will pay any price to hold his position.

"In the Palermo harbor a concentration of 90 steamers with a total tonnage of 400,000 has been observed. This goes to prove that further troop transports are intended for the assistance of the invasion troops."

D.N.B. said Gen. Montgomery brought up reinforcements "across the sea" to aid the Americans south of Eboli and observed that "the situation in that sector must be considered stationary."

In the northern part of the bridgehead, the agency conceded as "obstinate" Allied defence of the "utmost toughness and the support of heavy navy artillery."

Allies Dominate 3 Provinces In Southern Italy

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, Sept. 17—(AP). — The 5th Army of Lt.-Gen. Mark W. Clark and the British 8th Army fused their fronts with establishment of contact between patrols following an amazing northward march of nearly 200 miles from the Italian toe by Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's veterans, Allied headquarters announced today.

(The Reuters correspondent with the 5th Army said enemy troops movements indicated the Germans were beginning to withdraw from the front facing the Southern part of the bridgehead.)

(A Stockholm dispatch quoted a German spokesman as telling Swedish newspapermen that "A Canadian Division" had been moved by sea from Calabria Province on the top of Italy to the Salerno area to aid the 5th Army).

The British 8th Army, which includes units of the Canadian 1st Division, also made contact with British forces beating up the Italian East coast from Taranto, a communique from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced. All three of the Allied beachheads on the West, South and East thereby were about to be welded into a single front when the main bodies of troops get together.

Contact in South.

The contact between Gen. Montgomery's speeding warriors and Gen. Clark's British and American troops, who for eight days had fought the greatest engagement of the Mediterranean war in order to maintain their West coast foothold, was made somewhere in or near the Southern end of the Salerno bridgehead.

Linking of the two armies broke the enemy's ring of steel around Gen Clark's Tommies and Doughboys and appeared to have ended the critical period of the battle fought against four or more German armored divisions on the blood-stained beaches.

Announcement of the contact was made by Allied headquarters shortly after a communique had told of Gen. Montgomery's capture of Vallo Della Lucania, 16 miles from Agropoli, at the Southern end of the 27-mile front held by the 5th Army.

At the same time Clark's army struck out from its hard-won shoreline and recaptured the mountain village of Albanella, 10 miles inland, smashed three German counter-attacks and flattened out several Germant salients that had been driven into Allied positions.

An Algiers broadcast by NBC said Montecorvino, 8½ miles inland and 11 miles east of Salerno at the northern end of the bridgehead, also was captured in the repulse of one of the German attacks.

FDR Predicts New Blows Against Huns

Americans Lost 7,445 Men In Sicily Drive

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—(AP)—President Roosevelt reviewed for the United States Congress today the sweeping Allied war effort on fronts around the world and promised "further blows" against Germany and Japan and the ultimate rooting out of "the war-breeding gangs of militarists."

The President, in a lengthy message, withheld any specific recommendations for Congressional action to further the progress of the war or help solidify the peace to follow.

He confined himself largely to analyzing what has been accomplished on the fighting fronts and on the production front and to predicting powerful new thrusts at the foe, including fresh invasions of Hitler's European stronghold.

He made a bid for the Axis satellites to get out of the war, mentioning Rumania, Hungary, Finland and Bulgaria. He said the Allies have reliable information of "definite unrest and a growing desire for peace," among their peoples, adding:

Should Revolt Now

"We hope that in these nations the spirit of revolt against Nazi dominance which commenced in Italy will burst into flame and become a consuming fire."

Mr. Roosevelt praised Russia's sledgehammer blows against the Nazis and at the same time gave what appeared to be his answer to some Russian complaints that the Allied operations in the Mediterranean has not drawn off enough German strength from the Russian front.

He said it was certain that the campaign in North Africa, Sicily and Italy, plus the engaging of large numbers of German planes in the skies over western Europe, "have given important help to the Russian armies along their advancing front from Leningrad to the Black Sea."

"We know, too," he said "that we are contributing to that advance by making Germany keep many divisions in the Balkans, in Southern France and along the English channel. I like to think that these words constitute an understatement."

Optimistic Picture

In general, it was a confident, optimistic picture which Mr. Roosevelt drew of the progress of the war. But he held out no hope whatever that

10 Giant 30 Ton Bombers Produced Daily In Detroit

By J. F. SANDERSON—Canadian Press Staff Writer

DETROIT, Sept. 17—(CP).—There are some things in this world that must be seen to be believed. One of them is the Willow Run bomber plant near Detroit.

I saw it yesterday, with raw materials entering one end of the mammoth plant and B-24 Liberators coming out the other. Camouflaged, guns mounted, the bomb bays ready for their lethal loads, they are flown off to war fronts.

A year ago this month, the first Liberator came off the Willow Run assembly line. Today, the production is 10 a day and it is mounting steadily toward an objective of 20 a day.

Managed By Ford.

The Willow Run plant is the property of the United States Government, managed by the Ford Motor Company, which originally started it. A new plant, embodying the revolutionary process of making a 30-ton bomber, incorporating 1,250,000 parts, on an assembly line, it has gone through plenty of grief. But today it has settled down to steady production, one of the world's most comprehensive individual war projects.

The Liberator now being wheeled off the line at Willow Run is the latest model, carrying four power-driven turrets, making it, with the Flying Fortress, the most heavily-armed bomber in the world. It does not have the bomb load of the British Lancaster (which also is being built in Canada), its maximum being 10,000 pounds and an actual tactical capacity of 7,500 pounds, but for daylight operations, depending on its own armament for protection, it is regarded as one of the finest weapons in the arsenal of the United Nations.

The over-all cost of a Liberator is $250,000, which means that Willow Run turns out $2,500,000 of production each day.

Post-War Plan Machinery Exists

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 17—(CP).—Four years of war have developed in the United Nations the framework for a world-wide organization that Allied leaders believe must succeed where the League of Nations failed.

The machinery is scattered now—joint production and allocation boards, commissions for shipping coordination, unified war front commands and all the other accoutrements of total war. But when democratic leaders of today look into the future for the plan that must prevent the third and fourth great wars, something built on the foundation of these inter-Allied co-operatives has provided their readiest answer.

Mr. Churchill has pointed out that the British Empire has been victorious for this very reason—this fact that "we have been able to march in a great company along the highroad of progress and freedom for all." President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Mackenzie King and other war leaders have echoed his meaning. And as the war enters its fifth Beaufighters were out in force against enemy communications and troop positions. They blasted five locomotives and freight cars on the railway near Sagaing in Central Burma, and scored hits on an oil truck near Sawebd.

Other Beaufighters patrolling the Irrawaddy river north of Venangyaung strafed oil barges and river boats.

Nazis In Caucasus Face Final Disaster

8th Army Aids Allies In Italy Turning Tide Against Hun Forces

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The last 24 hours have produced three notable achievements for Allied arms.

First must come the good news that the gallant British and American troops on the bloody beaches of Salerno not only have made secure their bridgehead but have seized the initiative and are on the offensive. Our boys have weathered the initial stage of a nasty German storm.

Second and more important militarily, is the unemotional word from Moscow that the Red Army has broken the German line in the vital strategic sector east of the Kiev-Zaporozhe line of the Dnieper river. That vastly increases the gravity of the Hitlerite position.

Seaport Recaptured.

Third we have the Russian recapture of their Black Sea naval base of Novorossisk which is, so to speak, the hinge of the narrow gateway the Nazis have been holding at the Kuban Peninsula entrance to the Caucasus. This jeopardizes the whole German position at the last remaining vantage ground from which they could glimpse the lakes of golden oil, for lack of which they are in dire straits.

This is the ninth day of the battle of Salerno, and while heavy fighting continues, it goes all right. Thousands of reinforcements are being poured into our ranks. While the Germans have the advantage of their fortified positions on the heights overlooking the open beaches, Allied warships control the sea and Allied aircraft dominate the air.

The Nazi defences are being mercilessly blasted with both bombs and big naval shells. The Allies are employing the greatest concentration of airpower seen in the Mediterranean.

Join Forces.

And elements of Gen. Montgomer's veteran British 8th Army have reached the Salerno battlefield from the south. The Germans are threatened with being caught between two forces. One report to-day said patrols of the 5th and 8th armies made contact.

The Germans on the Russian front are faced with two momentous problems: (1) Whether they can pull back their long, unwieldy, badly-mauled line to the defences of the Dnieper river and there re-establish themselves; (2) Whether they can overcome the grave danger of being cut off in the Crimea, as the result of the fall of Novorossisk and the steadily-increasing threat to their flank near the northern entrance to the Crimean Peninsula.

Eight Indicted As Spies

Defendants Face Possible Death Penalty

DETROIT, Sept. 17—(AP).—Four women and four men accused of acting as spies for Nazi Germany were indicted today by a Federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy under the United States Wartime Espionage Act which carried a possible death penalty.

Six of those indicted have been detained since August 24, when two men and two women were arrested on warrants, and two other women were held as dangerous enemy aliens. Two other men were arrested early today.

U.S. Attorney John C. Lehr said the indictment accused the eight of consprıng to "communicate, deliver and transmit to the German Reich and to its various representatives photographs, blue-prints, sketches, documents and information generally relating to the national defence of the United States with intent to injure this country and to the advantage of the Nazi Government."

The defendants, Lehr said, are charged with attempting to collect and communicate information on fortification and defence measures and "information with respect to the movements, numbers, descriptions, condition and disposition of the armed forces as well as to ships, aircraft, and war materials of the United States."

Gunner Given Medals

LONDON, Sept. 17 (CP)—An unusual, simultaneous award of the Distinguished Flying Cross and Oak Leaf cluster—equivalent to two D.F.C.'s—was made today to Sgt. Donald W. He already held an air medal and three clusters for the raids.

Predicts Great Air Blows

Balkans And Germany To Feel Weight

CAIRO, Sept. 16 (Delayed)—(AP) — Maj.-Gen. Ralph Royce, in his first press conference since he took over command of all United States Army forces in the Middle East, intimated tonight that a terrific step-up in the aerial war on Germany is in prospect.

He said that only one-quarter of U.S. bomber strength has been brought to bear on the enemy to date, and indicated he expected that fraction would quickly be enlarged.

Royce, who succeeded Maj.-Gen. Lewis H. Brerton, transferred to an "important assignment" in another theatre, gave expression to the potentialities of the new Allied position in the Mediterranean area by taking a pair of callipers and describing a narrow arc from a point in Italy to the Balkans.

Then he moved the callipers up to northern Italy, where another small arc took in a good part of southern Germany.

"It's a simple matter of geography," he said in response to a question concerning the place of the Middle East in the future prosecution of the war against Germany.

"It seems obvious that if we are going to bomb targets in the Balkans and Germany we won't fly across the Mediterranean to do it when we have airfields in Italy."

ALL OF NEW GUINEA LIKELY TO FALL TO ALLIES IN LATEST PUSH

Allies Use Captured Airfield Bridgehead 10 Miles Deep

Motorized Unit From 8th Army Landed From Sea

LONDON, Sept. 17 — (CP). — The Berlin radio reported to-day that one of Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's 8th Army motorized divisions had been landed near Salerno Wednesday night to reinforce the British-American 5th Army, and said: "The troops, including Canadians, landed near Castellabate."

The German report was not confirmed by any source, but official announcements from Allied Headquarters in North Africa have repeatedly mentioned reinforcements are being poured into the bridgehead.

Nothing was known in London of the Berlin assertion Canadians had made new landings in Italy. Early this week the Germans said, without confirmation, their troops had battled Canadian formations in fighting the 5th Army, and London indicated that perhaps the Canadian 1st Army Tank Brigade made up part of the Salerno force.

Other Canadians, from the 1st Division which operated in Sicily, are known to form a part of Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's British 8th Army striking up Italy from its initial landing on the toe.

Another mention of Canadians on the Salerno front came today from the German-controlled Vichy radio. Conceding that the Germans had failed to drive the 5th Army off its beachheads, the radio had this to say:

"If Marshal Kesselring has not yet succeeded in forcing the American troops of Gen. Clark and the British and Canadian reinforcement troops to re-embark, at least his attacks have cut the American lines in two, forming two bridgeheads, one at Salerno, the other at Eboli."

Coming Home

United States Ambassador to Turkey, Laurence A. Steinhardt, is en route to Washington. He will consult with the State Department concerning the position of Turkey in a possible Allied Balkan invasion. He also will discuss problems arising from Allied penetration into southeastern Europe, according to Ankara sources.

Air Attacks Rip Communications Behind Hun Lines

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, Sept. 17 —(AP)— The British 8th Army has reached Vallo Di Lucania, only 16 miles from Agropoli, southern anchor of Lt.-Gen. Mark W. Clark's British American bridgehead in the Salerno area, headquarters announced to-day.

Driving along with the 8th Army are Canadian troops, believed to be units of the 1st Division.

Lt.-Gen. Mark Clark's Army of British and American soldiers — and which is also believed to include 1st Canadian Army Tank Brigade—striking out in new force from their beachhead foxholes, meanwhile repulsed three counter-attacks yesterday and "resumed the initiative," the communique said.

Retake Alabanella.

Alabanella, mountain village 10 miles inland, was re-occupied. Allied Forces were driven from this town nearly in the week by a German counter-attack.

The war bulletin said German resistance now had "weakened considerably" as the enemy forces attempted to limit the expanding Allied bridgehead. The communique said again, as Gen. Clark did yesterday in a congratulatory order of the day to his troops, that the bridgehead "has been firmly established."

During yesterday's action, the announcement said, prisoners were taken and the salients made by previous German attacks were reduced.

In the south, a British 8th Army column which advanced up the east coast of the Italian toe was reported to have effected a junction with troops sweeping out from captured Taranto on the heel.

Both naval and air support for the fighting British and Americans smashing into the explosive-torn foothills back of the Salerno landing beaches continued to be "excellent," the comunique said.

The United Nations radio at Algiers said in a broadcast heard by the Associated Press in London that Allied fighters now are taking off for the battle of Salerno from a captured airfield not far from the scene. It was not identified.

The important highway junction of Potenza, used by German troops moving into the battle area, was kept under night and day air attack.

No Opposition

The Middle East Air Force, which concentrated on targets there Tuesday and Wednesday while the Northwest African forces were throwing their full strength directly upon the embattled enemy at Salerno, returned again both yesterday and the night before.

year, there is every indication that instead of the League of Nations' failure frightening the world from similar attempts in future, the feeling is stronger than ever that there must be created a world organization to keep the peace.

League Had Value.

The League has had its value, too. Mr. Churchill says "We shall not lightly cast aside all the immense work which was accomplished" by its creation. Mr. Mackenzie King has agreed, saying that although the League "tragically failed," it has provided us with experience "of what can and cannot be done."

Lend-lease may in itself have provided the basis for a future world association of nations, because its application throughout all the United Nations has shown the true value of international economic co-operation, a field in which the league failed.

Russia's contribution to the pool of United Nations supplies—which works on the socialist principle of "from each according to his means, to each according to his needs,"—thus has been in lives, more than material. People of both countries recognize this, and that Marshal Stalin knows the signifiance of that recognition is shown in his words late last year that "all these facts point to a progressive approachment between the U.S.S.R., Great Britain and the U.S.A."

Foundation Laid

It is commonly recognized that the new League of Nations, in addition to the possibility of an international police force, must have powers for allocation of raw materials, production and resources, including food. The hot springs food conference laid the foundation for a future in which food will not be destroyed while people in other lands go hungry. The exchange of monetary reform plans between Britain, Canada and the United States, it is hoped, will provide a system of international financing which will eliminate the trafficking in world currency that caused inflation in some countries between the two wars.

The free governments of occupied countries agree to these principles. China's position is known, and Russia—from Marshal Stalin's words—looks upon this type of co-operation with favor.

Yugoslav Force Captures Port

LONDON, Sept. 17—(CP)—Yugoslav guerillas have captured the Dalmation seaport of Split after a two-day battle and another force of patriots now is attacking Ogulin, inland city further north, according to a communique issued here in the name of the Yugoslav Army of Liberation.

Heavy fighting also was reported in the vicinity of Klin, where German forces, attempting to smash guerilla troops, were said to have been driven off with 300 killed and 500 wounded.

the fighting could be concluded at an early date, and he warned against overconfidence and urged continuation and acceleration of production of fighting gear and supplies.

He gave a four-point summation of the war in telling Congress that "we are still a long, long way from ultimate victory in any major theatre of the war." These were his points:

1. Despite substantial victories in the Mediterranean, "we face a hard, and costly fight up through Italy," and a major task of organizing positions before they can be taken advantage of.

2. From bases in Britain, "we must be sure that we have assembled the strength to strike not just in one direction, but in many directions—by land and sea and in the air—with overwhelming forces and equipment."

3. The Russian armies still have a long way to go to get into Germany itself, despite their magnificent counter-offensive.

4. The Japanese remain firmly established on an enormous front from the Kurlies Islands in the north to the Solomons in the south and Burma and China in the east, and to break through their defensive ring, "we must hit them and hit them hard, not merely at one point but at many points and we must keep on hitting them."

Other Landings Planned

At the outset of the message, his first major communication to the Congress since its summer recess, Mr. Roosebelt said:—

"The Congress and the American people can rest assured that the landing on Italy is not the only landing we have in mind. That landing was planned at Casablanca.

"At Quebec, the leaders and the military staffs of Great Britain and the United States made specific and precise plans to bring to bear further blows of equal or greater importance against Germany and Japan — with definite times and places for other landings on the continent of Europe and elsewhere."

"On the 10th of July a carefully-prepared expedition landed in Sicily," he said. "In spite of heavy German opposition it cleared this large and heavily-fortified island in 38 days.

"British, Canadian and American losses in killed, wounded and missing in the Sicilian campaign were 31,158, of which the American forces lost 7,445. The casualties among the Italians and Germans were approximately 165,000, including 132,000 prisoners.

(Ottawa has announced Canadian casualties in Sicily at 2,300.)

Love of Liberty Unconquerable

"The unmistakably sincere welcome given the Allied troops by the Italian people has proved conclusively that even in a country which had lived for a generation under a complete dictatorship—with all of its propaganda, censorship, and suppression of free speech and discussion—the love of liberty was unconquerable. It has also proved conclusivey that this war was not waged by the people of Italy on their own choice. All of Mussolini's propaganda machine could not make them love Hitler or hate us. The less said about the feelings toward Mussolini, the better."

The downfall of Mussolini, whom he ridiculed as "the incubus of Italy for a generation," the President declared, "must be followed by other and similar encouraging downfalls."

"But there is one thing," he added, "I want to make perfectly clear: when Hitler and the Nazis go out, the Prussian military clique must go with them. The war-breeding gangs of militarists must be rooted out of Germany—and out of Japan—if we are to have any real assurance of future peace."

Discussing the air assaults on Europe, the President said that Hitler had failed to provide a roof on a European fortress which he boasted was impregnable. Hitler also left various vulnerable spots in the wall of his fortress which, Mr. Roosevelt declared, will be pointed out to him in due time.

It now is the purpose of Britain and America, he said, to set up bomber bases from which "devastating war" will be brought home to southern and eastern Germany.

Conceding that German power still could do great injury to the Allied cause, the President said neverthless "evil power" was being destroyed inexorably, day by day, and "if Hitler does not know it by now, then the last trace of sanity has departed from that distorted mind."

Take Control of Indian Ocean

The freeing of the Mediterranean, Mr. Roosevelt predicted, will lead directly to resumption of complete Allied control of the Eastern Indian Ocean and Bay of Bengal, permitting thrusts at Japan on what he termed another highly-vulnerable flank. With the Italian fleet in Allied hands, the formidable British naval strength retained in the Mediterranean is free to proceed eastward, he said, to join in the attack on the Japanese.

And, he said, as a result of the Mediterranean victory the one serious gap in Allied seapower, between northwest Australia and Ceylon, now can be closed.

Shifting his analysis further into the Pacific, the President said the threat to Australia and New Zealand across the Coral Sea had been "practically dissipated" by Allied seizure of air bases in the Solomon Islands. In fact, he said, the Allies now offer a threat of their own against the Japanese in the seas north of the Solomons and New Guinea.

He forecast, too, an offensive in Burma, to end a long period of defensive strategy and he spoke of the time when "we are ready to strike right at the heart of Japan itself."

He said that would mean a letdown in the great tempo of production and that men fighting the world over would not have an overwhelming superiority of power.

Since the armament program began in May, 1940, and up to Sept. 1, he said, the U.S. produced and delivered 123,000 airplanes, 349,000 plane engines, 53,000 tanks, 93,000 artillery weapons, 9,500,000 rifles, carbines, machine guns, and other small arms, 25,942,000,000 rounds of small arms ammunition, and 1,233,000 trucks.

In most instances about half these totals were produced, the president said, in the first eight months of this year. For that period he itemized an output of 52,000 planes, 23,000 tanks, 40,600 artillery weapons, 4,638,000 small arms, and 13,339,000,000 of small arms ammunition.

Since May, 1940, he said, the United States had completed 2,380 fighting ships and auxiliaries and 13,000 landing vessels, and completions of navy ships in the last six months equalled a total for all of 1942.

MORE ABOUT— Allies Dominate

the town is understood to be the site of one of the best airfields along the whole lower stretch of the Italian west coast. With an airfield in Allied hands there the scope and effectiveness of fighter plane protection for the base of operations would be greatly ended.

(A BBC broadcast from Algiers, recorded by CBS, said the 5th and 8th Army patrols met about half way between Agropoli and Vallo Della Lucania, or less than 10 miles from the beachhead).

The Allied communique said the German efforts to reduce the Allied bridgehead "have weakened considerably," that air and naval support of the land fighters continued to be heavy and effective, and repeated Gen. Clark's declaration of yesterday that the Salerno position now is "firmly established."

A Headquarters spokesman, summarizing the two-weeks' campaign that began with Gen. Montgomery's landing on the Italian toe September 3, said the Allies now have occupied three entire provinces of Southern Italy, taken the three valuable ports of Taranto, Brindisi and Bari, and gained possession of a large number of excellent air bases, particularly in Apulia province, where there are paved runways on which the heaviest bombers can operate.

Although the thrusts up the east coast to Bari and the landing on the west coast a Salerno have established firm grip as high as the ankle of the Italian boot, the Germans apparently still held a mountain bulge in the centre of the peninsula.

Fight in South.

British troops from Taranto remained in contact with the Germans at Gioja Del Colle, midway between Taranto and Bari, where units of the German 1st Parachute Division have been reported.

To-day's communique also announced a series of continued heavy bombings of road and transport targets by both the Northwest African and Middle East Air Forces, striking both day and night at Potenza in the middle of the Appennines Range

These blows, indicating the Germans still were in that locality, were aimed at targets about 55 miles north of the Gulf of Taranto.

There was no information yet as to whether the junction of the 5th and 8th Armies had compelled the Nazis to withdraw northward from the vicinity of Agropoli, at the southern end of the 5th Army's foothold.

(The German communique, recorded by the Associated Press from Berlin broadcasts, said Allied parachute troop attacks had been made in the German rear, but asserted these troops were wiped out while declaring that "the enemy landing head at Salerno was still further compressed," the Germans admitted that the Allies had thrown fresh forces ashore and that Allied resistance near Eboli had considerably stiffened.)

Took High Ground

In a final desperate attempt at splitting Gen. Clark's army before the 8th Army's arrival, the Germans threw crack assault troops and tanks into three furious attacks yesterday.

One was against the town of Salerno and two others were in the vicinity of Montecorvino.

In knocking back these attacks, the Allies took a substantial number of prisoners, including a battalion commander at Montecorvino. Five enemy tanks were knocked out at the latter place.

As a result of the attacks Clark's troops seized high ground south of the Calore River from which German guns had commanded southern portions of the bridgehead.

A message from the battle front said "we are beating off everything the Germans are able to put in. The morale and fighting spirit of 5th Army troops could not be better. It has been tough going, but we are over the hump and things are going our way."

Slav Patriots Contact United States

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—(AP)—Isolated by German invasion armies for two years, the ingenious fighting patriots of Yuogslavia have established direct radio contact with the United States.

The first messages from the guerilla-operated station tell of "great excitement" in the Balkans over the Allied drive into neighboring Italy.

Equipment for the radio setup may have been parachuted into the Yugoslav hills by Allied planes, Yugoslav embassy officials hinted.

The contact here is with Press Wireless, Inc., authorized yesterday by the Federal Communications Commission to accept messages addressed to New York, Washington and Los Angeles. F.C.C. approval of the tariff schedule yesterday disclosed the existence of the radio link.

The state department meanwhile confirmed that the station was being operated by the patriot forces of Gen. Draha Mihailovich. The messages here, it is presumed, are subject to censorship. None may be dispatched by press wireless to Yugoslavia, however.

A Strong Army

One message to the embassy here told how patriots routed German detachments sent to replace Italian policing units after the Badoglio armistice.

Mihailovich's forces thrust a wedge into the German units in East Bosnia, not far from the town of Zvornik, the message said. Cut into groups of two, the Germans were pushed towards Drina. When they tried to swim a river to escape, they were "attacked and completely destroyed" on the right bank.

The dispatches are put out by a newly-formed Yugoslav news service — the Democratic Telegraphic agency probably represents the democratic committee formed by a council of guerilla leaders in August, 1941.

Nazis Find Lost Opera

LONDON, Sept. 17 —(AP)—The Berlin radio said today that the score of Georges Bizet's opera, "Ivan le Terrible," previously believed destroyed by the French composer because he considered it not up to his standards, had been found by a German musical expert, Dr. Ernest Hartmann, in Paris and would be performed for the first time at Dresden.

Study Indian Diet

FORT HOPE, Ont., Sept. 17. — (CP).—Dietary deficiencies among Indians in this Albany river settlement near James Bay are being studied by a Federal government committee under Dr. S. F. Tisdall, of Toronto. Authorities say the average Indian girl here eats a breakfast consisting of flour, baking powder, fish or rabbit stew, and tea. For lunch, the same thing. For dinner, the same thing again.

Nazi Spy Suspect Led To Court

Erwin Harry De Spretter, 52, Dongan Hills engineer, is shown being led to court by U.S. Marshal Spencer Young, RIGHT. The bearded engineer was arrested last year by F.B.I. agents on the charge that he was actually spying on American shipping for Adolf Hitler. He went on trial with Ernst Frederick Lehmitz, and if convicted can be sentenced to death. De Spretter is a veteran of the German army from World War One.

TORONTO POULTRY.

TORONTO, Sept. 17 —(CP) — The dressed poultry market is firm with receipts of all kinds showing a decrease, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reports. Local demand is good and enquiry from Northern and Eastern points is noted. There is a demand for dressed duck but there are no arrivals. Quality of arrivals of fowl is fairly good but quite a percentage of chicken lack finish. Volume of top quality chicken and fowl is barely sufficient for requirements but there is some slight movement into storage medium quality grades. Arrivals of grade C chicken and fowl is also in excess of demand and is being put in storage, basket packed. Evidently outside dealers are storing, which would account for the light receipts of dressed poultry. Eight thousand pounds of chicken was shipped to Newfoundland during the past week.

Flier Has Lucky Trip

TORONTO, Sept. 17—(CP). — A decision by French authorities to transfer FO. A. L. Bell of Toronto from internment in Casablanca to Marseilles proved fortunate for the flier when the ship carrying him to the French port met the first British convoy headed for the invasion of Algiers. An Allied landing party came aboard and took prisoners from the French ship. Prior to internment Bell lost a leg when shot down by anti-aircraft fire near Morocco.

Hero In Italy

This smiling young man is U.S. Lieutenant John Whitaker, 18, who is named in stories from the Italian battle front as the officer who, with four enlisted men, fought 13 Nazi tanks on the day the Allies landed near Naples. Using a 75-mm. gun, Lieut. Whitaker and his quartet took up a position in the centre of the road and blasted away at the Panzers, destroying three and assisting in the destruction of two more. The little group stood fast until the arrival of additional anti-tank weapons that drove the Germans from the scene.

Lae Totters; 48 Planes Knocked Out

66 Tons Of Bombs Blast Wewak 10 Bombers Burned

By OLEN CLEMENTS
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 17.—(AP).— Reports from the fighting front indicate Lae is tottering and its fall is imminent.

While Allied airmen marked up another aerial victory over the Japanese—with 48 and probably 59 enemy fighters destroyed out of an attacking force of 60 to 70—strong Allied ground forces were reported converging on the New Guinea base for the kill.

Australian forces moving in from the east have taken Malahang Wharfage, just outside the airdrome and the town itself. A western force has occupied Edwards' Plantation, not far from the town, and troops are coming up fast from captured Salamaua.

Get No Rest.

The desperate enemy at Lae probably has taken the worst beating of any Imperial force in this war.

The brilliant aerial victory came during a raid by heavy bombers with a fighter escort on the Japanese base at Wewak, New Guinea. A communique from Allied headquarters today said they downed 39, probably 49. The fighters accounted for nine definite and one probable.

But the bombers wreaked still more damage. In 15 minutes they concentrated 66 tons of bombs on the Wewak and Boram airdromes. Direct hits destroyed 10 grounded bombers and started many fires among numerous other parked aircraft.

Big Smoke Bomb Punctures Barn

PICTON, Sept. 17—(CP).—Clarence Hicks, Gilea farmer, has a pretty good idea today what Canadian forces are going through in Italy.

While he was in his barn, working at last evening's chores, a plane roared overhead, and a smoke bomb plunged through the roof of the building, exploding on the cement floor a few feet away from him. The farmer was enveloped in blinding, choking smoke, through which he had to fight and stagger his way to the fresh air.

Keep Them Rolling

PICTOU, N.S., Sept. 17 — (CP) —Another 4,700-ton freighter, the S.S. Woodland Park, slid down the ways of the Pictou Shipyards here yesterday and preparations for the laying of another keel were started immediately.

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness, and aid in healing the sore, tender spots Hem-Roid is pleasant to use is highly recommended, and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money. —(Advt.)

Northern Hamlet Has Goods Aplenty

FORT HOPE, Ont., Sept. 1—Residents of Southern Ontario who are running short on tea, coffee, sugar, butter and jam coupons may gaze enviously on the 12-or-so regular residents of Fort Hope.

A survey of this Albany River settlement's leading business establishments—both of them—revealed shelves full of the rationed products. And no tickets are necessary. Because Fort Hope is 150 miles north of the trancontinental railway line and transportation is difficult, as are the enforcement of rationing regulations, there just isn't any rationing here.

You can buy all the tea, coffee, sugar, etc., you want legally. But, of course, both the settlement's merchants are making sure their regular Indian customers don't run out of supplies.

Note to Southern Ontario duck-hunters: They've got lots of 12-gauge and .410 shells. There are also quite substantial supplies of .22-calibre shells. You can even buy rubber boots and woollen (yeah! real woollen) socks.

Prospective purchasers: Fort Hope is only about 1,200 miles from Toronto—the last 150 miles navigable by airplane, canoe or, in a month or so, by dog-team.

The two merchants are not expecting any great rush from "outside."

Camp Receipts Higher

COBOURG, Sept. 17.—(ENS).—Tourist camp receipts this year amounted to $450. The Parks Board estimated the income from the tourist camp at $300 when they put in their estimates early in the year, basing the amount on what the members felt would be a slack year because of gas restrictions. However, the attendance was unusually large.

Allied Troops Land On Italian Beach Near Naples

Although it might be Sicily or Africa where similar scenes took place, this happens to be Italy proper. Allied troops are about to deploy on the beachhead after landing near Naples. The narrow beachhead was expanded in the region of Salerno, where Germans later counterattacked and even now troops are locked in bloody battle.

Fisherman Gets Third Muskie

GORE'S LANDING, Sept. 17 —(ENS).—Three muskies in less than one week represents good fishing, and the third muskie brought in on Wednesday by Mr. and Mrs. John Heale of Toronto, tipped the scales at 22½ pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Heals trolled up the shore of Rice Lake just west of this village on Wednesday afternoon. The lake was very rough, and at Glen Lynden Farm they turned and went out to Sheep Island. Just as they turned at the island, the 'lunge struck. Mr. Heale was using an ancient plug.

The muskie fought for half an hour, several times coming to the top of the water and jumping, before diving for the bottom of the lake. Mr. Heale used a gaff when it finally became tired out with the struggle.

Mr. and Mrs. Heale caught an 8-pound 'lunge and another weighing 15½ pounds over the week-end.

Turkey Shortage Hits Ontario

BRANTFORD, Sept. 17 (Special — In an annual session at Grove Farm, near here, members of the Ontario Turkey Breeders' Association reported that there will be a shortage of birds this Thanksgiving and Christmas because of unfavorable weather in the spring and a high mortality rate.

J. Curran, chief inspector of the poultry and marketing division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, told the members that at the first of September, this year, only 478,209 pounds of turkey was in storage, compared with 3,641,431 pounds at the same time a year ago.

C. S. Lackie of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Ottawa, said the changing the ceiling price unless circumstances made a change necessary. If a situation developed where production of any foodstuff would be jeopardized, then prices would be taken under advisement at once, he advised.

15 Japanese Beetles Caught Near Toronto

TORONTO, Sept. 17 — (CP).— Ontario Department of Agriculture officials said yesterday 15 Japanese beetles, dread destroyers of crops and fruits, were trapped in the Toronto area this summer.

William A. Fowler, chief of the Plant Division, said that while the beetles are "a serious menace to agriculture," the numbers taken here "are too few to indicate that the beetles are spreading across Canada."

"The beetles hitch-hike into Canada, usually in fruit shipments," he said, adding that they had done considerable damage to many sections of the United States adjacent to Canada.

Backing Japs Into Death Trap

By OLEN CLEMENTS,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, The Southwest Pacific, Sept. 17 — (AP)— Backing the Japanese into a death trap where they are forced to fight, Allied jungle troops have battered through pillboxes, trenches and machine-gun nests with the aid of artillery and planes to bring nearer the fall of the big air base of Lae, New Guinea.

Australians on the East are only two miles from the centre of the coastal town and are about to overrun the prized Malahang airdrome. On the West another force in the Markham Valley is only five miles away.

To the south, Australians and Americans who annihilated most of the Japanese garrison in capturing the airdrome and harbor town of Salamaua left behind patrols to hunt down the surviving stragglers and moved in force more than half way along the 18 miles of jungle trail separating the two Huon Gulf bases.

The Japanese have offered scarcely any opposition until now to pincer forces which landed from the sea above Lae September 14 and from transport planes behind Lae September 5.

To-day's communique reported the capture in the Markham Valley of three defended plantations. The most bitter fighting was at Heath's, and lasted several hours.

A Much Needed Reform

In the third edition of Beauchesne's Parliamentary Rules and Forms which has just left the press, several suggestions are made which would help to shorten debate and hasten the process of Government business. Abolition, or limitation of the debate in reply to the Speech from the Throne, a limitation on the number of questions which a member may place on the Order Paper at one time, and the right of appeal against the Speaker's ruling are discussed. Dr. Arthur Beauchesne, who is Clerk of the House of Commons, has seen Parliament in action for a long time, and he knows what he is talking about.

In other countries where parliamentary government exists, reforms have been made which have enabled the legislative body to get through its business in a reasonable time; in Canada we have been asleep. When Parliament's business was half as demanding and voluminous as it is now, the old rules did not cause great inconvenience. Now, when work must be done as expeditiously as possible, they are a nuisance. It is desirable that the rules of parliamentary procedure should be supple, and that sensible debate should not be curbed, but we have no time now for endless word-spinning, and for repetition of what has already been said. In our debates on the Throne Speech any member may speak for 40 minutes on virtually any subject which interests him, and he may repeat this procedure for as many days as the Speaker will recognize him as having the floor. Read Hansard for the last session, and see what this excessive tolerance leads to; the debate on the Speech goes on for days and for weeks, and perhaps a tenth part of all that is said has a really useful application to the problems before the House.

The solution is the system of limited debates. In the British Parliament, and in several others which are modelled after it, a debate is announced as having been set for a specific length of time—two days, three days, or whatever it may be—and the Government and the Opposition are expected to marshal their forces and choose their speakers, allowing a brief time for such questions and interruptions as are inevitable in parliamentary government. This limitation of time has a wonderful effect in compressing the thoughts and trimming the luxuriant verbiage of the speakers chosen; they must say their say, and give place to the man who is waiting to speak.

As for the matter of appealing against the Speaker's decisions, we feel that this right should be retained, but that an appeal should be harder to make than it is now. There is a tendency to abuse the privilege, and to waste time in appealing about trifles. Speakers are chosen for their good judgement and their ability to interpret the rules justly; in all but a very few cases the Speaker's decision cannot successfully be challenged. Continual appeals hold up important business and drag out the sessions needlessly.

We must beware of alterations in parliamentary procedure which tend to muzzle the members and inhibit real freedom of debate. But freedom of debate does not mean the license of every member who chooses to waste the time of the House and the nation. Let us hope that Dr. Beauchesne's carefully considered suggestions will bring results, enabling the nation's legislators to save time in transacting the nation's business.

A Move In Right Direction

A guiding principle that this city cannot be materialistic in matters pertaining to public health was enunciated by D. G. H. Melton and endorsed by the other members of the Board of Health this week. It is a principle which every citizen who is interested in the health of this community and in the health of future generations will approve.

The matter under discussion was the establishment of a child hygiene clinic in the Jackson Park Wartime Housing area. Since this area came into the city approaches have been made to the council and the Board of Health for the extension of some of the health services to families in that large community of new citizens.

Official action has taken the course that if wartime housing wanted extension of those services they should make some contribution to assist the Board in meeting the additional expense this work will entail.

The children from the area are now attending the city schools. They come under all the health regulations laid down by the Board of Education. If the general health of the city, as a whole, is to improve, no one section can be omitted. Health services cannot be segregated, they must take in the whole community, for if the health precautions in one area slip it will not take long for an epidemic to sweep the entire city.

As for costs the Board of Education must provide schools and teachers for half the amount paid as rental for these houses, while for the other half which goes into the city coffers the city provides police and fire protection and will doubtless have to look after the upkeep of the roadways. Up to the present the arrangement has meant additional expenditures on the part of the Board of Education, but on the part of the city very little extra cost has been added.

The citizens of wartime housing have shown a keen desire to co-operate with the health authorities. Many of them are young couples with small families. We believe that they like Peterborough and want to make their permanent homes here. Action on the part of the Board of Health tends to weld this whole community closer together.

Mrs. Shaw And Lady Haggard

During the past week the wives of two widely-known men of letters have died; they were Mrs. G. B. Shaw, the wife of Bernard Shaw, and Lady Haggard, the widow of Sir H. Rider Haggard. Both were more than 80 years old.

Rider Haggard's books still have a faithful public among young people who cannot find enough adventure stories to slake their raging thirst for violent incident. The best of his works—Allan Quartermain, King Solomon's Mines, and She—have been popular for more than half a century; Haggard knew Africa exceptionally well, and had unusual insight into the mentality of the many negro tribes there, and his exciting stories have a ring of authenticity in spite of their fanciful themes. He was by no means a great writer, but he was a brilliant story-teller, and the world owes much to his talent. It was not for his fiction that he was knighted, however; he was a fine agricultural economist and wrote many books on that subject.

Mrs. Bernard Shaw was Charlotte Payne-Townshead, an Irish lady of considerable fortune who married the playwright in 1898, when both were approaching middle age. Although she was of a retiring disposition she was well-known to a very large circle of friends as a kind and charming lady and a delightful hostess. The Shaw home was beautifully ordered in every respect and a warm welcome — non-vegetarian — was given to everyone who visited it. Her care for Shaw's health has certainly done much to prolong his life, and the courtesy and devotion which existed between them has been remarked upon by many writers. The loss of his companion and helper will be a heavy blow to the old philosopher.

The wives of celebrated authors are little known to the public, and this is usually because they wish it so. Their deaths, however, should not pass wholly unnoticed.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Toronto youth has had his shoulder dislocated 15 times. That would seem to be par for the course.

Radio announcers are unanimous in hoping that the Russians will soon capture Dnieperopetrovsk so that the name will disappear from the newscasts.

The shape of things to come, as foreseen by the London Free Press: "Much talk, some action, some change and perhaps a little loose change."

A great truth, as expressed by Alfred Landon, one-time Republican presidential candidate in the U.S.: "Livestock production is a long-term program. Marvellously we have speeded up the building of a ship. But no man has ever devised a method of speeding up the production of a heifer".

Medical science has now established that high blood pressure is not caused by eating meat, drinking, smoking or by salt; nor is it caused by old age, since even babies have been known to develop it. With the temerity characteristic of laymen in these matters, we suggest that the doctors investigate worry, fear and bad temper as possible causes.

Profits And Industry

By
R. J. DEACHMAN

FROM The Pas election comes this unique story. Mr. Stanley Knowles, M.P., was speaking and someone asked this question:

"Will not all the social services advocated by the C.C.F. result in increased taxation?"

Mr. Knowles' reply was to the effect that the exact opposite would be true. He suggested that profits, as a result of government ownership of industry would enable a C.C.F. government to abolish taxation.

The man who would make that assertion should carry his head in an ice-pack. Total dividends between 1939 and 1942 averaged slightly over $300 million per annum. Even pre-war government expenditures exceeded $550,000,000.

This is not all the story. Income tax, it is safe to say, would take nearly half this sum. A certain amount of these dividends, rather difficult to estimate, goes to the beneficiaries of the policy holders of insurance companies, educational establishments, hospitals and other eleemosynary institutions. So if profits remain the same when, in that distant day, Messrs. Knowles, Douglas, Gillis and Coldwell of the C.C.F.-Labour party come into power, they would not have a hundred million dollars, from this source, for the new tune they desire to play. It was a silly statement, wasn't it? How do men get that way!

BUT that is not all. Rarely do more than half of our corporations pay any dividends and some of them report substantial deficits. One might cite the case of one government owned utility which, on occasions, has run into deficits of fifty million dollars a year. Mr. Knowles or any other C.C.F.-Labour supporter may well ask why, in these circumstances, private capital goes into industry. The answer is that, under exceptionally favorable management and in suitable circumstances, the prizes are quite high. This is the bait which lures capital on and enables society to receive the benefit of capitalistic enterprise, with the payment of a relatively negligible consideration.

In the first two years after the close of war the C.C.F.-Labour party proposes the expenditure of $2 500 million on public works. I have estimated that post-war expenditures, aside from this, would total $800 million a year. That is too low an estimate. We shall probably reach, on ordinary expenditure, a billion a year. There is, therefore, a total of $3,500 million to be met under this scheme in the two first post-war years. I question, very much, if the net income from government owned industry, even if the C.C.F.-Labour party had the nerve to take over the bulk of our industries, would be equal to 2 per cent of this tremendous sum.

BUT that is not all—far from it! Mr. Knowles is not a dominating factor in the party. A much stronger power lies in its most prominent labour members, Messrs. Gillis and MacInnis. They believe in a sharp reduction of hours of labour without reduction in weekly earnings. Railway labour now demands an increase of aproximately $35 million per annum—and the C.C.F.-Labour party approves of this. Railway wages constitute about 5 per cent of the total wage payments of the Dominion. Railway labour is our most highly paid labour. If other sections of the community are to receive, under a C.C.F.-Labour government, treatment such as railway labour now demands and expects to receive, the total bill, by way of an extra, will be of the magnitude of $700,000,000. If Mr. Knowles reads this he will say: "And why not?"

WELL—why not? The answer of course is that no dividends could be earned from the "captured government industries." Instead we would have to meet, in addition to present taxes, hundreds of millions to pay the deficits on our government owned industries. What would happen to the farmers who now support the C.C.F.-Labour party? They will have to pay their taxes when this happens. Labour in power will carry out its threats. It will seek and get tax exemptions. The future will not be bright for agriculture.

Do I paint too lurid a picture of the dangers? Well anyone who can paint in different hues is welcome to test his colours. The business of extracting sunshine from cucumbers is indeed difficult. Mr. Knowles tells the story he tells because he possesses a flaccid mind which permits him to let his imagination run riot whenever he feels that it will provide bait for catching votes. The Pas election was to him a special opportunity. Perhaps Mr. Knowles ought to be permitted to forget it.

Unconsidered Trifles

"What are you turning around for, John?"

"I've just discovered we've come 510 miles since morning; we'll have to run back to the 500-mark and change the oil."

According to a writer, when Napoleon wanted to think out big schemes he immersed himself in hot water up to the chin. It will be recalled that he got into very hot water at Waterloo.

One morning, when Billy woke he sat on the floor for some time gazing at his toes.

"Hurry up, Billy, you'll be late for breakfast," said his mother. "Why are you looking at your feet."

"Well," said the boy, "isn't it funny that one of my toes is so much larger than the others; I had them all at the same time, didn't I?"

At a regimental dinner, the colonel came round and put a fatherly hand on the shoulder of the young subaltern.

"Look here, my boy," he said, "this is your first dinner, and I know you won't mind a little advice from me. Go easy with the decanter, and don't try to stick it too long. Here's a good tip for you. You see those two candlesticks there? Well, when you begin to see four instead of two, clear off."

Looking fondly at her sweet-faced daughter, Mrs. Slowe remarked: "I know I'm being an old-fashioned mother, dear, but I'd like to know where you go."

"Of course, mums," said the 17-year-old. "Well, last night I dined with Flight-Lieutenant —— well, you don't know him, but he's awfully sweet —and we went to several places I don't suppose you've ever heard of. Then we finished up at a funny little club, but I didn't hear its name. That all right, mumsy?"

"Of course, my dear. I just like to know."

Washington Spotlight

(By J. F. SANDERSON, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (CP)—Canada is not the only country that is face-to-face with an acute manpower problem.

The Roosevelt administration is giving serious consideration to drastic alterations in the whole system of handling civilian manpower, with a view to meeting shortages that grow more critical daily in certain industries and geographical areas, and to do it without resort to a national service act.

A report submitted by Bernard M. Baruch recommends that steps be taken at once to re-centralize administration of civilian manpower, putting it as completely as possible on a community basis under local boards; that the production program be reviewed in the light of manpower supply; that draft deferments be extended; that key workers be furloughed from the armed services to work in factories, particularly aircraft plants and, above all, that steps be taken to end labour-management squabbles and arguments.

ONE DISCORDANT VOICE

The only Buenos Aires newspaper that had the courage to speak out in approval of American refusal to grant lend-lease aid to Argentina was penalized by government suspension. The others did not dare comment—no matter what they believed.

Argentina is the one western hemisphere country that retains diplomatic relations with the Axis and its leaders apparently fail to realize they cannot break their pledge to the other American republics and get away with it.

The general opinion in Washington is that Brazil will supersede Argentina as the No. 1 Latin American country, politically as well as economically, unless the Buenos Aires authorities reverse their present policies.

There was a time when newsmen covering the White House could write their stories on a Roosevelt speech, using a text given out in advance—and forget all about it.

But more and more, the president is becoming famous for his interpolations. The most famous he ever thrust into a formal prepared speech was his "dagger in the back" denunciation of Mussolini in June, 1940, when Italy made her ill-fated entry into the war.

There have been dozens of others and each one has meant swift and important changes in stories written in advance. Now it is routine for reporters to check the radio, phrase by phrase and sentence by sentence, because the ad libs that are tossed into the text sometimes are the most important parts of the speech.

The Chicago Tribune and the New York Daily News have taken a low view of the suggestion of Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York State that Britain and the United States form a military alliance after the war.

The Tribune, in one flash of the pen, wrote Dewey off the list of possible Republican candidates for president in 1944, telling him, in so many words, that he need not aspire to any higher job than running New York State.

The News, however, was more subtle. It reported from Mackinac Island—where Dewey made his suggestion, on the eve of a meeting of Republican leaders—that Dewey was feuding with his colleagues, that he didn't get along with them. The friction, it reported, was personal, quoting one unnamed Republican veteran:—

"It's not so much that I object to what Dewey says but it's the nasty way he says it."

Then it added: "The simple fact is that Tom Dewey lost a lot of personal friendship among some important, old-line G.O.P. leaders who will remember it when the national convention sits in for the big show."

He Spelled His Name "Jon"

THROUGH the massive skylight illuminating the hall at Robin Hill, the July sunlight at five o'clock fell just where the broad stairway turned; and in that radiant streak little Jon Forsyte stood, blue-linen-suited. His hair was shining, and his eyes, from beneath a frown, for he was considering how to go downstairs, this last of innumerable times, before the car brought his father and mother home. Four at a time, and five at the bottom? Stale! Down the banisters? But in which fashion? On his face, feet foremost Very stale. On his stomach, sideways? Paltry! On his back, with his arms stretched down on both sides? Forbidden! Or on his face, head foremost, in a manner unknown as yet to any but himself? Such was the cause of the frown on the illuminated face of little Jon....

In that Summer of 1909 the simple souls who even then desired to simplify the English tongue, had, of course, no cognizance of little Jon, or they would have claimed him for a disciple.... As a fact little John had done his best to conform to convention and spell himself first Jhon, then John; not till his father had explained the sheer necessity, had he spelled his name Jon.

Up till now that father had possessed what was left of his heart by the groom, Bob, who played the concertina, and his nurse, "Da," who wore the violet dress on Sundays, and enjoyed the name of Spraggins in that private life lived at odd moments even by domestic servants. His mother had only appeared to him, as it were, in dreams, smelling delicious, smoothing his forehead just before he fell asleep, and sometimes docking his hair, of a golden brown colour.... She was precious but remote, because "Da" was so near, and there is hardly room for more than one woman at a time in a man's heart.—From "The Awakening," by John Galsworthy. (New York: Scribner.)

Mr. Wallace and Mr. Bracken

(FROM MONTREAL GAZETTE)

HENRY AGARD WALLACE, vice-president of the United States, is an agrarian Progressive from midwestern Iowa. Lately he has emerged as the spokesman of the more advanced New Deal wing in the Roosevelt Administration. When his enemies want to smear him they call him a Red.

John Bracken, leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, is an agrarian Progressive from midwestern Manitoba. Lately, after 20 years as a Progressive Premier, he has become leader of a party which changed some of its objectives, or at least its emphases, at Winnipeg, but which is still popularly known as the Tory Party. When Bracken's enemies want to smear him, they call him a reactionary.

Vice-President Wallace made a speech at Chicago on Saturday. Its tone was radical, studded with the denunciations of monopoly and cartels which in Canada are most often heard at C.C.F. meetings. But its specific proposals, as distinct from its general atmosphere, consisted of a breakdown of President Roosevelt's Fourth Freedom, freedom from want, into seven "sub-freedoms" of social welfare which Mr. Wallace proceeded to list.

John Bracken made a speech at Winnipeg, after his election as Progressive Conservative leader, recapitulating the "Fourteen Points" of his personal credo which, he had told the Conservatives the night before, they would have to take if they took him. By an odd coincidence, five of the "radical" Wallace's seven points are contained in "Tory" Bracken's fourteen.

Mr. Wallace's first "sub-freedom" is "freedom from worry about a job." And Number One on the Bracken creed uses only slightly different phrasing—"the right of every man to a job." Second and third of the Wallace freedoms, from "worry about a dependent and poverty-pinched old age" and from "unnecessary worry about sickness and hunger," are both comprised in Bracken's eighth point, "the right of every citizen to security against loss of income arising from accident, sickness, loss of employment, old age and other disability."

Wallace's fourth sub-freedom is "freedom from strife between workers and business men, between farmers and business men, and between workers and farmers." Compare Points Two, Four and Five of the Bracken program:

"The right of every worker to a fair day's pay for a fair day's work.

"The right of both public and private enterprise to a fair day's work for a fair day's pay.

"The right of farmers and other primary producers to a fair share of the nation's income."

Sub-Freedom Number Seven, to Wallace, is "freedom for venture capital and for inventors of new ideas to expand production of needed goods without fear of repressive cartels, excessive taxation or excessive Government regulation." Bracken phrases it differently: "The right of private enterprise to a fair return on the investment it risks." But the intent, shown by the use of the word "risks," is evidently the same.

Wallace's fifth and sixth points are the only ones unmentioned in the Bracken statement. Freedom Five is "from strife between races and creeds," on which John Bracken has repeatedly pronounced himself to the same effect, though it happens to have been omitted from his Fourteen Points. Freedom Six is "from fear of bankruptcy caused by overproduction of necessary materials," which needs a bit of clarifying to mean much.

It has often been remarked that doctrines called "radical" and "socialist" on this continent have been introduced in Great Britain by a Conservative Government. Maybe Canada is importing another British tradition.

A Bible Message

Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!....

He sent his word and healed them, and delivered them from their destructions. (Ps. 107: 15, 20.)

And a certain woman, which had an issue of blood twelve years, and had suffered many things of many physicians, and had spent all that she had, and was nothing bettered, but rather grew worse, when she had heard of Jesus, came in the press behind, and touched his garment. For she said, If I may touch but his clothes, I shall be whole. And straightway the fountain of her blood was dried up: and she felt in her body that she was healed of that plague.

And Jesus, immediately knowing in himself that virtue had gone out of him, turned him about in the press, and said, Who touched my clothes?

And his disciples said unto him, Thou seest the multitude thronging thee, and sayest thou, Who touched me? And he looked round about to see her that had done this thing. But the woman fearing and trembling, knowing what was done in her, came and fell down before him, and told him all the truth.

And he said unto her, Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace, and be whole of thy plague. (Mark 5: 25-34.)

Burying Japs

Clark Lee, author of "Call It Pacific," tells of an officer, very religious, who assisted on reading a burial service over a hundred odd Jap soldiers who fell in a pitched battle on Guadalcanal. Fellow officers didn't relish the notion, but he persisted. "They may be Japs," he said, "but they're dead, and I am going to give them a decent burial."

In the midst of the service, one of the "corpses" suddenly rose with a grenade in his hand. The officer dropped his Bible, whipped out a gun, shot the Jap through the temple, calmly re-holstered his weapon and resumed his sermon.

"Lord," he declared, "I said I'd give these Japs a funeral, and that goes for every last one of them! Amen!"—Saturday Review of Literature.

Inquiry Group Visits Arvida

ARVIDA, Que., Sept. 17 — (CP) — House of Commons members serving on a committee investigating war expenditures yesterday inspected the largest single aluminum plant in the world, which has been developed in this northern Quebec centre in the last two years.

The 16 House members, headed by R. T. Graham, Liberal member for Swift Current, spent Wednesday inspecting the Chute-a-Caron and Shipshaw power developments undertaken by the Aluminum Company of Canada as a part of its production program here.

They saw in the power developments progress of a program costing some $100,000,000 and which will be producing more than 1,000,000 horse-power by Christmas. Following its return to Ottawa, the committee will begin hearings on aluminum production and costs as part of its study of Federal Government outlays for war purposes.

McNeely LeBose, vice-president of the Aluminum Company of Canada, told committeemen that the Shipshaw development, expected to take four years, had been brouhgt into operation in one year due to the demand for aluminum for war purposes.

Chief Constable Killed In Crash

PEMBROKE, Sept. 17 (CP) — Thomas Espey, 42, chief constable of Pembroke, was killed last night when the car in which he and Provincial Constable E. T. Renaud were riding was in collision with one of a convoy of army trucks five miles west of Petawawa, Ont., it was learned.

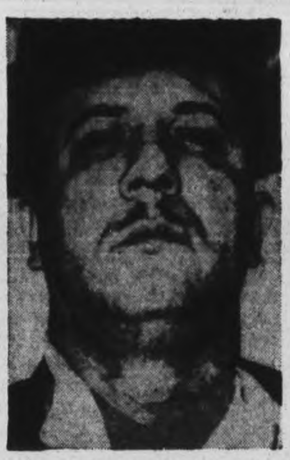
Pembroke police said they had learned that Constable Renaud was seriously injured, and was taken to Petawawa camp hospital. Further details were not available.

Chief Espey's widow and two children live in Pembroke.

First reports said the truck convoy was running with blackout lights on highway No. 17. Coroner Dr. J. C. Bradley of Pembroke was called to the scene.

An inquest will be held, it was learned, but the date has not yet been decided upon.

Held In $34,000 Robbery



Among the five men held in the $34,000 robbery of the Royal Bank at Wheatley, Ont., are the two ABOVE. After their arrest and when police were taking them to Chatham for a hearing, the police car crashed into a pole. One of the prisoners, Allan Baldwin, RIGHT, ABOVE, helped to extricate Inspector George MacKay from the wrecked car. Franklyn F. Smith, Dieppe veteran, LEFT, also was credited by police with acting like a gentleman at the time of the crash.

29 Cases Polio Across Ontario

TORONTO, Sept. 17 — (CP). — Dr. R. P. Vivian, Ontario Minister of Health, said yesterday in discussing the infantile paralysis outbreak in Eastern Ontario that 29 cases have arisen up to Wednesday throughout the province with the cases concentrated in smaller centres chiefly around Trenton where six children and three members of the R.C.A.F., have been afflicted. He said cases may increase in the next couple of weeks, but authorities do not believe they will reach epidemic proportions, the incidence being lower than normally.

When the Trenton cases were reported, officials of the Health Department were sent to Trenton to aid local authorities.

Dr. Vivian said precautionary measures should be stressed beyond those formerly recommended.

FARM EDUCATION.

Lord Trent reccomends that as part of their education, every British boy and girl should spend some time on a farm after leaving school.

Ceiling Price Maintained In Buying Wood

An indignant denial was made by A. G. Metheral to the charge made by members of the Lakefield Council that Peterborough was buying wood at $18 a cord and thus forcing them out of competition in the quest for fuel.

"That is the most ridiculous statement I have heard. We have never at any time gone over the ceiling price of $11 and we have rarely paid that. Moreover, we have not been buying wood in the vicinity of Lakefield. Our supplies have come from the districts around Coe Hill, Bancroft, Gooderham and in a few instances, at Rockcroft, 6 miles north of Buckhorn," he declared.

The city clerk, E. A. Outram, explained that the Municipal Board had passed an order limiting to $50,000 the amount which the city could spend in connection with fuel. He stressed that this was not like a business concern where there is a turn over. The municipality is forbidden to reinvest any of the money and when they reach the limit set, buying must stop. The fuel committee of the council hopes to make a total purchase of 5,000 cords by winter.

A representative, L. G. Gervais, from the fuel and wood controller of Canada, was in Peterborough Thursday and part of today to discuss the situation with the fuel committee under he chairmanship of Alderman R. Glover. He told the Examiner:

"We haven't any set policies up to the present time, it's just talk. The Peterborough City Council is to be commended for is initiative in seeking a solution for a severe fuel crisis which is affecting the entire country. I wish that all communities were showing the same foresight. Many of them have, but there are a few who haven't.

"The purpose of municipal aid is in some small way to meet the current emergency. We have neither the intention nor ability to cope with the problem 100 per cent, that would need an army. It is the intention to build up small strategic reserves for dire emergencies. By that I mean if a community should find itself without fuel over a cold winter week-end, then there would be sufficient stored away to tide the people over."

Mayor James Hamilton contacted Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., who in turn made representations to the Hon. C. D. Howe, and M. Gervais has been sent to meet and discuss the present problem.

Would Shorten Debate On Throne Speech

OTTAWA, Sept. 17—(CP)—Abolition or limitation of the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the Throne is recommended in the preface to the third edition of Beauchesne's "parliamentary rules and forms" circulated today.

The author, Dr. Arthur Beauchesne, Clerk of the House of Commons, in his preface to this edition, makes several suggestions designed to shorten debate and facilitate government business.

"It is imperative that special orders be adopted if the House wants further to expedite passage of legislation," he wrote.

(Reforms of the rules of procedure in the House have been urged with increasing frequency in recent years by members of all parties.)

Dr. Beauchesne commented that in the South African parliament there was no debate on the Address in reply to the Throne Speech. In Canada there is unlimited debate in which all members are permitted to speak for 40 minutes on virtually any subject. A similar debate raised on the budget. Both debates may—and often do—go on for weeks.

Dr. Beauchesne also recommended a limit be placed upon the number of questions a member may place upon the order paper at one tie and that the Speaker be empowered to reject questions if the information sought is available in public documents.

He also recommended that appeals from the Speaker's rulings be abolished, as in the British House, or that they be made more difficult, requiring 20 members' support instead of five at present.

Year's Work Results In Piecing 38 Quilts

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 17—(ENS)—The Women's Association of the United Church met in the Sunday School room on Tuesday. Mrs. Percy Spence was in charge of the worship service and a paper was read by Mrs. Jory dealing with the greatness of the Invisible Things in Life. Poems were read by Mrs. Bruce Charlton and Mrs. George Spence.

Mrs. George Spence reported that the Red Cross group of the Association had already made 38 quilts this year. Arrangements for the next quilting to be held at the manse on September 30. Delegates were nominated to attend the W.A. Presbyterial on September 23. It was decided that Christmas boxes be sent to the boys and girls in the forces. The ladies agreed unanimously that there would be no Thanksgiving supper this year but a canvass be made instead.

Mrs. Fred Erskine read six letters of thanks for flowers which were sent to the sick. The executive will meet next week to arrange for the canvass.

She felt miserable—draggy—low in vitality—lower in spirits. She hadn't thought of her kidneys, until a friend suggested Dodd's Kidney Pills. At once she took Dodd's. The "washed out" feeling was soon replaced by clear headed energy and restful sleep. Headache, backache, lassitude and other signs of faulty kidneys disappeared. 112

BRINTONS CHALK UP SECOND WIN IN INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE FINALS

Beat Marines 15 to 12 In Loose Game

Brinton Carpet softball squad eased one step nearer the Industrial League championship and the Gordon K. Fraser silver trophy on Thursday evening when they vanquished the Outboard Marines, 15 to 12 in a rather sloppily played fixture at the Ashburnham Bowl. There was a splendid crowd and the fourth game of the series will be played at the Brinton Field this evening, with another game if necessary at the Bowl next week.

The series is the best three out of five, and Brintons can clinch the verdict by taking the decision this evening.

Loucks started on the mound for the Marines but found the going rather tough and gave way in favor of Murphy who also had plenty of trouble. A big third innings saw four singles, four walks and four errors stretched into ten runs, and the Carpetmen were off to a victory. Sloppy fielding was responsible in the main for the loss by the Marines.

Phillips started on the slab for the winners but collided with a runner on the first base line when he attempted to field a pop fly, suffering a cut on the lip which bled rather freely. He switched over to first base for the balance of the game, while Bun Rose took over the hurling assignment and finished the game.

Corbett was the big hitter, getting a triple and two singles in five trips, while Rose, Murphy and Loucks batted out two baggers.

The teams:

Marines—Loucks, p, ss; Watkins, 3b; Shaughnessy, cf; Murphy, ss p; Heffernan lf; Metcalfe, c; English, 1b; Collins, 2b; aPrker, 2b; McArthur rf.

Score by innings:

Marines	401 240 1—12	16	7
Britnons	10(10)011 2—15	9	2

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The stage is all set for the Picton R.A.F.-Mount Hope R.A.F. soccer battle at Riverside Park tomorrow in aid of the British War Victims' Fund and a big crowd will see the two crack Air Force elevens hook up. The lineup of the Picton outfit is well-known here and was published in this column a few days ago. It includes such stars as Campbell, Miller and Flockett who lead a very strong side. Mount Hope Fliers promise to match this talent with a formidable team coached by Sergt. Jack Miller who declares there will be no repetition of last year's debacle. In goal for Mount Hope is Jack Kimber who has firmly established himself as a star custodian. Joe Feeney whose home is at Winchburch, near the Forth bridge in Scotland is at right back. He formerly played with Clyde side Juniors. Another Scot, Ginger Rae from Dumfries who was seen here last season is at left back. On the half line is the captain of the Mount Hope team, six-footer Archie Stokes, former Hull city player and a great favorite. He will be flanked at right half by Dave Latham of Glasgow Queen's Park, a player of the type that gladdens the heart of any coach and at left half by ex-policeman Jack Butler, a rugged never-say-die player who can fill any berth.

* * * * * *

On the attacking division Mount Hope R.A.F. claim plenty of strength. The pivot player will be Jim Stanton, a fast first timer a and player the experts will be watching. At outside wing will be "Twinkle-toes," Hurdon, a scintillating wisp of soccer genius who formerly starred with Plymouth Argyles. Charlie Hanaford, a polished Dulwich Hamlet forward will fill the the inside right position. On the other side of the attacking brigade will be Flying Officer Vic Laffey, formerly of South Shields at inside left while the outside left lane will be patrolled by Jack Illingworth, formerly of Hull City, who has the reputation of having the strongest left foot drive in Ontario soccer. Ken Griffiths who played for Notts County before joining the Royal Air Force will be in reserve. The game is called for 2 o'clock sharp at Riverside Park and should be one of the sporting spectacles of the year, one you cannot afford to miss.

Girls' Finals Tonight

Tonight will decide the championship of the intermediate section of the Girls' Softball League when Generals and Brintons clash at the East City Bowl in the final game for the Knox Trophy. The tilt is scheduled to get under way at 6.30 o'clock sharp. It should be a real argument. There have been few important games this season about which it has been so difficult to make a prediction. There was little to choose between the teams all season and each has won a playoff game in somewhat hollow fashion, leaving the final tussle a wide-open affair. However one of the two has to win and with that victory will go the championship. Brintons expect to start Beryl Lee against the Generals and to use the same lineup as won easily for them Monday night. There is not likely to be any change in the Generals' team either; in other words both teams will stand pat and hope for the breaks tonight. Pat Wilson will likely do the Generals' pitching with Mary Crowe in the catching role while Regina Killen will be behind the bat for the Generals. Brintons won the Knox Cup last year. Tonight will decide whether the carpet-weavers are to have a two-year term as intermediate champions or whether the honor is to pass on to the C.G.E. girls.

Another softball league wound up its campaign last night when the final battle in the C.G.E. Shop League was staged at Riverside Park with Switchgear taking the rubber game from the Tool Room to win the championship two games to one. The final score last night was 8 to 2 for the Switchgear club. The league has had a long and interesting season and Switchgear have proved worthy champions of the organization, playing good ball throughout the campaign. They won the first game of the playoffs with Tool Room 4 to 3 in a game marked by an unassisted triple play by Bill Moorhead of Tool Room. Tool Room came back strong Tuesday night to even up the series by winning 6 to 2 and the title looked to be anybody's. However, Switchgear, powered by Holly Mowry who batted in five runs and Barney Ashmore who slammed a homer won last night without a great deal of trouble. Bert Harrison and Mowry were the battery for the winners while Gene Reynolds and Carlson were in the points for Tool Room.

Riots On The Horizon

The Tunney card last Monday featured clean wrestling. So far as the main bout for next week's show goes it will not be clean and we will be surprised if it includes much wrestling—but neighbors, it will be plenty exciting. With the arch-villain Rowdy Dick Hogan, who under that name and as Texas Dick Bishop, has been responsible for more near-riots in wrestling shows around the circuit that any bad man on the road, battling it out in an hour's mill with Pat Flanagan, who can wrestle as clean as a whip or rough-house it according to the opposition, Monday night's main bout looks like the toughest and wildest mat argument of the season. Hogan will start the back-alley stuff in the first thirty seconds of the bout and before long he'll have Flanagan blowing a fuse and from then on anything can happen—and probably will. We cannot promise any flashy exhibition of scientific wrestling but we are safe in predicting that there won't be a dull moment. The Hogan-Flanagan riot will probably be staged not only in the ring but on the floor of the arena and even among the ring-side spectators. Hogan likes it that way and in a few minutes he'll have Irish Pat Flanagan thinking along the same lines and then the melee will move along in swing-time.

Charlie Keller, old King Kong of the New York Yanks seems to be limbering up for the world series, judging from the manner in which he is pouring the pine to Sunday pitches these days. Incidentally Rudy York, at present the home-run king of the majors had better start swinging from his heels again or the Yankee powerhouse will be snatching the laurels away from him. Keller pounded out his 28th circuit clout of the season yesterday off Luman Harris of the Philadelphia A's after hitting his 17th the previous day. However the St. Louis Cards are probably not worrying. They are doing some power hitting themselves and Whitey Kurowski whose homer won the final game of the 1942 series hammered his 12th yesterday against the Chicago Cubs in a game which the Cards won 7 to 5, robbing Hank Bithorn of his chances of making the 20-win mark this season. Pitching feature of yesterday's menu was the one-hitter tossed by Al Javery against the Phillies to win an 8 to 0 shutout. Javery has had a great season winning 15 games for the lowly Braves. Schoolboy Rowe did a nice spot of pitching in the opening game of the double-header which the Phillies won 9 to 2. It was Rowe's 14th win of the year as against six losses.

He may be the southpaw they need for the world series.

World Series notes: The British Broadcasting Corporation announced last night arrangements have been completed for it to broadcast to American soldiers, sailors and marines in every theatre of war the highlights of each World Series baseball game just a few minutes after its completion. A summary of each game, the highlights of the play, and interviews with some of the players are planned for each program, the BBC said. The BBC sent reports of the World Series to the fighting forces last year. Meanwhile, New York Yankees announced Thursday that all reserve seats for the first three games of the World Series, to be played at Yankee Stadium Oct. 5, 6 and 7, have been sold. There still remain 28,000 unreserved seats.

Classes in Canadian football for high school students have been introduced at Halifax under the direction of grid stars from Ontario now here with the Royal Canadian Navy. Announcer Suspended

President Frank Shaughnessy of the International League yesterday took the unusual action of suspending announcer Sammy de Martino of the Newark Bears for the balance of the season for throwing a shirt in the face of Umpire Jim Tobin during a dispute in the previous night's play-off game between Syracuse and the Bears.

Following a highly successful financial season, President Bill Cox of the Philadelphia Nationals announced yesterday the club would build up a farm system which would assure good ball players in the future, adding that a number of important deals were pending.

Representative Samuel Weiss (Pa.) of the U.S. Congress agitated yesterday for the inclusion of Herman (Babe) Ruth in the major league baseball party which is to tour the South Pacific war theatre for a series of exhibition games. Weiss said the soldiers would get a thrill in seeing Ruth in a batting exhibition.

Only 229,295 persons attended the home games of the St. Louis Browns during the past season, the club's front office announced yesterday, the patronage total being well below the 1942 figure of 255,617. The lowest mark for the club was the 1939 attendance of 109,159 for all home fixtures.

Three more teams entered the City Five-Pin League to bring the total up to the limit of sixteen teams. The three entries were all members of last year's league, Chief Gimblett's team, the K. of C. and Canada Packers.

Canada Packers have practically the same squad as last year, Bill Downer, Al Heckman, Charley Orr, Ab Evans and Dave Todd. The Chief will have Joe Marsden, Tom Montgomery, Mel Starr, Bill Milliken and Chief Gimblett. K. of C. will be far stronger than last year with Vince, Len and Mel Anthony, Joe Denault and John Legrow.

A meeting of the team captains and any bowlers interested will be held at the Duffus Board Room September 23, when final plans will be discussed for the opening of the season.

CARDS AND YANKEES MAY CLINCH PENNANTS OVE R THE WEEK-END

Cards Defeat Cubs 7-5; Yanks Win 5-1

By JUDSON BAILEY,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

The pennants in both the National and American Leagues may be clinched to-morrow and Sunday.

The New York Yankees have upset the calculations of the figure filberts by winning nine consecutive games, their longest string of victories since they put together 11 in a row in July 1942, and now they have a chance to tie down the American League pennant mathematically in a three-game series opening tonight with Washington Senators.

Yesterday the Yanks polished off Philadelphia Athletics 5-1 with a four-run seventh-inning rally climaxed by Charley Kellers 28th home run and second in two days with a mate aboard. Lefty Marius Russo pitched four-hit ball and himself made two singles, scoring twice and starting the winning rally.

Several Homers.

St. Louis Cardinals, who clipped Chicago Cubs 7-5 yesterday night, might eliminate the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers from National League contention to-night, but will have to wait at least until to-morrow before freezing out Cincinnati Reds.

This is because the Dodgers had a game at Boston cancelled Wednesday. Thus the Cardinal "ocmbination" against Brooklyn is two and against Cincinnati is three.

The Cardinals found the Cubs tough customers yesterday, however and it took a two-run homer by George Kurowski in the seventh to settle the game.

In the only other games yesterday the Phillies and Boston Braves divided a dobule-header. Two homers by Coaker Triplett and one by Ron Northey helped the Phils to a 9-2 conquest in the opener, but Al Javary pitched a one-hit 8-0 triumph in the nightcap with Chet Ross collecting a three-run homer.

Combines Win 2nd Game Lacrosse Finals

MIMIMO, Sept. 17 — Springing back powerfully from their first game trimming Lakeshores forced Mimico-Brampton Combines into 10 minutes' overtime here Thursday night before bowing to the Mann Cup champions 14-11, in the second game of the best four-in-seven Ontario Lacrosse Association senior championship series.

It was a fast, clean contest with only nine penalties handed out. Around 2,000 sat in.

Bill Brunskill broke up the ball game by firing a shot past Red Hartley after 3:48 minutes of overtime. Ross Gimblett and Bill Isaacs added counters to make the issue sure.

Lakeshores put themselves back in the game hockey fashion. With about a minute left in regulation time, and the score 11-9 against them, another forward was substituted for Goalkeeper Hartley. The strategy worked, with Lakeshores scoring twice, Bucko McDonald notching the tying goal.

Brunskill led the Combine scorers with four goals, while Isaacs had three and Hayes two. Hayes, incidentally, left in the third with a bad hand. McDonald was tops for Lakeshores with three goals. Norm Gair and Freddy Smith were next with two apiece.

Because of wrangling over the referees, Secretary Gene Dopp will appoint the officials for the series' remaining games.

Lakeshores — Hartley, Murphy, Vipond, N. Gair, G. Gair, Love, Lee, Bain, Steggall, McDonald, Curran, Jordan, Smith, Garbutt, Savage.

Iroquois Trail Wins At Lindsay Fair

LINDSAY, Sept. 17.—The three-day race meeting in connection with the Lindsay Central Fair opened on Thursday afternoon under anything but ideal weather and track conditions. Rain early in the morning followed by another splash around noon all but washed all chances of racing out of the question. However, as the afternoon wore on a hurried consultation among the horsemen and the speed committee resulted in a substitute event being carded which filled a breach to a certain extent. Friday a high-class program is listed, among the events being the free-for-all pace which has such sensational sidewheelers as Lastic Grattan, 2:04¾ holder of the track record here, Miller Brooke 2:04¼, Hollywood Belwin, all the way from Brandon, Man., and Josedale Director 2:08, who has been racing sensationally through the East.

The 2:15 pace has performers such as Pine Ridge Jim, Patsy McGregor, Grattan Lee, and two or three more of like calibre.

H. Stewart, Peterborough, owner of Josedale Director, has disposed of Josedale Leader to A. Watts of Kingston, and Danny Barsac also found a new home with B. Davis, Westport.

St. Leger Race Goes Saturday

By ALLAN-NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEWMARKET, England, Sept. 17 (CP)—The bay streak that won the Derby and the colt it beat by a head likely will trot to the barrier as first and second favorites when the St. Leger pulls the curtain on the season's blue-ribbon racing events tomorrow.

In pre-race betting, Straight Deal, which gave Hon. Dorothy Paget her first Derby triumph in years of striving, was a 7-2 favorite for the St. Leger. Almost as close behind as in the Derby came Umidadd, one of the Aga Khan's three entries, at 5-1.

A filly, one of four in the field of 15 for the Classic, moved into third choice at 15-2. That was Tropical Sun, owned by Mrs. Catherine Macdonald-Buchanan, which placed third in last June's Classic for fillies, the Oaks, and won an important pate race at Salisbury a couple of weeks ago.

Summer favorite for the Fall Classic, Ribbon's odds lengthened to 9-1 after she placed fourth and last to the winning Umidadd in the Open Whepstead Stake at Newmarket the end of last month. Ribbon was second in the Oaks.

New Junior Champion

Bill Lech, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Lech of Peterborough, won the Canadian junior breast-stroke swimming championship at Winnipeg recently, competing against the cream of Canadian swim talent. It is the second Canadian title to be brought to Peterborough in recent years as Allan Marshall, now serving in the R.C.A.F., captured the senior title at Montreal. Both swimmers were trained by Gordon Minty at the Peterborough Y.M.C.A.

TORONTO, Sept. 17 — (CP). — Rejoicing over selection of Kingston as the site for a hockey Hall of Fame. Bill Walshe of the Kingston Whig-Standard, says part of the City Hall will be used to house the shrine until after the war. Then the museum probably will be built as part of a civic arena. Walshe discloses that the hockey moguls who chose the site for the memorial decided to send star teams to Kingston each year for exhibition games to finance the project, the same as baseball's Hall of Fame is supported in Cooperstown, N.Y. "The Hall of Fame should be a great tourist attraction with hockey fans from all parts of the world visiting to see souvenirs of the game," writes Bill, "while it should also mean a new rink for hockey in Kingston."

N.H.L. prospects:

Bobby Hewitson of the Toronto Telegram says Harvey Bennett, 17-year-old Oshawa Generals goalie, is a candidate to succeed Frank Brimsk in Boston Bruins nets.... Manager Frank Selke of Toronto says Leafs expect to have the Schriner-Carr-Davidson trio in action again despite Schriner's statement he'll retire. For forward duty Leafs expect to have last season's rookies, Jackie McLean, Jack Hamilton, Ted Kennedy, and Jack Ingoldsby, while Jack Forsey is available. As defence Leafs plan on Bucko McDonald, Elwyn Morris (discharged from the Navy here), and a boy named Shewchuck from the Lakehead. George Boothman, who saw some N.H.L. service last season, is available if needed. Selke says Reg Hamilton is in a cast with a back injury and unlikely to play. Turk Broda is reputedly slated for the Army next week and for goal Leafs are considering a couple of Ontario Juniors, Sutherland of Owen Sound and Mario of Toronto St. Mikes.

Incidentally:

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson reports the old Montreal Maroons puck star, Dave Trottier, has recently been appointed Nova Scotia manager for one of Canada's oil companies, headquarters at Halifax.....Western Canada hunters bemoan their luck. A general increase of 25 per cent over last year is reported in the duck crop. And there's little ammunition.

Pick Hurricanes To Win Rugby Honors

By The Canadian Press

Football firing opens tomorrow on three league fronts as six teams launch the 1943 Ontario Rugby Football Union season.

For the opening card of the Union's fifth war campaign, schedule makers have pitted Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes against Toronto Navy at Toronto, Toronto Indians against Hamilton Wildcats in the latter's home lair and Toronto Balmy Beach against Ottawa Combines in the Capital City.

Less advance publicity than usual has emanated from the various training camps but Hurricanes undoubtedly would be the pre-season consensus to win their second straight league crown. The 1942 Dominion champs have lost much of their heavy artillery but there is enough seasoned talent, mixed with a promising crop of freshmen performers, to indicate that Hurricanes again are the team to beat.

Hayman Too Busy

The Fliers will be coached by Ross Trimble, who returns to the strategy bench after a one-year absence from the grid. Trimble, coach of the Ottawa Rough Riders for five seasons, replaces FO. Lew Hayman, unable to return to the helm because of Air Force duties.

Navy's performance against Hurricanes will be closely scrutinized because of all teams, the Sailors are the hardest to assay. Only hard-driving OS. Sandy Milne is back from last year's squad and the problem for Coach Teddy Morris will be to weld an efficient machine from a host of youngsters, all of them unheralded and most of them untried.

The game at Hamilton marks the debut of two coaches—Earl Selkirk with Indians and Brian Timmis with Hamilton. Indians, in the second division last season, have lost quarterback and coach Annis Stukus to Beaches but retain 10 of last year's squad. Wildcats will introduce considerable new talent to the league, and Don Crowe, last year with Hurricanes. The Wildcats have also induced Jimmy Simpson and Abe Zvonkin, Tiger stars of former years to try a football comeback.

Toronto Drives For 4 Straight

(By The Associated Press)

After a day of rest the International League first-round play-offs resume today. Syracuse and Newark meet in an afternoon game at Newark while Toronto battles Montreal at Montreal in a night encounter.

Both Syracuse and Toronto hold leads of two games to nothing in the best-of-seven-game series and are hopeful of cleaning up in four straight.

round-the-clock bombing spurt into the third day. They came immediately after American bombers made one of the heaviest daylight assaults of the war against port installations, docks and airports in the Bay of Biscay area.

On Sept. 6, the R.A.F. bombed Munich, another major railroad tunnel into Italy. Munich is 350 miles northeast of Modane.

Two other major lines, through Gothard and Simplon tunnels, are closed to military traffic because they go through neutral Switzerland.

Thus the only unbombed route leading into Italy from the west is a secondary line along the Mediterranean coast, and this has been reported extensively sabotaged.

The air ministry communique said Fighter Command aircraft, one of which is missing, also attacked airfields and railway and other transport targets in France and the Low Countries during the night.

Beaufighters escorted by Fighter Command Spitfires set three minesweepers afire off the Dutch coast, it was announced.

Claim 20 Planes

The announcement did not elaborate on the Berlin attack by the Mosquitoes, but it was evidently another of the nerve-jangling jabs at which the speedy craft have become masters.

The German radio declared the R.A.F. flew over northern Germany last night in what it described as nuisance raids," but the broadcast added paradoxically that 20 of the attacking planes were shot down.

Berlin reported Marshal Petain had visited Mountlucon to inspect the damage caused by th R.A.F. and R.C.A.F., in the heavy raid Wednesday night on the Dunlop rubber factory there.

From the Cognac airfield German bombers take off to attack Allied convoys, tipping off submarines, and tangling with anti-submarine patrol planes.

In addition to hitting at Cognac, the Americans blasted port facilities and the airfield at Nantes, U-boat pens at La Pallice and LaRochelle airfield—flying some 1,600 miles to their most remote objectives to complete the longest daylight bombing operations in this theatre.

Are The Italians Down Hearted? – Look At This

This picture, taken in a Sicilian town as American troops poured through its streets to take possession of it, shows a scene typical of many Italian towns as news of Italy's surrender to the Allies sped through the stricken land. White bedsheets and tablecloths in token of surrender flutter from windows and balconies as the applauding townspeople gather on the streets to greet the men who freed them from the agonies of hopeless war and 21 years of Fascist tyranny. (International)

Recover $5,000 Of Stolen Money

WINDSOR, Sept. 17 —(CP)—Police said today they had arrested two more men for questioning in connection with the theft of $34,000 from the Royal Bank of Canada Branch at nearby Wheatley last Friday morning.

At the same time it was announced that police had found $5,000 of the stolen money in a preserving jar in a hollow tree on a side road near Tilbury. Last Saturday police found $6,400 in a room occupied by one of five men who have been charged with the robbery and now are being held in Kent county jail at Chatham pending a court appearance next Monday.

Police said the two men held for questioning are Harold and Gerald Gates, one of the five in jail at Chatham. The other four facing robbery charges are Allan M. Baldwin, Franklin F. Smith, Peter Devlin and Leo Dubroy.

been shot down or destroyed at Wewak in the past six weeks but today's communique said the enemy's "air strength in this theatre now is larger than ever" as result of continuous reinforcements.

In the Solomons, escorted bombers from Admiral William F. Halsey's command struck repeatedly at airdromes in the Buin area. More than 200 planes participated in the attacks, which were described as successful.

Bombers also attacked 35 to 40 barges along the New Guinea coast, sinking 15 and destroying or damaging the others. Three Japanese cargo ships were bombed and strafed in Buka passage. Another ship, a 1,500-ton freightre, received a direct hit with a 500-pound bomb and was left stationary and listing.

Seizure of Nosovka put Red Army troops in that sector only 40 miles southwest of Chernigov, on the road connecting Kiev with Gomel in White Russia. Motorized Russian columns were already reported advancing on both these enemy bases.

In all, a total of more than 225 towns and villages, many regarded as important strategically, were captured by the Russian armies during the day's advance, the Moscow communique asserted.

1,400 Coal Strikers

SPRINGHILL, N.S., Sept. 17 — (CP). — About 1,400 men in three Cumberland Railway and Coal Company collieries went on strike here Thursday and there were no indications they would return to work today. The dispute arose last Saturday when workmen on the 11 p.m. shift, who finished their quota, went home at 5.30 a.m. instead of staying down for the whole shift—until 7 a.m.

day, encountering no air opposition. R.A.F. Liberators and Halifaxes hit supply dumps in the area during the previous night in a raid coinciding with one carried out by medium bombers of the African force.

The Northwest African Air Command also sent medium bombers against enemy transports in the Auletta district Wednesday night while yesterday heavy and medium bombers ranged over highways, railway bridges and other points around Naples and Salerno. No enemy aircraft were encountered.

The medium and light bombers, fighter bombers and fighters pounded troop concentrations and transport again on the smoking, flaming battleground. The enemy airfield at Cisterna Littoria was attacked by light bombers last night.

One enemy aircraft was knocked down during the period and two Allied planes were listed as missing.

Gen. Clark declared yesterday that the 5th and 8th Armies would meet "in a matter of hours" as his forces went into their first real offensive since the original landings nine days ago.

A Surprise Move

A state of expectant mystery veiled the operations of the third Allied force in Italy — the British troops who sliced off the heel in the Taranto area and who then struck up to Bari, a logical jumping off place to smash across the Adriatic into the Balkans or to turn westward across the peninsula and squeeze the Germans at Salerno from the rear.

Meanwhile, Associated Press correspondent Daniel de Luce, who reached 5th Army Headquarters two days ago after a daring 100-mile trip through no-man's land in advance of the 8th, reported the Germans had thrown few obstructions in the path of Montgomery's veterans.

Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, commander-in-chief of land operations in Italy stepped ashore in the Salerno area Wednesday, possibly to be on hand to take personal command of the over-all operations in Italy when the 5th and 8th Armies become one united force.

Pay-As-You-Go Policy Urged By Bishop

TORONTO, Sept. 17 — (CP) — Gradually expanding activities in many fields of endeavor must be courageously met by the church, Archbishop L. R. Sherman told the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada today in presenting the report of the executive council's committee on apportionments.

The Archbishop of Rupert's Land declared he was not gloomy over the prospects of raising money needed in the church's program of advance. On the contrary he was assuming the efforts would meet with success.

He emphasized the matter of diocesan responsibility. The measure of success depended on the way the dioceses faced up to the task.

The church's program would be carried out on a "pay-as-you-go" policy and in this connection he stressed stewardship, responsibility, and giving.

Recommendations of the special committee appointed by the Primate to consider the program of advance included the provision of $49,647 over and above the accepted apportionments by dioceses for 1944 which amounted to more than $330,000.

The money is required to provide a minimum annual salary of $1,200 for married clergy in missionary dioceses and increased work of the departments of religious education and social service.

The lower house adopted a motion that the Synod should explore the whole field of publicity, its needs, nature, range and costs.

Archdeacon W. F. Wallace of Hamilton said Anglican publicity was comparatively ineffective. He quoted one delegate to the Synod as stating that the average clergyman knows "next to nothing about publicity."

Toronto Ice Companies Promise Aid To City

The city clerk, E. Outram, announced today that the fuel committee of the City Council under the chairmanship of Alderman R. Glover has been able to give concrete assistance to the ice dealers of Peterborough, who have been suffering a serious ice shortage.

Arrangements have been made with Toronto ice companies to have ice shipped to the city dealers if they desire it. Dealers previously reported that they were unable to get supplies from Toronto. The sale of ice will not be made through the city, but through the dealers alone. The fuel committee only carried out negotiations.

Premier Drew Greets Synod Delegates

TORONTO, Sept. 17 — (CP) — Members of the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada today had under consideration the general program of advance toward which the work of the Synod during last week has been directed.

The program launches the church into extended fields of endeavor and is linked largely with work of the missionary, social service and education boards.

Yesterday the Synod took advantage of a respite by extension of greetings from the Province of Ontario by Premier Drew. Speaking in his capacity as Minister of Education, the Premier said there is a close association between that department of the Government and the work of the Synod.

Speaking of juvenile delinquency, Premier Drew said, "We have failed to educate our youth. We must retain a closer relationship between the home, the church and the school."

He thought that out of the Synod's deliberations would emerge vigorous ideas which would have a direct influence on the youth of the country.

Report of the Pension Board indicated pension funds of the church are in a state of transition. Seven of the dioceses — those in central Canada—have their own pension fund, but 20 others in the east and west are operating on the General Synod pension fund.

The report said $1,800,000 is needed to put the fund on a solvent basis but speakers said a much larger sum would be required.

The Primate was requested to appoint a committee to organize an appeal to the whole church for the accrued liability of the dioceses boards on the General Synod pension fund and that of the seven central dioceses.

AMUSEMENTS FOR ALL THE FAMILY

Son Of Man Born Near Naples Is Now An Officer Serving Canada In Same Area

"I know I could have saved money for when I wouldn't be wanted any more, but ......"

Ferdinando De Maio measured his words reflectively, and smiling upon the alternative that probably glowed in his thoughts and strained for utterance in words, he left the sentence unfinished.

Instead, he pointed to the figure of a soldier in a group photograph taken somewhere in Sicily, and tapped it lightly, complaisantly, several times.

That was the spontaneous, unstudied little climax to the story about himself which he told an Examiner reporter yesterday afternoon, a natural touch of drama in a condensed narrative of his life's humble and hard work.

From the antecedent incidents leading to this suspension of interest, you could feel the words you knew he wanted to say, words that even yet left him marvelling in the reality and savor of their truth.

"....But, instead, this is my boy," and you look again at the figure

MAJOR ALEX DE MAIO

he identifies with his slowly tapping finger. "This is Major Alex De Maio of the Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineering Corps."

At the outset of the conversation he had actually said on looking at the picture for the first time. "Yes, that's Alex all right .... I have had three letters from him in the last week or so."

After piecing together the story which told of himself, the De Maios, father and son, seemed to change into persons of a significance reaching beyond themselves, characters in the epic story of this country and its expansion, and especially of Ontario, in the first half of this twentieth century.

"Somebody told me a picture of Alex was on the window of the Examiner, but they weren't sure because the name was not spelled quite the same," said Mr. De Maio in explaining the purpose of his visit.

It was immediately recalled, one of a series of Canadian Army photographs from Sicily, a group of five or six young officers studying a ground map. It was not used by the Examiner because the features of Major De "Mail' were not sharply distinct for clear reproduction. However, it had been recognized at the news desk.

The picture was given to the father as a souvenir of his son, another of the hundreds of Peterborough boys in the service, and that seemed the end of the incident. But as he was about to go, Mr. De Maio remarked that he had intended coming in to the Examiner to report a presentation that had been made to him by employees of the C. P. R. sections, maintenance of way men, between Havelock and Agincourt. Then, it transpired that he was superannuated by the railway company on July 1, and one question led to another until the personality of Fred De Maio, 149 Rubidge street, as he has been known these many years, began to emerge from the distant background of his youth in Italy and his coming to Canada as an immigrant Italian laborer.

"Some one made a mistake in my name when I first come to this country, and I let it go. It didn't matter much, and Fred was an easy name to say, but I was baptized Ferdinando De Maio."

Italian names are notably mellifluent, with their soft intergration of vowels.

The interview continued then with switch of emphasis from son to father, and probably because Mr. De Maio has reached the stage of life at which his work is behind him, his recollections appeared to please him.

"My father was a small farmer living near a town called Caserta. May be it is twenty miles from Naples, may be more. It took about an hour by train. Farms were small. Ten acres would be big, and rents were high if you didn't own some land. Cherries and figs were great fruit near my home. I can still see my father starting off with a load of cherries to sell in Naples. He used to burn lime, too. And all the farm work was done by hand then.

There were six of us in our family. The land was crowded and many Italians were coming out to the United States and Canada. I had a cousin who came to Montreal three or four years before me. He wrote there was lots of work, mostly on the railways and streets. I think the railways used to send agents to Italy to get laborers because they were badly needed. That's how I came to Canada.

My cousin met me at Montreal and I worked there for a while. Then an agent said there was lots of work in Toronto, and he would get me a job for three dollars. So I went to Toronto. I worked on the streets. They were just wooden and stone blocks, but they were starting to pave the streets and that took a lot of laborers. They were building new railways and making concrete sidewalks. That's why there was so much work when I first came.

I was twenty-five when I came to Canada. In 1904 I started with the C. P. R. as an extra man at West Toronto.

After a while some one said you could get five cents an hour more with the C. N. R., and I went there but the job fell through. I don't know what happened, but I was sorry I left the C. P. R. I go back to the foreman and he said if we crazy enough to leave the C. P. R. he shouldn't take us back, but he did, and I was with the C. P. R. ever since until I was retired. I worked on the section for a year or more, and then I got word from home my mother was very sick. I went home in 1905 to see her. She died about a month after I got there. My father was getting old, and I helped him for a while. I stayed a year, then I came back to Canada. I got married in 1907, and my two boys were born in Toronto.

I worked for the C.P.R. In 1912 we knew the Port McNicholl line was finished. One day the foreman put up a sign on our tool house about foremen wanted for the sections on the Port McNicholl line. I put in my name, and not long after that the Road Master said he was going to give me the Fleetwood section.

Fleetwood is six miles west of Bethany. The line ran from Dranoel through Lindsay to Port McNicholl, but the upper part was closed and it just goes to Bobcaygeon now. The Fleetwood section was six miles. The C.P.R. was building a house for the foreman. I sent out our furniture on a freight car. When I got off at Dranoel the first time, I started to walk with my wife and the two boys. Then I thought of the foreman of the first section, and I went to him and asked if he would take us up on his handcar, and he said 'sure,' and that's how we got there. Lucky, the car with the furniture got there just about the time we did. The house wasn't finished so we lived in a car for a while.

My daughter was born at Fleetwood and the two boys went to the Public school there. When Alex passed out of that school, I wanted him to go the High school at Lindsay. We were about fifteen miles from Lindsay, and I knew a few people there. One was Judge O'Connor, who later went to Cobourg. He said it was a good idea to encourage the boys to go on to school, and see how well they would do.

"Maybe one of them might be a lawyer some day," Mr. O'Connor said joking because he was a lawyer. He said he would speak to the teacher, but about that time there was an opening at Newtonville on the Lake Shore road, and I was sent there in August 1925. I was foreman at Fleetwood and Hillhead on the Port McNicholl line thirteen years.

You know I couldn't speak English when I came to Canada first time. I learned to say words, but for quite a while my tongue was no good. Then when I was made foreman at Fleetwood I could not write English. A man used to help me, but I saw that was no good to me, so I started to learn to write at nights after I got home. And that was a hard job. But, I had to read the letters they sent me, and to write back. I learned the letters and words from bills and books.

In September 1916 on the Fleetwood section I had an accident. Logs rolled down on me and cracked three ribs and bruised my body. I stayed off only ten days, but should have been maybe two months. You know the band of cotton the mothers wrap around the middle of a young baby? Well, my wife made one of them for me and used to wrap it around me and draw it tight so I could work after the accident. For days most of the time I could only lie down on the handcar or by the track. But, it was the fall and we had to get ready for winter.

My health was not as good after the accident, and I went back to Italy in 1921 to take the mineral baths I remembered. I went back twice, and the second time we were just three days out from Naples when we heard about Mussolini turning out the government.

At Newtonville Alex went to the Oshawa Collegiate the first year, but it was too far from home, so the next three years he went to the Newcastle High school. He got to the fourth form and won a prize, a scholarship for $125 and a pen and pencil set. He liked school and was into everything, the baseball team, mouth organ band, all the things the boys did.

In August 1929 I came to Peterborough, foreman of section No. 5, that is east from George street six miles. Alex went to St. Peter's High school and got his matriculation. His health was not very good, and he thought it would be best to work outside for a while. He got a job with the Wearever Brush Company in Toronto, and soon they made him manager at Windsor. He stayed there a year, and the outdoor work made him healthy.

I used to talk to him about what he was going to be. I told him why shouldn't he go on and study for a lawyer or doctor. That is what I liked for him. But, he said he didn't like either one, but he wanted to be a mechanical engineer, and that is how he started at the University of Toronto. My other boy wasn't interested in that, but he is a good boy, too. He is a foreman with the T.T.C. (Toronto Transport Commission) and is a good mechanic.

In his second last year Alex asked me what I thought about him getting married. That is the kind of boy he is. He would always ask me things like that, and I tried my best to help him. I said of course a young man should think of getting married, and may be it was all right even if he wasn't out of

War—25 Years Ago

By The Canadian Press.

Large Salmon Trout Caught In Stoney

An unusual catch is reported from Crowe's Landing, Stoney Lake where J. K. Tedford of Norwood, fishing for pickerel near Salmon Island the other day succeeded in hooking and landing a ten-pound salmon trout, the first reported caught in Stoney Lake waters for many years.

Old-timers recall the time when salmon-catching in Stoney Lake was a common occurrence. In fact Salmon Island near which Mr. Tedford made his capture was named because the surrounding waters were a favorite salmon fishing ground. However the fish had practically disappeared in the last 40 years.

Incidentally Mr Tedford has had a successful fishing trip for in addition to the salmon trout, he landed a 27-pound maskinonge, two nice pickerel and a smaller lunge all in a few hours fishing on another day of his visit.

Roy Whetung junior landed two fine muskies one afternoon recently, weighing 18 and 15 pounds and Don Whetung came in with five pickerel.

Mis F. M. Burnham, proprietor of Burnham Lodge, reports that the fishing in that neighborhood has been so good lately that it makes her think of her childhood days when she used to see nice catches of big fish brought in as an everyday occurrence.

Resorts Benefit

"We people here," she said "are garteful to the Ontario Government for putting in that lunge hatchery and for putting in so many bass and pickerel fry. Now we are reaping the harvest. We know that Mr. Charles Kingan is the person who started the fishing again after many lean years, so hats off to Mr. Kingan, please."

Miss Burnham tells a fish story that has been going the rounds of the Crowe's Landing sector. It concerned a woman tourist from the United States who was here two years ago and lost her purse containing $100. She was back this summer and recently when a big maskinonge was brought in she asked that it should be opened to see what food the fish had been eating. The operation revealed the woman's purse in the interior of the lunge, but instead of the original $100, it contained $102, the extra two dollars being the interest on the original loss.

American O.K. Needed

TORONTO, Sept. 17—(CP).—Toronto is prepared to send a delegation to Washington if such action is necessary to impress upon United States authorities the importance of obtaining a new military hospital here, Mayor F. J. Conboy said in an interview last night.

Down To 3 Cruisers

LONDON, Sept. 17—(CP Cable).—A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, told the people of Britain last night that at one time in the Mediterranean naval campaign Britain had only three cruisers left to meet the powerful Italian fleet if it dared to seek battle. Italy had six battleships and a number of other warships.

Reports 17 Ships

ISTANBUL, Sept. 17—(CP).—Seventeen Italian warships, both "large and small," have entered the Turkish port of Marmaris near the Island of Rhodes, the Istanbul newspaper Cumhuriyet, which has close contact with the Germans, said yesterday.

Large Expenditure

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—(CP).—United States has spent $124,800,000 for war purposes since the start of the defence program July 1, 1940, the War Production Board reported yesterday. The total includes expenditures September 1.

$440 Required To Complete 25th Donation

The Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund is on the high road to chalking up another achievement in the name of the residents of this city and district, with over three-quarters of the amount required to complete the next donation of £500 safely tucked away in the bank.

At the moment, about $440 is required to complete that amount, which will mark the 25th time that money will have been sent to assist the sufferers from air raids over Britain, directly through the Lord Mayor of London's Empire Air Raid Distress Fund, making a total of $13,600 that has been sent in this manner.

As one of the many achievements of the citizens on behalf of the war effort, it speaks in terms of real loyalty to the Empire cause, and the Motherland in particular, which will ever remain a real credit to them.

Bette Davis Club.

Once again, through the efforts of Bob Everitt, there is a list of personal donations of those who have followed the lead of Bette Davis, film star of Hollywood fame, in assisting the fund in this manner, which in the aggregate is now approaching the $50.00 mark. Four of these were visitors to the city from New York City, Fort Thomas, Kentucky, Niles, Ohio, and Neptune, N.J., who were glad to be associated with her in this manner, and the local list includes one with the Christian name of Betty, of whom there might be many more who could give in like manner.

Then the Stamp-Out-Hitler Clubs through Bob Everitt have come to bat once more with another donation of $5.00, which makes their total now stand a $184.50, and at $1.00 a time demonstrates just how well the clubs have stuck to the job of buying War Savings Stamps to help the fund along. This week's winners include W. Richardson and J. Comstock in the Kiwanis Club, K. Armstrong and D. Traymore in the reliable Canada Packers Club, and J. McIntyre in the Empress Hotel Club.

Included in to-day"s list is another personal donation from 'E.M.F." whose name has appeared so often in this column for the fund, evidence of an interest which does not grow cold.

R.A.F. Comes to City

About this time last year two soccer teams from the Royal Air Force stations at Picton and Mount Hope came to this city to play this Hope came o this city to play this popular British sport on behalf of the fund, which netted the sum of $311. This Saturday, September 18, they are playing the return game at Riverside Park for the same purpose, with the Picton team having much the same personnel as that which carried off the honors when the two teams met last year.

The kick-off will be made by His Worship Mayor Hamilton at 2 p.m. and one of the finest games ever seen here is expected to materialize with the Mount Hope team out to avenge their defeat of last year. The price of admission is only 25 cents, and since the lads in blue are paying their own expenses in coming here, and the Peterborough-Whitaker cricket team who are sponsoring this event, are taking care of local expenses, all the money thus raised will come to the fund.

Sport lovers will have an opportunity to witness an outstanding game at small cost, and in so doing honor the boys of the R.A.F., and through it also give their compatriots in the Motherland a helping hand through the fund.

The increase, which comes into effect September 27, must be used for the production of more newspapers and not larger newspapers.

Ten-Year-Old Boy Faces Theft Charge

The Examiner reported yesterday the theft of a wrist-watch from the home of Albert Murphy, Brock street.

Later yesterday a ten-year-old boy was arrested and was arraigned in juvenile court this morning on a charge of having stolen the time piece. He was remanded for trial.

Police are inclined to the opinion that much of the sneak-thieving that has been going on in Peterborough has been done by boys of tender years. Apparently they watch their opportunity and when a house is left unguarded for a few minutes they enter the premises and clean up any money that happens to be available.

There have been half a dozen cases in which money has been stolen from houses where people were sitting on the front verandah or outside in the garden.

Contribution of Canadian Women to War Dramatized by National Volunteer Week

Women's organizations across Canada are assisting the Department of National War Services in all-out effort to make National Volunteer Week, September 12th to 20th, a success. Canadian Legion service centre in Montreal provides many free services and facilities to young members of Dominion's three armed forces.

With a tremendously increased number of women in war industry in Canada peace time services such as child care are extended to meet new demands. At La Goutte de Lait, Quebec, medical aid and advice on nutrition are provided free by women volunteer workers when needed by mothers. Daily many babies are brought by parents.

Chinese survivors of a torpedoed vessel receive food and cigarettes from one of the Saint John Ambulance Brigade workers at the Navy League Seamen's Home in Halifax. Navy League also provides canteens, amusement centres for seamen.

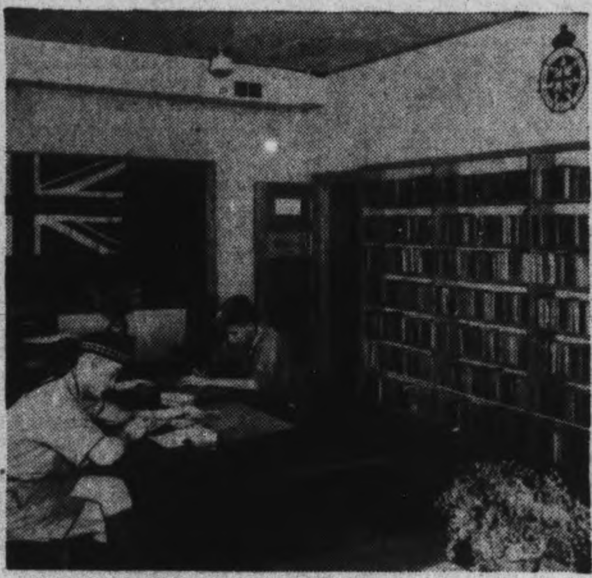
At the Red Cross prisoners of war packing depot in Toronto packages are filled with comforts and sealed by women volunteers with the organization's frank. On next floor packages are loaded into wooden crates for shipment to prisoners of war.

At United Services Centre, Winnipeg, volunteer worker S. Mundrick sews newly won stripes on uniform of Cpl. S. Watson, Montreal. Girls are experts with needle.

At the Y.W.C.A. Hostess House in Vancouver service men off duty and on leave find a home-like atmosphere of cheerfulness. Many facilities and aids to men in uniform are available, including a welcome snack with volunteer workers.

H.R.H. Princess Alice, Patroness, Women's Voluntary Services.

Major-General L. R. Lafleche, Minister of National War Services.



Library for Edmonton service men organized by the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire. Books have been sent to naval, air and merchant marine depots.

Many women are needed throughout Canada for part time employment in both war and non-war industries. Toronto's local Council of Women give valuable aid to National Selective Services offices in recruiting housewives for this work.

Problem Child Faces Murder Count

COCHRANE, Ont., Sept. 17 — (CP).—The defence rested its case to-day in the murder trial of 23-year-old Wilfred Desroches after his father testified that his behavior was some times irrational and his stepmother described him as a problem child.

Desroches is charged with the murder of Mrs. Alfreda April, fatally shot last July 1 when her husband, Jean Baptiste April, was wounded in the head.

The accused's father Romeo Desroches, testified to-day that his son had suffered head injuries which brought unconsciousness in a series of accidents in his youth. He added that his son had worked for him in his plumbing business in Cochrane this year.

At times he was a normal and trustworthy workman, but at other times was moody, showed temper, and was irresponsible. He complained of pains in his head and back.

The father continued that on June 22 he found his son drinking muriatic acid and when restrained said he "might as well be out of life as in, the way he was going."

The witness said that on the night of June 30 last he and his wife left Cochrane for their farm near Driftwood. They were awakened about 3 a.m. by Wilfred who appeared nervous and asked for money. The father said the son was given some beer but no money. Wilfred told him another man and two girls were in the car, said the witness who added that he did not see anyone besides his son.

Wilfred had spent two terms in jail for car theft, the father said.

Mrs. Desroches, who described the accused as a problem child, testified that once when he was 15 he was called into the house to do some work. He had been shooting birds with a slingshot and Mrs. Desroches said he had threatened "one of these days I will kill you."

The Crown completed its case yesterday except for one witness, an alienist, who was to testify this afternoon.

Air Gunner Died In Raid On Dam

HAMILTON, Sept. 17—(CP)—Sgt. Albert Garshowitz, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Garshowitz of Hamilton, one of the R.C.A.F. men selected for dam busting operations over Germany last May 17, is believed to have been killed over the target, his parents said today.

Word has been received from his squadron leader and from the International Red Cross Society stating that the plane in which Garshowitz was serving as a wireless air gunner was shot out of the air by anti-aircraft fire as [illegible] Mohne Dam.

His parents also received a letter from Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner in London, paying tribute to his courage.

Cigarette-Smoking Catholic Priest Bewilders Italian Child In Sicily

By MAURICE DESJARDINS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN ARMY IN SICILY, Aug. 28—(Delayed)—Sitting at the wheel of a jeep in a public square of a Sicilian village, Capt. Joseph Wilhelm of Hamilton, Ont., chaplain of a Canadian mechanized regiment, puffed on a cigarette after a long and dusty ride.

He was dressed in shorts and shirt of light cloth and his Roman collar alone indicated that he was a priest.

Intrigued by the Roman collar, a [illegible] the jeep and asked in Italian: "Are you a priest?"

"Why yes, my little one," replied the chaplain who speaks Italian fluently.

"Roman Catholic?" the girl asked.

"Yes."

"But Sicilian priests are not dressed as you," said the youngster as she eyed the chaplain's shorts.

Somewhat amused, Capt. Wilhelm replied: "As we form part of the army we must dress like the soldiers." "In Canada," he said, "we wear soutanes like your priests."

But here, the girl said, "priests do not smoke cigarets."

"That," said the chaplain, "is a privilege accorded to military chaplains."

Slowly, as though she feared the reply, the girl risked another question. "Are you married, father?"

Apparently relieved of a great burden, the youngster sighed heavily and then enthusiastically kissed the chaplain's hands.

The jeep in which the captain was seated was the same which carried him into attacks with his regiment. Several times he had to seek refuge [illegible] during enemy bombardments. Once, he just had time to slide under a tank where four other soldiers were already dodging from a mortar shell which fell six feet away.

When the mortar exploded, the five, as one man, shouted "I've been hit." The padre helped to administer first aid.

On another occasion when he saw there was a sufficient number of soldiers in the one place, the captain decided to say Mass. He wasn't half way through the ceremony before the enemy spotted the group and opened fire. The soldiers quickly dispersed and the Mass was postponed until the following day.

Caught With Opium

HALIFAX, Sept. 17 — (CP) —Li Cheong and Lo Sun, Chinese merchant seamen, were each sentenced to six months in jail and fined $200 for illegal possession of opium here yesterday. Opium and opium-smoking equipment, were seized by police from among their belongings aboard an Allied freighter in port: Lo Sun said he obtained his opium in Liverpool, England.

Second Trenton Flier Stricken With Polio

TORONTO, Sept. 17—(CP)—Victim of poliomyelitis, an airman from the R.C.A.F. station at Trenton, Ont., rested today in an iron lung in hospital here after two fellow airmen at Trenton applied artificial respiration until an ambulance arrived.

There was no iron lung available in Trenton when the airman was stricken yesterday, so two other airmen, working alternately, applied artificial respiration while an ambulance raced to the station from Toronto. A second airman stricken with the disease at Trenton Tuesday was brought by train to Toronto and now is in an iron lung.

Noted Surgeon Admires Reds

MONTREAL, Sept. 17—(CP)—Dr. Wilder Penfield, noted Canadian neurosurgeon and a member of a surgical mission just returned from Russia, said today that Russian medicine and surgery "was on a par with ours, but they are superior in other directions notably in the use of blood plasma."

He added the Russian system of handling casualties "is unequalled anywhere" and that he had no reason to doubt that 70 per cent of the casualties brought to hospitals have been cured and sent back to the front lines for further duty.

"This is a remarkable showing, and reflects the efficiency with which Russian medicine and surgery carries on daily, month after month," he said.

During his visit to the Soviet Dr. Penfield said he toured the front line fighting forces and spent two days in the Vyasma area.

"The Russians showed us everything we wanted to see," he said.

New Destroyer Ready On Saturday

OTTAWA, Sept. 17—(CP)—When the first Canadian-built destroyer, the Tribal Class Micmac, slides down the ways into the water of Halifax harbor Saturday a new milestone in Canadian industrial and naval history will pass.

The Tribal is the largest ship-of-war ever built in Canada and its launching will mark the beginning of the time when Canada's growing navy looks to Canadian factories and shipyards for its heavier fighting equipment.

A second Tribal is under construction at Halifax and may be launched before the end of the year, while the keel for a third will be laid when the Micmac moves out.

Three Tribals built in Great Britain already have been launched for the Canadian Navy and a fourth is under construction there. The Micmac launching takes place just 15 months after the keel was laid. The ship is designed primarily for fleet escort duty but may also be employed on convoy duty.

Naval service headquarters said today the new vessel is about 300 tons heavier and 50 feet longer than the next largest Canadian destroyer class, with an over-all length of 377 feet, a beam of 37½ feet, and a displacement of more than 2,000 tons.

Principal armament comprises six 4.7-inch guns, compared with the norml destroyer armament of four such guns. It also carries two four-inch guns, while anti-aircraft equipment consists of a multiple pom-pom mounting and several Hurricane guns.

"I'm with you all the way to VICTORY"

"I've always been proud of Congoleum and Congoleum-by-the-yard which is only natural, seeing I've been their trade mark all these years," says Mr. Gold Seal. "But never prouder than I am now for I know these fine floor coverings are doing a real home-front war job—building morale by always presenting a bright, cheerful front under heavy usage. And believe me, Congoleum's ability to 'take it' counts double these days when replacements are so hard to get. It's value you can count on all the way to the day of Victory."

HOW TO HELP
MR. GOLD SEAL MAKE GOOD

You can get added wear out of your Congoleum floors with very little effort. Brush and mop them regularly and renew the brightness of their surface with an occasional waxing. Make sure too, that the floor underneath is smooth and free from crevices or knobs. If it's a rug, move it every few months to "spread" the traffic. Yes, a little care will pay big dividends.

Plan For Hospital Care Described at L.C.W. Meeting

Mr. G. W. Ralph was guest speaker on Thursday afternoon at the September meeting of the Local Council of Women, held at the Y.W.C.A. Mr. Ralph spoke on the Blue Cross Plan for Hospital Care.

The speaker told of the beginning of this plan 10 years ago in Dallas, Texas, where it was conceived by a student teacher whose room-mate had been rushed suddenly to the hospital, and had no money to pay a hospital bill. It was at first a plan by which students at the teachers' college paid into a fund a small sum monthly, to cover any hospital expenses incurred by the students. From that small beginning the plan spread until there are 76 such plans in the United States and Canada.

It is a non-profit plan, the Boards serving without pay, and all money paid is being spent on benefits to the subscribers. "It is," said Mr. Ralph "a common-sense plan for the protection of your health." The cost of subscription to the plan is very low, fifty cents a month for single people and one dollar for an entire family, regardless of the size of the family.

For this sum the subscriber is entitled to 21 days in hospital, meals and dietary service, the use of the operating room as often as is necessary, pathological services, emergency services of the hospital, ordinary drugs and medicines, and, after twelve months subscription, one half of the cost of maternity care.

Open To Groups

In order to control the cost and to keep the cost of operation as low as possible, enrolment in the plan is openly only to groups and a 40 per cent enrolment is required. The plan is sponsored in this province by the Hospital Association of Ontario and in the two years since its founding here, has enrolled 230,000 people. It has the approval of the department of health and is the only plan of its kind approved for pay-roll deductions by the Civil Service departments at Ottawa. Benefits have been increased three times in Ontario, for every time the fund accumulates beyond a certain point the benefits must be increased or the cost lowered. It is hoped, in time, to include surgical costs in the benefits to Ontario subscribers. The fund at present covers only hospital expenses, not the doctor's bill. The Plan is at present paying out an average of 1,800 claims a month.

The meeting was also addressed by Miss Gladys Costello, of the National Selective Service office, who spoke of the drive to begin in Peterborough next week, to register housewives for part-time work in order to relieve the current labor shortage. Part-time work consists of working three to four hours a day six days a week, but not more than twenty-four hours a week. The appeal has been sponsored in several large cities by the Local Council of Women, and the National Council has sponsored it for the country. Women are desperately needed at present for work in war industries, laundries, hospitals, hotels, and institutions.

The work, Miss Costello admitted, is neither easy nor attractive, and it is often dull and uninteresting, but it is vitally necessary. Women who decide to do this part-time work will be paid a standard rate of wages and will have a choice of hours. They will not be frozen to any job, and there is no age limit. The campaign has been a tremendous success in Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal, where the L.C.W. have sponsored the drive and have procured volunteers to help with the registration.

Want Registrars

Mrs. Morton, president, who was presiding at the meeting, called for volunteers to help with the registration of part-time workers, which is to be begun next week in Peterborough by Mrs. Rex Eaton.

The annual fall tea of the L.C.W. will be held on October 8 and will be the occasion for the celebration of the 30th anniversary of the organization. In response to many requests the doll house, made by John Todd, and belonging to Mrs. W. Addyman, which was on display at the Spring tea, will be shown again, and in order that everyone may have the opportunity of seeing it, the tea will be held from six until 9.30 p.m.

Mrs. E. Wand announced that $10 had been donated to the Peterborough Corvette Fund, to provide First Aid Kits for the men. Miss M. Stevenson was appointed to take Mrs. Stanger's place as Library convener and regret and sympathy were expressed for Mrs. Stanger, who is confined to Nicholls Hospital with a broken hip. Mrs. W. Addyman spoke briefly on the League of Nations.

HAVELOCK

Church To Have New Honor Roll

HAVELOCK, Sept. 17.—(ENS).—At the Fall quarterly rally of the Women's Association on Wednesday afternoon, it was decided to purchase an honour roll for the church, on which are to be placed the names of all boys and girls serving in the armed forces.

A new silver baptismal font is to be purchased to replace the one destroyed in the parsonage fire last December. Mrs. H. Hoard reported the church ferns had been repotted and that she and Mrs. Cecil Anderson would keep them for the winter months. Son Of Man Born Near Naples college yet. His wife could stay with us until he was finished.

At last he got his degree and he went down to see Mr. Cranfield at the C.G.E., and Mr. Cranfield took him in. I think it was the wire department, and he was an engineer. That was maybe a year and a half before the war broke out. The C.G.E. was going to make some important changes in the wire department. But, the war came and Alex said to me he didn't feel right at work and he thought he would join up, and what did I think of it. I said 'you know Alex this is a big war; have you thought it all over,' and he said yes. He always wanted to be into things. I told him if that was the way he felt it was all right with me. He went to the medical board at Kingston and was passed all right physically. He told some one in Toronto he wanted to go with the engineers because he thought that was where he would be the best. They told him to go home and wait, and three weeks later he got a telephone call. They asked him if he was still willing to join up, and he said yes, and they told him to report at London, Ontario.

Alex has been overseas about three years. He took engineering work with the British Army in England, and now he is a Major."

And that is the story behind the young Canadian officer in the Army photograph which came to the Examiner a few days ago. Alex DeMaio enlisted three years ago last May. Apparently he was the senior officer of the group of officers in that picture. The text with it said: "Officers of the Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers confer in an olive grove in Sicily," with the name of each man and his rank. The others were lieutenants.

Possibly the son of Ferdinando De Maio may be with the British and Canadian forces who have landed in Italy, a Canadian officer, son of the immigrant laborer who left that land forty years ago to come to Canada. Possibly, too, he may reach the hinterland of Napoli where his grandfather was a small farmer near Caserta of the luscious cherries and figs.

From all the questioning of Mr. De Maio came the impression that he felt he had squared his account with this country in giving to its Army an officer of the engineering corps, active, healthy and energetic and highly qualified by the university education the father had encouraged in every way. At any rate, the story fuses the elements of irony and drama and romance, virtually the substance of fiction, suggesting a theme for a novelist with vision to see a broad phase of the progress of this country since the turn of the century.

And so it leaves Major De Maio with the Mediterranean forces. As to the father, the C.P.R. retired him on its superannuation plan effective last July 1. His attitude toward the company was expressed in one remark about the accident he suffered in 1918. "I was more interested in the railway than in myself."

Behind him are the long winters and the heat of many summers, the cold and sweat of maintaining the sections that were placed in his care.

"And last winter was one of the worst," he recalled. "We couldn't get enough men. The Selective Service couldn't help us. I worked more extra hours at nights until eight and nine sometimes ten o'clock, even some Sundays, than I ever did before."

Well, he has the rewards of both a dutiful father and employee.

"When Alex heard I was going to be retired, do you know what he did? Sent me £25; that was $110.75. Alex is a good boy...Tomorrow evening (Friday) I am leaving on a trip for Vancouver."

"Fred" De Maio has a lifetime pass over the C.P.R., but he has a notion he is going to be lonesome for his section crew. And for the grand present all the sectionmen between Havelock and Agincourt gave him—he has almost forgotten that it is for the same man, who joined the C.P.R. forty years ago, then a "foreigner" who could speak only a few essential words of English.

Canada opened its gates to Ferdinando De Maio without question, handed him a pick and shovel and crow bar, clipped his name to Fred and told him to go to work. The C.P.R., at least, believes that he has fulfilled his unwritten contract. Possibly, as he became acquainted with this new country he might have been able to find an easier job for himself, as so many others have done, since his coming. But, he didn't try. In the memory of his section work he feels that he has had some small part in building up one of the greatest transportation systems in the world.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

WIFE AS MANAGER ALL RIGHT BUT SHE MUST EXERCISE TACT

Man Has to Be Charmed Daily; Woman Should Keep Herself Kissable.

Men, taking them by and large, do not object to their wives managing them. The thing that gets in their hair is the raw way these mates do it. So, ladies, if you want to keep your husbands eating out of your hands, stow these DON'TS in your bag along with your ration book.

Don't be a repeater. When you tell your husband once about fixing the leaking faucet, or the way he eats his eggs at breakfast, let it go a that. He will listen the first time you say it. The second time he will only grunt. After that he calls it nagging, gets his back up, and will be darned if he does it.

Don't make your husband an erpublic. Every man wants his wife to be his showman and turn the spotlights on his good points, and it gets his goat if she edits his conversation and supervises his table manners before people. "Darling, do tell the Smiths that terribly funny story you were telling me last night and that you do so well" has gotten many a wife a mink coat.

Don't make your husband an errand boy Don't make a busy man, who is rushed to death with his own business, stop on the way downtown to order groceries, or match a spool of elephants' breath silk. Don't expect a man, who has a thousand important decisions to make, to burden his mind with finding out at just what time Aunt Jemimah's train is coming in, or knock off work and go to meet her. Attend to your own affairs. Do your own shopping and telephoning. Running the house is your end of the domestic partnership, and you have no more right to expect your husband to pinchhit for you in it than he has to expect you to come down and scrub the office floors.

Don't talk too much about yourself. Don't tell your husband all your mistakes and blunders. Keep them under your hat. All that a husband ever knows about his wife is what she tells him. She writes her own price tag. If you make a batch of biscuit that look and taste like ammunition chuck them in the garbage can and say nothing about it. If you buy a misfit hat that makes you look like a figure of fun give it to your deadliest enemy But when your biscuits are as light as a feather and your new hat makes you look ten years younger call attention to them, and he will think you are a g eat cook and have wonderful taste and judgment.

Don't mix your husband up in your family spats. When you and your sisters have a quarrel and say mean things to each other don't rush home and tell your husband all about it. In a week you will forget the little catfight, kiss and make up, and be as fond of each other as ever, but your husband will remember it as long as he lives and will give your people a frosty welcome when they come to visit you.

Don't give your husband overdoses of your family, anyway. Feed them to him in small quantities with a respite between the takings. Most men are pretty good sports about their wives' people, but they can get mighty fed up on them when there is always some visiting relative under foot. After all, when a man marries a girl he doesn't intentionally espouse also her father, mother, brothers, sisters, and cousins and ounts.

Don't deny your husband all personal liberty. Just remember that he has been a free man for a number of years, and that if he ever had even a suspicion that he was forfeiting all his rights and privileges when he married wild horses couldn't have dragged him to the altar When you see a man whose wife picks out his clothes for him, tells him what to eat, a man who has to furnish an alibi for being ten minutes late for dinner, and wouldn't dare take an old woman friend out to lunch, you are beholding a gentleman who is going to be a mighty reconciled widower if the Lord should see fit to remove his Maria.

Don't be a crepe-hanger. Don't be always whining and complaining over your lot in life. Don't meet your husband when he comes home at night with a tale of woe about everything unpleasant that has happened during the day. Don't rehash every calamity that you have heard of for the last year and serve it up with the dinner. Your husband has plenty of griefs of his own and he needs to be bucked up instead of depressed. So pack up your troubles in your own kitbag and tell him a funny story. The ideal wife is a ray of sunshine instead of a wet blanket.

And, finally, don't expect your husband to stay in love with you if you go slouchy around the house, if you are high-tempered and hard to live with, and if you make no effort to please him. It isn't enough to fascinate a man once. You have to do it over again every day. And the wife who wants to be kissed has to keep herself kissable.

The Experts Say . . . .

By The Canadian Press

OTTAWA, Sept. 17 — (CP). — More ideas from home economists and dietitians for the benefit of busy housewives:

SHINE REMOVER— Solution for shine is found in a quick little recipe that requires such homely ingredients as vinegar, borax, a hot iron and flannelette. The solution requires four cups of hot water, two tablespoons of vinegar and one teaspoon of borax. A flannelette cloth wrung out of the solution should be placed flat on the ironing board and the shiny part of the garmen laid right side down on that cloth. It should then be covered with a dry cloth and pressed. Be sure to stop pressing before the damping cloth is dry, otherwise the nap will be pressed flat.

Shake the garment, let it dry and then brush with a clothes brush. This treatment is designed to bring up the nap, take off the shine and give the wool new life.

ODDS AND ENDS— Perhaps you have been wanting some table runners or new cushion covers for the couch pillows on the sun porch. Here are two likely suggestions on how you can have them without spending any money.

And one more point—your terry cloth beach robe, gone at the shoulders but with yards or good material in the skirt, will make durable cushion covers.

SUGAR AS ALTERNATIVE — There's nothing like having your own preserves, and now that there is a price ceiling of grapes and they promise to be fairly plentiful, the thrifty housewives in the grape belts are planning to "do down" quantities of the luscious fruit.

Women who prefer to make their own preserves are permitted to buy sugar as an alternative to commercial sweetspreads. Right now this will mean more preserves in the fruit closet, and later on it will mean more sugar for apple sauce and that extra bit of baking.

VITAMIN SOSURCE — Pickled rose hip berries sound like an exotic accompaniment to a meat or fish dish, but, nutritionists say, they are a sensible one, for unlike most pickles, which have practically no food value, pickled rose hips are a valuable source of vitamin C.

Tests of Canadian-grown rosehips have shown them to be an excellent source of this difficult to secure vitamin. By using them—and they are free for the picking—Canadian housewives can do much to supplement the limited vitamin C supply during the winter months.

Jam, juice or syrup, as well as pickles, may be made from rosehips, and one of these products should be on the preserve shelf of every family with access to the country, where these little red berries are ripening in abundance at this time of year.

For Saturday, September 18

TODAY'S ASTRAL aspects are of great significance in social, artistic and domestic relations, in which there may be more than ordinary functions or celebrations, this probably in appreciation of promotion, honors, preferment or favors from those in high places. It is a propitious time for seeking these distinctions, but with some circumspection in regard to subtle alliances or intrigue that might unfold doubtful denouements. Likewise be cautious with writings or signatures.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may hope for a prized promotion, honor, favor or token of preferment, with the friendliest of feelings from those in power and high standing. There is likely to be much social celebration in honor of this distinction. In business relations sign papers cautiously and in all matters beware of entangling alliances which might in the end prove regrettable. Aim high for worthwhile promotion or progress.

A child born on this day should be endowed with much versatility, artistic ability and ambition, which should enlist the friendly support of superiors, employers or those in high station and influence.

Price Control Ration News

The Women's Regional Advisory Committee, Consumer Branch, Central Ontario, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, answers questions put to this paper regarding price control and ration regulations.

Q. We have a couple of hives of bees, but not enough honey for commercial purposes. Can we eat as much as we wish ourselves, now that honey is rationed? Can we give some toa sick friend or to a neighbor who has previously given us something from his garden? If we cannot eat it all ourselves, what can we do with the surplus as it is not extratced but in large combs?

A. As there are no restrictions on your own consumption, you may eat as much honey as you wish yourselves .... You may give some to a sick friend or to neighbours providing they give you the proper number of D ration coupons. You in turn, will surrender these coupons to your local ration board office with particulars .... A producer of less than 2,000 lbs. of honey a year is required to register with the local ration board as a producers of extracted or comb honey and surrender coupons to that office.

Q. My butcher charges 41c gal. for vinegar. But when I took my own quart sealer in to him yesterday, he charged me 15c qt. was I overcharged.

A. If this same store charged 41c gal. and 15c qt. for the same quality of vinegar in the basic period, Sept. 15 to October 11, 1941, then you were not overcharged. However, if you have reason to believe your butcher has raised the price since that time, please let us know and the matter will be investigated at once.

I have always paid 39c for a particular brand of mayonnaise. Now I notice it is 45c a jar. Is this right?

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 17—(ENS)— The Women's Association of St. John's Anglican Church held a business meeting on the parish hall lawn this week.

The president, Mrs. S. A. White, presided and the members set the date for the annual meeting of the Peterborough Deanery which will be held in Lakefield on Friday, October 22.

The first of the regular fall meetings of the W.A. will be held next Tuesday afternoon.

NATURALIZATION REVOKED.

LONDON—(CP) — Home Secretary Herbert Morrison has revoked the British naturalization granted Anna Wolkoff, until 1935 a Russian subject, because of "disaffection and disloyalty", Miss Wolkoff, 40, was sentenced to 10 years in penitentiary in 1940 for attempting to send a letter in code to Germany's "Lord Haw-Haw."

If You Suffer 'PERIODIC'

FEMALE PAIN

Which Makes You Weak, Cranky, Nervous—

If you, like so many women and girls suffer from cramps, headaches, backache, "irregularities", periods of the blues — due to functional monthly disturbances—

Start at once—take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This effective liquid not only helps relieve monthly pain but also tired, weak, nervous feelings. This is because of its soothing effect on ONE OF WOMAN'S MOST IMPORTANT ORGANS.

Taken regularly—Lydia Pinkham's Compound helps build up resistance against such symptoms. Thousands upon thousands report help. Also a fine stomach tonic. Made in Canada.

C.D.S. Salutes Peterborough's Women Volunteers

This week is dedicated to women . . thousands of them. Anonymous, busy women . . the shock troops of the home front . . guarding hearth and heritage! Women, stretching out helping hands to neighbours, to friends, to people in other countries. Women who spend selfless hours, voluntarily—in canteens, in hospitals, in sewing-rooms and service organizations. Women who have faith in their nation's future . . living the true meaning of loyalty . . without glory, without glamour, yet helping to speed the Victory and lasting peace.

Here's a Partial List of Their Activities—

- "MISS CANADA" GIRLS— Selling War Savings Stamps for War Finance Committee.
- RATIONING CLERKS—Assisting Local Ration Board.
- CANTEEN AND HOSPITALITY HOSTESSES— For Citizens' Co-ordinating Committee.
- SALVAGE WORKERS—Collecting Waste Metals, Rubber, Paper, Fats, etc.
- CLERICAL WORKERS—For Army or Patriotic Work.
- CHILD WELFARE WORK.
- A.R.P. WORK—And Blackout Demonstrations.
- PHYSICAL FITNESS AND NUTRITION COURSES—For War Workers.
- —And assisting any organization that requires extra help.

WOMEN VOLUNTEERS ARE URGENTLY NEEDED FOR THESE ACTIVITIES—

Hospitality Hostesses – Salvage Helpers – "Miss Canada" Girls

Notable Card Billed For Monday

A thumping good card of wrestling bouts has been lined up for Peterborough fans who visit the Brock Arena next Monday night. The main bout is the re-match between Pat Flanagan and Dick Hogan who battled to such a thrilling mix-up here this week. Hogan is burning over the decision of Referee Maxwell which deprived him of what he fondly thinks should have been a sure win for him. Flanagan also is on fire to again lock horns with the rampaging Richard. In fact the usually quiet Irishman has sounded off with considerable heat about Hogan's illegal antics. The result is all the makings of a grudge match and it should be something worth seeing.

An important pair of matmen collide in the semi-final in the personsof Doc. Tony Felice and Earl McCready. Both of these wrestlers are mainbouters in their own right but have agreed to take semi-final position this time.

LAWN BOWLING

All roads lead to the bowling club this evening. This is the night of our big free mixed rink tournament. 7.30 o'clock is the hour and please be on time.

It will be P. Moore vs. R. Burns in the final of the main event of the extra series competition. The consolation event has reached the eights. Both these competitions will continue on Monday evening.

Yesterday in the ladies section saw the completion of the club doubles. Just who is who or how the standing is we won't know until the committee gives us their official count. This has always been a good series, but it was unfortunate that so many who had asked to play in these games should default. It makes it bad all around.

Last Night's Scores

R. Burns	19	J. Harrison	17
P. Moore	23	R. Dyer	8
G. Coleman	19	H. Freeman	12
H. Clegg	20	G. Gimbleett	15

Monday's Draw

Primary Finals: P. Moore vs. R. Burns.

Consolation Event

J. Harrison vs. G. Colman.
H. Clegg vs. T. McMillan.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

PROBABILITIES CAN FAIL

IT IS ALL well and good to know the probabilities regarding distribution of the outstanding cards of a suit, but depending upon them is bad bridge if you have some other method available which will succeed whether the probabilities stand up or not. There is always the chance that they will fail you.

After the diamond 2 was led to the K and A, South decided to go after the heart suit. He led the Q to the K, and West returned the club 4 to the J and A.

Here is where South slipped. With four trumps out, he reckoned he could drop them in two rounds, and so could afford to ruff a diamond in dummy and still be able to take two trump tricks there. After the diamond ruff, he led the heart J. East put on the A and South trumped with the spade 5. Playing now for the trump break, he led the spade 6 to the A and then the Q. If both had followed, he could now have discarded all of his losers on hearts. But East did not follow, putting on a diamond. The heart 10 was then led for a discard of the last diamond, but West trumped and then scored two clubs to beat him.

After taking the third trick with the club A, South could have scored the spade K, led to the A and then launched the heart J. If East used the A, he could ruff, then go to dummy with the last trump and score hearts. If East ducked, a club discard could be taken, followed by another heart for a second club toss, which West would ruff with his final trump. That method would have produced an extra trick.

A simple way to make the contract surely would have been to ruff a diamond on the second trick, lead to the club A, ruff a second diamond, score the spade A and lead a heart. This way nothing could be lost except the heart trick and two in clubs.

Pioneer Store Once Owned By Ben McGill

JANETVILLE, Sept. 17 — J. R. Hall and Son, Lloyd Hall, of Norwood are tearing down their former store here which was near the the house recently sold to Mr. Alan McGill.

The Hall Store was the first store in Janetville and was opened in 1854. 2? years after the coming of the first settler.

The pioneer owners were Thomas and Robert Timmins two brothers who came from Hastings district and at that time the Post Office was located in this store. Later when the Government changed the Post Office was transferred to the store which was later operated by the Cherry Bros. as a shoe store and located where Deputy Reeve Albert Heaslip's Garage now stands.

Some years later the Timmins store was rented to Mr. McKinnon and Son of Stouffville while the Timmins' family bought the property (now owned by Mrs. J. Porter) and lived retired.

Peterborough Owner.

Following the McKinnon's the store was rented to Steve Fuller from Napanee and later to Dan Lavery who was known for his musical ability, teaching music and singing and directing choirs throughout the district.

The next owners were two local men Ben and James McGill brothers of Mrs. James Moore of Lndsay. The late Ben McGill was formerly in Peterborough.

Some years later the store was purchased by Walter Brown of Lindsay who sold out to Walter McGill son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McGill of Janetville.

In 1912 Mr. McGill and family decided to go West and the store was sold to Mr. and Mrs. George Beggs of Burnt River. During their residence here the store was in charge of Mrs. Beggs while Mr. Beggs was Principal of South Janetville School.

Changes Hands.

After some years Mr. and Mrs. Beggs moved to Pontypool and sold the store to Frank Hall of Myrtle who in about 2 years started a business at Atherley and sold out here to his brother, John Hall of Burketon. The later after a few years purchased a store at Harwood having rented this store to Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Brunt, of Pontypool. Two years ago Mr. and Mrs. Brunt moved to Oshawa and since that time the store has been closed.

The tearing down of this store removes not only an old familiar landmark from pioneer days but also the scene of much friendly and cheerful activity and happy memories.

Finnish Heads Consider Peace

By JOHN COLBURN
Associated Press Staff Writer

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 17—(AP) — The Finnish Government is devoting full attention to the possibilities of a separate peace with Russia as the realization grows that every advance of the Soviet army jeopardizes Finland's chances for the peace terms she wants.

A committee is meeting twice weekly to review the situation with President Risto Ryti, Premier Edwin Linkomies and Foreign Minister Henrik Ramsay, although Parliament is in recess until Oct. 1.

There is a growing agreement in Finland that any bargaining with Russia on peace terms must start soon—but there is still hesitancy among Ryti, Linkomies and Ramsay on how to approach the Soviets.

The possibility that all three might have to step out of the government along with Finance Minister Viano Tanner whose anti-Soviet views have been undisguised, was being discussed both in Finland and here.

Allied Soldier Talk To Friendly Italians

WATFORD, England, Sept. 17—(CP)—An 18-year-old deck boy captured by a German raider early in the war returned home in an exchange of prisoners to tell of the horrors of Nazi "hell-ships" and prison camps.

Jack Wing was Britain-bound from the Argentine on the steamship Africa Star when a German ship, flying the Russian flag, opened fire and sank the British merchantman after the crew of 74, including two women, took to the boats and crossed to the raider.

They were herded in the forecastle where there were 70 suvivors from a Greek and British ship sunk by the raider, and remained in a suffocating atmosphere for 11 days. Food consisted of soup, tinned fish and black bread.

Taken on deck, they discovered the raider had made a rendezvous with two ships. One was a tanker flying the United States flag and with 'Dixie, San Pedro, Calif." on her stern.

All Nationalities

"Alongside her we saw the British ship Duquesna, captured by the Admiral Scheer," King said. "We were transferred to the Dixie and deep down in the vesell's tanks we found 150 seamen, mostly British, but with a sprinkling of Negroes, Chinese and Greeks.

"All were packed tightly, with no ventilation and the place became an oven. Another German raider the Portland, later took us on board and the captain said he was going to try and make Bordeau.

40 Escape

Arriving at that French port, the men transferred to a train with Germany as its destination. During one night while the train was stopped, about 40 of the prisoners escaped. King did not know what became of them.

"In Germany we were imprisoned in a camp at Sandbostel and forced to work on making a rifle range," King added. "Some of the prisoners tunneled from their barracks under the barbed wire and beyond the camp and nine escaped. Unfortunately, the tunnel was discovered by the Germans soon after."

Discipline was rigorous and King, caught stealing potatoes from the cook house, was sentenced to a month's solitary confinement in a civil prison nearby. Food consisted of two slices of bread, a bowl of soup and "undrinkable" coffee.

"In my third year of imprisonment 25 of us were told to pack," the lad said. "We were sent to Bari in Italy and then reached Turkey on an Italian prison hospital ship. Here, with others, we boarded a British transport for home."

Milan Italians Continue Fight

AT THE ITALIAN FRONTIER, Sept. 17 — (CP) — Italian anti-Fascist parties called on the people of Milan Wednesday to resist Gerfan forces at all costs and to fight Italian Fascists arriving with "thirsty vengeance" in German tanks.

A proclamation accused General Ruggero, military commander in Milan, of "delivering to the enemy vital centres of the country."

Signed by the Liberal, Christian, Democratic, Socialist and Communist parties, it declared the non-Fascist parties wished to create a National Guard in Milan to fight at the side of the Allies, but that soldiers who were to have defended Milan had been ordered by Fascists not to fight.

The proclamation reminded Milanese that Premier Pietro Badoglio, in announucing the unconditional surrender, urged resistance against from whatever quarter it came.

"German aggression now is a fact," it said.

Nazis Bombs Aid Salvage Experts

NEW YORK, Sept. 17 —(AP) — The Nazis didn't know it but they did the Allies a favour when they bombed a British airfield near Massawa Harmor, Eritrea, some time ago.

Capt. Edward Ellsberg, U.S. navy salvage officer, disclosed in an interview yesterday that two salvage crews, working in Massawa harbor, had tried unsuccessfully for nine months to raise a floating derrick, the only one in the Red Sea. Then the Nazi planes wrecked the nearby airfield, leaving burnt remainders of six gasoline drums, 45 feet long and 11 inches in diameter.

They were improvised into pontoons, Capt. Ellsberg explained, and wired under the derrick. They worked.

Sniper Chasing Is A Science

This is Italy. One Yank goes through the door, while a buddy, slightly behind him, watches the different angles of the doorway. About 15 feet in back of them are others of the squad covering the windows and doorway. Another Yank on the LEFT is guarding the corner of the house. The sniper was captured. The incident occurred on the outskirts of a city in Italy.

The Nazis Knew

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 17—(AP).—A plane heard a strange radio call one day in mid-Atlantic, relates Otis Frank Bryan, vice-president of Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc. "A clear voice in English advised our radio operator he was using the wrong code of the day," Bryan said—"and we were using the wrong code." The voice was that of a German submarine commander, he added.

Use Rare Drug To Save Woman

PICTON, Sept. 17 —(CP) — Dr. S. W. D. Hart of Picton yesterday said he obtained a seven day's supply of penicillin, sensational new drug, from Boston on Tuesday and administered it to Mrs. Howard Monroe, 24, who was critically ill with double pneumonia and phlebitis.

Since then she has shown "marked improvement."

Dr. Hart said he had been treating her with other drugs with little success.

The penicillin was obtained, he said, through the action of the colonel of a United States paratroop unit of which Mrs. Monroe's husband is a sergeant.

The colonel contacted the distributing centre in Boston and it was rushed to New York where an airliner was held up 15 minutes awaiting its arrival. It was then flown to Burlington, Vt., where an R.C.A.F. plane from Mountain View, Ont., brought it to the air base, and from there it was rushed to the Picton R.A.F. Station.

Use of penicillin at Picton brings to three the number of places in Ontario where the rare drug has been used. Medical authorities in Toronto said it was used in that city in the fall of 1942 and last August it was used to treat Sheila Rockwell, 10, a Hamilton General Hospital.

500,000 Dads To Join American Army

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—(CP)—Opponents of the drafting of fathers gave ground today before the unanimous testimony of American military leaders that the United States armed forces will have to put nearly 500,000 family heads into uniform this year to make victory certain and that Canada's recent reduction of her home defence units did not mean a slackening in the war effort.

While Senator Burton Wheeler (Dem., Mont.) remained publicly confident that he can win approval next week of legislation to postpone the induction of men who were fathers prior to December 7, 1941, until after January 1, there were signs that the opposition by the United States high command had made inroads into the ranks of the bill's supporters.

Democratic Leader Alben Barkley of Kentucky told reporters he thought the army had "made a good case" for its contention that it cannot get the 630,000 men it claims to need before January 1 without taking fathers.

That was the gist of the argument presented to the military committee yesterday by Lt.-Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, deputy chief-of-staff, and Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson.

Would Hurt Plans.

Admiral Ernest J. King, Commander-in-Chief of the Fleet, sent Chairman Robert Reynolds (Dem.-N.C.) a statement declaring there could be no decrease in the number of men to be furnished to the armed forces" without serious detriment not only to planned operations but operations that are now under way or in process of mounting." He added that troop needs for 1944 necessarily would increase over 1943.

The committee will hear Monday from Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, on the latter's return from a trip to Mexico.

At the same time United States lawmakers got a clearer picture of Canada's action in reducing home defence operational military forces by about 20,000 men, announced in Ottawa Monday, and which had been used as an argument by those opposed to the father draft.

Gen. McNarney, in his testimony, pointed out that Canada is not slackening in its war effort, a suggestion that had been put forward in Congressional circles. He said the decision to reduce the home defence forces was because of decrased demands for men to defend the continental limits of the Dominion.

Eastern Star Women Convene At Toronto

In an address to the annual banquet last night, Sqdn. Ldr. Parks of the R.C.A.F. urged the people on the "home front to make Canada a place worthy of the sacrifices made by the fighting men.

Charge Man Robbed As He Was Dying

TORONTO, Sept. 17 — (CP) — Nicholas Chaggares, Belleville restaurant keeper, was remanded until Oct. 1 when he appeared in police court yesterday on a charge of stealing over $1,000 from the pockets of a fatally injured man.

Chaggares was arrested at Belleville two days ago as he was getting off a train, five hours after the unconscious form of L. Laggis, Toronto chef, had been found in a social club here. Laggis died while being removed to hospital and his death was attributed to a cerebral hemorrhage.

Italian Admiral Lands At Malta

Since the outbreak of the war Italian admirals have dreamed of some day going ashore at Malta, Britain's island bastion in the Mediterranean—but not under the conditions that this admiral is doing it. He is Admiral D'Zara, shown here as he came ashore to confer with Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham at the customs house in Malta in connection with the surrender of the bulk of the Italian fleet.

Reporters Sleep In Vineyards With Soldiers

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press ar Correspondent

WITH CANADIANS IN ITALY, Sept. 14.—(Delayed)—(CP Cable).—Seven Canadian war correspondents who landed on the Reggio Calabria beaches with the infantry forces are reporting the strange war being fought by Canadians in Southern Italy.

Five came ashore on invasion day, Sept. 3, with the first two waves of troops, the other two early next morning. We carried out the lightest kit, the bulkiest item of which was our typewriters. We stepped ashore as though from the peacetime Messina-Reggio ferry.

The first three to get their landing stories away were Ross Munro of The Canadian Press, Matt Halton of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and Ralph Allen of the Toronto Globe and Mail. They wrote near the beaches, handing the copy to naval officers on landing craft returning to Sicily where dispatch riders carried it to aircraft flying to the transmission point on the island.

Bill Wilson of the British United Press and myself watched the invasion from the Sicilian shore, then boarded landing craft with the second wave of Canadians. Gregory Clark of the Toronto Star and Marcel Ouimet of CBC landed early Sept. 4 with the third wave. F. Paul Johnson, CBC engineer, formerly of Watrous, Sask., and a portable recording equipment accompanied Halton.

Because of restrictions on the number of correspondents who could be brought to Italy, a number remained in Sicily to obtain whatever campaign material they could from there. They were Frederick Griffin of the Toronto Star, Major Bert Wemp of the Toronto Telegram, Dick Sanburn of the Southam newspapers, Shotto Wyatt of the Montreal Star, Wallace Reyburn of the Montreal Standard and Maurice Desjardins of The Canadian Press.

The correspondents in Italy followed the Canadians into the mountains, slept on the ground in vineyards and fruit groves, motored hundreds of miles in jeeps, marched up rocky trails and ate army 'compo' rations cooked over petrol tins.

While correspondents are kept informed of activities in the Canadian area, the greatest handicap under which we work is the lack of definite information from the other Italian fronts.

Reds Reach Gates Of White Russia

Huns Retreating Along Entire Red Front

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Sept. 18—(AP)—Military dispatches reported today the Red Army had reached the gates of White Russia after crossing the Desna and capturing the key central fortress of Bryansk.

One of Russia's most important networks of communications, including the central stretch of the Moscow-Kiev railroad and the junction leading to White Russia, was cleared by the Red Army advance.

(The German communique broadcast by Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press said strong rainfall "which lasted for days" impaired operations in the southern sector of the eastern front. It claimed Red Army attempts to "thrust into movements of detaching carried out by our troops" were repulsed in bitter struggles. In the area west of Vyazma, the communique claimed, attempts of Soviet forces to break through failed and 70 Russian tanks were disabled.)

Approach Vitebsk

A Pravda dispatch said reoccupation of Orel province virtually was completed after the taking of Bryansk. White Russia borders this province on the west and includes the important strategic centres of Gomel, Mogilev and Vitebsk and the regional capital of Minsk.

White Russia lies about 70 miles west of Bryansk at the nearest point.

A part of Col.-Gen. Heinz Guderian's German 2nd tank army was disclosed to have been beaten in the Battle of Bryansk in some of the hardest fighting of the summer campaign.

Pravda said the second squadron of this veteran armored force, now commanded by Marshal Walter Von Modl, had its base at Bryansk.

The Germans were reported piling up new defences east of their Dnieper River bases of Kiev and Smolensk.

The Dnieper line was in immediate danger at two main points. Before Kiev, Red Army advance columns had driven a wedge to within 50 miles of the river, while far to the south another Soviet spearhead had captured the Azov port of Ossipenko and smashed to a point 35 miles from the lower reaches of the river, the daily Soviet communique eported.

Use New Reserves

The Russians admittedly were throwing prodigious strength against the war-weary enemy.

Capture of Bryansk, junction point for six major Russian railways and its sister city of Bezhitsa to the north, was announced by Premier Joseph Stalin himself, and another victory salute from 124 guns hailed the victory in the Russian capital. It brought the Red Army

Paratroops Close Back Door To Lae

This is the scene that General Douglas MacArthur watched from a Flying Fortress as American paratroops land under cover of a smoke screen to block the escape of 20,000 Japs from Lae, New Guinea. Australian forces had landed east of Lae and were closing in from that side. The landing of paratroopers here put the Japs in a trap.

Jap Resistance Collapses Before Tough Australians

By WILLIAM F. BONI—Associated Press War Correspondent

WITH AUSTRALIAN FORCES IN LAE, New Guinea, Sept. 16—(Delayed)—(AP).—The first Australian troops entered Lae proper at 11.00 a.m. today (Thursday) and at 2.30 p.m. the commander of the advance units hoisted the Australian flag over the Lae control tower.

It is possible to draw two conjectures for the collapse of Japanese resistance at the New Guinea point where the Allies expected it would be fiercest.

One is that the Allied bombing raids within the last two weeks smashed enemy headquarters buildings, accounting for almost the entire staff; the second is that there were indications throughout the astonishingly swift march by the Australians down the Markham valley that all was not harmony in the enemy camp.

It is likely that morale in some enemy outfits was sagging badly because for one thing they had been pulled out of Salamaua only three days earlier. For another they had been let down by the famed Japanese marines who had been counted on to stick it out longer in the perimeter ahead of the infantry positions.

Had The Edge

But in the final analysis there is no doubt that the Markham Valley Aussies won their fight because they beat the Japanese at his own game. Veterans of jungle fighting after the Kokoda Trail, Gona and Sanananda battles ending eight months ago, "they were on top of the Jap the moment they met him" in the words of a commander of the forward units.

The Australians who came down the Markham Valley raised the colors on a terrace overlooking the shattered township and the wreckage of about 60 Japanese aircraft along the airstrip.

Thus ended more than 18 months of Japanese control of this vital point in southwest Pacific cam-

Battle Raging In Dodecanese

ANKARA, Sept. 17—(Delayed)—(AP).—Fighting between German and Italian troops for the possession of the Island of Rhodes is still going on and German naval and marine forces are being moved into the eastern Mediterranean against Allied units which are reported to have occupied the Islands of Kos, Samos and Leros.

There was no official confirmation of Allied landings on the three inner Dodecanese and Aegean Islands and Allied military officials in Turkey are putting pressure on British and American correspondents to prevent publication of reports on any campaign while it is in progress.

An Allied attack on Leros and Samos, which would have to run the gauntlet of the outer defences of Crete and Rhodes, may mean the defence circle is broken. If they are able to maintain their footholds they would be in a position to launch a two-sided attack against the outer crust of the island group.

Berlin City Feels Sting Of Mosquitos

Speedy Bombers Return On 3rd Successive Night

By GLADWIN HILL
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 18—(AP).—R.A.F. Mosquito bombers blasted Berlin for the third successive night last night, and this morning great formations of Allied bombers droned across the southeast coast towards Dieppe to carry the new round-the-clock aerial offensive into its fourth day.

The daylight formations were preceded by thick formations of Allied fighters streaming out across the Channel. A formation of medium American bombers returned just before noon, but there was no immediate announcement of their targets.

Last night's attack, which kept residents of the German capital crouching in air raid shelters for the third successive night was referred to by the Berlin radio as a "nuisance raid." The broadcast said the bombers struck in both northern and southern Germany.

Raids Trains Too.

The Air Ministry announced no planes were missing from the night assaults.

The Berlin radio also issued a report, viewed here as extremely questionable, that American heavy bombers had destroyed the homes of 10,000 persons during Thursday's daylight raid on Nazi shipping in the French port of Nantes. It added that a part of the population of Modane, the southern French Alpine tunnel terminus bombed by the R.A.F. Thursday night, had been evacuated to nearby towns.

Shipping Suffers.

The German news agency DNB in a Berlin broadcast last night recorded by the Associated Press spoke of "renewed terror raids" on Le Creusot, armament centre in France, and at La Rochelle on the west coast of France where the Nazis have a large airfield. The broadcast did not specify whether the raids took place last night or previously, and it was possible it referred to the raids by American heavy bombers on La Rochelle on Thursday. Le Creusot was heavily bombed by the R.A.F. on June 19.

Meanwhile, photographs taken during the American heavy bomber raid on Thursday against Nantes and La Pallice, France, showed last night that Nazi shipping in hiding there was hard hit.

A new German destroyer apparently just completed or nearly completed was sunk and possible hits were scored on three other large ships.

The big American bombers concentrated on the harbor and submarine base installations, but the German-controlled Paris radio said the damage extended well into the city of Nantes itself and declared the centre of the city was "completely wiped out."

Pincers Force Nazi Retreat Along Entire Salerno Front

By WES GALLAGHER—Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 18—(AP)—The battle for the Salerno bridgehead has about ended with the Germans pulling out from the south where the Allied knifed 11 miles inland, and with other Allied forces seizing two islands off the northern spur of the Bay of Naples itself.

"The British 8th Army now has joined the 5th Army, and they are virtually acting as one army," in position for a drive on Naples, a headquarters officer declared.

There was still heavy fighting near Salerno, the gateway to Naples, but the bridgehead itself was rapidly expanding into one solid front as the Germans swung their southern flank northward toward central Italy to avoid being caught in pincers between the 8th and 5th Armies.

Procida Island, 12 miles southwest of Naples and two miles from the northern land arm of the Bay of Naples, and the Island of Ponza, 65 miles west of the port, were occupied Wednesday, the Allied communique announced. The Allies earlier took possession of Capri, the island at the southern side of the bay.

11 Miles Inland.

The Allied spearhead driving into the crumbling German flank in the extreme southern Salerno bridgehead captured the town of Roccapaspide, 11 miles inland from the coast, the bulletin announced.

The initiative was fully in Allied hands in this bitterly-fought bridgehead, with more reinforcements being poured in, and Allied air and sea might beating at the Nazis.

Get Elbow Room

For the first time, Allied planes now are operating from airfields on the Italian mainland, it was announced, an indication that ground troops were getting elbow room in the Salerno area. Before, the fighters had to fly all the way from Sicily.

Capture of Roccadaspide indicated the Germans were abandoning their mountain positions from which their 88-millimetre guns had pounded the beachhead.

The Nazis still were fighting desperately north of Salerno, and hold the mountain passes leading down into the south side of the Bay of Naples, and their next great stand undoubtedly would be in defence of that bomb-wrecked seaport.

There are at least six German divisions in the area, although those engaged against the 5th Army unquestionably were heavily battered.

Reports from the Taranto sector said retreating Germans were taking Italian hostages to ensure good conduct by civilians in the villages the Nazis hold.

German troops, particularly the 1st German Parachute Division, are still in the area just north of Bari on the east coast, but now must withdraw or face danger of being cut off.

1,400 Nova Scotia Coal Miners Still Out
Government Investigator Fails To Appear

SPRINGHILL, N.S., Sept. 18—(CP).—Fourteen hundred miners of the Cumberland Railway and Coal Company collieries here, who staged a walkout Wednesday night, entered their third day of idleness today after deciding not to follow the advice of the Nova Scotia Minister of Mines, Hon. L. D. Currie, that they return to work.

The miners at a meeting last night were informed no government representative was available at the moment, as requested, to investigate their grievance. The men decided to maintain a former resolution not to resume work until an investigation had been made.

The dispute arose last Saturday when workmen who had finished their quota, went home an hour and a half before their shift ended. Superintendent E. B. Paul said their wages would be cut if they did not stay down for the whole shift.

War Labor Board Approves Vacation With Pay Plan

OTTAWA, Sept. 18—(CP).—The National War Labor Board in a judgment made public Friday night said: "It may be that the time has come when vacations with pay should be recognized as a general principle, subject to exceptions, of course."

The comment was made in the course of reasons for the board's decision to refrain from making any direction in an application by the International Brotherhood of Firemen, Oilers, Roundhouse and Railway Shopworkers (A.F.L.) for holidays with pay for members of the union employed by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The board, which heard the union's application earlier this week, said no direction was being given, as the union's agreement with the company is at present open for revision. The board recommended that the matter be considered in the negotiation of any new agreement.

"We do not shut the door to the applicant union when it is possible to establish that it has a valid subsisting agreement," the decision said. "In the meantime, however, we do not think it fitting that we should deal with the case."

The board said that in a recent decision vacation with pay was granted to the Federated Trades Employees in the locomotive and car departments of the Canadian Pacific Railway upon the same terms and conditions as those enjoyed by similar classes of employees of the Canadian National Railways.

"In that case it was pointed out that the most important consideration leading to the descision was the fact that some 60 per cent of the workers involved already enjoyed the privilege," the board said. "It was also carefully pointed out that the decision was not to be construed as any precedent for establishing vacations with pay for other classes employed on the railways in time of war.

Roundhouse Workers

"It appears that the employees, upon whose behalf the application is made, to a large extent work in the roundhouses where the Federated Trades (Division 4) work as

Stomach Trouble Plagues Il Duce

AT AN ADVANCED ALLIED COMMAND POST IN THE MEDITERRANEAN AREA, Sept. 18—Benito Mussolini is a very sick man, completely discredited in the eyes of the Italians, it was stated today by Italians who at the same time revealed the complete story of the former Italian dictator's overthrow and arrest.

Italians who have reached North Africa said: "The Germans are welcome to him but we doubt if he will be of much use to them."

Gestapo and German military and diplomatic officials have been led on a wild goose chase in their efforts to locate Mussolini since he was arrested in Rome on July 25 and forced, despite his protests, into an ambulance in which he was spirited to a safe hiding place.

Mussolini was made fairly comfortable in his place of captivity, but his reactions were said to have been violent at times. Gradually, however, he began to adjust himself to the situation and his emotional outbursts became fewer.

Jungle Units Capture Lae Air-Base

6,000 Japs Dead Garrison Almost Wiped Out

By OLEN CLEMENTS,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, The Southwest Pacific, Sept. 18—(AP)—The Air Base stronghold of Lae, New Guinea, is in Allied hands, wrested from the Japanese by sledgehammer air blows and swift-striking jungle troops in a major step by Gen. Douglas MacArthur toward his avowed return to the Philippines.

Its fall Thursday, with the few enemy survivors chased north into a deathtrap of blockaded jungle trails, occurred while the long smouldering Solomons arm of the Pacific offensive was being reset aflame by many scores of Allied planes.

Allied air power, growing rapidly at both ends of the 750-mile drive which swallowed up Lae. After heavy and medium bombers razed its last defences Thursday morning with 43 tons of bombs, the Australians marched in and raised their flag found only a few stragglers among the ruins to kill.

A spokesman for Allied Headquarters said 1,800 tons of bombs were dropped on the now captured air base of Lae and Salamaua during a campaign against a Japanese army estimated at one time to have totalled 20,000 men. How many of these perished remains to be computed, the last estimate by an Allied General of 6,000 having been made midway in the operations.

Lae, with its two airfields, has been used by the Japanese as their main New Guinea base since they occupied it in January, 1942.

Against the Bougainville air bases of the Japanese in the Solomons, a raid of more than 200 Allied planes on Tuesday was followed up by another big force of bombers of all categories Wednesday. Against these, 100 Japanese fighters rose to give battle. Sixteen were shot down against the loss of three escorting Allied fighters.

The bombers destroyed two Japanese planes on the ground, damaged many others and spread ruins among repair and supply depots.

The meeting was jovial but undramatic.

Roosevelt Spoils Hitler's Forecast
Bluntly Advises Axis That New Bomber Bases Are Planned

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press war Analyst

President Roosevelt's review of the war was calculated to inspire complete confidence in Allied progress, while making it quite clear a tough job still lies ahead. One of the outstanding impressions it conveyed was that the president recognizes the citizenry can be dealt with on a man-to-man basis and doesn't need to be beaten over the head with a propaganda club.

The president had to hold out in one important matter and that's when we are to get the other invasions which have been promised. That's the concern of our military chiefs and we need know only that these dangerous expeditions will be undertaken as soon as feasible.

Specific Remarks

In the matter of the European air front Mr. Roosevelt was specific. The president bluntly advised the Puehrer that Britain and America are going to set up bomber bases from which southern and eastern Germany will be devastated.

F.D.R. certainly drew blood with this announcement because only so long ago as September 8 Hitler's guttural tones informed his people that "only by air can the enemy terrorize the German hinterland." He said Nazidom was devising means to counter Allied aerial attacks—but talk never wrecked a bomber.

Roosevelt's message was full of meat. It was heartening to have him give us the categorical assurance that not only Hitler and the Nazis must go, but that the Prussian military clique must be rooted out of Germany, and the militarists of Japan must follow, if we are to have peace.

It was good also to have confirmation of our hopes that Japan would be deprived of the mandated islands which they got through the League of Nations after the last war and fortified against us.

Editor's note:

In his column of Sept. 14 DeWitt Mackenzie said, referring to the necessity of rooting out Adolf Hitler and all his lieutenants:—

Eliminate War Lords

"But we shall have to dig deeper than that, because the real and perpetual mainspring of German aggression is Prussian militarism. We have to eliminate the Prussian war lords as well — and they won't be hard to name. There's a very similar situation in Japan...."

Franklin D. Roosevelt said on Sept. 17:—

"There is one thing I want to make perfectly clear: When Hitler and the Nazis go out, the Prussian military clique must go with them. The war-breeding gangs of militarists must be rooted out of Germany—and out of Japan—if we are to have any real assurance of future peace."

President Roosevelt's suggestion that the good neighbor policy of the Western Hemisphere be extended to the rest of the world as peace insurance furnished a generally sympathetic United States Congress to-day with a guide for action on its own post-war foreign policy resolutions in the coming weeks.

The resoluton putting Congress on record as favoring United States

Press May Work In Sicily
Algiers Too Crowded For Correspondents

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—(AP)—Transfer of press headquarters for correspondents covering the Mediterranean War from Algiers to Sicily is contemplated, dependent upon an experiment to determine how much copy can be filed from Sicily.

The State and War Departments in a joint summary on news coverage in the North African theatre, said last night the Public Relations Office of the Allied Force Headquarters is setting up wireless, Morse, and voice broadcast facilities in Sicily and that initial experiments indicate that eventually a file of 80,000 words a day can be transmitted from Sicily to the United Kingdom and North America.

"If this proves possible," the joint statement said, "most of the correspondents in Algiers will go to Sicily and a large Public Relations Headquarters will be necessary there."

The statement said Headquarters at Algiers is providing facilities for more than 123 press and radio correspondents and the Public Relations Office has been taxed to find housing, food, transportation, and copy transmission facilities for the correspondents.

The Public Relations Officer currently is preparing an over-all ceiling plan for an unalterable top number of correspondents. He proposes to send this plan to the War Department, with a request for approval."

Italy's Fall Dooms Japan
Surrender Of Fleet Releases Allied Ships

CHUNGKING, Sept. 18 (AP)—In his first public appearance as president of China, Chiang Kai-shek declared today the surrender of the Italian fleet "determines Japan's ultimate doom."

Opening the fourth plenary session of the people's political council on the 12th anniversary of the Mukden incident, he pledged the Chinese not to lay down their arms until Manchuria is recovered from the Japanese.

"The safety of seaborne traffic through the Mediterranean has considerably shortened the Allies' route for the movement of troops and supplies," the generalissimo said. "Part of the Allied naval forces can now be shifted to the Far East. Broadly speaking, the capitulation of the Italian navy determines Japan's ultimate doom."

The general told the council "through more than six years the resistance of China on her 4,000 kilometre front has immobilized more than 30 enemy divisions. Now is the time for us to co-ordinate our efforts with those of our Allies in launching an all-front counter-offensive to bring our fight....to a successful conclusion...."

He said that relations with Great Britain, the United States, Russia and other United Nations members would be placed on a "closer and more solid basis."

STRONG GUERILLA ARMY IN BALKANS STRUGGLE TO EXTEND GAINS

Allied Forces Fanning Out Launch New Drive Inland

Dive-Bombers Used Against Yugoslav Troops

LONDON, Sept. 18 — (CP).— German forces in the Western Balkans were reported taking strong measures to-day to smash Yugoslav Partisan troops making a large-scale bid for liberation along the Adriatic from the seaport of Split, in patriot hands, to the Italian city of Fiume, 160 miles to the north-west.

Guerillas were said to be concentrated in large numbers at Susak, just across the bridge from Fiume. Heavy fighting was reported in progress at Ogulin, north of Split, and at Knin, with the patriot forces struggling to extend their territory in Dalmatia.

(Around Split the conflict had reached such proportions, the Yugoslav Ministry of Information said, that the Nazis were using dive-bombers in an attempt to dislodge the Partisans from the seaport and the adjacent city of Solin.

Reds Assisting.

(The Stockholm Aftontidningen said in an article reported to the United States Office of War Information that Russian guerilla officers have arrived in Yugoslavia to assist in operations there and that they were accompanied by political officers who were to seek "co-ordination" with the British commanders.

(The Berlin radio, in a broadcast cast heard by the United States Foregin Broadcasting Intelligence Service, indicated the Nazis were preparing for a spread of anti-German activity in Albania.

(The Germans, admitting the Albanians are "without exception, anti-German," said the Nazi troops had occupied "all strategically important installations and key points to prevent any hostile action."

In addition to the growing menace of the partisans, the Germans were taking no chances that soldiers of their former ally, Italy, might enter the liberation campaign on the side of the Yugoslavs. A German broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said Nazi troops had disarmed 20,000 Italians in an unidentified Adriatic port.

Internal Strfe.

A dispatch from Stockholm, meanwhile, gave some evidence that the Nazi troubles in the Adriatic area were not confined to clashes with partisians and the threat of sullen Italians. A Zurich report to the Stockholm newspaper Aftontidningen said German Maj.-Gen. Brauner, commander of the port city of Pola, had been cited for court martial and that Nazi officials are investigating High German Air Force officials in the Adriatic area. No details were given.

The Free French radio at Brazzaville in Equatorial Africa said British commando troops had landed on the island of Rhodes in the Dodecanese group in the Eastern Mediterranean, adding that Italian troops there were aiding in the fight against Nazis.

Ankara reports earlier in the week said Allied forces had taken the islands of Lero, Cos and Samos, to the north of Rhodes, but this never has been confrmed by any Allied source.

Hungary Leans To Peace Move

BERNE, Sept. 18—(AP)—Hungary, caught between increased pressure from Germany for additional war manpower and a desire for peace, was reported in the throes of an intense political and parliamentary crisis today.

The Budapest correspondent of the Gazette de Lausanne said military decisions vital to Hungary had become a "burning actuality" and that secret moves, made in conjunction with Berlin, could cause important changes in the future of the nervous Axis satellite.

There has been a strong official attempt to curb a growing tendency for withdrawing from the war.

Additional arrests of leaders of the Hungarian "peace party" for their "pacifist attitude and for spreading alarming rumors" have been officially announced, according to the correspondent.

LAWN BOWLING

Playing a final game in weather that was fit more for football than it was lawn bowling, Mrs. C. Renaud's rink, winner of one group, defeated Mrs. R. Dyer's rink, winner of another group, by the score of 13-11, to win the 'Denne' trophy for 1943.

Considering the fact that there was a strong north-west wind blowing right across the green, and also that the thermometer a times hung around 60 deg., the bowling was well up to that of any final game.

We believe that if the game had been played under more favorable bowling weather that may be many of the shots that went wide or narrow would have come nearer the mark. The ladies seemed more intent on how to keep themselves warm. Bowling with heavy sweaters does not help a great deal; it often hinders and we are of the opinion that was the case yesterday. However, the game is all over and congratulations are due both winners and losers. They have had a good long season and have well earned the right to play in the finals.

Some of the members of the men's games committee were present during the game and when they saw how cold the ladies were when they left the green, the comittee decided right there and then to cancel the mixed tournament for Friday evening. It was cold.

Herringbone Wins St. Leger Classic

NEWMARKET, England, Sept. 18—(CP Cable) Lord Derby's Herringbone, a filly, to-day won the St. Leger, last of the season's flat racing classics, for her second major victory of the season. Earlier she won the One Thousand Guineas.

The filly, who was turned out of training last Autumn with the intention that she be bred, defeated Lord Rosebery's Ribbon, who was second, and the favorite, Hon. Dorothy Paget's Straight Deal, third.

Starting prices on the first three were 100 to 6, 10 to 1 and 100 to 30.

It was the sixth triumph for Lord Derby in the St. Leger. His previous winners were Swynford in 1910, Keysoe in 1919, Tranquil in 1923, Fairway in 1928 and Hyperion in 1933.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 18 (AP) — The Allies 5th and British 8th Armies cast their united and ever-growing power against the enemy with explosive fury in the battle of Salerno today and a communique said Lt.-Gen. Mark W. Clark's forces had occupied the village of Roccadaspide, a dozen miles inland.

The announcement said reinforcements still are pouring into the landing beaches and British and American naval units, standing off shore, continue to pound the retreating enemy with their biggest guns.

For the first time, it was announced officially that the captured airfields on the Italian mainland now are in use and that from these both fighters and fighter-bombers are going forth against the enemy.

Junction Complete

The communique reported the 8th Army veterans led by Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery on their historic 200-mile dash up from the Calabrian toe have now effected a full junction with the 5th Army.

"Allied troops now have the initiative on the 5th Army front," the war bulletin added.

In a new northward blow by water, Allied forces occupied the Island of Procida, off the tip of the Peninsula on which the city of Naples stands. This brought the Allied troops virtually in sight of Naples itself.

Whereabouts of the Canadian forces in this swift manoevering today remained a matter for conjecture. Officially all that is known is that Canadian units, presumed to be the 1st division, crossed Messina Strait from Sicily with the 8th Army to launch the invasion.

However, it is generally believed other Canadians are taking part in the fight. London reports earlier in the week had the 1st Canadian Army Tank Brigade in action in the Salerno area.

Airforce Active

(Later a Stockholm dispatch by Associated Press correspondents told of a German spokesman claiming a Canadian division, sent by sea from Calabria, had landed at Pescum and Castellabate on the Gulf of Salerno. The Berlin radio also said motorized formations of the 8th Army, including Canadians, landed near Salerno Wednesday night. And the German-controlled Vichy radio spoke of "British and Canadian reinforcement troops" arriving in the Salerno area.)

PETER MURPHY

Seldom have so many relatives, friends and neighbours shown such deep sympathy and respect as was offered to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Murphy and Paul, to express their sympathy in the loss sustained by the tragic death of the late Peter Murphy. The exceptionally large number of spiritual offerings and flowers was tangible evidence of the popularity and love in which he was held, by both young and old.

Reverend V. J. McFadden of Downeyville, a cousin of Mr. Murphy's acted as celebrant of the Solemn High Mass of Requiem. Reverend J. T. Finn was acting deacon and Reverend Gregory Wolff sub-deacon.

In his sermon to the large number who were present, Reverend Father McFadden referred to Peter Murphy as an exemplary character. He expressed his deep sympathy to his sorrowing parents, his only brother Paul, and relatives and friends.

Those from out-of-town who were present at the funeral were Messrs. Micheal, William and Anthony Murty, Buffalo, N.Y.; Mr. W. M. Brown, Niagara Falls, Ontario; Mr. P. J. Murphy, Rochester, N.Y.; Mr. Leo Murphy, Ottawa; Miss R. and Miss K. McNichol, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. T. Lloyd and Mrs. McLaughlin, Trent River; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Flaherty, Mrs. J. The patrols had come upon each other so suddenly they passed each other before the drivers could stop.

As the lead jeep passed the lead armored car, our officer called out: "Hello."

Everybody jumped out, introduced themselves somewhat formally and shook hands.

In a thick Irish brogue, Sgt. Martin Butler gave news of the 8th Army and Lieut. R. B. Bales told him of the 5th Army's fighting.

Thereupon, he produced a bottle of red wine and the representatives of the two armies had a drink.

Labor Would Abolish Entire Senate

MONTREAL, Sept. 18 —(CP)— Delegates to the fourth convention of the Canadian Congress of Labor wound up a five-day session last night, passing a wide range of resolutions and voting down others.

Among the suggestions thrown out by the convention was a resolution demanding the resignation of Labor Minister Mitchell. Delegates voted against the proposal after Secretary-Treasurer Pat Conroy told them not to be "sidetracked by personalities."

"You are being sidetracked and leaving the implication that you are merely dissatisfied by one man," he said. "We know that if there is another labor minister 10 times better, the policy of the government being what it is, our condition would still be the same."

Quebec was chosen for the fifth convention next year. Resolutions passed included those demanding abolition of the Canadian Senate, release of the majority and minority reports of the National War Labor Board after its inquiry into labor relations, reinstatement of J. L. Cohen as "representative of labor" on the board and labor representation in Canada's delegation to the peace conference.

Resolutions dealing with the armed forces urged free transportation within the country for those in uniform, free postage for servicemen, a bonus of $1,000 for every serviceman with one year on active service and an additional $200 for each subsequent year "to help in civil re-establishment."

Cut Income Tax

Other resolutions adopted during the final day urged Federal income tax reforms, a national health program and sanctuary for refugees. The income tax proposal asked for immediate revision so that exemptitons would be raised to $1,500 for married men and $1,000 for single men and exemption of overtime pay and cost of living bonuses from income tax.

The Congress voiced disapproval of the operation of the Ontario Collective Bargaining Act (Bill No. 49).

Delegates instructed the incoming executive committee to meet with "the trade unionists recently elected to the opposition" in the Ontario Legislature for the purpose of drawing up an amendment to the legislation embodying among other the following provisions:

That it be made legally incumbent on employers to "negotiate with bona fide trade unions upon request" and to conclude a collective agreement within a stated time; that various groups "known as company unions" be outlawed; that the act be administered by an independent board representative of labor, management and the public, "rather than a judge, as at present."; that "obstruction to the competion of a colective agreement between a bona fide trade union and employers" shall be dealt with by such board.

"As was pointed out in the Division 4 decision, there is manifest a growing tendency to allow vacations with pay in industry. In the United States we believe the privilege is enjoyed by all railway classes except the running trades. It may be that the time has come when vacations with pay should be recognized as a general principle subject to exceptions, of course."

In declining to give direction in a case where the existing agreement was open for revision the board said it felt it should follow a policy of "interfering as little as possible" in the bargaining field.

Press that Berlin newspapers today were publishing a photograph of Mussolini, described as showing him after his liberation by the Germans. The picture was said to show a smiling Duce surrounded by German S.S. men and parachute troops.

(The Nazi-controlled Rome radio said last night in a broadcast recorded by the United States Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service that Mussolini, who has not made any public statements since his arrest and subsequent liberation, would "soon let his voice be heard.")

The situation in Italy today is that Italy is an occupied country, partly by the Germans and partly by the Allies. There is no civil government as far as is known behind the German lines. The Allies recognize Marshal Badoglio as the head of the government fully competent to carry out negotiations which are now in progress for the economic, financial and political phases of the armistice.

Badoglio succeeded in fleeing through the German lines around Rome and now is said to be in Italy behind our lines.

24 Persons Die In Explosion

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 18—(AP)— An explosion of such force that it knocked pictures from walls in Norfolk, 10 miles distant, yesterday killed approximately 24 persons and injured about 230 at the Norfolk Naval Air Station. The Navy said witnesses believed the blast originated in ammunition in transit.

A huge hangar and several other buildings were badly damaged by the explosion, which hurled steel and planking several hundred yards.

The explosion, described as the worst in the history of the air station, tore away huge sections of the hangar, and sent sheets of flames and billowing smoke high into the sky. Windows in buildings at the air station and on the base near the hangar were shattered.

Rear Admiral H. F. Leary, commandant of the 5th Naval District, said Naval authorities were informed by witnesses that they believed the explosion originated in ammunition in transit.

A board of investigation was appointed shortly after the explosion and started immediately to probe the cause of the blast. The blast knocked in the steel sides of a building near the damaged hangar. Air station personnel worked frantically to remove equipment from this structure before being driven back by flames.

R.A.F. Hammers Rail Centres

NEW DELHI, Sept. 18 —(CP)— Railway buildings at Seywa and Tindeinyan in the Katha district were attacked yesterday by Beaufighters as the R.A.F. continued to hammer at Japanese communication centres in western Burma, an Allied joint communique announced today.

The planes also struck at shipping along the Upper Irrawaddy, damaging two river boats and several barges and setting fire to an oil barge.

Motor transports and river craft on the road east of Chauk and the Yaw River were hit and Hurricanes struck at a Japanese army camp at Kyaupnadu on the Mayu Peninsula.

All planes returned safely.

The final push into Lae, which was virtually unopposed, fitted into a changed pattern of Japanese resistance in recent months. As at Kiska, Bairoko Harbor and Salamaua, the enemy withdrew part of his force instead of putting up a near fanatic resistance such as marked the Papuan fighting and the early campaign in the Solomons. A few prisoners were taken.

Australian casualties "were relatively light," in the words of one high officer.

The Australians found the enemy had left ample stores of equipment and ammunition, much of it new, and a few Japanese soldiers, somewhat shopworn.

The Brigadier who commanded the first Australian units to enter Lae was driving about in a jeep when he noticed a sedan parked in a small revetment. The Brigadier suggested it would be a good idea for his driver to investigate.

Unarmed, the driver opened the car door and found two Japanese inside, one of them with a bayonet. He hauled out both by the scruff of their necks.

Three correspondents walked unsuspectingly along the shore within 20 yards of a pillbox. A few moments later we heard a burst of fire, turned and discovered a Japanese had been lurking there. He had opened fire on a group of Aussies, but was eliminated quickly.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 18 — (CP). — Substantial flour export, new seasonal highs in wheat futures, and large sales of cash oats and barley for Eastern reserve feed stocks featured trading yesterday on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

The flour business was credited to the United Kingdom, and was estimated at 5,000,000 equivalent bushels of wheat. As the business was on an exchange of future basis it did not reflect in the pit. In addition, wheat export totalled 250,000 bushels for Greek relief purposes.

All three wheat futures registered new season peaks. Values were firm for most of the session, but a wave of American investment buying sent them higher near the close.

Pincers Force

For three days Allied planes have been virtually unmolested in striking as far north as Rome, and now with the weather perfect, a successful German retreat from the Salerno sector is going to be extremely difficult.

Saving Planes

It is hard to believe the German air force is as weak in battle as thus far indicated, and possibly Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesserling is saving his air strength in the north until the Allies meet his main defence line. That line is not yet apparent, but probably will be just south of Rome.

(The German communique reported strong Allied counter-attacks in the Salerno bridgehead yesterday, and said "particularly in the south-eastern sector of the front the struggles have grown with newly-landed, superior enemy forces."

(Other Berlin broadcasts said German submarines had sunk an Allied destroyer and torpedoed an Allied tanker in the Gulf of Salerno.

(The United Nations radio at Algiers reported the military situation in Italy developing rapidly in favor of the Allies, and said Germans entrenched in strong hill positions were being wiped out.)

Roosevelt Talk Likely To Start Revolt

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 —(AP) —The fuse of revolt is sputtering in the Balkans. A violent and destructive outburst against German domination is considered here to be almost a certainty in the immediate future.

This view is based on President Roosevelt's unqualified appeal to the people of Rumania, Hungary and Bulgaria to rise against Nazi dominance and destroy it in a "consuming fire."

The President said he had received reliable information that there is "definite uprest and a growing desire for peace." on the part of Rumania, Bulgaria and Hungary and also on the part of Finland, on the northern flank of Europe.

Zero Hour Near.

In view of recent Allied warnings to the Balkan peoples not to strike prematurely the President's statement in his war message to Congress yesterday suggested the possibility that the hour for another Anglo-American thrust into Hitler's continental fortress is fast approaching.

In the event of an attack on the Balkans the Allies would have from the outset the assistance of powerful anti-German forces in conquered Yugoslavia and Greece. Here is the way the Balkans situation shapes up, according to some expert opinion here:

Anger of Aaron and Moses Gave Jews Long Wanderings

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Sept. 19 is Numbers 20, the Golden Text being Ephesians 4:26, "Be ye angry, and sin not.")

THE WHOLE congregation of the children of Israel came into the desert of Zin and lived in Kadesh, and there Miriam, Moses' and Aaron's sister, died and was buried.

The wilderness of Zin is thought to be located north of the Red sea, immediately below the Dead sea, on the western end of the Peninsula of Sinai.

There was no water for the Israelites at this place, and of course they complained bitterly to Moses and Aaron, saying, "Would that we had died when our brethren died before Jehovah. Why have ye brought up the congregation of the Lord into this wilderness, that we and our cattle should die there? And wherefore have ye made us come up out of Egypt, to bring us unto this evil place? It is no place of seed, or of figs, or of vines, or of pomegranates; neither is there any water to drink."

What a people! Instead of answering them Moses and Aaron went to the Lord and told Him the people's latest grievance. The Lord told Moses to take his rod to a certain rock, but not to strike the rock as he did before, but to speak to the rock and it would give forth water.

Disobedience to God.

Moses and Aaron must have been very angry at the unreasonable people, for they did as the Lord said by taking the people to the rock, but instead of speaking to the rock, Moses said, "Hear now, re rebels; must we fetch you water out of this rock?" And he struck the rock twice. Water gushed forth and the congregation and beasts drank.

The Lord spoke to Moses and Aaron and told them that because they believed Him not, to sanctify Him in the eyes of the children of Israel. Aaron should not bring this congregation into the land which I have given them." It seemed an extreme punishment, but they had shown anger and had not done as they were told. Aaron was an old man whose work was done and Moses was needed to lead the people on toward the land that was promised them. Moses saw the land, you remember, but even he was not permitted to enter it.

Now the children of Israel were near the border of the land of Edom, and the shortest way to where they wanted to go was through that land. Moses sent a messenger to ask the king of Edom if they might go through if they took nothing from the land not even water, but just walked through on the king's highway.

The Edomites were descendants of Esau, so were also descended from Abraham; but the king refused to give them permission, although he knew how they had suffered from the Egyptians and why they were passing that way. Twice he refused, and so they had to go the long way around and they came to Mount Hor. It is not definitely known where Mount Hor was.

Death of Aaron.

There the Lord spoke to Moses and Aaron in the mount, saying, "Aaron shall be gathered unto his people; for he shall not enter into the land which I have given unto the children of Israel, because ye rebelled against My word at the water of Meribah.

"Take Aaron and Eleazar, his son, and bring them up unto Mount Hor: And strip Aaron of his garments and put them upon Eleazar his son; and Aaron shall be gathered unto his people, and shall die there."

Moses did as the Lord told him, and the three went up into the mount in the sight of all the people, who probably knew that they never would see Aaron alive again.

Moses stripped the priestly robes from Aaron and put them on the younger man, his son, and Aaron died there on the top of the mount. Moses and Eleazar went down from the mount, grieving, no doubt, but realizing that the Lord did all for the best.

"And when all the congregation saw that Aaron was dead, they mourned for Aaron 30 days, even all the house of Israel."

Moses the Master Statesman

REV. E. R. JAMES.

There Hath Not Risen a Prophet in Israel Like Unto Moses Whom The Lord Knew Face to Face. Deut. 34, 10.

This is the mature opinion of some grave, thoughtful Jewish Doctor of Law as he summed up the character of Moses, their great Law Giver and Guide.

"WHOM the Lord knew face to face" is a most striking statement. Especially when you remember that the Jewish teaching placed a wide gulf between Jehovah and His people. We draw near and speak to God because God sent His only begotten Son to take our nature upon Him. Through Jesus Christ we may draw near to God. "If ye shall ask anything in My Name the Father will give it to you" is the clear promise of the Great Lord Christ to His Apostles and to us who believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God. But those Jews in the wilderness were taught that they could not draw near to God. Only Moses, His chosen minister, could do so.

A modern scholar, Dr. Whitehead emphasises that "Moral education is impossible without habitual vision of greatness." The modern scholar and the ancient Dr. of the Law are agreed on the same truth. Moses was enabled to face the great difficulties and trials of his work in uplifting his people by the fact that he had been given the vision of God's greatness and mercy. "Shew me thy glory" is his earnest plea and he never forgot that vision of God's goodness and lovingkindness.

Moses was no barbarian shepherd leading his people into the wilderness. He was a man of great culture and wide education. "Moses was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians," the most cultured people of that age. Moses had been trained to think. During those forty years spent in the wilderness shepherding the flocks of Jethro, his father-in-law. Moses had time to meditate upon and digest his early scholarship. He became a great thinker, which is rarely found among kings and rulers. It was an earlier realization of Plato's hope that the philosopher would become a king. As a deep thinker he has set an example to the generations of his successors to think upon the deep things of God.

It is helpful to remember that in spite of his early training in Egypt he rejected much of that teaching; especially their doctrine of resurrection, which meant resuscitation, returning to this world, eating and drinking and living an earthly life. The Christian doctrine is that there is a natural body and there is a spiritual body. Jesus Christ rose from the dead never to die again. "I am He that liveth and was dead, and, behold, I am alive for evermore."

Above all Moses had no dealings with the idea of many gods—a popular Egyptian teaching. He emphasised the truth that Jehovah was the One only God of His people. It is a hard truth and it took centuries to train the people out of idolatory. It was not until the Israelities passed through the fiery furnace of the exile in babylon that a nation they refused to worship any other God than Jehovah. "Hear, O Israel, Lord thy God is one Lord and Him only shalt thou worship."

Moses calls to us across the centuries to impress upon us the secret of his success. "He returned unto the Lord." Over and over again when things went wrong and the people rebelled against his authority "he returned unto the Lord" for strength and wisdom. He built up his own moral character by his habitual vision of God's goodness and mercy. He deired to know God better that he might lead his people into the promised land.

It is interesting to remember that Moses did not seek the task of leading his people out of Egypt. God called him. Apparently Moses had a poor opinion of himself and of his abilities. He was slow of speech and slow of tongue, he tells us. Listen to his bitter cry unto the Lord:—"Why is it that Thou hast sent me? For since I came to Pharoah to speak in Thy Name he has done evil to this people."

The secret of his greatness is that he "saw Him Who is invisible." May the great leaders of our nations do likewise in these critical days.

LORD, SHEW ME THY GLORY. MY PRESENCE SHALL GO WITH THEE, SAITH THE LORD.

The Sin of Moses and Aaron — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Numbers 20

By Alfred J. Buescher

"Then came the children of Israel into the desert of Zin and the people abode in Kadesh; and Miriam died there, and was buried there."

The Lord grew angry with Moses and Aaron because they had no faith in Him, and told them Aaron should not see the Promised Land.

The Israelites traveled on to Mount Hor, and the Lord told Moses, Aaron and Aaron's son to go up into the mountain, for Aaron would die there.

They went up into the mount, Moses stripped off Aaron's clothes and put them on his son, and Aaron died.

A Great Day For Our Navy

This is a great day for the Royal Canadian Navy, for twelve new ships have been added to its strength. They are a destroyer, two frigates, a Fairmile, a corvette, an Algerine, a tanker, two tugs, and a Naval tug, and two cargo ships. Since Canada began her naval program after the outbreak of war 346 escort vessels, minesweepers and patrol ships, 215 cargo ships, and 59 base, supply and other special ships have been built and launched in this country; it is a record of which we may be very proud.

The greatest interest in today's launchings will attach to H.M.C.S. Micmac, the first of our Tribal destroyers, and the largest warship ever to be built in this country. At present our Navy has seven of the 50 American destroyers which were traded to Great Britain, and the Micmac will be the first of our own building. Those to whom shipbuilder's figures convey a clear message may be interested to hear that it has an overall length of 377 feet, a beam of 37½ feet, and a displacement of 2,000 tons. Our Tribal destroyers are about 300 tons heavier and 50 feet longer than the next largest Canadian destroyers. Their armament comprises six 4.7-inch guns, as well as two 4-inch guns, and a comprehensive anti-aircraft battery. A set of quadruple torpedo tubes are carried also, and the range-finders and director towers are of the latest types. The Micmac will carry 240 men, including 17 officers.

The Micmac is the first of these large vessels to be built in Canada for the use of our Navy; it is expected that many others will follow it. Named for the tribes of Indians who once roamed this land, they will roam the Atlantic, carrying the fame of the new Royal Canadian Navy wherever they go, and adhering firmly to the tradition of boldness and effectiveness which they inherit from the Royal Navy. This has been a great day for our Navy, and for all Canada.

The P.E.I. Elections

The elections in Prince Edward Island provided no surprises. The Liberals remained in power, which everyone expected that they would do; they lost several seats, which was also in the cards. These losses have been interpreted in some quarters as signs of a general swing away from support of the present Government, and there may be some truth in this view. We are not altogether satisfied that it is the whole truth, however. The Island has been predominantly Liberal for a long time, but there is no reason to suppose that it will always be so; we do not think that the Liberal losses are great enough to cause despair in their camp, nor the Conservative gains great enough for them to assume that the Island has changed its allegiance.

The C.C.F. made a poor showing in the elections. The Islanders are farmers and fishermen, and the C.C.F. has not much to offer to such people, now that it has put so many of its eggs in the labour basket.

The Hon. J. Walter Jones, the Premier of the Island, has been a member of the Legislature for eight years, but it was only last April that he was brought into the Cabinet. In May he was chosen to succeed Premier Thane Campbell, who resigned his office in order to become the Island's Chief Justice. A farmer of experience and ideas, he is a popular leader and should not experience any special difficulties in his new office.

A Responsibility For The Schools

When it was announced that Premier Drew intended to be his own Minister of Education this paper applauded his decision, for he has many qualities which make him an excellent man for that responsible position. In a recent address which he gave to the Ontario Police Association the Premier emphasized the importance of discipline as a base for all other education, and we are in complete agreement with him. Discipline does not mean a repressive, killjoy, totalitarian regime in the schools, but it does mean a training in fair play, respect for constituted authority, and a consideration for the rights of others. The best discipline is self-discipline, and training in self-discipline is a keystone of education.

Responsibility for this sort of training lies with the schools, says Premier Drew. Ideally it should begin in the home, long before school age, but it does not always do so. Particularly in these times, when many fathers are from home, when mothers may be busy in war work, and when there is a perceptible and general slackening of restraint, the schools have a heavy burden. Their task is not lightened by the fact that many schools at present are overcrowded, and classes are too large for teachers to give proper supervision and control to each pupil. But the responsibility exists, none the less, and Premier Drew has laid it on the schools and has pledged his support in tightening the disciplinary reins.

The greatness of a nation depends on the character of its people, and there is no character without discipline. Once again we must stress our abhorrence of regimentation, complicated systems of punishments and other devices for stamping out individuality; but individuality can exist most usefully within a framework of good behaviour and consideration for others.

The Premier's intentions are clearly of the best, and we are sure that he knows that they cannot be realized unless the hand of the individual teacher is strengthened. A schoolteacher is a public servant, and is thus liable to intimidation from individual citizens who may not agree with his methods. A child who is sternly disciplined does not always tell the strict truth about the circumstances which led to his punishment, and may work his parents into a state of indignation against the teacher; it is a brave teacher who can weather such storms, and he is quite unable to do so unless his Department of Education and his School Board are prepared to back him up. We hope that the Premier will be successful in his plan for stricter school discipline, but we predict many a storm as the plan goes into action. From what we know of Mr. Drew, however, we think that he can be trusted to hold a firm balance between discipline which is too severe and that which is too lax for the good of the pupils and, in the long run, for the people of the Province.

Christmas Parcels

The deadline for sending Christmas parcels to the men and women serving overseas in the various services has been set for November 1. This year the Peterborough Active Army Auxiliary and the five I.O.D.E. Chapters are looking after the sending of parcels to men and women serving in the army outside Canada; while the Peterborough Women's Auxiliary to the Navy is looking after the naval personnel and the Air Force Auxiliary is looking after the men and women in the junior branch of the service.

The task is a huge one and the auxiliaries want no one missed, thus they are appealing to the relatives and friends of the boys and girls in the services to furnish the names and addresses before October 1. The information must be correct so that there will be no errors. To enable the collection of this informations we give the telephone numbers of those who are recording the names and addresses:

Army personnel: Telephone 5997 or 4365 or 8853.

Navy personnel: Telephone 5591.

Air Force personnel: Telephone 7602.

Sea Mastery Is Proved

By
A. J. McWHINNIE

THERE can be no greater proof of British confidence in her sea power than the fact that the two most valuable lives in the British Commonwealth have been carried safely in ships through waters over which the Axis have been trying to get control.

First, Mr. Churchill, right in the middle of the much threatened Spring offensive of the U-boats, sailed the Atlantic for his vital Washington talks with Mr. Roosevelt. This week the news was flashed around the world that King George VI had sailed with the Royal Navy from North Africa to Malta—only 60 miles from Mussolini's front line.

No German claims, aimed at convincing the world that the U-boats are gaining mastery of the seas, can hope to offset those two journeys.

Control of the seas, command of the oceans, means being able to travel by sea to any place you choose, and defying your enemies to stop you. King George VI chose to steam across the Mediterranean which, only a few months ago, Mussolini called Mare Nostrum, and he virtually defied Mussolini to stop him. And Mussolini could not stop him.

ANOTHER contradiction to German boasts is the British communique issued last week of the five days battle with U-boats out in the Atlantic. British destroyers, frigates, corvettes, Fleet Air Arm planes from new escort carriers, and long-range ocean planes from Coastal Command fought, as a combined operation, one of the most intensive U-boat battles of the war.

Yet nearly 97 per cent of the convoy ships reached port without even being molested by the U-boats. In most cases the battles with the German submarines—fought over hundreds of miles—took place miles away from the freighters which steamed serenely on.

In earlier days of the war—the days after Dunkirk, when no fewer than 70 destroyer lay cripped in the dockyards—great convoys went to sea with only slender protection. Britain had only 90 destroyers available at that time, and only three corvettes.

GRADUALLY the escort fleets on the surface have been built up to such an extent that Britain today has more than 300 destroyers, well over 200 corvettes and new frigates to guard convoy ships through the war zones.

Aircraft from the carriers, aircraft from both sides of the Atlantic comb the oceans for hundreds of miles round every convoy whereas, in earlier days of the war, many a convoy never saw a friendly plane from the day of departure to the date of arrival.

This latest communique makes it perfectly clear that escorts around the convoys are now sufficiently strong to allow for units to be detached to finish fights with U-boats while the freighters, still adequately screened, sail on in safety.

Britain is not jumping to any hasty conclusion that the U-boat menace is as good as beaten because during the past two months so many U-boats have been sunk, and so many convoys have got through without a scratch. The general feeling is that the Spring U-boat offensive has failed, but that another phase is opening and setbacks must be expected. In effect, Britain has won the most recent round, but the gong is sounding for the next round to open.

THERE is, however, an important psychological factor which spurs on the British ocean forces. It having been estimated that something approaching 30 U-boats were destroyed in May, there is satisfaction in Allied naval circles that this probably means more than 1,000 trained U-boat men in one month forced out of the war by death or capture. In U-boat warfare those are the only alternatives. Ocean-going U-boats carry a complement of between 35 and 45 men. If 30 U-boats have been sunk, and the average complement is 40, the total German U-boat men lost to Hitler must be about 1,200 during the month.

But it would be foolish for anyone to expect the same totals to be achieved every month. There are lulls in which fewer U-boats are operating. There seems to be a lull at the moment, probably necessary for regrouping of U-boats after the shattering losses sustained by them last month.

Nevertheless the loss of more than 1,000 men trained in underwater war, is more serious for the German war effort than the high loss of actual submarines. Submarines are difficult to replace. You cannot mass-produce training, and experience can only be acquired under war conditions on actual operations.

Many U-boat men depth-charged into surrender were only making their first, second or third operational trip. They did not have a chance to learn by experience.

In a submarine, one man's mistake may mean death or capture to all the men in that submarine. Anxiety of ratings about the shortness of their Commander's experience is not likely to increase the efficiency of the submarine as a whole.

THE factor of experience, coupled with the realization that there is a limit to the physical endurance of U-boat crews, is in the forefront of the considerations influencing the decisions now being made by Admiral Doenitz to attempt a new U-boat offensive.

That he will devise new tactics and try to spring some new surprises cannot be doubted. If the U-boats are to improve on their operations those new tactics and any new surprises should be seen during the next stage of the constant, long, drawn-out battle on the trade-routes, the biggest battlefield of all. It is now admitted by Berlin that even though they have more U-boats available than ever before there still must be lulls.

There is a satisfying feature behind the Allied campaign for mastery of the seas. There is no lull in Allied shipbuilding. In the first five months of the war American shipyards alone turned out nearly 2,750,000 gross tons of shipping over and above even what the Berlin propagandists claimed to have sunk in the same period.

SOMEHOW, the German submarines must try to reduce the amount of shipping available to the United Nations for the next vital stage of the war. That is why the next U-boat offensive will not be long delayed. Every day six new American ships put to sea. There are ships being built in Britain. There are ships being built in Canada.

The more the Allied pool of shipping grows the greater the failure of the U-boats, but Britain will not, in spite of recent successes, underestimate the dangers still ahead.

"GREAT DANE"

A Blundering Announcement

(THE OTTAWA JOURNAL)

LET'S not be too disturbed because some Washington congressmen pretend to believe that Col. Ralston's reduction of our Home Army means we're slowing down on the war. With a presidential election coming next year, this is Washington's open season for politics, with our neighbours playing the game in their customary hard way, and President Roosevelt's opponents on the alert for anything with which they may belabour him.

The piece about our cutting down on the war was started by John O'Donnell, who was once accused of being a Nazi sympathizer, and who in any event keeps an eye on anti-Roosevelt stuff for Col. Patterson's New York News and "Cissie" Patterson's Washington Times-Herald. One part of the game of these newspapers is to picture Roosevelt being led by the nose by Churchill, with the United States a mere war chore-boy for the British Empire. The tale of Canada easing up on the war, this while the United States was planning to draft fathers, would fit exactly into that.

Washington, we imagine, knows fairly well what Canada has done and is doing in the war; and certainly President Roosevelt does. At the same time it is only right to say that the mess and muddle of the Government's manpower policies, or lack of them, provide these anti-Roosevelt American newspapers and congressmen with the opportunity to misrepresent our position. The United States has a draft policy which applies equally to all and its people may be forgiven if they sometimes become puzzled over our hybrid draft plan, with its result of a dual army and all the nonsense that attends it. That plan, in fact, invites disunity at home and suspicion abroad.

Finally, what seems most regrettable about this whole incident is that it might so easily have been avoided. The statement that Canada's Army was being disbanded was too easy for the opposition. What in fact might have been said, and briefly, was that Canada had now decided to abandon her policies of self-protection and was going to concentrate on overseas fighting where the need was greatest. This is the truth of the case, and it is also first-class propaganda for a party or a country. The Defence Department's handling of its announcement must go down as a blunder of the first order.

Capital Closeups

(By GEORGE KITCHEN, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA, Sept. 18 (CP)—These days of declining temperatures, when the coal man becomes your best friend, seem as good a time as any to draw attention (if need be) to that sterling Canadian product known so aptly as "black diamonds."

Backed by government regulations, the national coal conservation committee is trying to meet the situation by an energetic program that will help Canadians to make the most of the fuel available to them.

The campaign will extend into factories, homes and public buildings and will point out the advantages of such heat-saving methods as insulating and using storm windows. A study of Canadian coal consumption revals that there is a waste equal to the 20-per-cent reduction the consumers are being asked to make.

For instance, there's that old housewifely habit of running the hot water constantly while washing dishes. The conservation experts got their teeth into that one and came up with figures to prove that almost a ton and a half of coal may be wasted that way.

BEER PROBLEMS

Thirsty Canadians may be interested to know how Britons deal with their beer problems. It's simple—they water the stock.

William Mabane, parliamentary secretary to the ministry of food, explained it to reporters here this week.

"If you have 1,000 barrels and you need 1,200 you just add a little water," Mr. Mabane said with a smile. He told the story of a prohibitionist inquirer who asked a "bobby" if there was much drunkenness in his district.

"I haven't seen a drunk in weeks," replied the policeman, "but there were a couple of chaps burst a few days ago."

PORK PIES OR STROLLERS

It was a millinery secret, so the Wrens kept it under their hats. But now it can be told.

For their first year in the Women's Royal Canadian naval service the Wrens wore a soft navy blue felt hat. Those who liked it called it a "stroller"; those who didn't referred to it as a "pork pie." Soon there will be no more ground for argument.

The naval officials who decide what should be worn by naval personnel have pronounced upon the subject, and this is their decree: The Wrens will have two official hats—a sailor's cap for rig of the day and a tricorns for walking out."

But (a word to anxious Wrens) don't all rush at once, for it'll be several months before the new headgear is ready for issue.

As Hazlitt Walked With Coleridge

ONE raw Sunday morning in January, 1798, William Hazlitt rose before daybreak and trudged ten miles through the mud from Wem to Shrewsbury for the purpose of hearing Samuel Taylor Coleridge preach. To a youth of inquiring mind and literary bent, the occasion was irresistible. Although the Lyrical Ballads had not yet been published, Coleridge was already a celebrated person; and "a poet and a philosopher, getting up into a Unitarian pulpit to preached the gospel, was a romance in these degenerate days."

"When I got there," says Hazlitt, "the organ was playing the 100th Psalm, and, when it was done, Mr. Coleridge rose and gave out his text, 'And he went up into the mountain to pray, HIMSELF, ALONE.' As he gave out this text, his voice 'rose like a steam of rich distilled perfumes,' and when he came to the last two words, which he pronounced loud, deep, and distinct, it seemed to me, who was then young, as if the sounds had echoed from the bottom of the human heart, and as if that prayer might have floated in solemn silence through the universe." Twenty-five years afterward Hazlitt still remembered the subject of the sermon, the most striking illustration, and the effect: "I could not have been more delighted if I had heard the music of the spheres." As he walked home, the sun was still obscured by thick mists, but the day no longer seemed raw and comfortless. "The cold dank drops of dew that hung half melted on the beard of the thistle had something genial and refreshing in them; for there was a spirit of hope and youth in all nature, that turned every thing into good."

Two days later Coleridge came to call on Hazlitt's father, the minister at Wem, and every detail of his appearance and talk made an indelible impression....

The next morning ("a fine morning" this time), Hazlitt walked with Coleridge six miles toward Shrewsbury, listening eagerly while "he talked the whole way....In disgressing, in dilating, in passing from subject to subject, he appeared to me to float in the air, to slide on ice....I would swear that the very milestones had ears, and that Harmer-hill stooped with all its pines, to listen to a poet, as he passed!... He was the first poet I had known, and he certainly answered to that inspired name. I had heard a great deal of his powers of conversation, and was not disappointed. In fact, I never met with anything at all like them, either before or since."...

It is interesting, if futile, to conjecture how different our conception of Coleridge would be today if Hazlitt, under the spell of that first meeting, had dedicated his life to recording Coleridge's informal discourse, as thirty-five years earlier James Boswell, despite rough treatment by another great talker in Mr. Davies's back-parlour, attached himself to Samuel Johnson. That our conception would be different cannot be denied. Dr. Johnson, because of Boswell, has become a living, breathing person to every schoolboy in the English-speaking world. Coleridge, to most, is merely a friend of Wadsworth and author of "The Ancient Mariner," "Christabel," and "Kubla Khan." Yet John Sterling, who knew Coleridge and had studied Boswell, declared that "Dr. Johnson's talk,... seems to me immeasurably inferior. It is better balanced and scrubbed, and more ponderous with epithets; but the spirit and flavour and fragrance, the knowledge and the genius are all wanting. The one is a house of brick, the other a quarry of jasper."—From "Coleridge the Talker," by Richard W. Armour and Raymond F. Howes. (Ithaca, New York; Cornell University Press.)

A Bible Message

And Joshua said unto the children of Israel, Come hither, and hear the words of the Lord your God....

Behold, the ark of the covenant of the Lord of all the earth passeth over before you into Jordan. Now therefore take you twelve men out of the tribes of Israel, out of every tribe a man. And it shall come to pass, as soon as the soles of the feet of the priests that bear the ark of the Lord, the Lord of all the earth, shall rest in the waters of Jordan, that the waters of Jordan shall be cut off from the water that come down from above; and they shall stand upon an heap.

And it came to pass, when the people removed from their tents, to pass over Jordan, and the priests bearing the ark of the covenant before the people; and as they that bare the ark were come unto Jordan, and the feet of the priests that bare the ark were dipped in the brim of the water, (for Jordan overfloweth all his banks all the time of harvest,) that the waters which came down from above stood and rose up upon an heap very far from the city Adam, that is beside Zaretan: and those that came down toward the sea of the plain, even the salt sea, failed, and were cut off: and the people passed over right against Jericho.

And the priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the Lord stood firm on dry ground in the midst of Jordan, and all the Israelites passed clean over Jordan. (Josh. 3: 9, 11-17.)

And straightway Jesus constrained his disciples to get into a ship, and to go before him unto the other side, while he sent the multitudes away, he went up into a mountain apart to pray: and when the evening was come, he was there alone. But the ship was now in the midst of the sea, tossed with waves: for the wind was contrary.

And in the fourth watch of the night Jesus went unto them, walking on the sea. (Matt. 14: 22-25.)

Basic English — Its Weakness

That Basic English idea is fine as a medium to set up between the peoples of the world who speak different languages. But let's not get any idea that it is to replace the English language.

A writer in the New York Times has been experimenting with Basic English and the results are not good. Neither "tears" nor "sweat" is included in Basic English, so Mr. Churchill's own ringing declaration would have to be that he could promise his people only blood and eye water and face water. Nor is there "murder", "gutter" or snipe" in Basic English. So Mr. Churchill's calling Adolf Hitler a murderous guttersnipe must be watered down to a bad dirty bird.

Bachelor Pays $7,000 Damages To Jilted Girl

SARNIA, Sept. 18—(CP)—An Assize Court jury Friday afternoon recommended award of $7,000 damages to Miss Ethel Trott, Oil City, in her $15,000 breach of promise suit against Elmer Mott, Enniskillen township farmer. The jury assessed the damages in answer to the last of five questions submitted by Mr. Justice D. P. J. Kelly. They gave an affirmative reply to the first question which asked if a contract of marriage was entered into between the parties.

This was the second trial of the action in the first hearing Mr. Justice J. C. Makins withdrew the case from the jury and directed a dismissal. His decision was subsequently reversed and a new trial ordered.

Woman Ferry Pilot Bewilders Texans

TORONTO, Sept. 18 (CP) —Dorothy Jane Carson—Texans thought something was wrong because she didn't wear a parka—is back at her Toronto home today, waiting for Washington to decide where she's to serve with the United States Ferry Command or return to her duties as civilian flying instructor in Texas.

Blond, blue-eyed and pretty, Miss Carson flew to Dallas last fall and after 115 flying hours qualified as a flying instructor at a United States Army Air Force station. But flying and studies proved too much and Miss Carson now is home for a rest.

Recalling her experiences in Texas, the 21-year-old flier said as a Canadian she attracted considerable curiosity in Dallas. "Those long and lean Texans...would stare and stare and try to find something about me that marked me as a foreigner."

Sea Cadet Chief Outlines Growth Of Corps

A review of the formation and history of the Peterborough Sea Cadet Corps was given by the Corps' commanding officer, Stanley Longhurst, at a luncheon gathering of the Kiwanis Club on Friday. Present as special guest was the first member of the local corps to enlist in the Navy, Robert Graham, and on behalf of the Kiwanis Club he was presented with a pen and pencil set by President Dick Raine.

In sketching the formation of the Sea Cadets under the sponsorship of the Kiwanis Club, Mr. Longhurst emphasized that the Corps had now attained the position of being the club's most important activity, and it was not to be considered simply as a war effort but rather as an organization which would be kept in being following the peace. It was, he pointed out, recruits from long-established Sea Cadet Corps main centres such as Toronto and Winnipeg who were in no small measure responsible for manning the ships of the Canadian Navy when the emergencies of this war arose. And then too, he added, the end of the war would find Canada with the largest Navy and merchant marine in its history.

Difficulties Exist

There were difficulties to be overcome in organizing the Sea Cadet Corps, the speaker said, but in time these were ironed out and at present the Corps was established on a satisfactory basis and doing a good job of training its young members. In fact, Mr. Longhurst related, the boys had shown up two much older corps in competition in marching and discipline in their summer camp at Minnicog Island.

It was near the end of last year, the Cadets' commanding officer stated, that a committee of Kiwanians was set up to look into the matter of starting a corps in this city, and by January permission had been received from the Navy League to go ahead with the formation of a Corps. In two nights during January 100 applications were received from youngsters interested to join, and the committee's efforts were next turned to finding a place to conduct the training. The Corps' first parade was held in the Y.M.C.A. on February 19, and one parade a week was held there for the first six weeks. Around the first of April the Corps moved into its present quarters at Victoria Hall, and drills were soon stepped up to two a week. The new quarters, Mr. Longhurst indicated, though not wholly ideal because away from the water, were suitable and large enough for training purposes.

"Nobody in Kiwanis had any naval training," Mr. Longhurst said, in speaking of the problems encountered in the process of getting the Sea Cadet Corps on a going basis, and he went on to relate how the energetic assistance of volunteers had overcome this stumbling-block as well as the others.

Mr. Longhurst spoke of the work achieved during the summer training period on Minnicog Island, and the variety of courses undertaken by the Cadets during those two weeks. He said that the trip had proved a great outing for the boys.

Refering to the syllabus planned for winter months, the commanding officer said that one period a month would be set aside as a recreational night to give the boys a little variety from the formalities of discipline and drill.

Officers under Mr. Longhurst in the Sea Cadets Corps are: C. Huffman, 2nd in command; J. Gaskell, Training Officer; Dr. Bert Waite, Medical Officer; G. Maniece, Accounting Officer; H. Coleman, W. Garner, R. McClellan, J. Collins, T. Tridham, J. Wolstenholme and T. Hall; Divisional Officers; H. Conway and A. Alexander, civilian instructors; the Rev. H. Roberts and Rev. Father Malane, padres.

The speaker of the day was introduced by President Dick Raine, and the vote of thanks moved by Charles Saunders.

Three Municipal Buildings Have Served Peterborough Since Incorporated As Town

The generous bequest by the late W. G. Morrow has ensured for Peterborough in the future a City Hall and Municipal Building worthy of a prosperous, progressive industrial city. A sub-committee of the council is now considering space required for a new hall. One condition of the bequest requires the city to provide a suitable site.

Under the circumstances it may be interesting to give a brief historical sketch of the city's municipal buildings since the town was incorporated in 1850—93 years ago.

The council of the newly-incorporated town immediately took steps to provide itself with a municipal home and on September 27, 1851 the cornerstone was laid of a town hall and market during the mayoralty of Charles Hudson, Peterborough's second mayor. This building stood on the north of the Market Square running east and west with market stalls on the ground floor and a large hall over them. A photograph of this old town hall hangs on a wall of the present council chamber.

The laying of the stone was an occasion of some considerable ceremony and with it were deposited various documents and mementoes. These included a parchment scroll, giving the names of the council and officials; a copy of the Toronto Globe of September 25, 1851, the current Peterborough Weekly Despatch and a set of English coins. The decimal form of coinage did not come into use until 1857.

As a matter of record here follows a copy of the parchment record of the council and officials in 1851: "Sept. 27, AD 1851, Charles Hudson, Esquire, Mayor, laid the foundation stone of this building erected by order of the Town Council of the Town of Peterborough. Members of the Council: Charles Hudson, Esquire, Mayor; James Harvey, Joseph Spenceley, John Reid, Thomas Chambers, Clarge Spalding, James T. Henthorn, Edmund Chamberlen, Egerton Perry, M.D., Thomas Hutcheson, Robinson Rutherford and John Haggart. Members of the building committee: Edmund Chamberlen, James T. Henthorn, Thomas Chambers, John Reid and James Harvey, Esquires. Walter Sheridan, Esq., architect and Mr. David Taylor, contractor. Signed W. H. Wrighton, Town Clerk".

One exciting incident of this ceremony was the mysterious disappearance of a roasting ox which had been presented by the Mayor to be roasted whole to celebrate the occasion. At night, during the roasting certain persons, enemies of the Mayor removed the partly roasted carcass on a stone-boat and gagged and bound the man in charge. Next morning when the townsmen gathered to get their share of the meal they found a dead fire, a gagged cook and no ox.

It will be noted that there were 12 members of the Council—a larger number than the present body — though the population in 1852 was only 2,191.

In 1867 the use of the old Town Hall was granted to one E. C. Hill for 10 years for a sum of $1,000. He was a teacher of music and dancing and the place was known as "Hill's Music Hall". He was always conspicuous around the town as he always wore a silk tophat.

As the town grew and prospered the accommodation at this Town Hall was quite inadequate for municipal needs and steps were taken to find new quarters.

Bradburn Building

On March 17, 1872 the Council leased to Thos. Bradburn the land on the West side of the Market Square fronting on George Street upon which the present Bradburn Building stands. He was to pay $125 a year rent and undertook to provide, in the building erected thereon a large hall and opera house, a council chamber and municipal offices from plans to be approved by the Council.

On November 14, 1876, the Council met for the first time in the new Council Chamber in the Bradburn Building and on the previous evening the first theatrical performance had taken place in the Opera House.

Another change was made 1883 for on April 27 of that year the Council decided to buy from James Stevenson the eastern portion of the present city buildings at the corner of Water and Simcoe streets and to fit them up with a Council Chamber, offices and a lock-up. The purchase price was $4,500 and the alteration cost $1,500.

On April 6, 1886 the Council moved to its present quarters and the first council meeting there was held on that date. These buildings have served as the city's municipal home ever since and, after serving their purpose for over half a century, will be superseded in the, it is to be hoped, not far distant future by a hall and offices worthier of the city.

Meanwhile the old Market Hall on the Market Square was proving quite inadequate to handle the business of a town whose population had increased to 9,000, so in 1889 the Council decided to build a new Market Mall. On May 15 of that year plans were received and approved for the erection of the present hall at a cost of $11,000, an expenditure approved by by-law. The old building was pulled down and on September 26, 1889 the corner stone of the present Market Hall was laid with considerable ceremony which included a parade through the town of the Militia and the Fire Brigade.

The Mayor, James Stevenson performed the ceremony with a silver trowel presented to him for the occasion and then said: "On behalf of the people of the town of Peterborough I declare the stone to be well and truly laid." John Burnham, Reeve of Ashburnham and J. R. Stratton, M.P.P. also took part in the ceremony.

New Corner Stone

When the old Market Hall was pulled down the documents mentioned earlier were carefully removed and preserved and these—with many others of the 1889 vintage were placed in a cavity under the new corner stone. These latter included copies of all the Toronto papers, the Weekly and Daily Examiner, the Review, the Times, Canadian Almanac, Municipal Voters' List, town directory, prize list of Central Exhibition, a list of civic committees, copies of the War Cry, Y.M.C.A. notes, Baptist Visitor, Methodist Lifeboat, the Dominion Philatelist, The Lumberman, the Canadian Agriculturalist and the Nutshell, said to be all published in Peterborough. There was also a colored photograph of Mayor James Stevenson and 21 photographic views of public buildings and streets. Last but not least there was a parchment scroll with the names of the Council and officials engrossed therein. Again as a matter of reference follows a copy of this old document:

"On the 26th day of September, 1889 the corner stone of this building-market was laid by James Stevenson, Mayor. James G. Macdonald, Town Clerk; Chas." McGill, Treasurer. Members of Council:

Ward No. 1: R. S. Davidson, H. C. Winch, T. Cahill.

Ward No. 3: Arthur Rutherford, John D. Baptie, A. Dawson.

Architect John E. Belcher; Contractor, Thos. Rutherford.

As before stated all these documents and momentos together with those of 1851 were placed in sealed glass containers, which in turn were placed in a lead casket soldered and sealed. This latter was placed in a cavity under the corner stone, and, if and when opened should give a future generation a clear vision of the Peterborough of 1851 and 1889.

Incidentally the population at the 1891 census was 9,717 and Peterborough was incorporated as a city on July 1, 1905.

Unfortunately this corner stone is not now visible, perhaps it has been hidden by various alterations in the building but probably some of the older citizens remember its location. It might well be uncovered and some inscription or plaque placed on or near it, to denote a land mark in local history.

BRINTONS OVERWHELM GENERALS WINNING KNOX CUP AND TITLE

Heavy Hitting Features Final Battle

Brintons won the intermediate championship of the Girls' Softball League and the Knox Cup at the Bowl Friday night when they overwhelmed Generals 20 to 3, to take the best-of-five final series two games to one. It was the second intermediate title in as many years for the winners.

Brintons were decidedly the better team last night. They hit the ball hard, fielded steadily behind good pitching by Beryl Lee and scored in every innings to make their triumph convincing. Generals came up with one of their worst games of the season, making a flock of errors and killing their scoring chances by bad base-running, and after the first couple of innings the game just revolved itself into a question of how big the Brinton margin would be.

The winners opened the scoring in the first inning getting a run on an error and Marg. Batley's single. They added two more in the second on a pass to Beryl Lee, Marg. Thompson's triple to centre and a bad throw, and another in fourth on singles by Marg. Batley and Marg. Thompson. A pass to Agnes Weir, singles by Thelma and Marg. Batley and three errors were responsible for three Brinton counters in the fourth. The fifth saw six more runs cross the plate for the winners on exactly two hits, three misplays and a pass. The big blow of that frame was Marg. Batley's long homer to left centre with two runners scoring ahead of her.

Two walks, singles by Marg. Batley, Beryl Lee and Agnes Weir and Helen English's double added up to half a dozen more in the sixth and a couple of errors and Agnes Weir's single scored another in the final frame.

Beryl Lee had the Indian sign on the Generals' hitters most of the way. They managed to bunch three hits by Pat. Wilson, Marg. Barrie and Gladys Young for a pair of runs in the third and Ruth Thomas hammered out a homer with the bases empty in the fifth but that was all they could do in the scoring line.

Marg. Batley with a homer and four singles in five times at bat led the Brinton attack. Gladys Young with three hits and Mary Crowe with two were the leading hitters for the losers. Helen English's catch of a low liner to centre and Pat Wilson's grab of a hot shot off the bat of Regina Killen were the fielding gems. Aggie Weir played fine ball at shortstop for the winners.

The teams and score by innings:

Brewers Win

MILWAUKEE — (AP). — By their 12-10 defeat of Kansas City last night, Milwaukee Brewers bottled their first pennant in the American Association since 1936. The locals were down seven runs in the crucial argument, but uncorked a batting spree in the seventh and went on to beat the Kansans by a two-run margin.

Beats R.C.A.F.

LONDON — (CP). — London Army, two-time winners of diamond titles already this season, outclased Toronto R.C.A.F. 13-2 at Labatt Park last night in the first of the O.B.A. senior semi-finals, the survivor of which will clash with Hamilton Co-ops next week for the provincial honors.

Coaches Champions

Gordon Minty, former member of the Y.M.C.A staff, now an insurance salesman, had the satisfaction of seeing one of his pupils win the Ontario junior breast stroke, 100 yards championship at Winnipeg this month. The new champion is 16-year-old Bill Lech. Minty also coached Allan Marshall, now with the R.C.A.F., who won the senior breast stroke Canadian title a few years ago at Montreal. Congratulations are in order to the Brinton team for their clean-cut capture of the intermediate girls' softball league championship and the Knox Cup. The Brintons took the title in convincing fashion last night when they smothered Generals 20 to 3 to take the best-of-five series. It was the second championship in succession for the winners. They deserve all the more credit for repeating the feat because of the fact that they lost a number of their 1942 championship team, including Leila Hughes, an effective pitcher who moved to Hamilton and Marg. Barrie and Doreen Smith who were with Generals this season. Brintons filled the gaps with recruits, carried on and have been rewarded by winning the championship in their section. They have played good ball all season and came through with an extra surge of power when they needed it the most in the final series. Generals, although badly beaten in their last two games, also deserve credit for a good showing this season. Like Brintons they nave a lot of young players and inexperience has proven costly at times but they stuck to the job all season and will be heard from in future campaigns if they stick together.

Last night's intermediate final wound up the long season of the Girls' Softball League which has been operating since May and has provided a lot of entertainment and recreation for a big following of fans all season. It has been a good year. The league was able to include six clubs and while two of them, Westclox and Aircraft were too powerful for the other four, the thing worked out well for it left the two strong clubs to battle for the senior championship and the R. S. Cotton Cup and the other four outfits were well matched in their fight for the intermediate title. Johnson Motors competed for the first time and like some of the other clubs came up with some promising young material who will be the stars of the loop before many seasons have rolled around. The advent of so many young players has been a feature of the campaign and augurs well for the success of the league in other years. The hard-working officers of the league, notably President Bill Bennett and Secretary Gladys Mortimer have earned general thanks for the time and energy they have devoted to running the affairs of the organization all season. To their efforts much of the success that has been scored can be credited.

The Season's Best

Promoter Frank Tunney has doped out a bill for Monday night's wrestling card at the Brock Street Arena that looks like the most colorful of the whole season. Giving top billing to the grudge battle between the turbulent Dick Hogan and the smiling Irishman Pat Flanagan and that will be an hour of everything-goes milling, he has added a pair of main-bouters, Earl McCready and Tony Doc Felice in the semi-final and that lively battler Johnny Gyroffy against Sergt. Ted Miller in the preliminary. That is a program that should please everybody for it combines about everything in the wrestling repertoire. The main bout speaks for itself. Tossing Hogan and Flanagan together with an hour time limit is just like bouncing T.N.T. around on a cement floor. The Toronto grappler is usually a good-natured bird but with Hogan uncorking all his skulduggery it won't be long before Flanagan will be handing out the same stuff and from then on there will be fireworks every minute. The McCready-Felice tussle should be a honey. The Doc is one of those brawling mat artists who likes to mix it all the time and while the powerful McCready is amiable as a rule he can retaliate in kind if the opposition gets tough so you can mark that one down as a half hour of lively action between two big and skilful grapplers. As for the opener Gyroffy who incidentally was formerly an airman himself showed a lot of stuff here some time ago and he and Sergt. Ted Miller should get the card away on the right foot.

George Soup Campbell, coach of the Oshawa Colts and sports commentator, anticipates plenty of opposition in the next round which will probably see the Colts stacked up against Toronto Invictus. Here is how he sees it in the Oshawa sport column: "Oshawa Colts are marking time this week—but it looks as if they had better prepare for the sternest task of their softball career. The Colts, as Eastern Ontario champions, are to meet the winners of the Toronto-Owen Sound series and that will be Toronto Invictus. Invictus trounced Baers in the Toronto finals in two-straight with Jack Sinclair pitching a 1-hit, 11-0 shutout. Yesterday in Toronto, Sinclair pitched Invictus to a 15-2 victory over Owen Sound so it looks as if that series will be two-straight also. Sinclair, as many Oshawa softball fans know, is one of the top-notch softball hurlers in the city of Toronto. He's a veteran in experience and only last year was pitching in Senior company. He has performed with distinction in the Beaches Fastball League. Behind him on the Invictus club, he has several other players of outstanding Senior softball experience. It's the old, old story. There's nothing in the O.A.S.A. rule book to prevent big city players jumping around from Senior "A" and back to Intermediate again. It isn't fair—we all know that, but just the same that's the way it is. Oshawa Colts are practicing tonight and will be at it again a couple of times before they meet Invictus. If the Toronto club ousts Owen Sound in two-straight (2nd game is at O.S. on Saturday) then Oshawa Colts will play Invictus in Toronto on Tuesday evening of next week. "Yorky" Jordan had 3 of Owen Sound's 4 hits against Sinclair last night and two of them were home-runs, the only runs Owen Sound got."

Want New Arena Now

Now that Kingston has been endorsed as the logical site for hockey's hall of fame, Kingston folk are talking about a new arena. Bill Walshe tells about it in his Kingston Whig-Standard sport column: "Kingston has been awarded the hall of fame and it is now the duty of civic organizations to prepare for a suitable building to house the shrine. A board of governors, appointed by the leading governments of the game, will likely control the hall of fame for the selection of members and other business regarding the operation of the shrine but it is up to Kingston to finance the construction of a building. In time the shrine should pay for itself in admissions and proceeds of star games, just as the shrine for baseball at Cooperstown is now producing a revenue. Kingston would also cash in on tourist traffic and world wide advertising for, like Cooperstown in baseball, Kingston would be known as the home of hockey wherever the game is played. There was a suggestion made in Toronto that the hockey shrine be part of a new arena but hockey heads favor a separate building as a museum, although it could be built near or joining an arena. Establishing Kingston as the location for the hall of fame should promote interest in a much needed civic arena, not only for hockey but other community gatherings, such as big meetings, dances, roller-skating and carnivals. Other municipalities, much smaller than Kingston, have civic arenas, financed by civic enterprises, which have been paying propositions."

Toronto Leafs took a stranglehold on their Governors' Cup semi-final series with Montreal Royals last night by coming from behind to take Fresco Thompson's athletes 5 to 3. That put the Toronto gang in front on the round three wins to none and they can grab off the series tonight when the fourth game will be staged in Montreal. Should the Royals win there will be a Sunday game. Al Jarlett pitched great ball for the Leafs after his teammates had put him into the hole with a couple of errors in the first inning, paving the way for all three Montreal runs. After that bad start Jarlett blanked the Royals for the balance of the game. Leafs chased a run in in the third, tied it up with a brace

Western Rugby Starts Sept. 25

WINNIPEG, Sept. 18 (CP) — Western Canada Interprovincial grid competition, shelved last year when Regina and Vancouver withdrew from the Western Conference, will be revived this season with teams representing Winnipeg and Regina.

A league composed of Winnipeg R.C.A.F. Bombers, Winnipeg United Services and Regina Navy Roughriders, has been formed with players drawn from service and civilian ranks.

The teams will play a nine game schedule with the top two clubs in the final standings participating in a two game series for the Western title.

First blood in the newly formed circuit will be drawn in Regina September 25 when Winnipeg R.C. A.F. Bombers go against the Navy Roughriders.

In this contest Reg. Threlfall, who led Winnipeg Blue Bombers to Dominion titles in 1939 and 1941 and coached Winnipeg All-Stars into the national final last year, will match wits with his old rival, Dean Griffing.

DETROIT — (AP). — Detroit Bomberettes went down to a 6-1 defeat before the defending champions, New Orleans Jax, in the first round of the women's softball championship tournament here last night. A factor was the two-hit pitching of Nora Korgan, the Southerners' star moundsgirl.

The Sports Round-Up

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 —(AP) — When Mrs. Charles Clifton walked up to the fourth tee of New Jersey's Crestmont Country Club recently, she remarked to her partner: "this is where I made my hole in one, and here's the club, a No. 4, iron, if you'd like to use it."…. Mrs. Joseph Vasques accepted the offer teed up and whacked the ball 140 yards into the cup …. Other Cresmont golfers figure that iron belongs in golfs hall of fame.

You pick 'em.

Bill Johnson, Yankees-New York and Connie Mack's choice for rookie-of-the-year honors ….A good .290 hitter who has driven in 82 runs and a durable player who never misses a game …. Bill is about the most converted player you ever saw; he started as a pitcher, became an outfielder and last year was rated the best shortstop in the International League. The Yanks converted him into a third baseman last spring and he converted fans who thought nobdy but Red Rolfe could cover that corner.

Whitey Kurowski, Cardinals — the boy who virtually broke up the 1942 World Series. He clouted a game-winning triple in the second tussle and a game-winning homer in the fifth. Whitey won batting titles in the northeast Arkansas and Middle Atlanitc league and currently is hitting .294 in the National ….Probably the only Card who favored the one-trip series— He can't sleep on trains.

The other side:

When coach Jess Neely of Rice told Houston Football fans that he was "starting from scratch" to prepare for the season, Dutch Meyer of Texas Christian added that he was "scratching to start."

Service Dept.

Sam Nathem, former Phillies hurler, was the leading hurler of the Newport, R. I., Sunset League this season, pitching for the "Redlegs," a coast artillery anti-aircraft team. Sam had an earned run average of 0.85 and chalked up 136 strikeouts in 159 innings. He also hit .400 …. Doesn't that always happen when a guy is traded off the Phillies?

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Sept. 18 (CP)—The South Saskatchewan Regiment fought at Dieppe. It was appropriate when winners at the regiment's sports meet received commando knives as awards.

The prizes were made by the firm which designed the sword sent to the City of Stalingrad in commemoration of the great Russian victory there.

"I think the boys appreciated those knives more than anything else we might have given," said Maj. Jack Mather of Estevan, Sask., the second-in-command.

There's no doubt Pork Dumart is some shakes as a hockey player but as a softball performer he couldn't turn the tide as his bomber squadron team was trounced 6-2 by another Canadian squadron and knocked out of the district R.C.A.F. elimination tournament. The winners, paced by the three-hit hurling of J. M. McLeod of Winnipeg, included Nick Plyska of Portage la Prairie, Man.; Matt Gordon, Welland, Ont.; Red Wair of Toronto and D. A. Ogilvie of Montreal.

Not satisfied with his ground job as a member of the Canadian Fire Fighters in Britain, Ottawa's Tony McCarthy obtained his release to join the air force. The former gridiron great right now is in the midst of training as an air gunner.

The Canadian Army's championship tourney reached the semi-finals when a team from a pioneer company, representing Reinforcement Units, defeated the South Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, 445-443.

High scorers for the winners, with 50 points each, were Ptes. P. and S. R. Nobes both of Stayner, Ont.; K. G. Truin of Woodstock, Ont.; F. J. Boucher of Winnipeg.

Among the losers were Ptes. Jim Munro of Toronto; J. Skillen and G. Rock both of Ottawa; J. Grisdale of Peterborough, Ont.; and J. A. Rapense of Cornwall, Ont.

They held a "Canada Day" at the quiet, Cathedral City of Canterbury and the lads whooped up more noise than had been heard in years. All the yelling came when two teams from the Canadian Army initiated the citizens into the art of baseball. The good citizens just watched while the Canadian Sloggers beat the Toronto Wild Cats 17-11.

Among the performers were Ptes. H. Anderson of Dartmouth, N.S.; J. Gilbert of Wiarton, Ont., and D. Shorthill, J. McIntyre, L. Williams and F. Bethley, all of Toronto.

EMPLOYMENT UP.

Total unemployed in Britain in July was 71,129 as against 101,436 at the same time in 1942.

Felice Hopes To Drop McCready

Tony "Doc" Felice is a native of Yugo-Slavia and some punkins as a heavyweight wrestler. At least that's what one infers after hearing the Serb sound off. Felice is convinced that he is the best wrestler around these parts at least and will come here on Monday night to prove the same against Earl McCready. One thing that must be admitted about the "Doc."; he certainly doesn't pick his spots. Felice met big Earl in Maple Leaf Gardens the other night and fouled his way out of the trouble, but he was right back with a demand for a re-match. So he gets it in the semi-final here on Monday. The feature bout however is the return battle between Pat Flanagan and Dick Hogan. Those two battled to an uproarious climax here recently and besides having the customers on their collective feet throughout, created a real demand for a re-match. Flanagan's supporters are positive the clever Irish heavyweight will take the measure of Roughhouse Dick. Irish Pat is a vastly improved wrestler in the last twelve-month, and in fact seems destined to make the top bracket one of these days. On the other hand Hogan is one of those burly surly fellows who seem to automatically turn the crowd against him on every move he makes. But that doesn't mean that Dick can't wrestle. The Roughhouse King is tremendously powerful and he knows some devastating tricks for bruising and breaking an opponent.

Ted Miller, the capable Flight Sergeant from Trenton R.C.A.F. who knows a lot of wrestling of a different sort from Hogan's, has been signed to meet Johnny Gyroffy, another former Airman from Ottawa.

Pony Series Tied

Would Fight Louis

CHICAGO, Sept. 18—(AP). —Jack Johnson, the former heavyweight boxing champion, who is 65 years old, wants to fight Joe Louis in a three-round exhibition at any United States army camp in the country. "I'll fight him anywhere—either at any army camp to entertain soldiers or in an arena to sell war bonds," Johnson said.

Hockey Players Given Consideration

OTTAWA, Sept. 18—(CP).—Labor Minister Mitchell announced today that "within certain limits" National Selective Service will not interfere with the release of hockey players to engage in the game during the forthcoming season.

However, limitations are placed upon players engaging in hockey in either Canada or tht United States, where they are employed in high priority employment, unless the consent of the employer is obtained.

Moreover, the Minister said, postponement under the military call-up is not contemplated for hockey players in age and marital classes subject to mobilization regulations if they are found to be physically fit for military training.

Letter Issued.

A letter outlining the position of Selective Service in the matter has been sent to mobilization boards and registrars and to National Selective Service officers across Canada. The letter, signed jointly by Mr. Mitchell and Arthur MacNamara, director of National Selective Service, sets forth the following principles for the guidance of those dealing with cases:

1. Selective Service permits to enter employment of a professional hockey club in Canada or the United States will be granted to any person who is not in the age groups designated under the mobilization regulations, or to any person in those age groups who has been rejected for military service, unless the applicant is employed by an establishment which has been given an "A" or "B" labor priority rating.

2. If the person is engaged by an establishment which has been given an "A" or "B" labor priority rating, a permit will not be granted without the consent of the employer and on the understanding that any time lost playing hockey will be made up in order that production will not suffer.

3. Labor exit permits will be granted under Section 400 of the Civilian Regulations and Authorizations to leave Canada will be given under Section 23 of the Mobilization Regulations, to any person to whom a permit to enter employment may be issued under items one or two above.

The Redwings' star infielder finished the season with a mark of .336, 21 points ahead of Ed Levy of Newark Bears, who wound up with .315.

George Staller, Baltimore, batted in the most runs, 98, and Frank Zak of Toronto scored the most runs, 100. Harrington stole the most bases, 52.

Joe Page of Newark topped the pitchers in percentage with .737 for 14 victories and five defeats. Ed Klieman of Baltimore won the most games, 23.

Newark Bears Defeat Chiefs In 10 Innings

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Maple Leafs were set today to make a clean sweep of their semi-final series with Montreal Royals and go into the final round of the International Baseball League's Governors' Cups play-offs.

A victory tonight at Montreal will give the Leafs, 1943 pennant winners, the best-of-seven game set-to in four straight.

Toronto mastered Montreal for the third straight time 5-3 last night when, with the score tied, a man on base and two out, Lee Gamble singled to drive in what proved to be the winning run.

Newark Bears scored a thrilling 9-8 10-inning victory over Syracuse Chiefs at Newark in the other bracket of the semi-finals to gain their first triumph in the series and put them only one game down to the Chiefs.

Al Jarlett, Toronto hurler, and the Royals' Al Sherer allowed eight hits each in last night's contest. Jarlett received good support, the Toronto infield providing a couple of fast double plays.

A walk to Crompton in the ninth, a sacrifice and Gamble's safety drove the winning run over in the ninth. Handley then hit a double to drive in Gamble and give the Leafs a plush run.

In the Syracuse-Newark game the Bears counted once in the ninth to pull even with the Chiefs and then had to score four times in the 10th to wipe out the trio of runs Syracuse battered across in the top half of the frame.

Their big, final rally was manufactured from five singles and a sacrifice with Dick Korte's third single the telling blow.

TORONTO, Sept. 18 — (CP). — If New Westminster Salmonbellies make the national lacrosse final again this season it will mark their fifth appearance in the Mann Cup series in the 11 years of the boxla game. Salmonbellies have won the cup just once—in 1937. St. Catharines and Orillia each won the trophy three times in four attempts ....Bill Wilson was a near monopoly on the Mann Cup records. He has been in the national final seven times—with three different teams. Twice he showed with Orillia, once with Salmonbellies and four times with St. Catharines. He was on the championship club six times.

Hall of Fame:

The N.H.L.'s choice of Kingston as a site for a hockey Hall of Fame met considerable criticism in Halifax and Montreal. Ken Chisholm of the Halifax Herald said the Halifax committee had been assured it would be notified when the Hall of Fame decision would be discussed, but that the notification did not come....E. M. Orlick of the McGill University Department of Education says he is confident the decision will be revoked. In an open letter adressed to the N.H.L. and published by the Montreal Gazette, Orlick says those responsible for the Hall of Fame decision "were the victims of the greatest hoax ever perpetrated in the annals of Canadian sport."....Orlick obviously figures Montreal should have been chosen.

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Today should be the red-letter day for St. Louis Redbirds—the day they clinch their second successive National League championship.

The Cardinals, who eliminated the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers last night by nosing out Chicago Cubs 2-1 in 10 innings for Mort Cooper's 20th victory, need only to win either half of a double-header with the Cubs this afternoon to dispose of their last mathematical challenger, Cincinnati Reds.

In pressing right up to the threshold of another World Series the Cardinals, and particularly the Cooper brothers, acted like champions. Mort pitched five-hit ball and Walker made three of the nine hits given up by Claude Passeau, including a double that drove home the winning run in the 10th. Ray Sanders hit a homer in the fifth to tie the score after the Cubs had counted in the third.

On the other hand New York Yankees crumbled before Washington Senators 6-3, ending a nine-game winning streak, and lost any chance of clinching the American League pennant before next Wednesday.

Wenslof Loses

Instead of shooting Spud Chandler for his 20th victory, Manager Joe McCarthy chose to use Rookie Charley Wensloff on the mound against Buck Newsom. Wensloff was batted out by five runs in the first three innings and Newsom went on with a six-hit pitching performance to give the second-place Senators their seventh success in a row.

The Cardinals' chore today was made easier because both Brooklyn and Cincinnati lost yesterday. The Dodgers were whipped 6-4 by New York Giants on four unearned runs in the seventh inning, after a wild throw by Sid Gordon with the bases loaded had let in three runs for Brooklyn in the second.

In the American League Cleveland Indians faded farther from second place by dropping their fourth straight game 2-1 to Detroit.

Pine Ridge Wins 2:17 Event At Fall Fair

LINDSAY, Sept. 16 — A large crowd attended the second day of the four-day annual fair Friday. When the horses paraded to the post in the first heat of the initial event, the grandstand which holds over 4,000, was comfortably filled as well as the lawn.

Pine Ridge Jim from the Hillock Stable was Hawkins' hoss Friday afternoon in the 2:17 pace as he won all three heats. In the first dash Dick Powell showed the way into the first turn and reached the quarter in 33 seconds, much better time than it sounds, as the field was compelled to go wide on the turns due to the soft condition of the footing. They were at the half in 1:09, with Dick still in front, followed by Pine Ridge Jim and Royal Sadie. But, when Hillock said "Giddy-up Jim" he came out from behind and breezed to the front to win in 2:16½.

Cecil Champion hustled Royal Sadie through the lane in the second skirmish to beat Dick Howell for the place, while Hillock and Pine Ridge Jim had command of the situation in 2:19.

Tying Can To Jap Freighter's Tail Off New Guinea

7 Kitchener Men Pay $15 Fines

KITCHENER, Sept. 18 — (CP)— Seven members of the Canadian Reserve Army including Mayor A. H. Zilliax of nearby Elmira, today were each fined $15 when they appeared in police court on charges of failing to attend a three-day scheme over the Labor Day week-end. Two others were each fined $5.

Charges against seven others, members of the Scots Fusiliers of Canada, were adjourned for a week.

Crops Have New Uses

WINNIPEG, Sept. 18 — (CP) — Possibility of developing new processes for using farm crops for non-food purposes was discussed in an address here Thursday by Dr. J. A. Anderson, chief chemist, Board of Grain Commissioners. He said an expanded research program was necessary.

Primate Wants Secretary Named

TORONTO, Sept. 18—(CP)— The General Synod of the Church of England of Canada started the final day of the 15th session with a discussion on the question of the appointment of a permanent full-time secretary.

J. P. Bell of Hamilton, honorary treasure of the Senate, indicated that the appointment and incidental office expenses would involve an annual cost of $6,000 or more and this expenditure should not be undertaken at the present time.

"The General Synod has come to a point where work requires the appointment of a permanent secretary," declared Rev. W. W. Judd, general secretary of the council for social service.

General secretaries, he said, had full-time jobs without being called on to participate in the deliberations of committees and commissions in dealings with various phases of church work.

The Primate, he said, should be left free, to give spiritual leadership to the church throughout the Dominion and the suggested secretarial appointment would be a step in the right direction.

Most Rev. D. T. Owen, the Primate, expressed his belief that the appointment of a secretary would have to be made ultimately if not now. He hoped that the matter would be considered further and the Synod decided that the question be deferred until the next General Synod.

Thanksgiving services in observance of the 50th anniversary of formation of the General Synod will be celebrated in all dioceses outside Toronto, September 26.

Agriculture Department Announces Change To Stop Shipping Delay

OTTAWA, Sept. 18 — (CP) — In a move to speed up movement of Western Canada feed grains to fill the urgent need of Eastern farmers, the Agricultural Department today announced that effective immediately, the "dockage tolerance" of one per cent authorized last Aug. 1 had been increased to three per cent.

This avoids the delay at the head of the lakes when the grains must be inspected, unloaded and recleaned if the percentage of dockage (presence in the grain of weed seeds or other matter) is higher than one per cent.

Increase of the dockage tolerance to three per cent was described in the announcement as "an emergency measure" which is concurred in by the Governments of the five Eastern Provinces.

Carloads of coarse grain shipped from country points in Western Canada will be inspected at Winnipeg to avoid delay at the lakehead terminals.

If the dockage is no more than three per cent the grains will be eligible to participate in the freight assistance plan and other subsidy provisions.

Can Buy Direct.

On carloads held to be too full for regular inspection, certificates on the basis of sample inspection will be issued by the Board of Grain Commissioners.

"Under this provision Eastern farmers may buy feed grains direct from Western farmers and Western farmers will have the privilege of shipping coarse grains direct to farmers in Eastern Canada in reasonable quantities above the prevailing quota," the announcement said.

"The problem of speeding up the movement of feed grains from Western Canada to the Eastern Provinces has been under consideration of the Agricultural Supplies Board for the past few months and several measures calculated to be of assistance have been put into effect. Up to the present these have been effective only to a degree in relation to the unprecedented demand for feed grains in Eastern Canada.

"Owing to one of the poorest grain crops in Eastern Canada this year livestock producers in the East must rely on feed grains from Western Canada to a greater extent than ever before. The volume required will be by far the greatest ever needed."

Courage Aplenty Shown In Italy

By RELMAN MORIN

Associated Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 5TH AMY IN ITALY, Sept. 15— (Delayed)— (AP)— The path ended in a pile of rocks about a quarter of a mile below the topmost peak of the mountain. Not even the jeep could go any further, and a jeep can go almost anywhere.

The sergeant got out and squinted up toward the top. He drew his carbine from the holster on the side of the jeep and put a couple of extra clips of ammunition in his pocket. Then he said to the driver:

"If I'm not back by dark you can go on down the hill, but wait as long as you can."

We watched him until he disappeared around a shoulder of rock covered with scrub pine.

"He's got guts," said the driver. "I'd hate to have to do what he's doing."

Four soldiers are missing somewhere up there. They went to establish a lookout post and then they simply disappeared. No sign had come from them for two days. The sergeant had come up to find them.

"They probably got the snafoo from a German patrol," said the driver. "These hills are full of Germans. Particularly snipers. A sniper could knock him off so quick he'd never know what hit him. He's sure got guts."

The shadows lengthened across the plain and crept slowly up the slopes of the mountains.

"The thing is," the driver said, "he wouldn't really have to stick his neck out like this. He could come up just this far and look around right from here and then say he couldn't find those guys. And nobody would ever know any different. I'd sure be tempted to do just that if it was me."

A Brave Man, Too.

The hills were deathly still. An hour passed. Then the sergeant came back. His brown shirt was blotched and stained with sweat and his face as dripping.

"Not a sign of them," he said. "Not a single solitary sign."

He poured a canteen of water over his head and let it run down his cheek and arms and into his pants. Then he sat down and lit a cigarette.

"There's just one other thing, Jim," he said to the driver. "You see that point over there. They might have gone over there."

"Sure, I see it," said the soldier.

"Well, how about you taking a look over there. You got maybe half an hour of light left and you ought to be able to make it," said the sergeant. "I'm plumb tired out or I'd go myself."

"Sure," said the driver.

He took his rifle and made sure it was loaded. Then he began climbing.

"He's a good guy," said the sergeant. "He isn't scared to go anywhere."

Empty Fuel Bins To Be Given First Attention

Delivery preference of coal to consumers whose bins are still empty will be directed to the trade in an order that will be made public within a few days, fuel dealers of the province were informed at a meeting in Toronto Friday.

Improvement in deliveries from the United States anthracite operators is expected toward the end of this month, and generally through October and the rest of the season. Dealers should have at the end this month five-twelfths of the 90 per cent of hard coal which has been promised, and if that quantity has not yet arrived, it is due and expectable by the agreement which the industry in the United States has held out to this country.

But, according to this undertaking, deliveries will be on a monthly quota basis. For instance, the quantity of coal assignable to next January will not come forward in November or December. The whole coal year allotment beginning from the end of April is divided into twelve, and on that system the Peterborough trade should now have five-twelfths of the hard coal which this community should receive. And the same assurance promises maintenance of the monthly forwardings.

Obviously this arrangement is bound to leave a gap, first in the cut to 90 per cent of the last year supply, and second in the monthly quota plan deferring deliveries to that basis.

Bright Spot

"If you haven't the five-twelfths it is bound to come along shortly," the group of fifty or sixty dealers with a few consumers was told. That was probably the bright spot of the conference which is preparatory to a new provincial regional organization of both the retail trade and its customers. An important aspect of this approach to the serious and difficult problem of keeping Ontario warm this winter is the consumer representation. It is seeking co-operation of the dealer and the public, and inferentially and actually the public has a greater part to contribute that it has so far realized.

For instance the trade is buffeted about between the wartime difficulties of production in the mines and the deep concern of the people who are beginning to get anxious as their bins remain bare; and in between is the man-power aggravation; and the summary of the dealers is that the experience is a continuous daily headache.

Why should not the local dealers arrange to pool their deliveries? The mine operators can agree to pool their resources? And if there is local difficulty in getting man-power, why not take the men and horses of the garbage collecting system and use them for a day or two at a time. After all, garbage collecting is not so pressing as in the heat of summer.

Dumping Load on Lawn

Are there circumstances in which it would be approvable to dump a load of coal on the customer's lawn? And let the householder get it to its inconvenient storage the best way he can? The answer was left in the air, but it was remarked that some people may be glad to have a supply of coal unloaded anywhere around the house, as long as it is theirs.

Canada has received substantially more of prepared sizes of coal than have some of the States. That was one of the statements emphasized at this meeting, and it came directly from New York. Again, it was said, "we won't get all the anthracite we want," but——there will be the bituminous coal and there is still time to get wood cut for the middle and later stages of the winter.

Dealers were appealed to yesterday to insist upon including volatile coals in their deliveries. It is known officially and also by the general public that probably all the fuel retailers sold quite a lot of unmixed hard coal early this fuel year, and prior to the strikes at the mines in the United States.

Draw On Quilt Nets $47 For War Victims

The Get-Together-Club is one which particularly came into existence for the purpose of raising money to assist the sufferers from air raids over Britain through the Peterborough and Dismtrict British War Victims Fund, and while is it is a comparatively small group of workers, it has since it first came into operation, now raised close to the $300 mark in its self appointed task to help along the war effort in this particular way.

Like many other groups of a similar nature, they suspended operations for the summer month, during which time many were at different times on holiday bent, but this did not deter their carrying on the good work, for as a continuance of their efforts, and bridging the time between the spring and fall meetings, they undertook the task of selling tickets for a draw on a quilt donated by Mrs. William Youdell, one of their members, which was brought to a close with a social meeting last Wednesday at her home just outside the city limits of highway towards Lakefield, when the draw was made by the secretary of the fund.

This resulted in ticket No. 387 being drawn, which gave the prize to Miss Alice Carver of 592 Charlotte street. The club set out to sell 500 tickets at 10 cents each or three for 25 cents, and so well did they obtain their objective, that every ticket was sold, netting the nice sum of $47.00 for the fund which is recorded to-day, making the total now raised by the club to-date register at the splendid amount of $289. The club plans to resume its regular meetings at a very early date to carry on the good work for the fund.

Through Robert Marshall of R. R. No. 4, Havelock, the fund has received a donation of $1 from Jean McCullough of New York City, this addition to the receipts being a welcome one from a citizen of the great friendly nation south of the border, who are of one mind with us in the presecution of the war.

Bingo Next Friday.

One of the very active groups of young people in this vicinity which has an quite a number of occasions been the means of substantial assistance to the fund, has once again decided to hold a special event for the same purpose, so next Friday, September 24, will see a Bingo game at the Rifle Range School sponsored by the Range Pals to which all are invited to help things along.

School Pupils Wage War On Weeds In Yard

The pupils of the Rifle Range school east of the city have a systematic method of waging war on weeds that had made serious advances during the summer months of vacation.

That was weed time, and when school re-opened the grounds had become unsightly. The method of attack is simply this, every time the bell rings each pupil uproots a handful of weeds and takes it in to the stove. The teacher expects the children to know the varieties of weeds, and this little campaign, which was inspired by the teacher, Miss Audrey Timlin, goes on from day to day. It is the nibbling plan which eventually should show a notable improvement in the appeasance of the premises.

Tribute Is Paid Alfred O. Phillips

Tribute was paid to a former Peterborough man, Alfred O. Phillips in a United Services Organization broadcast in Bermuda recently. Mr. Phillips before leaving Canada, a little more than a year ago was a linotype operator and weatherman of the Peterborough Examiner.

The U.S.O. operates six different units in Bermuda and over the radio recently on a U.S.O. program the following was heard about Mr. Phillips: "I wish to include at this point a word of praise for Mr. Alfred O. Phillips, a member of the staff of the Bermuda Press, who volunteers for service each day and very often devotes five or six hours to the making of ice cream and motor driving in addition to any other job he may be asked to do. This is an outstanding contribution when it is realized that Mr. Phillips then goes to his regular employment and puts in a full night's work. Mr. Phillips is an expert linotype operator from Peterborough, Canada."

Boy, 10, Admits Thefts From 7 Homes

Chief Justice Robertson's warning in Toronto Friday as to the dangerous situation that is being created by the marked growth in juvenile delinquency has been given sharp emphasis here by the arrest of a ten-year-old boy on a charge of stealing a wrist watch, an arrest that has cleared up the epidemic of sneak thieving that has been going on here for some time.

Police state that the juvenile had admitted entering no fewer than seven premises and stealing sums of money totalling almost $75.

In one instance he stole $47 from the purse of a Monaghan Road woman; on another orcasion he entered a home and stole $20 and his other adventures yielded sums ranging from a few cents to $5.35.

Most of these thefts were committed when members of the household were close at hand.

The young offender will be tried in juvenile court next week on eight charges.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, September 19.

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a most propitious one for all manner of spiritual, mystical and intellectual vocations and avocations. It is an excellent time for study, meditation, research and all serious and progressive pursuits. Matters of public interest should be forwarded, travel, writings, encouraged. But in social, domestic or romantic affiliations the signs are not harmonious.

Those whose birthday it is are under a decidedly encouraging rule, with all the intellectual, business, financial and creative faculties under high stimuli for success and progress. Direct attack as well as finesse may be used to good advantage. But romance, social and domestic affiliations may be difficult because of unrestrained impulses and emotions. Be calm and collected.

A child born on this day should have fine intellectual powers, with keen insight, intuition, as well as shrewd and analytical qualities, making for outstanding success. Its personal happiness may suffer from its lack of emotional discipline.

For Monday, September 20.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast points to a period of trial and error, in which time should be taken to analyze, revise and attack with energy and shrewdness. Use quiet and restraint where the impulse is toward strife, tempest and excitement. Under such stress relax, seek diversion or enjoyment, especially with the young.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to have a year in which obstacles, delays, restrictions and depressions threaten defeat unless rigorous effort toward correcting mistakes and attacking impediments is used. The tendency to fly off the handle in defeat, to act impulsively and recklessly, may but accent the dangers.

A child born on this day should have much skill and mentality to attain success, but its conflicting traits of character need direction. Its impetuous nature is offset by serious, reserved and depressing states of mind.

LOVE, SYMPATHY, GENEROSITY ESSENTIAL, HAPPY WEDLOCK

DEAR MISS DIX—I am engaged to a pretty girl but good looks are her only asset. She is very hard to get along with. Nothing anyone ever does for this girl pleases her, and she is dissatisfied with everything. She is also very selfish, utterly regardless of my pleasure or comfort, or how tired I may be after a hard day's work. There is another girl who is just the exact opposite of my fiancee. She isn't pretty, but she is efficient, pleasant to get along with, humorous and considerate, and never wants to put anybody to any trouble. Which of these girls would make the better wife?

ANSWER—If you have to decide between a lovely face and a lovely character, take the lovely character every time, John. One will stand the wear and tear of life. The other won't.

The poorest thing any man ever marries for is beauty. That is the very worst matrimonial bet in the whole lot, because the man who wagers his happiness on that is bound to lose out in the end. There is not a chance that it will last. A few years' time, a baby or two, or even a spell of sickness, and your living picture begins to fade and deteriorate.

In time the most lissom figure loses its shapeliness and becomes a living skeleton or a feather bed. The brightest eyes dull. The most ambrosial locks become grizzled. The fairest complexion loses its roses. And then, if all that the woman had was beauty, nothing of her charm is left.

No women are more unattractive than faded beauties whose good looks are gone and who haven't even sense enough to realize it, but who go on painting their faces and dyeing their hair and decking themselves out in youthful finery, and who simper, smirk, and coquette and use arts and graces that they once did to attract men, and who talk about their best beau and try to kid themselves into thinking they are still young and beautiful.

And, believe me, John, there is no woman of whom a man can get so dead tired as he can of one who has nothing but prettiness to recommend her. If you were shut up in a house with Venus herself for companionship you would yawn your head off if she didn't have a peppy line of conversation. You wouldn't think the most perfect Cupid's bow mouth pretty if all it could do was babble inanities. You wouldn't think the most classic countenance lovely if it wore a fretful, peevish expression.

And only too often her prettiness is all that there is to a pretty girl. Only too often she hasn't any sense or heart or conscience. She never thinks about anybody but herself. She never considers anyone but herself. And all the use she has for a husband is somebody to pay her bills, buy her fine clothes, and take her around to places where she can show herself off.

On the other hand, if you marry a girl who has a beautiful mind and soul, you are getting a person who will develop and grow more and more beautiful and precious as the years go on, for life will add to her charms instead of taking them away.

She will even grow better-looking, for many a woman who was a homely girl at 20 is a handsome woman at 40. For experience is a sculptor that often chisels rough, unformed faces into lines of beauty, and intelligence lights the lamp that glows through their eyes, irradiates and makes them lovely.

And you will never grow weary of the woman who has brains in her head, even if she has no peaches-and-cream complexion. She will keep you interested, amused and entertained, and you will never be bored with her, as you would be with the beautiful but dumb.

It is all right to marry a girl who is balm to the eyes, if she has other qualities that you can fall back on when her beauty is gone, but a man wants a lot of things besides good looks in his wife. He wants sympathy, understanding, tenderness, affection and unselfishness, and unless he gets these his marriage is going to be a failure, no matter how pulchritudinous his wife is.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have been going with a man for a year who has professed to love me. He has even gone so far as to take me out and show me where he would bury me if I should die. But now he wants to break off the engagement because he has met a rich widow. I have spent over $500 in getting ready to be married. Would you sue him for damages, or let him go free and never recognize him as being on earth? I love him and would rather suffer every day the rest of my life than see him suffer an hour, yet he has wronged me beyond pardon. What would you do?

BROKEN-HEARTED WIDOW.

ANSWER—Well, a man who took me out and showed me my future grave wouldn't make any hit with me, and I would be glad to let him put the other woman in it, and think I was lucky to have escaped it along with a husband whose mind ran on mausoleums. So brace up and shed no more tears over this faithless lover. There are as good fish in the sea, you know, and widows are mighty good anglers. Don't sue the man for damages. You can't really heal a hurt heart with a poultice of greenbacks, and a breach of promise suit degrades the woman who brings it and shames all the balance of her sex.

Just be a good sport and console yourself with the reflection that any man who marries for money isn't worth the price a woman pays for him.

DEAR MISS DIX—Why is it that a fellow can be in love with a girl, and, although she likes him better than any other boy, she cannot learn to love him? And why is it that a girl who is a wonderful character can be in love with him and he cannot learn to love her?

Why is it that a man can know a girl who is fine and pretty and interesting and easy to get along with, just the girl he ought to marry, one he wishes he could love, and yet he can't do it while he is in love with a girl who he knows will make him miserable if he marries her?

ANSWER—Set it down to the contrariness of that ill-regulated organ, the human heart, and let it go at that. Nobody knows why we love those we shouldn't, and fail to like those we should love. It just happens that way, and that is why the world is filled with disgruntled, old bachelors, old maids, forsaken wives, and wandering husbands, and divorce courts have to run overtime.

Women to Bring Surprise Boxes To October Meet

ROSENEATH, Sept. 18—(ENS)—Mrs. M. Davey was hostess on Thursday afternoon when the September meeting of the W.M.S. was held in her home. Mrs. R. Crego, president, presided and conducted a devotional period on the theme "Christ for all the World and for All of Life."

A business session was devoted to discussion regarding a guest speaker for the autumn thankoffering service, and application has been made for Miss Ida MacKenzie, W. M.S. field secretary.

The members were asked to bring donations of "surprise packages" to the October meeting for the December bazaar. Mrs. J. A. Nichol offered her home for the October meeting, and Mrs. A. Halstead will arrange a program.

The new study book "For All of Life," and the companion booklet "Out of the Overflow," was introduced by Mrs. A. Nill. Echoes from the School for Leaders were brought by Mrs. M. Davey.

A program arranged by Mrs G. Mouneey consisted of a song "Tell me the Stories of Jesus," sung by Frances Crego and Pauline Down, a reading "Fishing" by Mrs. C. W. Varcoe, and a contest. Afternoon tea was served by the hostess.

WANTS NO PEACE TREATIES.

Abolition of peace treaties and the formulation of a scheme wher-by the United Nations would have unlimited powers to deal with Axis countries were urged by M. de Baer, President of the Belgian Military Court, in "Message," a Belgian review published in London.

Park Street Congregation Honors Departing Minister

A well attended gathering assembled in the basement of the Park Street Baptist church to bid farewell and Godspeed to the Rev. C. C. Boyter, B.Th., who will preach his farewell sermons in the Park Street church on Sunday.

Representatives of the city and district churches were present and took part in extending words of appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Boyter. Dr. E. W. Young, president of the Ministerial Association, represented that body; Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, the Murray Street Baptist church Dr. M. C. MacLean, the Gilmour Memorial church, and Rev. W. Walker, the Lakefield Baptist church.

The program opened with a hymn and prayer, and the musical portion of the program was supplied by Stanley and Harry Northrop, with two violin and piano numbers, and also an encore number. A community sing was led by Mr. C. Corbett, and a male quartette composed of G. Batley, C. Corbett, J. Benson and M. Dunkley rounded out the program. Mr. M. Dunkley, chairman of the Deacons' Board presided.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of a purse of money to Mr. Boyter, a Chenille bedspread to Mrs. Boyter, and fountain pens to Miss Betty and Master Marvyn Boyter, and a book to Master Arden Boyter.

The address was given on behalf of the church by Rev. A. Lorimer, one of the members, and presentations were made by Mr. J. Halcrow, Miss Norma Killingbeck, Miss Irma Dayman, Richard Betteley and Jack Corbett.

Mr. G. H. Batley, chairman of the Finance Board, also handed Mr. Boyter an additional cheque, on behalf of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyter each spoke of their appreciation for the many kind things said and for the lovely gifts.

The hymn, "Blest Be The Tie That Binds" and the benediction closed the program, after which a social time was enjoyed and refreshments served from a table centred with gladioli. Tea was poured by Mrs. S. Sands and Mrs. B. Bolam, assisted by a number of the ladies of the church.

ICE CREAM GOES TO WAR!

IN ORDER to fill essential needs of our armed forces throughout the country, we have to ship a sizeable proportion of of our ice cream production each month to the various camps, canteens, hospitals, etc.

For it is recognized that in quality ice cream there are first-class food values for first-class fighting men.

So—when your Silverwood dealer happens to be out of your favorite ice cream, it's because he has sold his quota.

On his behalf, we ask your consideration.

Meantime, we will all await the day when restrictions will be no more and Canadians may once more enjoy Silverwood's Ice Cream without stint.

Canadians Take Part In Big Manoeuvre

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Sept. 18—(CP)—The R.C.A.F. reported Friday in its weekly communique that its Britain-based fighter squadrons took part in "full-scale amphibious operations" in the English Channel Sept 9, flying a "great" number of sorties in a morning of "intense activity."

The communique, covering overseas operations for the week ended Sept. 9, made no further reference to the amphibious operations.

(London dispatches Sept. 9 reported that naval vessels, landing barges and all other manner of invasion craft put into the Channel in the biggest and boldest exercises of the kind ever held.)

That afternoon, the communique went on R.C.A.F. Spitfire squadrons escorted Boston and Mitchell bombers which raided the Monchy-Breton and Bryas-Sud airfields, both in Northern France

Last Friday operations were restricted to small-scale offensive patrols over France by Canadian Mustangs, during which an enemy transport aircraft U52 was destroyed by a pilot who sighted it near Paris.

On Many Patrols.

Saturday saw Spitfire squadrons again in action over northern France. Some of them escorted United States Marauders which bombed the shipbuilding yards at Le Trait while others escorted another formation of Marauders in an attack on Beaumont L. Roger airfield. During the latter operation a pilot of the R.C.A.F. "Wolf" squadron destroyed an enemy fighter, his second in six days.

Monday and again on Tuesday R.C.A.F. Spitfire squadrons flew offensive sweeps over the Channel and northern France without incident, while on Wednesday, when United States Marauders attacked the airfield at Merville in northern France, Spitfires formed part of their escort.

The only major night bombing operation of the period was carried out Wednesday night when squadrons of the R.C.A.F. bomber group took part in bomber command's heavy attack on the rubber factory at Montlucon, 40 miles northwest of Vichy.

That night R.C.A.F. fighter command aircraft of intruder operations over France took part in attacks on a number of airfields and transport targets.

Prairie Farmers Provided For On Feed Prices

OTTAWA, Sept. 18—(CP)— Trade Minister MacKinnon announced today that at time of delivery Prairie farmers will receive payments of 10 cents a bushel on oats and 15 cents a bushel on barley in addition to market prices to give the farmer "full benefit" on exports to the United States.

Mr. MacKinnon also announced that the fixed price to farmers for flaxseed has been raised 25 cents a bushel to $2.50, basis 1 C.W. flaxseed in store at Fort William.

The arrangements cover oats, barley and flaxseed marketed during the crop year 1943-44, which began August 1.

The additional payments on oats and barley, said Mr. MacKinnon, represent a "guaranteed initial advance" against equalization fees being collected by the Canadian Wheat Board on exports of those grains to the United States.

No change has been made in ceiling prices on oats and barley, which remain at 51⅛ cents for oats and 64½ cents for barley, basis Fort William.

Justifiable.

Mr. MacKinnon said that given a continuation of present United States demand and prices it is expected the Wheat Board will recover at least enough by way of equalization fees on oats to justify the initial advance of 10 cents per bushel.

"Because of serious damage to crops in eastern Canada, that area will require greatly increased quantities of western feed grains," he said. "In order to protect the vital livestock feeding program of eastern Canadian farmers it may be necessary to retain in Canada larger quantities of western feeds, particularly barley.

"By guaranteeing an additional 15 cents per bushel in barley at time of delivery, the Dominion Government is, in effect, assuring the farmer that any resulting curtailment of exports will not be permitted to reduce the additional return he might reasonably have expected to receive at the end of the crop year."

The surplus, if any, in the equalization funds in excess of 10 cents on oats and 15 cents on barley will be distributed to farmers after July 31, 1944.

Mosher Protests New Plan Family Bonuses

MONTREAL, Sept. 18—(CP). — A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, told delegates to the fourth annual convention yesterday that introduction of a family bonus plan by the Federal Government would be a "vicious procedure" without the prior publication of the National War Labor Board reports and consultation with organized labor.

Mr. Mosher was commenting, during the final day of the convention, on press reports from Ottawa that family allowances on the scale of $9.00 a month per child are being considered by the Dominion Government with a decision expected in the near future.

Just before the noon recess, Mr. Mosher received permission from the convention to refer to the resolutions committee a motion protesting against the plan. The commitee is expected to report back on the resolution at opening of the afternoon sitting.

Immediately following the framing of the resolution, the delegates adopted another motion which asked the Federal Government that:

1. A floor of 50 cents an hour be placed under wages in order that wage negotiations "will not be hampered when dealing with rates of pay below this level.

Wants Clarification.

2. That the right of unions to present cases before both Regional and National War Labor Boards "with or without employer support" be made clear.

3. That the method of computing the cost of living index must be changed "to bring the index into line with the actual rise in the cost of living."

4. That a full cost of living bonus be paid "on a uniform basis" in all industry.

5. That the cost of living index be revised monthly and increases in cost of living bonus be paid monthly rather than every three months as at present.

Delegates passed motions requesting upward revision of age of eligibility for such pensions; encouragement of co-operatives, extension to Indians "full and complete rights of citizens," and direct representation for labor on Workmen's Compensation Boards.

The convention was addressed by R. J. Thomas of Detroit, Mich., international president of the United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.), who called for greater co-operation among all the United Nations.

Resolutions ranging from a demand for Labor Minister Mitchell's resignation to a request that servicemen's mail be handled free of charge were scheduled for discussion bfore the convention wound up its business last night.

Tank Unit Races Toward Salerno

TORONTO, Sept. 18 — (CP) — Presence in Italy of a regiment of the 1st Canadian Tank Brigade is definitely disclosed to-day in a dispatch to the Globe and Mail from Ralph Allen, its War Correspondent with the 8th Army.

Allen wrote under September 12 date.—"Canadians operating behind the spearhead of a British force in the 8th Army drive up the coas' of Calabria have already won credit for one of the most improbable feats of travel in warfare.

"Over country that makes even jeeps catch their breath, a flying column from a tank regiment last night completed a swift dash that in three days carriied it from the outskirts of Reggio Calabria to the head of a column 110 miles away."

The little detachment, Allen said, was commanded by Capt. Ned Amy of Kentville, N.S. "Captain Amy's handful of Shermans not only got through, but the entire regiment under its Oshawa Commanding Officer stayed close enough behind to maintain wireless contact throughout the journey."

Among the tankmen mentioned in Allen's story were Tprs. Tom Hill, Calgary, Frank Deveauk, Sault Ste. Marie, Ken Basala, Timmins, Ont. and D. G. Arnold, Chatham, Ont.

Opposition Continues To Drafting Fathers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 — (AP) —New and vocal opposition to the early drafting of men in the United States who were fathers prior to Dec. 7. 1941, arose in the House of Representatives to-day while members of the Senate Military Committee generally appeared willing to let Gen. George C. Marshall, United States Army Chief-of-Staff, have the final say.

Marshall is due to appear before the committee Monday, and indications mounted that many senators will not make up their minds on the anti-draft bill, which would postpone the induction of family heads until after Jan. 1, before hearing his views.

Several members of the House of Representatives Military Committee declared, however, that they had not been convinced by the testimony thus far, including that of Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson that the inductions are necessary now.

The House group decided at an executive session yesterday to sit with the Senate Committee when Marshall appears on Monday.

Thieves Upset Ration System

LONDON, Sept 18—(CP)— Britain's whole clothes-rationing system was threatened momentarily to-day by thieves who stole nearly 1,000,000 coupons, the equivalent of 5,000,000 points from a War Office depot.

The Board of Trade quickly restored the situation by simply invalidating all coupons in denominations of five—the kind that was stole. Had it not done so the thieves would have been able to distribute the stolen points which represents rations for 250,000 people.

These coupons were intended for issuance to men discharged from the armed forces, but could have been used by anyone.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

By The Canadian Press

The case of Kingston vs. Halifax in their respective claims as the birthplace of Canada's national winter sport of hockey took a new turn last night at "An Eastern Canadian Port" when a committee of sportsmen decided to press vigorously for recognition of facts which would discount the argument that the Limestone city was the first locale of the ice game.

The Haligonians have taken the matter so seriously that Hon Harold Connelly, Nova Scotia Minister of Industry and Publicity, decided to make a trip to Montreal to lay the Halifax claim before officials of the National Hockey League who had recently agreed to recognize Kingston as the site for a proposed Canadian Hall of Hockey Fame. This would symbolize the birthplace of the sport. The Easterners made it known that they did not intend to give into Kingston without a fight and pointed to historical records which, according to Deputy Mayor J. E. Ahern of Halifax, proved their argument that ice hockey was a Blue Nose product.

A rumpus during the International League playoff game at Syracuse on Wednesday night had a further sequel yesterday when League President Frank Shaughnessy imposed fines totalling $200 on Manager Bill Meyers and three players of the Newark Bears. Previously the Newark announcer had been barred from further games for throwing a shirt into the face of Umpire Jim Tobin whose decision on a play caused the flare-up.

Controlling interest in the Oakland team of the Pacific Coast League is expected to be sold shortly for $75,000 to Joe Blumenfield and Clarence Laws who operate a circuit of picture theatres in California. They have made an offer to Babe Ruth to manage the club.

Fight Called Off.

Bob Montgomery, New York-Pennsylvania world's lightweight champion, has called off his title bout with Beau Jack scheduled for October 4 at New York because of dental trouble and the scrap is tentatively listed for November 19. Beau Jack may take on either Sammy Angott or Bobby Ruffin for the October 4 date.

Jack McGill, formerly of the Boston Bruins, has transferred from the Army to R.C.A.F. air crew, it was announced at Ottawa last night. McGill played for Ottawa Commandos in senior amateur hockey in 1942 and had previously figured on Edmonton and Nanaimo teams. He will now be available for an Air Force team.

Lombardi Rejected.

Catcher Ernie Lombardi of the New York Giants was turned down when he reported for service in the armed forces yesterday at New York. Lombardi, who is single, twice has been batting champion of the National League.

Because of stage fright, Agnes Risner, 16-year-old placement expert of the New Castle, Ind., High School grid team, failed twice to get the ball between the uprights for her playing debut in yesterday's game with the Knightstown, Ind., eleven. Her male team-mates trounced the visitors 25-0, however.

The deadlock in the Provincial Senior "B" Softball semi-finals between Brantford and St. Catharines continued last night at Hamilton when the rivals tied up the third game at 2-all in nine innings of tight play. Each had won a game in the home-and-home round and a fourth tussle is necessary.

Games Ordered.

The Ontario Baseball Association has ordered the following week-end playdown games: Saturday—Senior "A": Toronto R. C. A. F. at London; Senior "B": Windsor at St. Catharines; Junior "A": Windsor at Niagara Falls; Junior "B": St. Catharines at Dresden; Juvenile: Niagara Falls at Waterloo; Midget: Toronto at Hamilton; Bantam: Toronto at Kitchenr. On Sunday: Ingersoll will play Tecumseh in Intermediate "A" and Guelph at Maidstone in Intermediate "B."

For the second Saturday in the College Football campaign across the line, University of Michigan is opening its season against Camp Grant in what is expected to be to-day's chief display. One week ago the soldiers walloped Illinois 23-0 but the Wolverines have rounded up several stars for an already strong backfield.

DEEP FINESSES MARKED

YOU ALWAYS seem like a hero to the general run of kibitzers when you get away with the deep finesse of a spot card. There is nothing fancy about that at all, however, when it is marked clearly by the bidding, the opening lead or some play, as is the case on many occasions. Then failure to take the deep finesse would come from inability to read the situation, or else unwillingness to expend the slight energy necessary to figure it out.

South got a clear reading of his problem as soon as he saw the opening lead of the club J on this deal. That is, he did unless West was working some kind of a flimflam on him. For the J is not led conventionally unless the 10 is also held, plus the A, K, 9 or 8. Of course, in this case the lead might have been because West thought North had opened with a short club suit, but South decided it probably was from four clubs, the J-10-9 and another, possibly two other cards.

So he let it run to his A, seeing four club tricks in sight by means of the 8 finesse, also four spade tricks, plus the chance of one with the heart K. To the second trick he led his heart 3. The A was held up and the K won. To his hand South came with the spade Q and led the club 3. If West split his 10-9, the K could have won, the spade J could have been a reentry for another club lead and thus both hostile club honors could have been trapped. West, however, played his 4 on the 3 lead, so the club 8 was finessed. When that was done, there was nothing to the rest of the hand except to run the rest of the needed nine tricks.

Dick of the Royal Navy; Major-General Lowell Rooks, U.S.A.; Captain De Haan, British; General G. Castellano (first to sign for Italy), and Mr. Montenari of the Italian foreign ministry. This historic event took place on September 3 at advance Allied headquarters in Sicily.

New Emphasis Required In Church Work

TORONTO, Sept. 18—After seven days of detailed discussion on all branches of Church administration, the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada, at its closing session yesterday at Trinity College, unanimously carried a motion reaffirming the urgent necessity of "presenting with new emphasis the Gospel of Christ to the world today."

"This has been first in our minds all through these sessions," declared Archbishop Derwyn T. Owen, Primate of all Canada, as members of the Synod stood to greet the motion. "We pass this resolution with the solemn understanding that it stands for every part of the Church's work and administration," he added.

The motion followed the report of the committee on evangelism, presented by Rt. Rev. John Lyons, Bishop of Ontario. It called on the clergy of all dioceses to develop and maintain working committees on evangelism and to include the laity on those committees.

Urges Steady Witness

"The Church must advance on the spiritual front," said Bishop Lyons. "We call to a consciousness of the redeeming power of Christ as the Saviour of the world. His name can be known and magnified in our city streets and in the countryside and among all nations only by the steady witness of the whole Church, that is by all who are called to be His disciples," he said.

"There is no conflict between this resolution and the program of advance presented to this Synod," he added.

Synod passed a motion by Dean R. C. Blagrave of Hamilton that a committee be appointed to survey the question of church membership, with special reference to the number of "missing Anglicans" shown by comparison of parish rolls with the Dominion census, and report to the Executive Council.

Also carried was a motion by Canon W. Cooper, Vancouver, that the Synod invite all diocesan social committees to hold "Canadian Malvern conferences" similar to the one held recently in Toronto. He suggested that basis for discussion be the statement on social welfare and world order presented to the Synod by the Council of Social Service of the Church.

Receiving the report of the committee on reorganization of the General Synod, presented by Bishop G. F. Kingston of Algoma, the Synod voted down recommendations to cut down membership and to hold sessions every four instead of three years.

Message to Church Issued

In a message issued to the Church of England in Canada the House of Bishops urged its people "fearlessly to enunciate the principles on which a fair, just and Christian society should be founded."

Calling all men of goodwill to a renewed faith in God, the message urged them "to stand with their fellow-believers in the worship of the Church, expressed in every relationship of human life."

"Therefore, Christian citizens must found their society upon co-operation and sacrifice, in provision for those upon whom adverse circumstances inflict anguish and need. Thy should unequivocably condemn and place beyond the Christian pale practices which ignore or deny the basic truths of faith," the message stated.

Voting on a motion that Prime Minister King be asked to forward to the armed forces the Synod's admiration for their courage and fortitude, and "the assurance that God is their sure shield and comforter unto the day of victory," was accomplished in silence.

Invitation for the next synod, to be held in 1946, was extended by the diocese of Rupert's Land, and was referred to the executive council for consideration.

W.I. Entertains Grandmothers

HAVELOCK, Spt. 18 —(ENS)— A large attendance was present at the Grandmother's Day program on Thursday afternoon at the Belmont Women's Institute.

The president, Mrs. George Hartin, presided at the meeting. Mrs. William Anderson gave a two-minute talk on the motto "In the Love of Home, the Country has to rise". Roll call was answered with an "Exhibit of My First Photo".

The Girls' Homemaking Club is to be sponsored again this year, the study being "Cottons May Be Smart" and Mrs. C. Jones and Mrs. R. Wrightly in charge. Recently the branch sent 14 parcels of cigarettes and two of chocolats to the boys from this community serving overseas. A committee consisting of Mrs. D. Anderson, Mrs. J. Toms, Mrs. C. Kennedy, Mrs. L. Keene, Mrs. G. Hartin and Mrs. J. Lloyd were appointed to purchase materials and pack the Christmas parcels for overseas. A hot-bean supper is to be served on Friday, September 24 at the Stone Hall.

Grandmothers Perform

Mrs. Charles Jones was the program convener, which opened with a song by the grandmothers "In the Sweet Bye and Bye". A reading "When the Summer Visitors Come" was given by the youngest grandmother, Mrs. William Smith. Mrs. Harry Pollock gave a piano solo "Coming In On A Wing And A Prayer". ments of the country"s varied races and welded together by their common hatred of the Germans and their common love of freedom. Both groups are composed of brave, effective fighters.

Yesterday Yugoslav forces hailed "approaching Allied armies" and said they are waiting impatiently for the moment when their trained reserves can strike at the Germans by the side of "disembarked Allied troops." The message was contained in dispatches from the Democratic Telegraphic Agency, news service for Gen. Draja Mikhailovich's army, to the Yugoslav Embassy in Washington. It was dated "From the Free Mountains of Yogoslavia."

Powerful Group.

Greece — Patriots are powerful and well-organized and have been awaiting only the hour to strike in order to use their strength and resources most effectively.

Bulgaria — Led into the war on the side of Germany by their government, the Bulgars are fiery, strong-willed people with a traditional attachment for Russia. Among the German satellite states, Bulgaria may produce the most devastating revolt.

Hungary— The people have been strongly controlled by a small, powerful ruling group and are not readily given to revolution. Sporadic terrorism rather than a general uprising seems most likely.

Rumania — The government is generally hated by the people, who have suffered terribly from inflation. Generally speaking, however, they are considered even less inclined to organized revolt than the Hungarians.

trations along and behind the flaming battleline and ranged northward to a few miles south of Rome to attack enemy air fields at Campino and Prattica Di Mare. At both points, many aircraft were reported destroyed on the ground.

Across the peninsula around Taranto, where British elements last were reported plunging into the central mountain area, the communique said "there is nothing fresh to report."

Far-ranging Allied heavy bombers based in the Middle East again ranged across the Mediterranean into the battleground of Italy and bombed freight yards and road and rail junctions at Pescara on the eastern side of the peninsula.

Hits were scored on bridges over the Pescara River, a Cairo announcement said, and road and rail junctions were put out of action. One hit started a large oil fire.

Take Prisoners.

Potenza, important enemy communications just back of the Salerno battleground, was blasted once more on Thursday night, this time by R.A.F. Liberators and Halifaxes from the Middle East.

Dispatches from the front yesterday said that even then the 5th Army had regained all the ground lost during the enemy counter-attacks early in the week and in some sectors had driven into fresh territory.

In one district, the Allies captured 150 German prisoners, the largest single bag to date.

7-Year-Old Boy Beaten; Father In Jail

TORONTO, Sept. 18.—The father of a 7-year-old boy beaten so badly that, according to medical evidence, he was unable to speak or open his eyes, and was covered with dirt and blood, was sent on for trial to a higher court following his appearance in Police Court yesterday on a charge of assaulting and causing actual bodily harm to his son.

Though his father, Frank Newton, told the court he was prepared to plead guilty, Crown Attorney McFadden suggested that the plea be not accepted, and that Newton be tried in a higher court.

Concurring with the Crown Attorney, Magistrate Menzies commented that the youngster's injuries were serious enough to warrant trial before a higher court.

Miss K. Mabee, Children's Aid Society officer, told the court she had been sent to the Newton home accompanied by a constable.

"Mr. Newton admitted beating the child because he was a bad boy. We could not find the youngster for some time, but finally located him in bed, naked, covered in blood and filthy. He could not speak or open his eyes. We took the boy to the hospital," she said.

Dr. A. Cooper, who examined the lad when he was brought to the Hospital for Sick Children, testified that the boy "could not see out of his left eye, nor use his left hand, and could not walk on account of pain. He was covered in dirt and dry blood from head to toe. There were bruises on every inch of his body."

Anglican Bishops Call For Social Justice In Canada

The General Synod of the Anglican Church, meeting in Toronto, was roused when Right Rev. Philip Carrington, bishop of Quebec, put in a strong plea for action towards achievement of social justice in Canada. He was followed up by Right Rev. H. F. Ragg, bishop of Calgary, who made an equally urgent plea. The debate arose over a memorial introduced by Archbishop A. H. Sovereign of Athabasca, which asked for a commission to survey conditions in Canada. The synod voted to appoint such a commission on reconstruction in Canada. From LEFT to RIGHT, the bishops appear ABOVE: Rt. Rev. H. F. Ragg, Rt. Rev. A. H. Sovereign, and Rt. Rev. P. Carrington.

Its capture paved the way for a thrust at Smolensk to the northwest, fall of which would give the Soviets a base for twin thrusts at Vitebsk and Minsk, White Russian gateways to Poland. The Germans were reported to be pouring guns and men into the Smolensk defence system.

The relentless thrust toward Kiev netted the Red Army forces 130 towns and villages yesterday. Two thousand German dead were counted. Fifty-three locomotives, many freight cars and piles of Nazi war material were abandoned.

Capture of Ossipenko gave the Russians possession of the important rail line between that port and Chaplino, and was expected to aid greatly in the general push on Melitopol and Zaporozhe, seizure of which would cut the German escape corridor from the Crimea.

Mrs. D. Galloway Passes Away In 99th Year

The funeral is being held on Monday at 2:30 of Mrs. David Galloway who passed away on Thursday, at her home in Otonabee. Born in Manvers township, 99 years ago, Mrs. Galloway was a member of one of the pioneer families of Durham county who formed a large settlement in the early days in Manvers. She was the daughter of John and Mary Galloway.

For a number of years after her marriage Mrs. Galloway resided in North Monaghan and Emily townships but for the last 30 years she has been a resident of Otonabee. Her husband predeceased her in 1915.

Although very frail in recent years she was a grand old lady. It was refreshing to visit her and up until the last few weeks she could recall the early days in Manvers township.

She leaves three daughters, Mrs. Fred J. Galloway of Jamestown, N.Y., Mrs. W. J. Padget of Bolivar street, Peterborough, and Miss Grace Galloway at home and two sons, Fred and Harry also living at home in Otonabee. Also three grandchildren, Mrs. G. W. Milne of Toronto, Mrs. George G. Smith, Buffalo, and Fred Galloway on active service.

The funeral will take place at the home in Otonabee with Mrs. Galloway's minister, Rev. E. W. Rowland of Mark Street United Church officiating. Interment will be in Little Lake cemetery.

AS THE FIRST WAVE of Allied invasion barges nears the enemy coast, silent men in battle dress eat hot soup from self-heating cans, then leap ashore.

On the heels of the assault force, protected by fighter pilots and fighting ships, the second wave from the sea brings heavy vehicles and light tanks.

Most difficult and dangerous of all war operations, taking enemy territory from the sea is complicated by thousands of supply problems. Not only must the army gain and hold a bridge-head, but every single item it needs to exist and fight must be brought by sea and landed under enemy fire. An endless supply of food, water, gasoline, guns, tanks, ammunition and supplies must be brought ashore. It's a matter of hard work and detail as well as superb skill and daring!

Canadian army troops, fliers and naval men are trained in Canada for "Combined Operations". And fighting men from Canada are often chosen to be first onto the beach when the army strikes from the sea!

Vehicles from Canada, too, are taking part in seaborne invasions, carrying men and supplies deep into enemy territory. Reading between the headlines, 16,000 workers at Ford of Canada take pride in the performance of battle vehicles made and tested at Windsor, Ontario.

"The speed and power and perfection of detail essential to 'Combined Operations' provide a pattern for those who support the fighting men. The pattern calls for each of us to do his individual part—without hesitation, without fail."

Stampeding Russian Armies Nearing Kiev, Smolensk Dnieper River Strongpoints

Reds Surge Forward Along Entire Front Stretching Over 700 Miles From Sea Of Azov To Western Bastions

MOSCOW, Sept. 20—(AP).—Red Army troops under Gen. Andrei Yeremenko, hero of the Battle of Stalingrad, cracked through the gateway to Smolensk on the central Russian front over the week-end as the Soviet advance shifted into high gear all along the active 700-mile battle line, a Russian communique announced last night.

Victory guns boomed out in Moscow again as Russian troops drew nearer to Smolensk and Kiev, two great German bastions on the Dnieper River. In the north the Red Army moved to within 30 miles of Smolensk, capturing Dukhovschina, while another Soviet column, striking down the railroad from Nezhin, was only 42 miles from Kiev, capital of the Ukraine.

Light Resistance.

The Russian war bulletin indicated the Red Army was sweeping westward rapidly, meeting lightly armed Nazi rearguards as they captured village after village. Huge stocks of food and munitions were falling into Russian hands, but there was little mention of the heavy armored equipment which the Germans expended so prodigiously in the earlier days of the campaign.

Roslavl, to the south, was also menaced by the Red Army, which, the Soviet communique said, stormed across the Desna River, major tributary of the Dnieper, to capture Dubrovka, 32 miles to the southeast, in an advance of nine miles during which 100 villages were taken.

J. Bell Succeeds J. L. Cohen On Labor Board

OTTAWA, Sept. 20 (CP)—John A. Bell, chairman of the general adjustments committee of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, was appointed today to the National War Labor Board to succeed temporarily J. L. Cohen, K.C., whose membership was terminated by the Federal cabinet.

Mr. Bell, a resident of Toronto, has been prominent in Canadian labor activities for many years. He is a member of the National War Labor Advisory Committee, and is also a member of the National Selective Service administration advisory committee. His appointment to the board was announced from the office of Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

The temporary nature of Mr. Bell's appointment was not explained in Mr. King's announcement which said merely that he had been appointed "pro tempore" to succeed Mr. Cohen.

He entered the service of the Canadian Pacific Railway as a telegraph operator in 1910 and has been on leave of absence from the company since 1924, giving his whole time to union activities.

Mr. Bell's appointment brings the board to its full strength of three at a time when it faces a heavy list of references upon which it will begin work tomorrow.

18,000 Planes In Navy Air Force

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—(AP). —Industrial United States outpouring of ships, planes and munitions for the navy has built up the mightiest sea-air power in the world.

A United States' navy inventory disclosed to-day that the fleet includes 14,072 vessels, 613 of them warships. In 1940 the navy had only 1,076 vessels, of which 383 were fighting craft.

The air arm, described as "the most powerful naval air force in the world," now has more than 18,000 planes of all types, compared with 1,744 on hand three years ago

During July 1943, the navy received almost 1,200 completed vessels and close to 2,000 planes, the report said.

"No naval construction program of comparable size and speed has ever been accomplished by any other nation," the navy said.

Germans Incite Sabotage To Catch Rebels

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 20—(CP)—One of the greatest dangers to Allied plans for an eventual penetration to the German-occupied countries of Western Europe is—ironically enough—the German policy of the inciting rebellious populations to open acts of sabotage.

If the Germans can make the underground movements in these subjugated countries abandon caution in the belief that full-scale Allied invasion in the west is imminent, the resultant acts of defiance then can be punished with such cruel dispatch that the forces of revolution are considerably weakened for the day when the Allies actually land and need this underground co-operation most.

False Invasion Dates

That often is the reason for repeated Axis radio harping on "invasion dates"—often credited to London sources that will look good to the underground leaders. Even when this strategy doesn't fool the underground it is bound to hurt morale among large numbers of unorganized sympathizers whose hopes, raised every few weeks by these cunningly-placed lies, are then blasted by lack of Allied action on the dates forecast.

United Nations radios make every attempt to counter these lies by advising the underground not to accept any invasion information except that broadcast on regular Europe-beamed Allied programs, but people escaping from the continent report that despite these official cautious men and women of the underground often are misled.

An indication the Allied warnings of this new German use for lies are succeeding now where they failed before is that underground activity, while continuing on its usual scale, did not increase appreciably in open sabotage during the Sicilian campaign.

Expect More Action

Richardson was designated commander of United States army forces in the central Pacific area Saturday in a move viewed as indicative of Hawaii's transformation from a defensive bastion to an important springboard for an accelerated offensive against Japan.

Badoglio Dodges Nazi Army Reaches Allied Lines Tells Italians To Fight On

New Leader Lines Up Against Mussolini Urges Every Citizen To Drive Germans From The Country

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, Sept. 20—(AP). —Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio told Italians in a broadcast today that it is their "absolute duty to fight on the side of the British and Americans against the Germans and against the few senseless Italians—no longer of such name—who put themselves at the (German) command."

The text of Badoglio's plea which was made from the new "Radio Italiana" on Sept. 16, was released for publication after it had been flown here from the Italian mainland.

(The speech thus ranged Badoglio's leadership squarely against that of the former dictator, Benito Mussolini, who on Saturday was quoted by the German radio as having made a broadcast urging Italians to take up arms again at the side of Germany and Japan.)

Co-operates With Allies.

The Marshal, who formed his government on July 25, immediately after Mussolini was thrown out of office, told his people, "Do not forget all talk about unconditional surrender is out of date and irrevelant to the changed conditions of today. We have intervened decisively against Germany following on the aggressive attitude of the Germans. We are co-operating side by side with the Anglo-Americans who are now accepting our assistance in the task of driving the Germans from the country."

These and other sections of his speech were the first public avowals from any source indicating that the Italians probably will be accepted as full-fledged Allies of the United Nations and the campaign to drive the Germans out of Iatly.

"Moreover the British and Americans, our erstwhile comrades of the Piave and Vittorio Veneto (in the first Great War) did not hesitate to state that their ultimate aim is the rebirth of a strong and United Italy," Badoglio continued, "and that they will not withdraw their help from us when the time comes to repair the havoc of war and to reconstruct our future."

The marshal conceded that when the armistice was concluded "it was our intention to lay down our arms and abstain entirely from acts of hostility against anybody."

"Even after the Germans began to attack us we were patient and did not fight back, hoping these attacks were only isolated incidents against us," he said. "Soon, however, we realized that whole German divisions were attacking our troops in Italy and outside Italy, were forcibly occupying our cities, harbors and airdromes, were pillaging our stores and the possessions of our citizens, while the German air force was bombing our ships."

He urged Italians, where outnumbered, to use "the terrible weapon of guerilla warfare" and gave them instructions "to escape the country, cut communications, blow up bridges and dumps, attack isolated men and equipment. And above all do not give up, do not lose heart—persist."

Berates Traitors

Badoglio's declaration was both the first urging Italian soldiers and civilians to attack Germans wherever they find them, and the first urging his followers to make war upon whatever Italian troops align themselves with the Nazis.

His original proclamation of Sept. 8 announcing the armistice called upon Italians merely to yield to attacks by the Britons and Americans and only to fight against attack from any other quarters.

Badoglio escaped from Rome a few hours before the Germans took over the city, and made his way to Allied territory by automobile and ship an American official who talked with him disclosed today.

The American, who cannot be more definitely identified for the moment, said Badoglio gave this version of his escape:

Italian Resistance Worries Nazis

WITH THE 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 19—(Delayed).—Italian refugees from Naples who have succeeded in filtering into the territory held by Lt.-Gen. Mark Clark's 5th Army report Italians in Naples are waging underground resistance to such an extent the Germans have clamped down a curfew from 8 p.m. to 6 a.m.

Copies of a proclamation announcing the curfew have been brought here by Italian refugees. The proclamation also states reprisals will be taken against citizens of Naples because German soldiers have been assassinated or wounded by Italians.

The proclamation declared a state of emergency exists throughout the Naples area.

The proclamation stated "anyone who acts against the German army will be executed and the places where such acts are committed will be destroyed and reduced to ruins. Every German soldier wounded or killed will be revenged 100 times.

The proclamation is date September 12, Naples.

Just Sleeping

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—Passengers waiting on the platform of the 14th Street subway station gulped when they saw a mans' body lying between two tracks, trains whizzing by within a few inches of either side. Several men stopped the next train and jumped to the tracks to investigate. They found Max Rydcewski, 59, snoring blissfully—unhurt except for a minor bruise or two. He was sent to Columbus hospital to finish his nap.

Bombs Riddle German Trucks Beyond Salerno

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, Sept. 20.—(AP).—R. A. F. and Canadian Wellingtons made a heavy attack on the approaches to the key highway bridge at Benevento last night while British and United States bombers bombed and strafed long lines of German motor convoys retreating northward from the Salerno bridgehead, leaving the smoking wreckage of at least 109 trucks littering the mountainous defiles north of Contursi.

The Wellingtons dropped many strings of bombs across the entrance to the bridge and 3,000-pound bombs started a large fire among the adjacent buildings. The bridge affords the only crossing of the Calore river for a considerable distance and provides one of the main routes for the withdrawal of the German forces.

At the same time Nazi ground forces retreating to the north in larger numbers than have been previously seen on the roads were given an unmerciful battering by R.A.F. and United States bombers which roamed at will, unmolested by enemy fighters.

Damage 137.

The pilots estimated that at least 1,800 trucks cluttered the roads as the Germans pulled back from the Contursi area, 10 miles east of Eboli.

In addition to the trucks destroyed at least 137 others were badly damaged, official reports showed.

Pilots found considerable traffic congestion at the junction of four roads 12 miles northeast of Eboli, and they made a concentrated attack on Pescopagano as well as on the arterial roads entering it.

During the preceding night R.A.F. and South African Bostons and Baltimores roared low over the battle zone and bombed small groups of enemy transport and also attacked the railway junction of Capua and the freight yards on the outskirts of Naples.

A total of two enemy aircraft out of a very small number sighted were shot down during the 24-hour period against an Allied loss of three planes.

Canada Is Partner

TORONTO, Sept. 20 (CP)—Canada can play a vital role as a partner with Great Britain and the United States in "those discussions which concern establishment of free and confident relations between United States and the British Empire," Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, United Kingdom High Commissioner to Canada, Saturday told a dinner at University Club here.

Port Within Effective Range Of Allied Artillery; Taranto Force Takes Gioja

Italians Oust Huns From Sardinia Take Over Ten Airfields Corsica Island May Fall Very Soon

By WES GALLAGHER—Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, Sept. 20—(AP).—The Anglo-American 5th Army has seized control of the south side of the Bay of Naples by capturing all the commanding heights of Sorrento Peninsula, Allied headquarters announced today.

Already padlocked on the seaward side by the occupation of the Islands of Capri, Ischia and Procida on either side of the bay, Italy's second largest port, thereby came under the gaze of Allied soldiers across 12 miles of water and within range of artillery.

Easily within artillery range also were the Italian naval base of Castellammare, recently bombarded by the Royal Navy, and the key railway town of Torre Annunziata, both in the lower elbow of the bay. Smoking Vesuvius rose but 10 miles from the Allied mountain positions.

While troops occupied the peninsula stretching 22 miles west of Salerno, other parts of the 5th Army slashed eastward and northward from their Salerno beachhead in the Montecorvino and Battipaglia sectors where the Germans apparently were making a full-scale retreat under a merciless air lashing.

The British 5th Corps, closing in from the Italian heel, captured Gioja, 28 miles from Taranto on the road to Allied-held Bari, and a headquarters spokesman said the Germans had completed the evacuation of Sardinia, the huge island and air base which Mussolini had regarded as the No. 2 defence outpost of Italy.

(The German high command admitted that Sardinia had been given up.)

Casualties Light

With the capture of Sardinia by Italian troops acting under orders of Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio, the position of the Germans in Corsica, seven miles to the north, apparently became untenable and the Allies gained the potential use of 10 airfields from which to press attacks on Northern Italy and Southern France.

It was not likely that much use was being made of Sardinia by Allied forces as yet, however, because of the floodtide of operations on the mainland now beating against Naples.

(A Morocco radio broadcast said the German commander had ordered a state of siege in the Naples area.)

Reports from the Salerno area indicated battle casualties were not so high as had been feared at first.

There was little news from the British 8th Army, which now has advanced some 150 miles from the southermost toe, but it was considered probable that the German withdrawal reported by the Invaders near Contursi might have been cause by the 8th Army cutting due north part of Salerno bridgehead.

Canadian forces which landed in the toe of Italy Sept. 3 have driven northward along the east coast of Italy and have passed through Catanzaro, Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent, reported in a delayed dispatch received Sunday.

His dispatch dated Sept. 16 showed that the forces of Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery, of which the Canadians form a part, met little resistance in their drive up the east coast.

Nazi Airfields Pockmarked Over Week-end

LONDON, Sept. 20 (CP)—British and American aircraft escorted by fighters, including R.C.A.F. units, streaked across the Channel in large formations yesterday to blast at Nazi airfields and industrial targets in France and Holland.

The daylight attacks followed up sweeps over industrial targets in the Rhineland Saturday night by the hard-working R.A.F. Mosquitos and a continuation of the mine-laying program by craft of the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F.

American Marauders, escorted by R.C.A.F. Spitfire fighters which shot down two German planes, bombed the Nazi airfield at Lille in one of yesterday's forays.

R.A.F. Typhoons, meanwhile, pounded airfields at Merville in Northern France and Woensdrecth in Holland, while medium bombers escorted by Canadian fighters struck industrial targets near Bethune in France.

In the Bethune attack, with the Canadian Red Indian Fighter Squadron providing the cover, three more German planes were downed.

Meanwhile the R.A.F. announced further details on the results of the recent 9-day all-out air assault on the German seaport city of Hamburg. In the period between July 24 and Aug. 2 an area of nine square miles, or 77 per cent of the total

Motorized Units Drive On Foggia

NEW YORK, Sept. 20—(CP)—The BBC today quoted a Reuters News Agency dispatch from Allied headquarters in North Africa as saying British motorized formations are advancing rapidly on Foggia, important air base 60 miles north of Bari on the Italian west coast.

The broadcast referred to Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's British 8th Army as a "mystery army" and said the part played by these troops, who include units of the Canadian 1st Division, "in forcing the Germans to retreat has yet to be told."

"The whereabouts of the 8th Army have not been revealed for about four days," the broadcast said, adding: "The only military assumption in view of the lack of news is that Gen. Montgomery's forces cut in behind the Germans opposing the 5th Army in the southern sector of the Salerno bridgehead and forced them to make a hasty withdrawal."

Marshall Warns Congress

Curtailing Of Men Joining Army Impedes Program

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20—(AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall told the Senate and House of Representatives Military Committees to-day that if the United States Congress interrupts the steady flow of men into the armed forces "we will suffer a much greater loss than we anticipate from the Germans or Japs."

Asserting that the American armed forces have reached their peak of training and are poised for aggressive deployment all over the world, the chief-of-staff said he was puzzled "by the reaction at this time."

It seemed to him Gen. Marshall said, that if Congress stepped in to interrupt the flow of men through selective service, "all we can do is reduce our program and change our strategy."

"Certainly," he said, "if you cut us now, we suffer a much greater loss than we anticipate from the Germans and the Japs."

With Admiral Ernest J. King, Commander of the Fleet, sitting beside him, Gen. Marshall testified before jammed hearing room on a bill by Senator Burton Wheeler (Dem.-Mont.) to postpone until after January 1 the induction of men who were fathers before the United States entered the war.

Gen. Marshall said that the army plans to activate soon between 430 and 440 new battalions, adding that four divisions now had only 1,500 men each and needed an additional 14,000 each.

Allied South Pacific Offensive Grows

Expect New Push To Wipe Out Naval Base At Truk

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The Red drums continue to roll out their message of the smashing of Hitler's greatest battle-line, and still more of the House that Adolf built on the Mediterranean sands has collapsed during the week-end, but we shouldn't let these events in neighboring Europe blind us to the significance of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's brilliant coup in the capture of the Japanese base of Lae in New Guinea half way round the globe.

The conquest of Lae and its brother base of Salamaua presages important developments in the near future. I think we can begin to look for another big naval and air engagement to grow out of the present situation.

Further indication we are witnessing the beginning of a new phase of Allied offensive in South Pacific is seen in the attack by strong American naval forces at the week-end on Tarawa Island in the Gilbert groups, and on Naur Island west of the Gilberts.

Lae gives MacArthur a springboard from which to strike at Rabaul. Important as Rabaul is, however, MacArthur already is looking across it to another much bigger prize some 800 miles farther north. That's the island of Truk where the Nipponese have the most powerful naval base of their mandated island group. The water of that stronghold are headquarters for a big part of the Mikado's fleet which isn't in home waters.

Possession of the strategic island of Truk would put us in a highly-favorable position for naval operations toward the Philippines, the East Indies and Japan herself. But capture of Truk must mean another great naval battle, unless the little men of Nippon run away.

The United States Navy is eager for a showdown, but the Japs have shown little eagerness for another major clash. Still, that battle is bound to come. When it does it's fairly well to settle the naval argument outside Japan's home waters where they are holding the main fleet as a vital protection for their tiny island kingdom. In this connection it's important to note that the Japanese have been steadily slipping in both naval and air strength, and they haven't been able to replace the great losses inflicted on them.

Italian Fliers Arrive

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, Sept. 20 (AP)

ITALIAN aircraft are continuing to escape from German-held portions of Italy and a considerable number of them have safely reached Allied fields, air force officials said today.

Officers at mess near one beach were surprised to see two Savoia Marchetti bombers flying in low over the water preparatory to landing nad later others arrived escorted by an Allied bomber.

Like the Italian fleet the Italian air force appeared to be doing its best to comply fully with the terms of the armistice whereby they were bound to exert every effort to prevent the planes from falling into German hands.

Swiss Railways Kept Clear

Press Denies Nazis Request Transport

BERNE, Sept. 20—(AP).—Switzerland has her military guard at full strength along frontiers in Alpine passes and the Swiss press has emphatically denied London reports that a German request has been made for military transport privileges over Swiss railways.

If one thing is certain about Switzerland it is that the Swiss have been saying throughout the war they would blow up their famous tunnels before permitting any foreign power to try such transport and that they would fight any power that tried to come here.

For most of the past four years they have been in the centre of Axis-dominated nations, but they have not permitted the transit of foreign troops or armament, although the fact they are so surrounded has affected their ability to control fully their foreign trade.

It is hardly conceivable they would alter this policy of no transit rights at so late a date in the war when their power to defend themselves militarily is considered greater than ever before.

A declaration appearing in the National Zeitung is typical of several which have been published. It coupled a denial of the London reports with the statement that Swedish experience in permitting the transit of foreign troops served as a good lesson and that there never was the slightest intention on the part of Switzerland to deviate from a policy of strict neutrality.

GERMANS RUSHING REINFORCEMENTS TO GREECE AND YUGOSLAVIA

Allied Fleet Reported In Aegean Sea

London Expects Early Clean-Up Of Dodecanese

By ERNEST AGNEW
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 20.—(AP).—An Allied war fleet was reported steaming up the Aegean off the west coast of Turkey to-day, stirring new talk of an immediate lunge into the Balkans.

Italian refugees reaching Turkey reported the presence of the large concentration of war vessels and London morning newspapers quoted them as saying that Allied forces had occupied the Island of Castelrosso, most southerly of the Dodecanese group four miles from the Turkish coast and 90 miles from Rhodes.

These refugees reports were linked in London with similar accounts four days ago of Allied occupation of the Islands of Samos, Leros and Cos, all in the Dodecanese north of Rhodes, and with the reported departure of Britain's 9th Army from Middle East bases.

Overcome Italians.

Rhodes itself, largest island in the group, was reported last week to be under German control after the Nazi overcame the Italian garrison in several days of bloody fighting.

Refugees estimated that 25,000 Italians on Rhodes were out-manouevred and crushed by 5,000 Germans supported by dive-bombers from German-held Crete to the southwest.

An early cleanup of all German forces in the Dodecanese chain was anticipated in London. The Allies hold air superiority and the surrender of the Italian fleet removed most of the danger from the sea and virtually blocked the possibility of reinforcements to the enemy.

Rush In Troops.

The Germans, apparently anticipating a probable Allied thrust into the Balkans, were reported by London morning newspapers as still rushing troops into Southeastern Europe.

These reports said troops were being shipped into Salonika for eventful reinforcement of the garrisons on the Aegean Island defence ring and that all Greek vessels, even light fishing craft, had been commandeered for transportation of supplies to the islands.

In the Balkans proper, the German occupying forces now are confronted by ever-growing forces led by Gen. Draja Mihailovich, as Istanbul dispatches said.

Hundreds of Italians were reported to have joined the guerilla bands, with all receiving ammunition, food and clothing regularly and in some cases fighting with the support of Allied air power.

Meanwhile, the Daily Sketch reported that high Rumanian officials had gone to Ankara with the hope of contacting Allied diplomats and sounding them out on Rumania's future if she should break with Germany and get out the war.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 20— (CP).— Wheat futures reached their highest levels since August, 1937, during the short Saturday session on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, representing an overnight gain of ⅞ to 1¼ cents a bushel.

Good buying by United States and commission houses, coupled with a report that Mexico was in the market for 2,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat were factors in the advance.

Trading in cash wheat was light with exporters in the market for No. 1 Northern and odd carlots of lower grades.

There was a demand for wheat, oats, and barley for Eastern reserve feed stocks, but no important trades were recorded.

In the coarse grains futures market rye trading was more active and prices were firm[illegible] the southern buying. C[illegible]ion houses also were in the [illegible]ket for rye.

Milk Subsidy Needed To Boost Cheese

OTTAWA, Sept. 20 (CP)—A subsidy on milk to be used in the manufacture of cheese, announced last week, is designed to avert the pressing danger that Canada will be unable to fulfil her agreement to provide Britain with 150,000 pounds of cheese in the present contract year, it was learned today.

"Unless Canada produces more cheese the British ration of one ounce a week of a vital food commodity will be jeopardized," one authority said.

The anxiety over the cheese contract is part of a picture which has changed radically in a year. In 1942 there was anxiety over butter supplies, while cheese output was making records. Later, butter production was encouraged by subsidies.

Now butter production has increased to the point where it is possible to make a quantity available to the United Kingdom as well as meet Canadian ration requirements and

Surprise Raids Hit Bougainville

By WILLIAM F. BONI
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, THE SOUTHEST PACIFIC, Sept. 20.—(AP).—What appeared a sustained and determined effort to reduce the defences of Bougainville Island by Allied aerial attack advanced into its second week to-day, with the enemy's air bases there further shattered and his air reserves further diminished.

Three surprise night raids by medium bombers against Kahili and Ballale airdromes at the southern tip of the big Solomon Island followed by a daylight assault in force on Ballale by fighter-escorted dive bombers and Avenger torpedo planes marked the latest stage in this campaign of destruction.

The enemy, who has answered the challenge by bringing in squadron after squadron of interceptor planes, sent 60 aloft to meet the latest attack on Ballale—and lost 16, today's communique from Allied Headquarters announced. Even before the latest attacks, Ballale was described as virtually unusable.

The latest raid was acnieved at a cost of two Allied bombers and four fighters, the pilots of two of which were saved.

Bougainville is the enemy's last securely held position in the Solomons. Beyond that, it is the stepping stone from the southeast, both by land and air, to Rabaul, New Britain.

Sgt. R. Seaborn Prisoner Of War

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 20 — (ENS)—Sgt. Reginald George Seaborn, of the R.C.A.F., who was reported missing about three weeks ago, is now a prisoner of war in Germany, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Seaborn of Campbellford.

This airman, who is 28, enlisted in 1940 at Manning Depot and then went to Guelph for training. He received his wings as a wireless air gunner at Fingal and went overseas in November 1942. A few weeks ago his parents received a letter that he had made 14 operational trips over Germany, and it was on his 15th that he was shot down.

Sgt. Seaborn attended public and high school in Campbellford and worked in the cloth company before enlisting. His brother, Victor, 24, has been overseas with the R.C.A. for three years, and his father was with the artillery from 1914-1918.

Canadian Army Concert Party

The "Tin-Hats," first Canadian Army concert party organized overseas in this war, has made a hit all over Great Britain where the troupe has played to every Canadian formation, to R.C.A.F. units, in hospitals and on the British Broadcasting Corporation programs. Part of the troupe is pictured here, on stage and in the dressing rooms. TOP LEFT shows Norman Harper of Toronto, cowboy singer of the party, yodelling his western songs before a service audience. Wally Brenan of Winnipeg, who does a comedy act, gets a last dab of greatpaint (CENTRE) from his partner, Ronnie White of Grand Falls, N.B. At the RIGHT the "blonde bombshell," Trilby—who actually is Johnny Heawood of Toronto — does "her" stuff for the boys, and in the LOWER picture Trilby and "her" brunette competitor, Bill Dunstan of Regina, carry their rivalry to the dressing room as they slap on rouge, lipstick and mascara.

Renown Carried Churchill Home

By SYD THOMAS,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

HALIFAX, Sept. 20 —(CP) — This old seaport has guarded many wartime secrets, but perhaps none as significant as it has burstingly held the last few weeks— the story of Prime Minister Winston Churchill's arrival and departure from North American shores during the course of his recent visit.

Now that the British leader is back in Britain after his five-week round of conferences and discussions, the story of his Atlantic voyaging can be told.

The Prime Minister arrived here August aboard a giant British transport, and immediately boarded a waiting special train bound for Quebec.

From there his arrival was announced next morning as he passed into Quebec for his now historic conferences with President Roosevelt and other United Nations leaders.

The secret has been well kept until now. The general impression had been that he travelled by plane.

The jovial 'Winnie" left Halifax September aboard the big battle cruiser H. M. S. Renown. But he didn't leave these shores without insisting on a brief tour of this oldest English garrison city of Canada.

Badoglio Dodges

After announcing the armistice terms to the Italian people on Sept. 8, Badoglio realized the German troops around the capital planned to take it over and to take himself and King Victor Emmanuel into custody.

Helped By Navy.

Badoglio and his military advisers took a large number of government automobiles and made up a caravan in the early hours before dawn Sept. 9. The caravan left Rome at 5 a.m. and sped to a port on the coast.

There the entire party boarded an Italian ship and in broad daylight sailed down the Italian coast and into Allied occupied territory. The Germans apparently at no time were close to the party.

The true story of the escape differed completely from the version given out by the Germans who apparently thought Badoglio had fled toward Florence. The German radio said the Badoglio party had made its way to a town a short distance from Florence and there had been surrounded by German troops, but a small group had succeeded in escaping by plane from an Italian held airport.

Churchills Complete Return Trip

Premier Prepares War Review For Parliament

LONDON, Sept. 20 (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill, back in Britain after a momentous six-week visit to Canada and the United States, plunged today into the task of preparing a war review to be presented shortly to the House of Commons.

The review, which will be the Prime Minister's first since his brief statement to Commons July 27, and which is expected to be one of his longest, will open a two-day war debate when Parliament reconvenes after a brief summer recess.

It is anticipated that during the debate the Government will be asked, among other things, to explain why Italy was given a "breathing space" after Mussolini's fall and why the Allies failed to demand from the Badoglio government the immediate surrender of the former Dictator.

The first Commons debate in eight weeks also is expected to demand additional details on the Italian surrender, more definite news of proposed conferences between Britain, and information on the operations of "AMG"—the Allied Military Government in occupied territory.

When parliament reconvenes it will have the longest-lived parliament for more than 250 years. Today it exactly equalled the life span of the parliament elected in 1910, which was prolonged until November, 1919, because of the First Great War.

Mr. Churchill, accompanied by Mrs. Churchill and their daughter, Mary, returned to London by special train last evening after their trans-Atlantic plane had landed at an undisclosed port.

C.C.F. Predicts Early Federal Vote Two-Day Party Caucus Starts

TORONTO, Sept. 20.— (CP). — Policy and strategy to be followed luring the coming sessions of the Ontario Provincial Legislature will be discussed at a two-day C.C.F. party caucus starting to-day in the offices of Opposition Leader E. B. Jolliffe.

The meetings will be the first official appearance of the 34 C.C.F. members of the Legislature elected in the recent Provincial election. The meetings follow sessions of the Ontario council of the party at a Toronto hotel (King Edward) Saturday and Sunday.

A closed meeting Sunday laid plans for an immediate four-month campaign to organize every Ontario riding with "intensive" campaign work in Eastern Ontario where the party did not win a seat in the election.

It was decided to appoint rural and urban organizers and make a "determined" effort to win farmer support. A French-Canadian organizer will be appointed a report of the meeting said.

"Delegates predict a much greater swing towards the C.C.F. when the Dominion election takes place," the report said.

Soldiers Help.

"The overwhelming support for the C.C.F. from members of the armed forces is taken as an indication that the C.C.F. will be the choice of servicemen."

More than 150 elected and defeated candidates in the Provincial election and campaign organizers attended the meetings. Two C.C.F. members of the Dominion Parliament, J. W. Noseworthy, M.P., York South, and Clarrie Gillis, M.P. Cape Breton attended.

Speaking at the opening dinner Saturday, Mr. Jolliffe, Provincial leader of the C.C.F., called on party members to wage the next Federal campaign "with more drive and determination than ever before."

The next Federal election is the most important in the history of the Canadian people," he said. "Ontario is the key province, and when the next election comes—that may be anytime now—Ontario will decide the issue."

Mr. Joliffe said he could see the revolt of the common people in growing support of co-operatives, for organized farmers' movements, for organized workers' movements and for the C.C.F.

Drew Will Give Talk To People

TORONTO, Sept. 17 — Premier George Drew, following a Cabinet meeting held today, announced that he would give an account of the stewardship of his government to people of Ontario in a radio address on Friday night, September 24. The Premier, whose government has been in office a little over four weeks, has created a precedent and a great deal of interest by the announcement of his radio address.

Prompt action has been taken by the government to implement the twenty-two point program announced by Premier Drew during the election campaign. It is anticipated that the address will deal with matters vitally affecting the affairs of the Province. No time has been lost by the Premier and his cabinet in getting to work. The conference of four hundred farm leaders held in Toronto two weeks after the Drew government took office demonstrated that the Province is going to get immediate action.

The address will be carried over the Ontario Regional network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, and will include coverage of the entire Province. The address will be carried locally by CHEX.

30,000 Attend Lindsay Fair On Saturday

LINDSAY, Ont., Sept. 20 (ENS) —Attendance at the Lindsay Central Exhibition surpassed all previous records on Saturday when an estimated 30,000 people attended the Agricultural Fair which is now rated as the largest exposition of its kind in Canada. Not only were the Exhibition Grounds packed but Lindsay's business section was likewise crowded to capacity and merchants enjoyed the best business day of the year. All parking facilities proved inadequate to accommodate the large number of cars which lined practically every street in town.

Manager B. L. McLean, whose efforts have been largely responsible for the growth and expansion of the Lindsay Fair during the past three years reported that despite increasing wartime difficulties there was no doubt but that the exhibition would again be held in 1944. "This year," he said, "we faced problems concerning food supplies, transportation, labor and the procuring of commercial exhibits but we are fortunately able to state that every department showed a greater number of entries and much more interest than in former years. We had a very heavy show of livestock of top quality, a great display of agricultural products and fine entertainment of pleasing variety."

"When the Canadian National Exhibition and other leading expositions closed for the duration we decided not only to keep the Lindsay Fair going but to expand it in every way" Mr. McLean said. "Lindsay is situated in the midst of the best agricultural district in the province and by increasing our prize list we have a decided influence in raising the quality of soil products and livestock."

We have a smooth working machine of organization in a board of 24 directors, every one of whom has definite responsibility, and this augmented by a capable staff employees has resulted in success beyond our fondest expectations.

Seymour Institute Plans Country Fair

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 20 (ENS) —The gasoline shortage, which for the past two years has hampered rural social functions, will not effect the annual drive for war funds being made by Seymour East Women's Institute. Following a meeting of the executive last week it was announced the lawn social, that will this year take the form of a country fair, will be held in the Parish Hall in Campbellford. Several items of the program in years past will be sacrificed, chiefly the sporting events, but in their place there will be a dance on the main floor of the building while the basement will be the site of the various booths and a bingo game. According to the president, Mrs. Jesse Looke, a feature attraction will be the sale of all kinds of farm produce and this section is to be in charge of Mrs. Burke Stephens. Mrs. Walter Sharpe will be in charge of a bazaar booth; Mrs. J. A. Murray the White Elephant table Mrs. John Thompson the hot dogs and pies and Mr. J. A. Murray will supervise the sale of soft drinks.

Since their Country Fair will be the main source of funds, which will nearly all go to war work, the Institute is expecting this year to top their 1942 proceeds.

The Victory At Salerno

After eight days of hard fighting, of advance and retreat, the port of Salerno is in Allied hands, our first foothold on the mainland of Italy. No one can predict the course of future fighting, but a beginning has been made; the struggle which was necessary to make that beginning should keep us from easy optimism about the future fighting, although our optimism about the outcome of the fight has been strengthened.

Whether or not Italy will become a general battleground is hard to say. That wretched country, betrayed by her own folly and by her ally in aggression, now faces the ultimate indignity of war—to be a battleground without being an effective combatant herself. Germany refused to fight in Italy to defend her ally, but is determined to fight in Italy to defend Germany; Germany's last bitter gift to her one-time Axis partner will be death, destruction and pillage. Rome is in German hands, the neutrality of the Vatican has been set at naught, and everywhere the Italians are treated by the Germans with the same callous indifference to their humanity which the Italians once showed toward the people of Ethiopia.

When Italy surrendered and General Eisenhower granted an armistice, a brief period of rejoicing was succeeded by what was almost a period of gloom, as wiseacres warned us that the Italian surrender meant very little, and that heavy fighting was to come. After this lapse of time it is possible for us to see matters clearly. The Italian surrender was, in fact, a great victory for the Allies. The Germans are treating the Italians mercilessly because they know that the majority of Italians are now their implacable enemies; that is why they have disarmed the Italian army. The Italians are resisting German occupation as effectively as they can, and in the next few weeks we shall certainly hear of extensive sabotage behind the German lines. We have the Italian fleet, and it will not be too long before we can use it effectively to supplement our own large sea power. Such Italian troops as the Germans have not been able to disarm are still fighting in the Trentino district, and large sections of the peninsula are reported to be under Italian control.

Certainly Italy was not handed to us on a platter, but the Italian surrender was a great gain for our side none the less. The Germans are fighting for their lives in an intensely hostile country. We have accomplished the difficult feat of taking a bridgehead at Salerno, and there can be no doubt that the situation for the Germans will grow more desperate with each week that passes.

The Craze For "Nationalizing"

Many groups and organizations seem driven these days to demand that large sections of Canadian business be "nationalized". The C.C.F. favours nationalization of insurance companies, trust companies, mines and the timber interests; the Canadian Congress of Labour wants nationalization of the banks and the railways.

"Nationalization", as we understand it, means that these interests would be controlled and operated by the state in the best interests of the nation as a whole, and at first glance the idea seems to be a good one. But when we look at it more closely certain difficulties present themselves. First of all, the state could only nationalize these interests by buying them, and they would cost fabulous sums of money—more money than we should see paid off in our time, or in the time of our great grandchildren. The state might, of course, propose to confiscate these interests, but we see no future for a party which has a program of confiscation up its sleeve. Possibly there is an alternative way of acquiring these interests for the state, but we have not heard of it.

And when the interests were acquired, who would operate them? Presumably much the same groups of people as operate them now, for they know the business, and have gained their places in it by experience and ability. Indeed, they would be running the mines, and the banks, and the insurance companies for the state rather than for private owners.

But would they run these interests as well as they do now? We doubt it. For this very important fact must be borne in mind: at present business works within a framework of law, and when business transgresses the law, the state interferes and straightens matters out. But when the law and big business are both on the same side of the fence—the state side—what would happen? Would there not be a grave danger that the mass of the people would be exploited by bureaucrats as they have never been exploited by industrialists?

Some readers may think that we take a cynical view of mankind. Not at all. But we know that all power tends to corrupt, and that absolute power tends to corrupt absolutely. In a country which exists by trade, like Canada, certain necessary balances are created to prevent gross abuse of power. At present that balance exists between trade and the law. Put the law and big business on the same side of the fence and the balance is destroyed. Business men are not inherently dishonest, and neither are bureaucrats, but if they are freed from reasonable restraints they will not be long in taking advantage of their new freedom.

The placing of immense amounts of business in the hands of the state would bring a million complications, for it is common observation that a government takes more time, men and money to do a job than any private owner would tolerate or could afford. And the old legal maxim the "The Law will furnish a remedy" would certainly lose weight in a land where the law and the big business were too closely allied. "Nationalization" is a shibboleth, and nothing more. If, in time, we come to it, there will have to be more severe checks on state expenditure and power than exist at present.

A Serious Misunderstanding

It was unlucky that so serious a misunderstanding arose in the United States over Colonel Ralston's announcement of forthcoming changes in the nature of the Canadian army. In the first place, the announcement was ambiguously worded; a military man doubtless understands that when a unit it "disbanded" it does not necessarily mean that the men are free to wander off into civil life; it simply means that the men will be re-grouped in some more useful organization. Secondly, it was bad luck that the announcement reached the U.S. too late to be clearly explained in the next morning's papers, and was thus presented in a compressed and misleading form. Third, it was bad luck that the announcement coincided with a dispute in Congress over the advisability of drafting fathers for war service. And finally, the news reached the U.S. just when they were hearing of heavy losses in their Fifth Army in Italy.

Understandably, if not very intelligently, many Congressmen believed that Canada was cutting down the size of her fighting army because the threat to Canadian soil had been diminished, and others thought that the announcement meant that we were cutting down on our troops for overseas service.

The misunderstanding has now, we hope, been thoroughly cleared up. Certainly the American press has done its best to make matters clear. Their attitude is well summed up in the words of Arthur Krock, Washington correspondent of the New York Times: "A country of 11½ millions that has marshalled 700,000 volunteers for foreign combat service and has a 1943 war production program of nearly $4 billions, was held to have proved long since that it is fighting the war intelligently, and to the hilt".

NOTE AND COMMENT

A philanthropist has been defined as "a man who gives some of it back". Allied airmen are good examples.

Golden anniversaries are only achieved by couples who are content to go 50-50.

The way his troops are fighting, it looks as though Stalin meant to make Holy Russia wholly Russia before their offensive comes to an end.

Von Papen is reported to have told Turkish officials that although the Nazis may lose the war the Germans will win the peace. Let us bear in mind that much of the important fighting goes on after the armistice has been granted.

Some people are saying that without Russia the Allies would have lost the war. It might equally well be said that without the Allies the Russians would have lost the war. As the Port Arthur News-Chronicle puts it: "Why argue as to which quart makes up the gallon?"

Farming News and Views

By
R. J. DEACHMAN

FARMERS in Ontario have come through as bad a season as they have ever had and I have no recollection of any nearly as difficult to plant and harvest crops. Farmers have always had to contend against weather conditions, however, and they are taking this in their stride and while none deny the difficulties almost every one of them you meet is making the best of it without complaints.

I was in Essex and Kent counties a few days ago and their flat land has suffered very heavily. One day in tobacco planting time, there was a fall of over 4 inches of rain around Chatham and toward Ridgetown and it compelled farmers to change many of their plans. Fields intended for some special crops had to be abandoned to the floods and other fields seeded. Much of the land is well furnished with tile drains but less attention has been paid to open ditches and there was too much surface water to be carried off by the underground drains and fields became lakes until crops were destroyed.

These weather conditions will reduce the corn yield to about half a crop in Kent and one third of a crop in Essex. These counties depended upon corn for the bulk of their hog feed and this means heavy purchases of western feed grain this year. At the present time barley and wheat shipped from the Prairies is being used to finish pigs. The tobacco crop in Kent has suffered in many places from inability to get it planted in prepared fields because of persistent rains.

The tomato crop in these counties has suffered a good deal also, but there are many quite good yields though the acreage is reduced. There is a great deal of level land, some of it quite stiff clay and this has been difficult to handle. There are bridges of higher land running along the banks of the Thames River and these lands, being lighter and higher, have produced better crops, but even farmers who were unaccustomed to suffer from rains did not produce much because of the wet. The oat crop is an almost complete loss as the grain did not fill and it will be as light as chaff. Fall wheat is threshing out a little better but is by no means a good crop.

The prices paid for vegetables are helping the growers out this year. I found that at the town of Essex tomatoes brought 51c per bushel, while trucking them cost, depending on distance, from 5 to 7c per bushel, and picking from 5 to 7c per basket of 34 lbs., which would amount to about 10 or 11c per bushel, leaving some 35c per bushel for the crop. Early potatoes sold at $2.75 per bag of 75 lbs. in July, which was quite a useful price. The Dominion Government paid a subsidy of $3 per ton on tomatoes. The potato crop promises to be short and there are claims being made now for an increase in the ceiling price. The price was $2.25 per bag of 75 lbs. at the end of August without transportation charges for a distance up to 15 miles from the dealers' place of business.

It looked as though potatoes would be in strong demand before the year is out, and reports of blight are coming in from many parts of this province. The Maritime crop seems to have suffered also and another result of the unusual weather may be that we shall be short of potatoes in Canada unless western potatoes turn out a good yield and are shipped east as they were last spring. It was little use this year to urge the planting of more potatoes as the weather conditions did not permit it. A shortage of potatoes may bring about a great food difficulty.

THERE was considerable frost in western Ontario on the night of Sept. 11. Some of the fodder corn between London and Strathroy was hard hit and was whitening on the 12th. There was a slight frost in Essex but it did not seem to have done any appreciable harm. I saw some fields of quite good fodder in Middlesex which should have been put in the silo on the 12th as it was quickly becoming very inferior feed. Some fields had escaped and were quite green. If a farmer has land with a quick-sand bottom it would be well to use some other crop on it as corn is sure to suffer from even a slight frost. It is passing strange that these frosts seem to fall on a time close to the full of the moon. Clouds seem to clear off at that time and a bright moonlight night often calls for a lower temperature. Pumpkin and cucumber vines got very badly hit in many places. It is always very discouraging to have an early frost blight a crop.

BRITAIN has been very fortunate in harvest weather, and this is particularly true in England. The harvest was almost finished at the end of August and the yields promise to be very substantial. There have been four rather remarkable harvests taken off in England in the years 1940 to '43 inclusive, and the fact that yields of grain have kept up, and frequently improved, is a great tribute to the farmers in that country, who have proven that they know their jobs. They have had four very favorable years in succession, which is quite unusual, and is remarkable at a time when the need for food in the defence of freedom was never so great in the world's history.

I SAW quite a number of farmers seeding fall wheat in western Ontario from the 10th to the 14th of this month. In most places the wheat was going into a good seed bed and in many cases the land had been fallow as it was impossible to seed it to spring crop because of the rains. The clay land was requiring a good deal of cultivation to get it in a proper condition of tilth but farmers seemed to be working it down in good shape. Two teams of horses on discs a span on a harrow, and a pair on the drill in one field were doing a bit of good work.

The harvesting of beans was getting under way, but the acreage was not large and the crop not too promising. There is a tremendous lot of cultivation required on some clay farms to get them in proper condition before winter. As one observed the work it was shown how important a plough is on a farm.

Alarming Mortality Rate

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

THAT the number of deaths of infants in Canada since the war began is several times the nation's losses in its various battle zones seems incredible. That is the fact, however, as given by George Hoadley, formerly minister of health in Alberta and now chairman of the health committee of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

Speaking before the Weekly Newspapers' Association, Mr. Hoadley is further reported to have said that more than 20,000 Canadian mothers each year have no medical attention at the birth of their offspring, and only one quarter of the babies born in this country have pre-natal care. Medical authorities estimate that roughly 70 per cent of the deaths of mothers during childbirth are preventable.

It is not easy to accept those figures. They are too arresting, but they come from one who should know and who would scarcely use them unless they are authoritative. Taking them as facts, they should stir the public conscience of this Dominion to action. Such a condition should not be allowed to go on.

Canada needs population. That population should come, primarily, from the parental stock which is here—a part of the bone and sinew of country. But beyond that there is a moral responsibility involved. To allow more babies to die than the total losses of men in all the conflict zones for three and a half years is a grave reflection upon our social structure.

It is, of course, not easy to provide medical care for all mothers in a land so vast in territory as Canada. The great stretches of the far northern belts create a difficult problem for any government because the few settlers, hunters, trappers and nomads who inhabit those territories are scattered so widely apart that it is far from easy to get a doctor or nurse to the prospective mother in time. Then, too, doctors are often not called early enough to give effective aid, even in the thickly settled districts and cities of the more southerly parts of the Dominion. The fault in that case is with the adults themselves.

Nevertheless, some ways and means should be found, can be found, to reduce this very high mortality rate. Much progress has been made during the past quarter of a century by the medical departments of our governments in combatting diseases. They are to be warmly commended for all that has been accomplished, but they cannot take many advanced steps, involving always considerable expenditures of money, unless public opinion is solidly behind them. We believe that if the information Mr. Hoadley has given were made known to citizens everywhere, and kept before them, they would soon come to support whatever measures might be worked out to prevent this surprising state of affairs.

Learned From The Past

At the time the Germans were changing from nomadic to pastoral habits, they cleared away virgin trees to enlarge their meadows and secure greater space for tillage than nature had provided. A whole period of their history is engrossed with a desperate struggle with the forests.... Enormous areas of land were stripped.

As in other lands, the ardor of the people overreached its purpose. Trouble such as they had never known descended on them. Instead of an increase in the food supply, they had less. Seasons of flood and seasons of drought were successive. Wind blew away soil and seed. Even the rain changed its behaviour. Clouds floated by without dropping their moisture, or else let it down in torrents to run away as fast as it fell....

They began to speculate on the cause, and to seek ways of balancing the extremes of water surplus and water shortage....Among them the romantic idea, common to many peoples, that droughts and floods are a duel between the elemental forces of nature and the heroic endurance of man soon gave way to a realization that trees have power over the incidence of rain and might to control water after its fall....

Once these German tribesfolk knew their fault, they manifested no spirit of evasion or disposition to laziness. They set to work to restore forests as ardently as they had destroyed them. The deeper I look into the German past, the more cause I find for admiration for Germans, the more faith I have that they are of importance in the community of men, the more certain that they will return to political sanity and strive to repair what they have lost to themselves in recent years.—From "Reaching for the Stars," by Nora Waln. First Sight of Canterbury

(By ROGER CHALLIS in the Christian Science Monitor)

COMING down from London in a bus, I had stopped off at Rochester to see the cathedral, built by Gundulf, the Weeper, in the eleventh century—the same Gundulf who built the Tower of London. I spent nearly an hour examining certain Norman characteristics that shifted almost imperceptibly into early Gothic — the rounded arches rising into points. The pure Norman style of the chapel of St. John, in the Tower of London, has seemed to me, since the moment I first saw it, the most healthy, unpretentious, and beautiful style of architecture I have known. Again and again, in little village churches of England, I have been most fascinated by those same Norman arches which represent what, for me, is the most admirable quality of the English spirit—the virile, overwhelmingly simple grace of an instinctively noble people.

I left Rochester reluctantly, and went on to Canterbury where I arrived at about four o'clock in the afternoon. The sun was still high above the horizon in a cloudless, deep blue sky; and the town was remarkably busy, full of carts and automobiles, hardly what I had expected of the most famous cathedral town in England.

First, it was necessary to find lodgings. On a by-street, not far from the center of town, I discovered the very place—called, if I remember it correctly, the Saracen's Head. It was a Tudor building, dark, but mysteriously interesting. The halls had little half-steps at unexpected—I had almost said irrational—places. The doors were at odd intervals; there were windows where one didn't need them, and no windows at all where the situation demanded them.

When I had explored the place, with the help of my hostesss, I determined to stroll around the town, but to avoid the cathedral, as I wanted to save that for the next morning. Accordingly I wandered off in a direction I thought unlikely to bring me to the cathedral. The streets were exceedingly crooked, and — like the Saracen's Head—they abounded in unexpected turns. Imagination—a humble, captivating originality—was in evidence at every step. Here was a row of flourishing potted plants, and across the way another group of plants, but arranged in a wholly different spirit. Often the houses hung lovingly over the narrow streets; but a little further on there would be a broadening of the street, and then the houses would return to the conventional decomum of "perpendicularity."

But those streets played a trick on me! I hadn't any real sense of direction, after I had followed their charmingly irresponsible meanderings—and suddenly, like a flash of lighting, I saw a high arch and beyond it Canterbury Cathedral. It stood in ageless repose in the late afternoon—a most incredibly beautiful building. The shadows lent it a mellowness that harmonized the great wealth of detail of the facade. It seemed made of some luminous stone. I was content to remain standing, where I had stopped the moment I first saw it. It was not until the next morning that I was willing to examine it closely. For that evening, it was more than enough to accept only that great general impression of repose and spiritual strength.

A Bible Message

The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness; but is long suffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance. But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up.

Seeing then that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness, looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of God, wherein the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat?

Nevertheless we, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness.

Wherefore, beloved, seeing that ye look for such things, be diligent that ye may be found of him in peace, without spot, and blameless. (II Pet. 3: 9-14.)

Lovers of Bronze

Florence, where Donatello was born, was older than Rome. It is usual to regard the city as having been primarily an Etruscan settlement. But a thousand years before the Christian era this region was peopled by a race of different origin from the Etruscans, consisting of immigrants from the north. A feature common to the pre-Etruscan and the Etruscan civilization of this town was the love of bronze. From the tombs of early settlers have been excavated marvellous bronze helmets made to surmount cinerary urns, and also bronze figurines. To the period of the second settlement belong such masterpieces as the Arringatore and the Chimaera of Arrezo. Florence was still characterized in the days of the Renaissance by this taste for bronze sculptures. Ghiberti, Donatello, Verrocchio, and Pollaiuolo all worked in bronze; and the Romans thought in marble.—From the Preface by Ludwig Goldsheider, in "Donatello." Legion Wants Men Held Till Jobs Found

TORONTO, Sept. 20—Seeking a "new deal" for returned soldiers of the present war, District "C" of the Canadian Legion Sunday passed a score of resolutions dealing with problems of men in the present-day army and of those who have been discharged.

In resolutions adopted unanimously, the Legion asked:

Clothing allowance of $125 be paid to all men and women who have been on active service, with 50 per cent of this amount to those who have not been on such service.

One month's pay for each six months' service (active) and no discrimination in the amounts paid senior officers and men, this arrangement to be retroactive.

Retention in the active forces of all men and women until they have jobs at full pay and allowances.

Provision of vocational and educational training prior to discharge.

Demand "Active Service."

The Legion also demanded "that the Dominion Government delay no longer in mobilizing immediately for active service anywhere these men already enrolled in the army for home defense, and that all men hereafter compulsorily called up similarly be made available for active service anywhere."

Another resolution urged reduction to the minimum of all home defense troops and establishments in Canada, discharge of men not physically fit to assist the manpower shortage and transfer to active service units of physically fit men who are now on home defense. It urged preference in demobilization be given men who had been on active service.

A resolution referred to the "shocking lack of barrack and feeding accommodation" at Halifax and other centres in Canada, and urged the Government to take steps to "remedy this disgraceful condition."

The meeting, which comprised 40 organizations in the Toronto district, went on record as supporting remission of income tax for discharged soldiers until they got on their feet; urged plans should be worked out with employers for a training scheme for discharged men and women.

Call for New Hospital

The meeting "recognized the emergency addition to Christie St. Hospital as necessary, but only upon the condition that plans are put under way immediately for the erection in Toronto as soon as possible of a new and modern hospital in suitable surroundings."

It asked that free transportation be given men "wearing hospital blue or grey," and asked that cigarets at reduced prices be made available at the hospital canteen.

"Having regard to the congested condition for travellers upon public transportation systems, priority should be assured to members of the armed forces who are on leave in seating and sleeping accommodation" and requested the Department of National Defense to cut "unnecessary travel" to the minimum. Free travel warrants for men on leave were also urged.

The meeting also congratulated George Drew upon his elevation to the premiership of Ontario "and felicitates him likewise upon the selection of seven other veteran members of his Cabinet."

Speaking at a luncheon at the Royal York, Alex. Walker, Calgary, president of the Legion, declared "no money" was no longer and excuse for the unemployment of veterans and others. "I should be most happy to answer any one who tells me after the war that money is not available to provide employment," he said. "I'm afraid the answer I gave would not be forgotten for a long time."

After telling the gathering of the friendly feeling which existed toward Great Britain in the United States, he mentioned briefly the opposition to Great Britain. "They have asked the question why Canada is disbanding her divisions," he said. "The recent announcement from Ottawa was a colossal blunder, of which I will have more to say later."

Navy Attacks Gilbert Islands

PEARL HARBOR, T.H., Sept. 20 — (AP) — America's growing naval strength has lashed again and in force against the outer fringe of Japan's zone of conquest in the Pacific, striking the enemy-held Tarawa and Nauru Islands in prolonged attack.

The simultaneous assaults, made along the line of the equator some 2,000 statute miles southwest of Hawaii, began Saturday night (east longitude time) and carried well into the following day.

Their exact nature was not disclosed immediately, but the assumption was that they were spearheaded by carrier-borne torpedo and dive-bombers.

"Strong Pacific Ocean area forces today conducted a heavy raid on the Japanese bases on Tarawa Island in the northern Gilbert group and on Nauru Island to the west of the Gilbert's group," said a communique issued by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the United States Pacific fleet.

"Details of the operation are not immediately available the communique added, "and there seemed little likelihood they would be until the fleet units return to their bases."

There was good reason to believe, however, that destruction of military objectives on the two islands may have been thorough and perhaps complete. In temporarily neutralizing Marcus Island, 1,200 miles from Tokyo, in the Sept. 1 attack, the United States Navy raiders were over the target for nine hours.

Minister Fears Reaction Following War

TORONTO, Sept. 20. — Declaring that the crisis for Christianity would come with the peace, Rt. Rev. Dr. J. R. P. Sclater, Moderator of the United Church of Canada, pointed the urgency of greater unity of the Christian communions in his sermon in Old St. Andrew's Church yesterday morning.

Reading from an account of the resolution passed by the Anglican Synod last week expressing desire and readiness to "meet in conference and prayer with representatives of any Christian communion which shares its hopes and aspirations for a reunited Christendom," Dr. Sclater mentioned that the Maritime convention of the Baptist Churches had also approved consultations with a view to forming a Canadian Council of Churches.

"In response, I can say that I have no doubt whatever that we in the United Church will wholeheartedly take corresponding steps," he said. "I am full of hope as to the results."

Hitler Downfall Seen.

There was no doubt that Hitler could be beaten ultimately, said Dr. Sclater. "But can we thereafter save civilization?" he asked. "For there is going to be a great reaction and a savage demand that there shall be a harvesting of human betterment after such a sowing of human misery.

"This is the climax not of four, but of 30 years of strife. First there was the last war, then the craziness of the '20's, followed by the desperation of the '30's, and now by the present cataclysm of which the end is not yet. It is all a dreadul unity. Mankind will come out of it with frayed nerves and clouded minds, horribly familiar with violence and death."

In the matter of co-operative unity of the church, Dr. Sclater said it was necessary that the people take an interest and create the atmosphere of good will "in which the long and difficult discussions which are necessary can alone be carried out." The uniting influence in the post-war world should be Christianity.

Says Resources Squandered.

"How is that to be if the Christian forces are, if not hostile to each other, at least segregated and acting in rivalry? We cannot expect anybody to listen to us if we, in action, 'divide Christ.'"

In Canada resources in men and money are being squandered, he declared. Steps were being taken to correct it, but not to anything like a sufficient degree. If there was immigration to Canada and great developments after the war we would be caught unprepared to deal adequately with the situation. "We haven't much time," warned Dr. Sclater.

"We do not care who brings Canada to Christ, provided it is brought. No question of personal pre-eminence must be allowed. Nor must there be question of ecclesiastical domination. If anybody—any of the others—can do it, let us be obliterated. We want one thing that He should reign."

McIntosh Reds Market Feature

McIntosh Red apples reached the market Saturday. Ben Isaac of Norham quoted them at 55 cents a peck and St. Lawrence apples at 50 cents. Norman Moncrief sold Peerless and Gravensteins at 60 cents a peck; crab apples at 60 cents a basket; melons were 10 and 15 cents.

The arrival of the "Macks" marked another definite stage in the advance of the season, accompanying pears and grapes.

Twenty-seven bushels of pears from Pleasant View Gardens, Bowmanville, were all gone before noon; but there will be more in next week-end, and Sheldons are promised for the following week.

Eggs sold all the way from 35 cents to 48 cents; chickens were 38 cents a pound and hens 33 and 35 cents. Roasted chickens were 50 cents a pound. The upstairs market was firm, and the bulk of the farm provisions was gone before before the noon hour.

Farmers may be interested in a recent comment by Mayor Hamilton at the meeting of the Board of Health last week. An official recommendation that eggs be sold according to grade, elicited from His worship the remark that "we don't want to drive farmers from the market with restrictions."

The Board took no action for the reason as Alderman Dutton, chairman, said, "I don't think this is a question that comes within the concern of the Board of Health."

Farmers probably know that proposals for strict grading emanate from the trade itself. The local market practice does follow a system of grading. For instance one woman on Saturday quoted three prices: 35 cents for pullets, 40c the dozen for medium and 48 cents for large. That is the general system and it apparently satisfies the buying public.

Potatoes were $1.90 and $2 a bag; tomatoes 25 and 30 cents for six-quart baskets; corn 25 and 30 cents a dozen. Cauliflowers 15 to 25 cents each.

Farmers reported the temperature down to 29 degrees Saturday morning between 6 and 7 o'clock and on the way to the city they noticed "the corn was black from the frost."

Onions were 60c for six-quart baskets; celery 10c a bunch. Turnps two for 15 cents.

Cadet Training—

An Air Cadet is given training and instruction under direct supervision of the R.C.A.F. The Cadet course is a combination of the ground courses of the initial and elementary flying training schools, and represents two months' Air Force instruction. There is, thus, a definite objective and standard of proficiency for all Cadets completing the course.

The R.C.A.F. provides summer camp training at a command air station; and special visits to R.C.A.F. stations are arranged from time to time, providing Cadets with desirable and instructive contact with the actual life at such stations.

Air Navigation	Administration and Organization
Signals	Air Frames
Physical Training	First Aid
Drill	Armament

Betty and Bob Embark On New Adventures

To Be Heard Over CHEX, 2 p.m. Monday to Friday

City folk who dream of r[illegible] to the country for peace and quiet are pictu[illegible]-and gently satirized—in this week's presentation of Betty and Bob, that veteran five-a-week radio serial which has just begun over Station CHEX.

Betty and Bob used to be city dwellers of the most active sort. For a year or more their life has been particularly strenuous. Running a crusading newspaper proved a dangerous venture. Bob ended up in a hospital, brutally run down by a gangster automobile. So his wife Betty, considering it a miracle to have her beloved husband alive, made him promise to sell the paper and go to the country for a long rest and a longer playtime.

Well, they've reached the country. But there's some question about that rest and quiet they're seeking. They arrived to be greeted by the whole village wtih a brass band—you can't be famous personalities these days without everybody knowing it, even in the country.

Then, enjoying their first quiet meal on the farm, they are lifted out of their wicker chairs by a fusilade of distant shooting. Naturally, being newspaper folk, they can't help but investigate. What they find out, and what they get mixed up in—well the countryside is a long ways from the poet's dreams.

Betty and Bob discovering the countryside, uncovering what's happened on their neighbor's farm, coming face-to-face with passions and terrors that even a crusading editor of a big-city newspaper never met before—all this makes the first week of Betty and Bob's return to the air waves one of the most thrilling they have ever lived.

A new chapter in this week's adventures is Chet Andrews, a country school teacher. He too is a crusader and the part is played by that great young actor, Myron McCormick, whose performance of a crusading young doctor in the motion picture "Fight For Life" has brought him overwhelming critical acclaim. Myron's magnificent performances in both Betty and Bob and the Fight For Life are no surprise to those who have watched his career in the theatre, where in ten years he has risen to become the most sought-after young leading man on Broadway.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

With the manpower situation somewhat clarified by the U.S. and Canadian governments in relation to hockey players, the American Hockey League decided at a meeting in New York Saturday to operate with six clubs, two more of the teams having suspended for the duration.

League President Maurice Pdoloff announced he would make an immediate start in drafting the schedule to open Oct. 27 and close March 12, with the following participants: Cleveland, Buffalo, Pittsburg, Hershey, Indianapolis and Providence. The meeting received notification of the withdrawal of the Washington club, while another, Springfield, Mass., had been forced to suspend because the army had taken over the arean building. Previously Philadelphia and New Haven had found it necessary to quit for war reasons.

Three of the clubs will feature Sunday games, namely, Buffalo, Indianapolis and Providence, while the other three are known as Saturday team.

Cracks Up.

Sgt. Jack London and Sgt. Freddie Mills both of the R.A.F., were to have fought Wednesday night in London, England, for the British Empire heavyweight title but the bout has been postponed because London cracked a rib in training. Mills is the current light-heavyweight champion of the Empire.

Third-place Columbus plays at Milwaukee, pennant-winning club, and fourth-place Toledo goes against second-place Indianapolis in the American Association playoffs which open to-morrow. Two years ago, Columbus defeated Montreal and, last fall, won from Syracuse to take the Junior World's series twice in a row.

The Chicago-owned Mar-kell, carrying top-weight of 126 pounds, won from a strong field of 11 including two of her previous conquerors this season in the Beldame Handicap for fillies and mares at Aqueduct Saturday to win $20,050 for her ninth victory of 1943.

University of Michigan lived up to pre-game predictions in U. S. football Saturday by walloping Camp Grant 26-0 but the upset of the day was the 23-13 win by Purdue over Great Lakes Naval Training station.

Salmonbellies Win.

Salmonbellies of the noted lacrosse centre of New Westminster won out 16-14 Saturday from Vancouver Burrads in the first of the best of seven series for the coast title.

Meanwhile, at Montreal, R. C. A. F. airmen trampled on Lachine 18-8 last night in the first game of a best of five Quebec Senior Lacrosse final series. Led by Andy Anderson with five goals, the airmen were in front all the way.

Market Wise Wins.

Although his leg was injured during the race, Market Wise captured the $25,000 Narragansett special yesterday at the Pawtucket Oval, giving Lou Tufano's five-year-old a sweep of New England's turf features. Shut Out, co-favorite with Market Wise and winner of the 1942 Kentucky Derby, finished fourth.

Road racing at Guelph on Thanksgiving Day, once the outstanding feature of the fall athletic season, will be revived Oct. 11 by the uGelph Cross-County Run and Race Association in the holding of a five-mile open, along with a number of local juvenile events.

Niagara Falls administered a 26-4 walloping of Waterloo Saturday at Waterloo to take the Ontario Baseball Association juvenile semi-finals in straight games. The Cataract crew qualified to meet Toronto for the provincial honors.

Picton Returns Strong In Second Half

History repeated itself at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon when for the second year in succession the smart Picton R.A.F. soccer team defeated Mount Hope R.A.F. in a benefit game for the British War Victims' Fund. The score on this occasion was 5 to 2 for Picton who won a year ago by 7 to 1.

Although both squads were weakened by last-minute postings and leaves that robbed them of valuable players the two Royal Air Force teams staged a fine exhibition that was thoroughly enjoyed by a big crowd that incidentally included many former exponents of soccer. The game was played under ideal weather conditions.

With a number of defence players gone Flying Officer Jock Campbell, high-scoring forward of the Picton team had to drop back to centre half while Mount Hope also had to make a number of eleventh-hour changes and use their veteran coach Sergt. Jock Miller at outside left.

While the quality of football was not as expert as that shown by Picton R.A.F. a year ago, the game was much more evenly contested and early in the battle a Mount Hope win looked like a probability.

Sergt. Jock Miller's squad, sparked by the veteran's heady play, took command of the game after the kick-off, missed several good chances in the first couple of minutes and finally took the lead five minutes after the start when Illingworth, former Hull City player, cashed in on a neat pass from Miller to put Mount Hope in front. Miller engineered a smart play and Illingworth, who scored both the losers' goals, made no mistake when he got the opening.

Bit Disorganized

At that stage the Picton team looked a bit disorganized. They were outplayed along both wings with Miller and Hurdon playing smart football for Mount Hope, and for some time had difficulty in getting an effective attack organized. However they kept on battling and as the game progressed began to find their bearings and to take over some of the offensive. They were finally rewarded when Miller, formerly of the Middlesborough 1st Division team who was the scoring star of the afternoon, took a pass from Lawson and cooly beat Kimber to tie up the score. Honors were even for the rest of the first half. Mount Hope probably had a little edge on the play but Perry took care of everything they drove at him.

There was a surprising transformation after the rest period, Picton suddenly got the kinks in their team play unravelled and with effective co-operation from their half-line, sparked by Campbell, the Picton forwards displayed a dashing attack that would not be denied. Their passing improved noticeably and they kept storming in with a drive, spear-headed by Miller prime opportunist, that could not be denied. Soon after the half opened they swept into the lead. A neat passing play carried them right in and when Farnworth's shot from right wing struck the goal-post Miller was right on the spot to tap the rebound into the net. Previous to that success the centre star had missed two openings that were very close. He headed a corner kick over the bar and a little later fired just too high with a bullet drive.

Ten minutes after the second period opened Miller made it 3 to 1 and scored the hat trick for himself by breaking through centre on a lone rush. Kimber dashed out to save but fell and the ball bounded past him and Miller who had also gone down had only to gently boot the ball into the open net. That made it 3 to 1.

Miller Scores Four

Mount Hope struck back and Illingworth got his second goal of the game soon after on a play set by "Jock" Miller. However Picton were not through yet and they returned to the attack. Ross, inside left, made it 4 to 2 when Miller headed the ball across the mouth of the net on a corner kick and put his team-mate in position to score easily.

Shortly afterward Miller registered his fourth goal of the game when he dashed in to pick up a rebound of a hard shot and rattle the ball past Kimber before he could move.

Illingworth lost a glorious chance in the closing minutes of play to register a hat-trick third goal for the losers. Jock Miller put him in the clear with a perfect pass but with Perry out of position Illingworth just failed to find the net.

"Jock' Campbell, with his steady, effective work at centre half, Miller for his fine scoring display and Perry for clean-cut work in the nets were the pick for the Picton team while Butler, the sturdy back, Stokes at centre half and Hurdon, Miller and Illingworth of the forward brigade stood out. The veteran Miller who admitted that a score of years have passed since he played for Dundee took the eye of the crowd for his heady work along the wing and for his cheerful sportsmanship.

Referee: York, Picton.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Wrestling fans are looking forward to the Dick Hogan-Pat Flanagan main bout tonight at the Brock St. Arena to supply all kinds of skulduggery—and they are justified in doing so. At that this column has an idea that all the rough stuff is not going to be reserved for the final battle. That rowdy Yugo Slav battler Doc Felice meets Earl McCready in the semi-final and while McCready is an even-tempered athlete it would not be surprising if he were to go off the deep end tonight and take Felice for a merry ride. You see the Moose has a score to even with the Doc. The two were matched in Toronto the other night and the enterprising Mister Felice opened up by softening McCready with a couple of swings to the jaw and produced a coat-hanger from inside his trunks, wrapped it round the neck of the Aurora farmer and then left his opponent hanging from the ropes. Felice was of course disqualified but that didn't do much to soothe McCready for the humiliation he had undergone. Candidates for the British Empire title don't like to be suspended from a coat hanger and McCready willl probably pick tonight as a good time to make the Yugo Slav pay for his bit of deviltry. The amiable Earl has the science and power to give Felice a memorable half hour and we will be surprised if he doesn't cut loose from the opening bell. As for the mad monarchs of maul Rowdy Dick Hogan and Irish Pat Flanagan who get the main bout spot tonight all you can count on is that the two battlers will try everything they know to take each other apart and the fur should fly all through the lively proceedings. Johnny Gyroffy and Sergt. Ted Miller should come up with a good exhibition of the mat art in the preliminary bout.

The end of the softball trail so far as local leagues are concerned comes tomorrow night when Outboard Marines and Brintons will meet at the Brinton Field at 6.15 o'clock in the final game for the Industrial League championship. Each team has won two games in the best-of-five final round so that the winner tomorrow night takes it all. It promises to be a merry battle. Outboards won the first game of the finals in easy fashion but Brintons came back with a rush to take the next two and go out in front. Facing elimination Friday night Outboards eked out a win and sewed up the series and now it is all up to the final battle. At this distance it looks like anybody's argument. The Industrial League is the last local loop to wind up. Champions in the other organized circuits have been declared as follows: City League—4th Battery; Girls' League, senior division—Westclox, intermediate section—Brintons; Catholic Softball League—St. Peter's; C.G.E. Shop League—Switchgear.

Thanks, R.A.F.

Once again Peterborough sport-lovers owe a vote of thanks to the members of the Picton and R.A.F. soccer teams for their willingness to come here and stage a game in aid of the British War Victims' Fund, thus splendidly aiding a worthy cause and at the same time providing local fans with a fine sporting spectacle. The motion should be widened, too, to include the Peterborough-Whitaker Cricket Club for sponsoring the successful affair, making all arrangements and paying all the local expenses, while the Air Force teams took care of travelling costs themselves. Both teams were short-handed through circumstances over which they had no control but they put on a good show and as a contest the game was a better battle than the clash between the two teams a year ago, even if the soccer was perhaps not as high a grade. For a while Mount Hope looked to have a good chance to win but Picton took command after the rest and were the better team throughout the last half. Sergt. Miller at centre for the winners proved himself a real opportunist and rattled in four of his team's five goals, cashing in expertly on his opportunities. Flying Officer "Jock" Campbell whose scoring feats featured last year's game had to go back to centre half to bolster up the defence. While he was a tower of strength there the fans missed his dashing work on the attack. A feature was the display given by the veteran "Jock" Miller, coach of Mount Hope, who had to put himself into the game at outside left to fill a forward vacancy and was the most dangerous attacker for his team. The old-stager set up both his team's goals and the crowd got a big kick out of watching him.

One Saturday does not make a season. However the scores in the three opening games in the senior O.R.F.U. Saturday were decisive enough to throw some light on the prospects for the campaign. Last season's champions, R.C.A.F. Hurricanes, minus a lot of oustanding stars and now coached by Ross Trimble, had little trouble vanquishing a depleted Navy squad 31 to 3 in the Toronto battle between the two service squads. Only Milne of the 1942 Sailors was in action and the Hurricanes won handily. Balmy Beach upset Ottawa hopes by invading the Capital and handing the Combines a decisive 25-12 defeat and over at Hamilton the Ambitious City outfit ran away from the Toronto Indians 35 to 0 in a manner that will have all the other clubs in the loop doing a lot of thinking. In fact the speed and power shown by the Wildcats formed the biggest and most significant feature of the opening day proceedings. Their work definitely stamped them as the team to beat for the title. There are a lot of new faces on all the clubs and the quality of football will probably fail to measure up to pre-war or even last season's standard but it should be a good race with plenty of exciting battles before the snow flies.

In Four Straight

Moving along like a well-oiled machine the Toronto Leafs have swept through their semi-final round with Montreal Royals in the Governors' Cup series without a loss. They completed the discomfiture of the Royals Sunday afternoon when behind four-hit pitching by Jim Hopper they beat Fresco Thompson's hirelings 5 to 1. Hopper had the Montrealers well under control all the way, although they did finally managed to bunch a couple of hits for their solitary run. Leafs drove Chipman out of the box and Sunkel who succeeded him was no mystery either. Deforge and finally Dietz were called on by Manager Thompson. The Leafs, in cleaning up the series in four straight games needed only four pitchers to turn the trick, Luke Hamlin, Nick Strincevich, Al Jarlett and Jim Hopper each going the distance. They had the Royal hitters hog-tied, Max Macon being the only Montreal hitter to give them much trouble. The game played yesterday was scheduled originally for Saturday night but when the Leafs won the third game Friday night and it looked as if the prospects of a big fifth game gate Sunday might be wiped out with another Toronto win Saturday, there was a switch to Sunday for the fourth battle. Now the Leafs will wait for Syracuse and Newark to declare a winner. Syracuse won the fifth game yesterday 4 to 0 to lead the series three to two.

Outstanding feature of the big league week-end program was the fact that the St. Louis Cards annexed the National League pennant by winning Saturday and that the New York Yanks were set back in their drive to cinch their title by a double defeat Sunday at the hands of the Washington Senators. Spud Chandler, all set to be the first American League pitcher to win 20 games this season, was foiled by Early Wynn who picked up his 17th triumph and Chandler will have to wait a few days to make another bid for the select circle. Rip Sewell who won his 20th victory some time ago boosted his mark to 21 yesterday when he pitched a four-hitter as the Pirates won over Cincinnati Reds, beating Riddle who was pointing for his 20th win. One of the choicest bits of pitching Sunday was done by Jim Bagby of the Cleveland Indians who only allowed the Detroit Tigers two hits in shutting them out 1 to 0. Sunday batting hero was Bill Nicholson, hard-hitting out-

Topheavy Scores Feature Rugby Opener

By ALAN HARVEY,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

One of the noteworthy considerations dredged up in the wake of the Ontario Rugby Football Union's 1943 launching ceremonies is the surprising disparity of strength among the six clubs.

After the Union opened its fifth war season Saturday before a total of 24,000 spectators in three league cities, the scores indicated the balance of power rests solidly with Hamilton Wildcats, who thumped Toronto Indians 35-0 at Hamilton; Toronto R. C. A. F. Hurricanes, 31-3 conquerors of Toronto Navy at Varsity Stadium; and Toronto Balmy Beach, triumphant over Ottawa Combines 25-12 on the latter's home grounds.

This power was displayed most decisively at Hamilton where Wildcats rolled for five converted touchdowns and five singles, Jimmy Smith and Chuck Stollery, former Toronto High School stars, made a dashing debut for Wildcats.

Smith Tops Scoring.

Smith led with six points while Stollery, Murray Crowe, Jimmy Fumio and Polly Miocinovich all scored touchdowns. Walter Gibb contributed three points, Boots Brown and Joe Krol two and Jimmy Simpson—trying a comeback—chipped in one along with Don Irvin. The Cats scored six in the first, seven in the second, three in the third and 19 in the fourth. Crowe is a newcomer from the Sarnia district who never has played football before.

At Ottawa, fumbles left the newly-fledged Combines floundering in distress early. Beaches capitalized with three consecutive forwards, Stu Scott carrying the last for a try. Annis Stukus converted, added two more points-after-touchdown and booted two placements before the game ended. Brother Frank, Scott and Leo Deadey contributed majors while Bobby Porter tallied once on a return kick.

Ottawa scores were credited to Frank Dunlap (five), George Fraser (four) and Arnie McWatters (one), plus an uncredited safety touch.

Folded In Second

Despite some blundering moments, Ross Trimble's Hurricanes had little trouble impounding Navy on the other side of midfield. Navy gave way in the second quarter when Hurricanes scored seven, adding the final 24 points in dozen lots in the last two panels. The three Navy points went to OS. Sandy Milne on a fourth-quarter placement.

Hurricanes accumulated their 31 points through FO. Jack Alexander and AC2. Ross Goodwin, seven apiece; LAC. Bob Cosgrove, AC2 Ken Sluman and Sgt. Doug Phzer, five; and Sgt. Charlie Prince and Sg.t Fred Kijek, singles.

Cosgrove, formerly of Calgary Bronks, arrived in Toronto Saturday morning from the West, entered the game without the benefit of a workout, tackled savagely and scored his touchdown after crashing through the Navy line to block a kick and fall on the loose ball.

Pitches 1-Hit Ball

MAIDSTONE, Ont. —(CP) — By their 9-1 triumph over Guelph Maple Leafs in the third game on Sunday of the O. B. A. play-offs, Mainstone Shamrocks moved to the Intermediate "B" baseball final round of Ontario. Joe Penner for the winners, turned in a one-hit performance.

Angels Fold Up

LOS ANGELES—(AP).—The Angels led the way to the Pacific Coast League pennant in the scheduled season but were quickly eliminated in the semi-final play-offs, losing four straight to Seattle. Portland and San Francisco yesterday divided a double-header and the local Seals went out in front three games to two in their series.

Will Play Hockey At Red Deer?

LAWN BOWLING

It was a beautiful afternoon for the last open tournament of the 1943 lawn bowling season, at least as far as our local club is concerned. It is too bad that many more of our bowlers did not avail themselves of the opportunity.

The games started around 2 p.m. and play was continuous until 8.15 p.m. There was no stopping for the supper hour and by doing this the tournament was finished before the dew began to form on the grass.

Three sixteen-end games is what the rules called for and the play was wide open. There was some mighty fine bowling throughout the afternoon and the greens were very fast.

The winning rinks were: :

3rd (each a silk shirt)—F. H. Dearborn, J. Baird, H. Clegg, skip.

It will take the games committees, in both sections, about a full week to complete the loose ends of the different competitions. There are many play-offs to be settled yet.

Sport Dead In Occupied Lands

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Sept. 20 — (CP). — The next Olympic Games, if held, within a year or two after the end of the war, are almost certain to be dominated completely by athletes from the democratic wartime coalition of United Nations. In the occupied countries of Europe sports have died a violent death.

Germany and possibly Japan may show only a comparatively slight decline from pre-war standards because in their subjugation of other lands nutritional standards for their own young men have been kept on a high plane, and military sports competitions have been maintained in much the same manner as in Russia, the United States, Britain, Canada, and others of the United Nations.

But in those of the occupied countries which still maintain national sporting competitions, few young athletes have been developed. Military service, forced labor for the aggressor nations, and lack of the necessary food energy have killed their chances. It may be another generation before these defeated nations will be able to develop another good athletic crop.

TORONTO ELIMINATES MONTREAL WINNING 4th STRAIGHT PLAYOFF

Syracuse Chiefs Take Lead Over Newark

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Maple Leafs combined 10 hits off four pitchers with four Montreal errors and nine bases given on balls to romp through to a 5-1 victory over the Royals here last night and take their fourth straight play-off game.

Young Jim Hopper twirled for the Leafs, winning his 15th victory by allowing only four hits, singles by Macon and Al Campanis and an infield out producing the losers' only tally in the seventh. Royals used four pitchers, with the loss being charged against Bob Chipman.

The only other game played Sunday saw another youthful pitcher, Walter (Monk) Dubiel of Newark Bears defeated by Syracuse Chiefs. The victory gave the Chiefs a 3-2 lead in games and the chance of joining Toronto in the final round.

It was Tomas De La Cruz, slender Cuban curve specialist with the Chiefs, who gained the edge over Dubiel, 4-0.

Although De La Cruz pitched a sturdy contest, he could have coasted because of the hitting of Dutch Mele. Mele poked out a homer off Dubiel in the second and another off Relief Pitcher Ed Marleu in the ninth, each with the bases empty. He scored an additional run in the seventh, however, when he was cranked to first and counted on Dick West's triple. West collected three hits during the day.

Saturday was a dull day with the Toronto-Montreal play-off postponed and the Syracuse-Newark engagement the only activity. Newark took the Chiefs 1-0.

Fear Yankees May Blow On Home Stretch

By TED BEIER,
Associated Press Sport Writer.

It sounds fantastic, but can it be that the New York Yankees will "blow" the American League pennant to Washington, or perhaps even Cleveland, in the last two weeks of the season?

On top by a nine-game margin over the second-place Senators and by 12 games over the third-place Indians, the Yanks need to win only five of their remaining 14 games to clinch their seventh championship in eight years. But there is every indication that gaining those five victories will be one of the toughest tasks the Yankees have faced ths year.

The fact they missed clinching at least a tie for the title by dropping a doubleheader to the Senators yesterday may prove the turning point. The double loss 3-2 in 10 innings and 5-1, gave the Senators a sweep of three-game series against three of the best Yankee pitchers, Charley Wensloff, Spud Chandler and Ernie Bonham.

The sweep boosted Washington's winning streak to nine in a row. If the Senators win all of their remaining 12 games they will finish the season with 21 straight victories (remember Chicago Cubs in 1935?)

Cards Take Pennant.

The Indians have 13 games left to play. If the Indians, who beat Detroit twice yesterday, 1-0 and 6-2, win all 13 while the Senators win nine of 12 and the Yanks only one of 14 the Tribe would finish on top by half a game.

The National League champions, St. Louis Cardinals, who clinched the title Saturday, were beaten twice by Chicago Cubs, 6-0 and 10-9, but the big news in the Senior Circuit was Ace Adams, star pitcher for New York Giants. In helping the Giants take a doubleheader from Brooklyn, 3-1 and 7-4, Adams appeared in his 66th game of the season, equalling the Major League record set by Ed. Walsh of Chicago White Sox 35 years ago in 1908.

Pittsburgh Stays In.

Pittsburgh got back into the thick of the fight for second place by beating Cincinnati Reds twice, 10-3 and 2-1.

Boston Braves made it five in a row over the Phillies, 3-2 and 6-5 in 14 innings.

The White Sox and St. Louis Browns split, the Browns taking the opener, 7-4, and the Sox the nightcap 6-1. Boston Red Sox and the Philadelphia Athletics also split. Joe Dobson shut out the A's in the opener 14-0 with five hits. The A's took the nightcap 6-1 behind Jess Flores' eight-hit twirling.

The Cardinals' capture of the pennant by defeating the Cubs 2-1 in the first game of a doubleheader featured Saturday's National League encounters. They went on to win the second game 5-0. Brooklyn trimmed New York 6-4 and Boston defeated the Phillies 2-0 and 2-1. In the American League, the White Sox went 10 innings to beat the Browns 3-2 and Philadelphia 11 to turn back Boston 5-4. Cleveland defeated Detroit 4-2 in the only other game.

TORONTO, Sept. 20 — (CP). — The National Hockey League plans to operate next winter. Now all John Public wants to know is—how? Jim Coleman of the Toronto Globe and Mail is one of the curious. He writes these "superficial impressions":

1. There won't be enough players available to provide first-class professional hockey.

2. There will be no minor league professional hockey

3. The American clubs, such as Boston, Detroit, New York, and Chicago, are anxious to continue professional hockey because they realize that amateur hockey would not draw flies to their rinks.

4. Most of the outstanding professional hockey players will be in the Armed Services this winter. The Canadian cities, such as Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa and Hamilton, could have a splendid league of service teams, provided that such a sports schedule didn't interfere with military training.

Coleman expresses the impressions of most fans. The nation, of course, will not collapse if the N.H.L. fails to operate, but the sport public hopes the league continues. The N.H.L. is as much a part of Canadian life a major league baseball is in United States. Almost every youngster from Halifax to Victoria has his heroes among the big league stars Daddy and grandpa have their favorite clubs. The league's progress is followed keenly by Canadians fighting overseas.

Ken Johnson of the Owen Sound Sun-Times speaks for the average fan when he writes that cessation of N.H.L. play "would come as a blow....to hockey fans across Canada who depend for their major hockey enjoyment on the Saturday night broadcasts from Maple Leaf Gardens."

Therefore fans are waiting developments. They'll get the low-down soon. Meantime it's doubtful if the N.H.L. moguls themselves know what's what. They're undoubtedly pondering many questions such as: Will we draw crowds in Toronto and Montreal to see a bunch of kids and old crocks play at three bucks a head when the fans can see the big name players of former N.H.L. glory play in the same rinks on other nights for half a buck?

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP)—The first rumble of the bowling season brings word that Brig.-Gen. D. P. Hardy, commanding officer at Camp Pendleton, Va., is asking Keglers to contribute a few old bowling balls . . . seems that Camp Pendleton has six new alley beds but only five bowling balls to use on 'em . . .

You Pick 'em

(Short bits about the World Series shortstops):

Frank Crosetti, Yankees—It would hardly be a World Series without Frank; this will be his seventh since he broke in with the 1932 Yanks. Played only one game in last year's series when scooter Rizzuto did the shortstopping but is a regular again although he's hitting below his usual .250. Holds a flock of series and major league records, mostly for fielding.

Martin (Slats) Marion, Cardinals—The lath that walks like a man and fields like a whiz. Maybe its his extra length and reach that enables Slats to come up with so many hot grounders; certainly he isn't broad enough to stand in front of 'em . . . Hit only .111 against the Yanks last fall but drove in three runs . . . His current batting average is around .280, the best he ever has had in the majors.

It Just Horned In

(From the Carroll County, N.H., "Independent")

Ray Dore of Centre Ossipee has brought in the best story heard to date as to why he should have more gasoline for his outboard motor. He explained to the rationing board that his tank had developed a leak and had drained every drop.

"Just how did that tank come to leak?" inquired a stony-eyed member of the Board.

"Now I'll tell you the solemn truth. Truth is stronger than fiction. I was fishing for horn pout. I pulled in an old lunker. I pulled too hard and he went through the air and one of his horns hit that tank and punched a hole right into it. Awful light material in them tanks—yes sir, awful light."

The board voted unanimously that Mr. Dore be advised to buy some grease for his oar locks.

By the Associated Press.

Early Wynn and Mickey Haefner, Senators — Wynn's five-hit and Haefner's two-hit pitching beat Yankees twice.

Jim Bagby and Allie Reynolds, Indians — Bagby's two-hit twirling in opener and Reynolds' relief pitching in nightcap beat Detroit twice.

Bill Nicholson, Cubs, and Stan Musial, Cardinals — Nicholson hit 23rd and 24th homers of the year to spark Cubs to a double victory over the Cards Musial got seven hits in a twin bill to become first batter to cross 200 total.

Joe Dobson, Red Sox, and Jess Flores, Athletics — Dobson pitched five-hitter and Flores eight-hitter as Sox and A's split.

LINDSAY, Sept. 20.—Over 25,000 people attended the final day's fair at Lindsay, and 12,000 of them gave vent to their feelings in no uncertain manner when the iron-sided pacer, Lastic Grattan and Wilmer Hillock had won the free-for-all pace and were presented with a special prize donated by Mayor Lamb for the horse that either trotted or paced the fastest mile during the three-day race carnival.

Using New Plan To Speed Casualty News Of Canadians

By ROSS MUNRO

WITH THE CANADIANS IN ITALY, Sept. 17 (Delayed)—(CP)—This is how next of kin in Canada are advised of casualties among Canadians in the Central Mediterranean force.

When a casualty occurs the unit adjutant submits a casualty return to the second echelon officer, Capt. A. T. Smith of Victoria and Winnipeg, at Canadian Field Headquarters here. These returns are sent by officer courier to an air base in Sicily. From there they are flown to the second echelon in North Africa. The second echelon is an army organization which looks after matters like records.

Canadian records in London are informed of the casualties by the second echelon in North Africa. This information is passed on to the records office at army headquarters in Ottawa, and they advise the next of kin.

Eventually casualty returns will be sent from Italy by air directly to North Africa, eliminating the officer courier trip back to the Sicily air base.

During the Sicilian campaign there were delays in getting casualty returns back to North Africa, due to the rapidity of the advance and the difficulty of army communications down the line, say second echelon officers. In the later stages of the campaign delays were reduced greatly by the gradual improvement of communications and by the institution of officer couriers.

Pictorial Story Provided

Canadian Army film and photos section operated with the Canadian force throughout the Sicilian campaign, and also are operating here in Italy with the troops. With movies and still pictures, this army camera crew keeps up with the advance and with the battles in which the Canadians engaged, providing a pictorial story of front-line activities for newspapers and news reels.

Capt. Frank Royal of Winnipeg heads the still photographers, and Lieut. Alastair Fraser of Montreal heads the movie section. Still photographers with Royal are Lieuts. Jack Smith of Toronto, Terry Rowe of Winnipeg, and Alex Stirton of Edmonton. Cinema cameramen with Fraser are Sgts. Alan Grayston of Montreal, Jim Campbell of Vancouver, George Cooper of Ottawa, and Jack Stollery of St. Thomas, Ont.

This happened at Canadian field headquarters:

"George who? And why George?" asked the intelligence officer.

"I think he call himself George," said the Italian.

The officer patiently explained there were many Georges about. He asked what was the Italian's business.

The Italian produced a torn piece of paper in reply, on which was scribbled: "This man's house taken for use by His Majesty's Government. (Signed) George, R.I."

Drives 12 Miles

Other army units advancing westward from Bryansk took 300 towns, including Trubvhevsk, in a drive of 12 miles, the bulletin added.

On the lower central front the Russians were arrayed in a rough arc, with the columns aimed in the general direction of Kiev. Chernigov, at the northern end of the arc, was reported menaced by an 18-mile advance which occupied more than 100 villages, including the important centre of Beresna, 22 miles to the northwest. Another spearhead was only four miles away at Anisovo on the southeast.

In the main drive on Kiev the cities of Priluki, 80 miles east, Lubny, Piryatin, Mirgorod and Krasnograd, all fell to the rapid Russian advance, bringing the Red Army line parallel to the Dnieper River along a 100-mile front about 80 miles to the northeast. Other units were moving up for a frontal attack on Poltava.

The Russian lines were nearest to the Dnieper in the vicinity of Dniepropetrovsk, at the river's easternmost bend, where the Red Army was closing in an Zaporozhe.

The entire southern flank of the Germany Army, including the great forces concentrated in the Crimea, was endangered by the Soviet drive along the Sea of Azov from Mariupol toward Melitopol, railroad centre on the only line running to Sevastopol, at the southwestern tip of the Crimea.

To the officers of the regiments which forded the Desna and captured Trubchevsk Stalin awarded the Order of Suvorov, the highest Soviet decoration. Another order of the day honored the units engaged in fighting in the Kiev area and gave to each division and regiment the right to use the names of the towns which they captured as part of their army designations. Two units including Lt.-Gen. A. Popov's Second Tank Corps, were awarded the Order of Red Banner.

of Canadians reported to have formed part of Gen. Clark's 5th Army.

Withdrawal of the Germans from Sardinia before a strenuous booting administered by two fighting Italian divisions presented the Allies today with several potential airbases from which they ultimately can flay the Nazis in northern Italy and southern France.

Battipaglia, site of a former Axis airbase, is an important road junction southeast of Salerno. The enemy was driven from Altavilla, a mountain village 10 miles inland, only after bitter fighting. Fifth Army patrols once before had gained both towns, but withdrew before last week's German counter-attacks.

Although there were no definite details here concerning Badoglio's escape from the Germans it was understood he arrived by plane, giving the Nazis the slip in the Florence area after Marshal Albert Kesserling, German commander in southern Italy, had seized all airports below Rome.

The German flight across the 7½-mile-wide Strait of Bonifacio to Corsica paved the way for easy Allied occupation of Sardinia.

the needs of the forces at home, as well as supply ships entering Canadian ports.

The Canadian butter contribution to the United Kingdom will help to meet immediate short term needs there.

But, on the other hand, the Agricultural Supplies Board has reported cheese production for the first seven months of 1943 as 31 per cent below that of the first seven months of 1942.

"The cause of lowered cheese production so far this season was partly due to unfavorable weather conditions earlier in the year," said an official. "Nothing can be done to remedy this situation. But the chief cause of a limted cheese output has been the competition of the fluid milk and butter markets."

The subsidy on milk to be used in cheese production will be 30 cents a 100-pounds and will be payable from October 1 to April 30. Officials said they hoped the effect would be to keep dairy herds in cheese manufacturing areas up to full production during the coming fall and winter months.

Thief Suffers Wound

Guide Teachers Fight Delinquency Through Youth Leadership

TORONTO, Sept. 20—Youth leadership as a means of combatting delinquency was the general theme of a spirited meeting of the Ontario Provincial executive Girl Guides, in the Lyceum and Women's Art Association galleries, Saturday. Mrs. H. F. H. Hertzberg, Kingston, Provincial commissioner, presided, and divisional commissioners and heads of branches from all parts of Ontario were present.

That efforts everywhere must be directed toward curbing delinquency, that youth leadership is a "must" for this country and that the Guide movement is particularly well equipped to give this—and intends to do so—was the general feeling of the executive, as interpreted to the press by Mrs. Hertzberg.

"We must train the child of today to combat delinquency by keeping busy," she said. "The constructively busy child is a happy child, and the happy child will never be a delinquent." She quoted from a letter from Imperial headquarters overseas, stressing the urgency of immediate action in respect to leadership training.

Of special interest was the report of Mrs. J. Wayne Conner, Kingston, field secretary, voicing sentiments of a conference held by prominent child psychologists of New York State on youth problems in wartime and community planning. Mrs. Conner, it was announced, will be in Toronto for the next few days, to give training in Guide work for those interested. She will be at Wellesley School tonight and tomorrow evening.

Youth must be used to lead youth thereby opening the way for the older girl to feel she is doing a vital war service, said Mrs. Conner. In England 75 per cent of the youth are attached to some youth organization. Any youth plan in Canada should emulate that of Britain, using the older Guides to lead the younger members, it was felt.

A 10-weeks' course in youth leadership for third and fourth year students will be given in Western University before Christmas, and the same course at Queen's following Christmas, it was announced. The course will be similar to that given, with great success, at Queen's last year. The course consists of two hours a week for 10 weeks.

That the Dominion-wide Overseas Gift Project, operating during the last two years, is not only providing clothing for bombed-out children of Britain, but is also bringing back homely crafts such as sewing, knitting and weaving, to present-day Canadian childhood, was stressed by Mrs. Hertzberg.

During the last two years Ontario Guides have sent to Britain 16,657 articles, "every one of which has reached destination safely," and during the past summer 2,636 articles, including 47 coats and 150 pairs of shoes, have gone forward.

Mrs. Gordon Conant, Deputy Provincial Commissioner for Ontario, and Mrs. D. E. S. Wishart, commissioner for Greater Toronto, were present.

TORONTO, Sept. 20 (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. George W. Scott of Toronto have been informed their son, Sgt. Pilot Howard William Scott, was killed on active service overseas with the R.C.A.F. Sept. 16. Regarded as one of Canada's outstanding baritones, the 25-year-old airman toured Canada last summer with their Air Cadet League show, "Celebrity Parade." He also sang for Dr. Edward Johnson, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company, at Guelph, Ont.

Watch British Gunners Perform

Escorted by Colonel J. S. Muirhead of the British army staff, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson watches the demonstration of anti-aircraft artillery marksmanship performed by the British Composite A-A battery at Camp Edwards, Mass. British battery, composed of veterans of the Battle of Britain, blazed away at towed targets, scoring direct hits. They also gave a demonstration of the various drills used by British ack-ack crews in fighting off the great German air assaults.

"I've learned the value of PREPAREDNESS"

"ONE sure thing that my training as an Air Raid Warden has taught me is the importance of being prepared. I don't know that enemy bombs will ever drop in my sector. I do know that only preparedness can prevent unnecessary suffering if they do.

"It's a lesson that has made me think. Wartime threats to my home and loved ones will pass. The chance that my family may someday be left to carry on alone will remain. Without something to replace my earnings, they'd be in a tight spot indeed!

"So I've done the only thing a man in my position can do. I had a Life Insurance representative work out a plan, within my means, that would give them a guaranteed monthly income in case I die unexpectedly.

"It's a plan that I can expand as my income increases and that's what I aim to do. I've removed a threat to my loved ones that is just as real as high explosives and incendiaries and probably far less remote. I'll never be caught without as much Life Insurance as I can afford."

People driving their own cars straggled home up to 4 a.m. according to restaurant information.

REMANDED ONE WEEK

Charged with indecent assault Theodore Desautels was remanded until next Monday when he appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning. John A. Bradshaw who appeared for the accused asked for the remand, intimating that he might later ask permission for Destautels to change his election to trial by jury. Mr. Bradshaw asked for bail for his client and it was set at $500.

A LONG ADJOURNMENT

A doctor's certificate that the accused would be confined to his bed for at least another two weeks was sufficient to cause an adojurnment to October 13 of the hearing of a charge against John Drummond of having operated his taxi cab at a greater distance than 15 miles from Peterborough. The case was to have been tried this morning but T. J. Carley, K.C., produced the certificate and W. F. Huycke, K.C., prosecuting the case, said that he would raise no objection to the adjournment.

THE MORNING AFTER

Roy Wright and Stafford Jacobs entered pleas of guilty in police court this morning to charges of having been drunk and received the usual penalty, fines of $10 and $2.50 costs.

More than 4,000 transportation warrants were reported recently as having been issued by the government to farmers volunteering to go west for the grain harvest. Survey Reveals Suburban Debenture Cosis

Cost of the two schools in suburban Monaghan, Confederation and May's, has amounted to $60,300, according to the debenture register figures prepared for the city council.

Sewers, watermains and sidewalks in the area proposed for annexation cost $7,806.

Outstanding debt on the two schools is $23,737.02, and another detail of expenditure which is evidently intended for consideration in assessment adjustments, if annexation proceeds, are the following personal payments for sewers, watermains and sidewalks: George Patton, Charlotte street west, sewer and watermain $357; Mrs. Hazel Beatty, Bert Sanderson and Mrs. Leta McElroy, each $357.50 for the same services.

C. L. Payne paid $78.50 for the for the accommodation of a sidewalk on Ann street.

Sewers, Sidewalks

Consideration of all such financial factors is part of the obligation of the special joint committee which has undertaken this survey for the two municipalities.

The amount of the debenture debt in the proposed area due January 1, 1944, is set out as follows:—

Outstanding amounts of the school debt have tlrealy been published.

4 Boys Fined For Owning Liquor Permits

Possessino of liquor permits by minors is inclined to be a costly proposition for four 'teen-aged Peterborough boys discovered to their sorrow in police court this morning when Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., fined each of them $15 and $2.50 costs after they had pleaded guilty to charges of having aplied for and obtained liquor permits while under 21 years of age.

The quartet was composed of Alfred Maio, 18, Albert Maio, 17, Rene Conti, 20 and Bebbino Secco, 17, all of 149 Lake street, Peterborough.

As an alternative to the $16 fines Magistrate Langley announced that the penalty for not paying would be fifteen days in jail.

Munro Stricken Tropical Fever

ALGIERS, Sept. 20 (CP Cable)—Ross Munro, Canadian Press War Correspondent, is back in the field in Italy after being knocked out for a week by tropical fever and exertion.

Munro, who scored a world news beat on the invasion of Sicily July 10, won praise of his fellow-correspondents by covering the arduous 38-day campaign without aid, never missing his daily story. He was laid up two days with fever late in August.

On the invasion of Italy Sept. 3 Munro again was the first correspondent to get a story to the world. But less than a week later he cabled he was tired out, suffering from fever, and must turn over the job to William Stewart, CP War correspondent with him in Italy.

His head office cabled him to go to England for a two-month rest and ordered L. V. Hunter from Algiers to replace him. Apparently Munro did not receive his instructions. He cabled Saturday "back on job, feeling fine."

Sunday a delayed news story came from Italy under his byline dated Sept. 16.

St. Catharines Switches Trucks

St. Catharines is prepared to suspend collection of garbage two or three days a week and divert the vehicles and men, if necessary, to the job of delivering fuel, as reported by representatives from that city at the fuel conference in Toronto Friday.

Opinion in St. Catharines placed garbage colection as secondary service to fuel delivery, especially with the cooler weather of autumn relieving the urgency of the garbage job.

The idea was mentioned with some emphasis as an illustration of how local communities can pool their resources instead of casting every little detail onto the door step of Ottawa. It was suggested that a great deal of self-help could be accomplished by co-operation and initiative if municipal heads and feul dealers joined forces in the emergency of inadequate man power.

Orange Order Walks To All Saints' Church

A Church Parade of Royal Black Knights, members of the Peterborough Preceptory and surrounding preceptories, was held on Sunday evening to All Saints' Anglican Church, where a sermon was preached by the Rev. W. A. Filer.

Parading behind the Boys' Band of Omemee, about 75 members marched from the Orange Hall to All Saints' Church, joining the regular Sunday evening service there.

Choosing as his theme the text of Jude, 1:3, Rev. Filer addressed the congregation on "Contending for the Faith." He asserted that the Church must to-day be militant and that neutrality is as impossible in religion as it is in regard to the war. "It is necessary to adopt a positive attitude and contend for our common salvation," Rev. Filer said. He added that the liberties we enjoy are the result of contact with British tradition and that their roots are found in the past.

Speaking at the morning service at All Saints' church before a large congregation, Bishop W. Barfoot, M.A., D.D., of Edmonton told something of the work being done in his diocese and the significance of the Alaska Highway project for the city of Edmonton whose population had increased 30 p.c. in less than two years.

Milk Subsidies Plan Explained

OTTAWA, Sept. 20—(CP). —The Agricultural Food Board issued today an explanatory statement on increased subsidies for milk production, specifying conditions under which they had been paid.

The subsidies were announced on September 10, and the initial statement did not specify the conditions given in the statement today.

The board said:

The board is authorized to apply the subsidy of 55 cents per 100 pounds on milk for fluid consumption in all areas where such subsidy is considered necessary to maintain production. In other areas where the previous rate of subsidy, viz., 25 cents per 100 pounds, is considered adequate this subsidy will apply.

The subsidy of 30 cents per 100 pounds for milk which is concentrated will be extended to apply on milk used in the manufacture of skim milk powder provided that the milk of butterfat is not otherwise subsidized. The granting of such subsidies will be considered on receipt of recommendations from provincial milk boards or commissions.

In the case of milk manufactured into cheddar cheese for which a subsidy of 30 cents per 100 pounds is provided, application should be made by the management of the cheese factory on forms supplied for the purpose and sent to all cheese factories.

Under authorization granted to the Agricultural Food Board, distributors and manufacturers of milk or milk products are required to obtain permission from the Agricultural Food Board before purchasing milk or cream from producers other than those from whom they were obtaining supplies at the date the order became effective, which was September 9.

Gate Receipts Total $58.55 At Soccer Match

Over the week-end, the men of the Royal Air Force comprising the personnel of the two soccer teams from the stations at Picton and Mount Hope have come and gone, but in so doing, they have turned in a further effort on behalf of the war, through the attraction they provided at Riverside Park when they met in a repeat game of soccer.

Through the sponsorship of the Peterborough-Whitaker Cricket Club this is the third time that the Royal Air Force has added to its laurels in this city by helping to raise money for the sufferers from air raids over Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, the first time being on a day in October, 1941, on the day that will long be remembered for the most disagreeable weather dished up for the occasion, when the boys from Picton ploughed through seas of water and mud to keep faith with those who had loyally turned out in spite of the retarding elements to see them play.

Then last year under the same sporsorship, they came back to play a game of soccer with a team from the Royal Air Force station at Mount Hope, which was eminently successful, being one of the best producers for the fund in that year by raising the sum of $311, besides being an inspiration to a goodly number of the citizens in other ways.

Good Crowd.

On Saturday, what might be called a repeat game, was played between two teams representing the same stations, although the personnel of the two teams had changed considerably. Greeted with ideal weather for the occasion, a large number were again on hand to see them play, part of which is undoubtedly due to the very fine impression they created by their performance in the previous year.

While at the moment no definite idea of the actual returns from their effort can be given, it was felt that this would be the most opportune time to report the amount paid in cash at the gate, and so it appeared in today's receipts as amounting to $58.55, which should be very considerably augmented when the full returns from the tickets sold are all in.

At the conclusion of the game, the Peterborough-Whitaker Cricket Club with their president, Gordon Monkman acting as chairman for the occasion, entertained both teams and those who had accompanied them at a dinner at the Y.M.C.A., where a cordial and sincere welcome on behalf of the citizens was extended to them all by His Worship Mayor Hamilton, and expressions of thankfulness to them all was voiced by Mr. Monkman and the secretary of the fund.

The occasion could hardly be allowed to pass without paying a high tribute to the work of A. H. Radford, secretary of the joint cricket clubs, for the hard work he had put in with attention to even the minutest detail so necessary for a smooth running of this event, who was assisted in laying out the grounds by F. Dyer, H. Tretheway, G. Clements and J. Wild, and J. Hawthorne, H. Tretheway and Frank Dyer gave their services at the box office and gate entrance to the park.

Entertainment at the dinner was provided by Telegrapher J. Hawthorne and Harry Northrop, and in expressing thanks to them, Gordon Monkman also remembered the ladies who had served the dinner, and the management of the fund who also expressed thanks to the group commanders of the Picton and Mount Hope R.A.F. stations for their co-operation and assistance in making it possible for the teams to come and give their services towards raising money for the objects the fund seeks to assist.

Four Children Help.

On the outskirts of the city at the Hatton Wartime Houses, Norma Gray, Jack Gray, Boyd Chalmers and Donald Whatley conducted a sale of home-made candy and lemonade with a side show at 375 Armstrong Avenue, the home of the last named boy, on Saturday afternoon, through which they raised the sum of $1.35, this being credited in their name today. This is a fine way for youngsters to spend their Saturday recess from school duties, and many another such group could work with similar credit to themselves by following their example.

Trenton Officer Opens Air Cadet Week

Group Capt. R. E. McBurney, C. O. of Trenton, accompanied by 30 members of the Trenton R. C. A. F. Brass Band under W. O. Hancock, made a special trip to Peterborough Sunday to officiate at the opening of Air Cadet Week in this city.

Before the band performance took place at the Collegiate, the Trenton band headed a parade in which the Air Cadet band and two flights took part. They paraded down Aylmer Street to Charlotte and over Charlotte and up George. Group Capt. McBurney took the salute at the Cenotaph.

The Trenton commander addressed the cadets and presented prizes and badges to 32 members of the Squadron. He stressed the advantages recruits in the air cadets were getting. Not only did their present training cut off time if they enlisted in the R. C. A. F., but it gave them a solid foundation for civil aviation following the war, he declared.

The speaker said that he regretted Peterborough did not have an airdrome as it would prove a necessity following the war as the only means of transportation for industrial shipping and added that he hoped Peterborough boys would be manning it.

The following boys received awards:

First Prizes:

1. Administration—AC1 Ronald Boorne. 2. First Aid—AC1 Robert Seymour. 3. Airmanship—AC1 James Collins, AC1 Jack Noyes. 4. Knots and Splices—AC1 Alex Reader. 5. Aircraft Recognition—AC1 Allan Barrie.

Reclassification, AC1 to LAC.

AC1 Allan Barrie, AC1 Kenneth Hill, AC1 Donald Bond, AC1 William Jones, AC1 Ronald Boorne, AC1 Charles Lawrence, AC1 Owen Cauley, AC1 Ernest Lee, AC1 John Chambers, AC1 D. Morrow, AC1 D. Clark, AC1 Alan Moyles, AC1 James Collins, AC1 Jack Noyes, AC1 Geoffrey Cridland, AC1 William Patterson, AC1 Weldon Fanning, AC1 Raymond Peters, AC1 John Franks, AC1 Arthur Thomas, AC1 George Green, AC1 Victor Titterington, AC1 Glen Grierson, AC1 John White, AC1 Ralph Hall, AC1 Jack Wilson.

A. C. F. O. Ward Smith, C. O. of the Peterborough Air Cadet Squadron, told the large audience that during the week a recruiting booth would be open on George street above Charlotte, from 7:30 until 10 o'clock at night. Displays of the R. C. A. F. training equipment will be in the windows. On Tuesday and Friday nights it is planned to have parades, the new recruits marching in the latter.

The R. C. A. F. band gave a variety program, verging from the classic to the latest jive, for jitterbugs. This part of the program held particular appeal, and the band can be said to have lived up to its former reputation.

Sqdn. Ldr. D. H. Currie, R. C. A. F. cadet officer, No. 1 Training Command, Toronto, was also present and he outlined at length the aid cadet activties and said that this squadron has now completed its first academic year.

Tax Picture

This chart shows that the estimated tax receipts in the United States as compared to national income is far less than tax collections in either Great Britain or Canada. The chart shows that Great Britain, taking 36.8 per cent, and Canada, taking 39.1 per cent of national income in taxes, are financing a bigger fraction of their respective war efforts by taxation than the U.S.

Army Air Corps Hosts To News Carriers

Three Examiner carriers, whose reward for their exceptional services in selling War Savings stamps and distributing Blood Donor cards was a trip to Rochester, returned to the city Sunday thrilled by their experience and the gala round of entertainment that was arranged for them.

The carriers, Nancy Leith, Bill Edgar and Jack Hayes, accompanied by a group of Kingston carriers on the trip across the border, leaving here on Thursday. They were guests at dinner given by the U.S. Army Air Force, where they sat with flying officers on each side of them, and they went to a spectacular Army show were there were outstanding heroes of this war, movie stars, and demonstrations of flame-throwing equipment and indendiaries.

As a special privilege they were taken through the Eastman Kodak plant, an invitation which is extended to very few in these times because of the vital and highly secret nature of the company's production. Continuing their tour of the city, they visited the University of Rochester and saw a show in Rochester's largest movie palace.

Finally, the whole group of carriers went on the air over Station WHEC for a 20-minute broadcast, and the Peterborough contingent appeared to be highlighted in the interviews. Afterwards Jack Hayes and Donald MacDonald, whose father was formerly assistant manager of the C.D.S. store in Peterborough, and who went on the trip as a member of the Kingston group of carriers, took part in a Quiz Kids program on the same station and won $3 and $2 respectively for knowing the right answers. The prize money came at a critical moment for both boys, who, it is said, were fiancially embarrassed at the time.

25-Pounder Caught Lake Katchewanooka

To Miss Nancy Wannamaker of Lakefield goes the distinction of catching the largest maskinonge landed in Lake Katchewanooka this season. Miss Wannamaker was in a boat with Mr. and Mrs. Warren Payne of Lakefield on Sunday afternoon, and was trolling with a Buffalo spinner on a hand line when she hooked on to a 25-pound muskie, a short distance north of Fred Marshall's cottage on the west side of the lake. The big fellow was safely landed after a battle. It was evidently ladies' day at Lake Katchewanooka, for Mrs. Payne shortly afterward caught a six-pound maskinonge almost at the same spot as Miss Wannamaker's prize fish was hooked.

Army Girls Champion A New Hair-Do

Two views of the "feather-bob" coiffure, new style favored by the Canadian Women's Army Corps

"Miss Canada in Khaki" has found a new hair-do. In civilian life many of these young women wore their hair in long 'glamour' bobs, but when they donned the trim uniform of the Canadian Women's Army Corps, they found that the Veronica Lake style of doing one's hair would have to be forgotten. Many rolled their locks into a halo effect, but in most cases, even this was hard to keep up. Others had their hair cropped in a short, boyish cut, but it was only in a few cases that this style could be worn. Curls on the top of the head were hard to keep neat because of the constant friction of caps. A style had to be evolved which would suit most girls and still be practical. This style had to be attractive for blondes, brunettes, red-heads, girls with thin faces, chubby faces and those who wanted something just a little on the glamour side. At last something was hit upon, and now beauty appointment books throughout Canada are beginning to fill with one kind of appointments for Army girls, namely "feather bob cuts and feather-bob perms." This style is becoming and practical, and takes very little care to keep looking right. In the office it is right in its place and at night it gives "Miss Canada in Khaki" that added bit of glamour when she goes out stepping. There are still girls who stick to the hair-do which they carried into the Army from civilian days, but the majority have taken a liking to the feather bob and its definitely becoming associated with the C.W.A.C.

Hopcroft-Moore Vows Heard In Bridgenorth Ceremony

The wedding took place on Saturday in Bridgenorth United church, which was decorated with palms, ferns and gladioli for the ceremony, of Mary Hope, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Hepburn, Sr., singing "Because" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked chaming in a long gown of white brocaded chiffon over satin with long sleeves, a sweetheart neckline, and a slight train. Her veil of white silk net fell from a Dutch cap halo of the same material and she carried a bouquet of Bettertime roses. Mrs. K. Roberts was matron of honor in pink silk net over satin and Miss Barbara Moore was her sister's bridesmaid in a frock of pink brocaded chiffon over satin. Both gowns were fashioned with flared skirts, short puffed sleeves and sweetheart necklines and both attendants wore pink silk net mittens and matching shoulder veils, and carried bouquets of Talisman roses and delphinium. The bride and both her attendants wore three-strand pearl necklaces.

Mr. Gordon Hopcroft was his brother's best man and the ushers were Horace Guppy and Kenneth Hamley.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Later the newlyweds left for a wedding trip, the bride choosing to travel in a two-piece dress of blue viyella wool with black accessories, and carrying a beige camel hair coat. They will live at 308 Burnham street, Peterborough.

Price Control Ration News

The Women's Regional Advisory Committee, Consumer Branch, Central Ontario, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, answers questions put to this paper regarding price control and ration regulations.

Q—Should a restaurant proprietor use coupons from a ration book belonging to a person who takes two meals a day at the restaurant?

A—Definitely not! Restaurant proprietors are not permitted to accept ration coupons from their patrons as restaurants receive rationed commodities on a quota basis.

Q—We expect to have 15 men for three meals when threshing. How much sugar, tea and meat am I entitled to because our local ration board seems to give more rations to one than another for the same number of men?

A—The amount of extra rations for threshers is based on the total number of meals served. Perhaps this was not made clear to you. For those extra rations you should apply at your local ration board office stating (a) the specific nature of the work (b) the number of workers (c) the number of days they will be employed and (d) the total number of meals will be served. Applications for less than a total of 12 meals throughout the season will not be considered.

Q—I have been buying sugar at my grocer's all along for 8c lb. When I got five lbs. for canning the other day, he charged me 43c instead of 40c. As this sugar was for canning purposes, are they allowed to do this?

A—You should not pay more for sugar than you paid for the same kind and quality, at the same store, during the basic period, Sept. 15 to Oct. 11, 1941. There should be no increase in the price since that time at the same store....Thank you for enclosing a sales slip. We are referring the particulars to the Board's investigation department and you should receive a report from them shortly.

Q—On September 11 I paid 29c lb. for imported grapes in London. In Galt September 14 I paid 19c for the same grapes. Was I charged too much in London

A—Imported grapes come under the grape order setting a ceiling price on them and this order took effect on Sept. 6. Under the new order the grocer's mark-up was reduced. However, grocers were permitted to sell their old stock at their former prices. It is quite likely your London grapes were bought by the retailer before Sept. 6.

Please send your questions or your request for Consumers' News or the Blue Book (the book in which you keep track of your ceiling prices) mentioning the name of this paper to:

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, September 21

THE ASTRAL vibrations ruling on this day are generally deemed as adverse with many tenacious obstacles and difficult situations, best surmounted by persistent effort, patience and fortitude, backed up by well organized plans and attention to details. It is advisable to "go it alone" as but little encouragement is to be expected from others. The way may be beset with delays, trickery and intrigue, and it might be dangerous to sign papers. Protect the health and that of the family, as well.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year trying and taxing their resources, as there may be delays and disappointments, with stubborn obstacles, depressions and limitations. These may best be surmounted by dogged determination, industry and application, together with well laid plans and policies, and attention to system and detail. It should be a program of individual effort as elders and superiors may not be cooperative or friendly.

A child born on this day should be studious, orderly, and may be aloof and suspicious. It may suffer from duplicity, fraud and intrigue, in both business and personal affiliations.

TOO YOUNG.

John Knight of Portland took his call-up papers to the local employment exchange. The clerk looked at the papers, then at John. Sorry, John was told, he wasn't wanted. There must be some mistake. And John, aged nine, skipped home.

DOROTHY DIX . . . .

FUTURE WIFE MAY BE WISER BUT NO BETTER TO LIVE WITH

Hard-Boiled Men Prefer Soft Women; Less Men and Women Know of Each Other the Happier.

WHAT about the marriage of the future? Is the modern girl going to make a better wife than her grandma did? A man whose own marriage has not been happy thinks that she will. He thinks that she will be more interesting, more tolerant, broader-minded, and do more to keep her husband interested than the women of the past did, and that she will consider that a wife's whole duty consists in being chaste and a good housekeeper.

Well, of course, that remains to be seen. Maybe the after-the-war wife, who has been a boss riveter or ferried fighting fortresses across the ocean, will make a more desirable wife than the old-fashioned girl who sat at home and sewed up a seam. Certainly she will be different, but whether men will prefer the new variety to the old is open to doubt. Myself, I think they will be like caviar and olives, a cultivated taste. And most men like the kind of cup cake to which they are accustomed.

Modern Girl a Materialist

To begin with, she will be hard-boiled, and men have always preferred women who were so soft they were not even set. There is no silly tenderness, no fatuous credulity about the modern young woman, no pitying tears. She isn't going to weep over a weak-kneed husband. She will bawl him out. She is a materialist, and if her husband makes good with her he will have to bring home the bacon.

She will never see him through a romantic haze as a godling. Instead she will have his number to the last figure. Her vocabulary will not consist of yes-yeses. It will be, oh yeah? And somehow up till now men have never seemed to care very much for wives who sat in judgment on them and who had a closeup of all their faults and weaknesses.

They wanted wives who were comforters and who would bind up their bruised vanity with the salve of their flattery. And they preferred wives before whom they could pose as oracles and who would quote what John said as the final authority on any subject, not wives who sized them up and didn't find much in them to cheer about. And somehow I can't see a husband feeling that he has his heart's desire in a wife who is a better business man or mechanic than he is, and who draws down a bigger pay envelope.

Understanding Wife May Lose Love

One of the chief complaints that men bring against their balls and chains is that their wives don't understand them. Well, the newfangled wife is going to understand her husband a-plenty, but I wonder if that is going to make for peace and happiness in the home? Friend Husband isn't going to be able to put over anything on the Little Woman who has worked shoulder to shoulder with men and is wise to all of their little tricks and manners. She has acquired a large and complete diagram of all of men's shortcomings. She knows all the old alibis about going into conferences, and out-of-town customers, and taking stock, etc., etc. It will be folly for the man to tell his wife, who has been a private secretary and done a lot of telephoning for her boss that the reason he didn't get home until 3 a.m. was because he was detained on important business.

But will this make things pleasanter for the wives and easier for the men? Will it eliminate curtain lectures? I trow not. It will only furnish Friend Wife with facts on which to base a few remarks, instead of her having to guess at things. The less men and women know about each other and the more illusions they have, the happier they are. And to destroy a wife's belief in the overworked businessman myth is like taking away a child's belief in Santa Claus.

When the girl of the past got married, she expected to be a wife and mother and housekeeper. The wife of the future is going to go on with her career if she happens to like it and is successful in it. That is, of course, perfectly logical, only the trouble seems to be that careers for women and matrimony don't mix very well. At any rate, while it will be convenient to have a wife who can both bring in the dough and bake it, most men prefer to monopolize their wives' interest and time and attention, instead of having to play second fiddle to the store, or the office, or shop.

Broad-Minded Attitude Natural Result

It is true that the up-to-date wife will probably be a lot more broad-minded about her husband's sidestepping than the wife of the past has been, but maybe that will be because she is doing a little zigzagging herself. Anyway, she has scrapped all of that old until-death-do-us-part stuff and doesn't expect to stay with her husband any longer than he makes marriage pleasant and interesting for her.

This will give men much more liberty, but I wonder if they won't miss that feeling of deep security that grandpa had when he knew he didn't have to watch grandma because she married for keeps and thought he hung the moon?

Maybe the new woman will be a great improvement on the old woman, but I doubt if she will be as comfortable to live with.

Picton Returns

The game was officially opened by Mayor Hamilton who welcomed the two teams and after the battle the Mount Hope and Picton players were entertained at an enjoyable supper at the Y.M.C.A., presided over by Gordon Monkman, president of the Peterborough-Whitaker Cricket Club, under whose auspices the game was staged. Mr. Monkman, Mayor Hamilton and Fred Mann, of the British War Victims' Fund, spoke briefly to thank the visiting players for coming to Peterborough and making such a valuable contribution to the fund. Flying Officers Jock Campbell and Lawson of the Picton R.A.F. and Flying Officer Vic Laffey of the Mount Hope team acknowledged the welcome on behalf of the visitors. Harry Northrop was at the piano for the community singing which was led by Telegraphist Jim Hawthorne, R.C.N.V.R.

Jarvis Softballers Defeat Deseronto

SIMCOE, Ont., Sept. 20 (CP) — A terrific circuit clout by Bud Smith, star first baseman, put the game on ice for Jarvis airmen in the first game of the Intermediate "B" O.A.S.A. finals Saturday when they defeated the Mohawk Flyers of Deseronto by a score of 6 to 4. The return game will be played at Napanee next Saturday, and if a third game is necessary it will be played the following Saturday in Toronto.

Deseronto were leading 4 to 3 when Smith came through with his homer in the fifth inning with one runner on the paths. Deseronto were held scoreless for the balance of the game, Jarvis adding one more run in the eighth.

The Ice cream industry is working tremendously hard to supply the ice cream demands of Canada's Armed Forces and war workers. Shortages of ice cream are occurring from time to time this year as they did last.

We'd like to emphasize for the benefit of our druggist friends the great War Savings Stamp Drive they've organized for September. Every druggist in the Dominion is taking part in this rousing Drive to sell over $300,000 worth of War Savings Stamps.

© The Borden Co. Ltd.

Lend a Quarter—Help Save a Life!

The druggists of Canada have already begun their September Campaign—$300,000 worth of War Savings Stamps is a lot to sell in just one month. But it's a campaign worthy of the most loyal support... for every quarter raised will be used to buy medical supplies for our own wounded, to give our own medical officers the equipment they sorely need!

Every War Savings Stamp you buy at your druggist's in September goes directly into the purchase of these supplies that will help save lives of Canadians wounded in the gallant fight for freedom.

Lieut. John S. Couper Wed In Military Ceremony

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND— With traditional ceremony of a Highland Regiment, Lieut. J. S. Couper, Peterborough, of the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Couper, was married to Mrs. Mary Kathleen Bates in historic St. Nicolas Church near the camp of the regiment in England, on Saturday afternoon, August 28.

The bride was dressed in a two-piece suit of navy and pale blue, and was given in marriage by Lt.-Col. P. C. Klaehn. The bridesmaid was Miss Renee Frankum of London, and the best man was Lieut. W. T. Sharpe, of Ottawa.

The organist was Lt. J. A. Morris of Chesterville; the ushers were Lts. J. J. Urie, Ottawa, and J. C. Woodward of Ottawa; the Guard of Honor was composed of Capts J. E. Parker, L. Ritchie, A. H. Smedmor and W. H. Armstrong, and Lts. W. A. Lawson, S. L. Schrafran, J. E. G. B. Denis and S. Dutkowski.

The Wedding March from Lohengrin was played as the bridal party entered the church, and Mendelssohn's Wedding March as the bride and groom were escorted to the historic "Priest's House" by the vicar, Rev Mr. Godfrey, to sign the register. As they emerged from this final part of the ceremony, the pipe band, under Pipe Major A. Scott, played the wedding party through the arched canes of the Guard of Honor to the cars.

On arrival at the camp, Lt. and Mrs. Couper were seated in a flower-bedecked Jeep and towed to the Mess by Capts. J. Courtright, G. R. O'Handley, S. H. Webb, L. V. Perry, E. C. Bradley and J. P. Palmer. There a reception was held, and Pipe Major Scott then piped the party into the dining room, where Lt.-Col. Klaehn toasted the bride and welcomed her as the newest daughter of the Regiment. The groom replied, and Lt. Sharpe gave the toast to the bridesmaid. Standing beneath a large floral horseshoe, Lt. Couper assisted the bride to cut the three-tier wedding cake. A buffet luncheon was served, and the happy young couple left at six o'clock on their honeymoon, bearing with them the best wishes of the officers and their guests.

The list of guests included Miss Judy Austin, despatch rider of the A.T.S., sister of the bride. In the evening an informal dance was held in the mess for the officers and their guests.

Lt. Couper was honored at a Mess Dinner on August 26 when he was presented by the Mess President, Capt. G. C. Clarke, with an engraved silver cigarette box bearing the regimental crest and the inscription "To Lt. J. S. Couper from his fellow officers, on the occasion of his marriage, 1943."

The wedding was recorded in the documental film history of the regiment by H. Messacar, Y.M.C.A. supervisor, a copy of which is being made for "Officers' Wives and Mothers Auxiliary, Ottawa."

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Oshawa Colts' next opponents will be Toronto Invictus who took Owen Sound into camp at the Sound Saturday 11 to 2, taking the series in two straight....Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cards made seven hits in a double-header yesterday to run his total for the season to 205 blows. The National League's leading hitter is the only player in the majors to drive out 200 hits or more this season....The Crowe playing with Hamilton Wildcats is not of course Don Crowe. The Peterborough boy is just recovering from an attack of appendicitis which hit him just before he was ready to get his wings with the R.C.A.F. at Camp Borden....Ace Adams of the New York Giants pitched one of the games of the double-header with Brooklyn yesterday and equalled the record set by Ed Walsh 35 years ago of appearing as a pitcher in 66 games this season. The next time out Adams will set a new mark. He will probably have been in at least 70 before the end of the season....Washington Senators have won their last nine games and still have a mathematical chance to win the American League pennant—but the Yanks are a good bet, too....The N.H.L. has got the green light from Ottawa, as everybody expected and will carry on this season.

Simple Care for a Brand-New Pup

"I Know You'll Be Good to Me!"

Have you a case of puppy love? Is your brand-new dog little and wet-nosed, with innocent, sleepy eyes?

Then he needs all the love you can give him, if it takes the form of right care.

Puppies are as helpless as babies. They, too, get sick, often fatally, from wrong food or exposure. They, too, are naughty as a result of wrong training.

So now, that winter is coming, see that your puppy has warm but well-ventilated quarters and warm (but not hot) food. Also give raw or cooked meat daily, as well as milk, from the time he's three weeks old.

In housebreaking, take him outside five minutes to an hour after he eats. But not in places where dogs with distemper have been!

Our 32-page booklet shows how to train a dog to be obedient and do clever tricks. Tells food dogs may eat; how to housebreak them, groom them. Gives symptoms and treatment of common dog ailments, including distemper; also how many ailments may be avoided.

For your copy of HOW TO CHOOSE AND CARE FOR YOUR DOG send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T WARN THE ENEMY

EVEN THOUGH you are absolutely certain you can defeat the opponents' contract, there is one kind of situation in which you should not double him. That comes when you are not prepared to double some other declaration into which he can escape. In other words, why warn him of his danger and scare him out of it into a contract in which you can't hurt him? Better tactics dictate your beating him not doubled, instead of causing him to play a different contract which he can make.

North: ♠ K Q J 9 8 ♥ J 5 4 2 ♦ J 3 ♣ A K

West: ♠ A 5 4 2 ♥ None ♦ 9 8 7 6 5 ♣ 9 8 7 6

East: ♠ 10 7 3 ♥ A 10 9 6 3 ♦ K Q ♣ 10 4 2

South: ♠ 6 ♥ K Q 8 7 ♦ A 10 4 2 ♣ Q J 5 3

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1♠	Pass	2♥	Pass
3♥	Pass	4♥	Pass
Pass	Dbl	4 NT

East never should have doubled the 4-Hearts. Had he paused to think about it, he would have realized that the entire basis for his double was the fact that he liked the suit. His hand was almost certain to take two or more tricks in the trump suit, plus one in diamonds, so that a trick of any kind in his partner's hand would have beaten the contract.

The double warned South that East must have the hearts bunched against him, as surely there could net be enough high cards out to cause trouble, if North had a sound opening bid.

As events developed, South made the 4-No Trumps, after the diamond 6 was led to the Q and A. South immediately led the spade 6, the A coming in and another diamond going to the K. Even if East had been able to lead a third diamond, it could not have hurt South, who now was able to score four tricks in each black suit, plus a second one in diamonds, to give him the 10 he needed.

At the 4-Hearts contract, South would have been set with a trick in diamonds, one in spades and at least two in hearts.

South: ♠ A Q 9 5 ♥ A K J ♦ K 8 5 ♣ 9 7 5

Labor Suggests Unionizing Newspaper Men

MONTREAL, Sept. 20 (CP)—The fourth annual convention of the Canadian Congress of Labor Saturday accepted a report of the committee on organization which approved in principle a resolution urging unionization of workers in newspaper offices, and referred it to the incoming excutive committee.

Submitted by the Vancouver Newspaper Guild, the resolution read:

"Whereas the conditions existing in newspaper plants all across Canada appear ripe for an intensive organization campaign; and whereas in the rconstruction period, when the war ends, owing to a surplus of labor, a magnificent opportunity will have been lost:

"There be it resolved that this fourth convention of the Canadian Congress of Labor instruct the Congress executive to devise, and carry out without delay, a campaign of organization in newspaper offices in the larger cities of the Dominion."

In its report to Congress, the committee on publicity and education said that "it must again repeat its commendation to the two press services, The Canadian Press and The British United Press, for their objective and unbiased reporting of conflicting opinions and labor disputes.

Better Treatment.

"Your committee is also glad to note a slight improvement in the treatment of organized labor by the daily press. But the improvement is still not enough. Many important and influential papers are still using their position to distort and unfairly influence public opinion as regards organized labor and this must be stopped if labor is to continue support of a free press principle.

"In many cases the desire to report fairly is there, but the lack of knowledge of the union movement on the part of the editorial writer or reporter is appalling. This results in distortion and confusion. To this end the committee should urge that daily paper institute, wherever practical, the post of labor editor . . . Labor is too important today to be handled in the slip-shod and inaccurate fashion which many papers still follow . . ."

WITH THE R. C. A. F. SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Sept. 20 —(CP)—Here in the Moose Squadron they call the crew of one particular bomber "The Murderers' Row." Bombs alone arent enough for them. They take rocks along too to drop on Germany.

It started when this crew heard that Goebbels in a broadcast had referred to Canadain airmen as "air-pirate lovers." So, when the boys were going out to Cologne they noticed a pile of rocks beside their Halifax and picked up one each to drop on Cologne for good measure.

Scharf aims the bricks from a hole cut beside his under-arm blister. "Sometimes his under-arm blisthe name of my girl friend on them so she can take part in the raid and if a searchlight catches us we always heave a brick and it seems to buck up our spirits.

In 1938 Mac McLeish decided to quit delivering milk for his dad in Oak Lake, Man., and join the air force. Classical Music Soothes Bomb Victims

By ALAN NICKLESON,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Sept. 20 — (CP) — Bom's brought the tune-boom and Britain's "Little People" discovered classical music. It rose from the blitz until to-day it challenges the theatre and movies as headliners in an unprecedented demand for wartime entertainment at any price.

London dowager and Welsh miner drink in the music of symphony orchestras, six of which play throughout the country to 75,000 patrons a week with a weekly taking of £19,550 ($88,000). The most popular composer is Tschaikovsy, followed by Beethovenand Rackmoninoff.

Explaining the surge towards the classical, Harold Fielding, 25-year-old impresario who formed the National Philharmonic Orchestra and tuured 75 cities givng concerts during the blitz, said that "people shaken up by raids turned to good music to soothe their nerves."

"Once they discovered it they flocked in their thousands to listen," he said. "I have taken classical music to a little miners institute in Wales where cimema seats were tuppence and fourpence, and played to an audience that paid £290. The music has even taken possession of the children. We give them special matinees at cheap prices.

The music is tax-free on cultural grounds and prices range from half a crown to 10 shillings. Music halls book classical concerts as once they booked jazz and vaudeville. Orchestras include the London Philharmonic, London Symphony, Liverpool Philharmonic and the BBC Symphony.

Britain soon will house its first Negro repertory theatre with plans calling for production of such plays as "Emperor Jones" and "All God's Children."

The company, under Robert Adams, a West Indian who originally came to Britain as a singer, plans to take over a London west-end theatre.

In response to the appeal of the British Government for volunteer workers for the coal mines, boys of school age are learning the craft of coal cutting at the Markham main colliery, Armthorpe, England. This instruction is part of a long range scheme of training and education which will open for the boy volunteers possibilities of free studies up to university degree standard. Boys here carry their Davey lamps as they receive instruction from safety officers.

St. Paul's Holds Harvest Services

MARMORA, Sept. 20.—(ENS). — Well attended harvest services were held at St. Paul's Anglican church on Sunday. The building was decorated with flowers, foliage, vegetables and fruits.

Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell officiated at Matins, with the lessons being read by W. J. Cottrell, lay reader. The choir sang "To Thee, O Lord, Our Hearts We Raise," a duet part being taken by Mesdames P. Gray and J. B. Nichol and a solo part by W. J. Cottrell.

Rural Dean Caldwell preached an impressive sermon on "It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord." Evensong was conducted by Mr. Cottrell, who chose as his text, "Thou shalt keep the feast of harvest the first fruits of they labours which thou hast sown in the field and the feast of ungathering which is in the end of he year." Mrs. P. Gray sang a solo, "Far and Near the Fields Are Teeming."

Buttar Family Leaves Harwood

HARWOOD, Sept. 20 — (ENS) — The Red Cross Committee of the Women's Institute ran a successful lunch counter at the sale at James Buttar's on the Sully Road last week.

Donations of cookies, tarts and doughnuts were given by the members and the material for the sandwiches was bought. The profit was $39. This money will provide Christmas boxes for boys from the community who are overseas.

Good Prices

The sale was largely attended, with several hundred people bidding briskly for stock and farm implements. Horses sold for $112; cows at $125; small calves brought $40; sow $46 and 400 pullets were sold for $1.60 each. The tractor was sold for $800 to Keith Harper of Coldsprings. Sheep also brought a good price.

Everything was sold as Mr. and Mrs. Buttars are moving to Baltimore where they have bought a store. The farm has been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Butcher of Peterborough who will occupy their new home early next spring.

Parties Given

Mr. and Mrs. Buttars were the recipients of a presentation at S.S. No. 17 where Mr. Buttars has been trustee for some years. A walnut table and lamp were given them by friends in the school section.

At Bethesda North Church, a farewell party was given by the congregation to them and a lovely lamp presented. Mr. James Butters Sr. was presented with an occasional chair. June, Lenore and Katherine, the three daughters, each received a hymnary. A short program preceded the presentation and the ladies served lunch.

. . . You'll get more wear!
It's not only a question of economy to make your clothes last as long as possible—it's a matter of necessity, just as it is with your car, tires, electrical equipment and other commodities. It is also our patriotic duty as good citizens to make everything we own last longer—and that definitely includes clothing.
As makers of good clothes for men and women for over three decades, whose main task today is the production of uniforms for our fighting men, we offer these reminders of how to make your clothes give you longer and better service:
1. REST YOUR CLOTHES
Just as you need relaxation, so do your clothes: Alternate your suits. Give the wool a chance to spring back into shape.
2. BRUSH YOUR SUITS DAILY
You brush your teeth every day—do as much for your clothes. They'll appreciate it.
3. HANG YOUR SUITS UP CAREFULLY
Give them breathing space in your closet, so they won't crush. Use hangers that conform to the lines of the coat. Don't throw your clothes around the room—hang them up where they belong.
4. CLEAN WHEN NECESSARY
Choose a reliable cleaner who knows his business.
5. GUARD AGAINST MOTHS
An ounce of moth prevention is worth many dollars in the longer life of your clothes.
6. CHECK FOR RIPS AND TEARS
"A stitch in time" may save greater damage or a whole suit.
P.S. Naturally, your clothes must be good clothes to begin with—the kind of quality clothing Tip Top Tailors has been famous for since 1910.

NO SHIPS LOST FOR FOUR MONTHS

Killings Hit Morale Of U-Boat Crews

North Atlantic Convoy Route Well Protected

LONDON, Sept. 21 (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill today announced that during the four months ended Sept. 18 no merchant vessel was sunk by enemy action in the North Atlantic.

During the first fortnight in September no Allied ships were sunk by U-boat action in any part of the world, he said. This was altogether unprecedented in the whole history of U-boat warfare either in this war or the last.

Mr. Churchill added, however, that U-boats have become active again and that one convoy is being attacked at the present time.

Saying that it must not be supposed because of air and sea success that "the war is coming to an end," Mr. Churchill said that on the contrary "frenzied efforts to retaliate" must be expected.

Use New Bomb

He disclosed the Germans are using a new type aerial bomb against shipping at close quarters. It is a rocket assisted by a glider which is released from a considerable height and apparently is guided to the target by parent aircraft.

"It might be," he said, "that the Germans are developing their weapons on novel lines."

Reporting that U-boats have been coming out into the Atlantic in the last week or so, Mr. Churchill said "they no doubt have been fitted with what is thought to be the best and latest apparatus."

"We for our part have not been idle," he said, "and we await this renewal of conflict—which has in fact already begun since one convoy is being attacked at the present time—with sober confidence."

Replace All Losses

Mr. Churchill said that "the credit balance of new (ship) building over losses of all kinds since the beginning of the year exceeds 6,000,000 tons and should the present conditions hold we shall soon have replaced all losses suffered by the United Nations since the beginning of the war."

The United Nations now can be defeated by the U-boat only if they are guilty of "gross neglect of duty in the shipyards and on the seas, and inexcusable falling off of the technical ability of both sides of the Atlantic."

Robber Murders Young Bride

DETROIT, Sept. 21 —(AP) — Police hunted to-day for the knife-wielding slayer of Mrs. Mary Gallian, 18-year-old bride of a United States Army officer.

Mrs. Gallian's body was found yesterday in the basement of her mother-in-law's house, a pink underslip knotted around her neck and her throat slashed. A blood-stained butcher knife and two rags, apparently used to mop up the blood on the floor, were found near the body.

Police said they believed that Mrs. Gallian, surprised while washing clothes in a basement laundry tub, was strangled and then her throat cut.

Mrs. Violet Richards discovered the body of her daughter-in-law, married only a year to Lieut. James Gallian, stationed with a military police unit at Washington, when she returned home from work at the Hudson Naval Arsenal. Mrs. Gallian had been living with her mother-in-law for about six weeks.

Police said they were seeking to link the slaying with a burglary at the Richards home two weeks ago.

Nab Zoot Suiters

NORTH BAY, Sept. 21 — (CP). — National Selective Service enforcement officers reported following investigations in North Bay a "couple of zoot-suiters" were sent to work in war factories. Approximately 12 men were picked up and assigned various jobs, including wood-cutting and pulp mill work.

One And A Half Millions Frozen In Jobs

OTTAWA, Sept. 21—(CP) — Labor Department sources estimated to-day that approximately 1,500,000 men have been frozen in their jobs by the new Government regulation which provides that male workers in high priority jobs cannot quit or be discharged without approval of Selective Service Officers.

The regulation, announced late yesterday by Labor Minister Mitchell, affects men working in industries designated as "A" and "B' priorities—all war industries and essential civilian services.

May Publish List.

The specific list of such high priority jobs never has been published and officials re-iterated to-day their intention of keeping it secret on the ground it changes from day to day and to make it public merely would cause confusion.

They said, however, that any worker could find out his priority rating by calling upon the Selective Service office in his district and officials there would give him the information.

It was understood the Department may publish the list later if it could be put into simple form.

The estimate of 1,500,000 men affected by the regulation was based on figures of last June 1, which showed 820,000 men in war industry jobs, which automatically have A priority, and 683,000 at B priority work. It was believed these figures may have increased since June.

In addition, approximately 1,050,000 farmers have been kept at their work by Government regulation, although they are not frozen in their jobs in the same sense as civilian workers. They must obtain permits to work in cities, but can undertake fishing, woodcutting, and other such tasks for 60 days without permit.

Previously, freezing orders had been issued when emergencies arose in such occupations as coal mining, shipbuilding, base metals mining and school teaching.

EXTRA!

LONDON—(CP). — Sir Samuel Hoare, British Ambassador to Spain, told war workers in a speech yesterday that any attempt to isolate Russia after the war as a barrier against Communism would be a grave mistake.

HALIFAX—The largest draft of Canadian Women's Army Corps recruits ever assembled here, 125 in number, left yesterday to take basic training at Kitchener.

TORONTO—Ontario health officials said today a state of quarantine has been made effective at the R.C.A.F. station in Trenton, Ont., and all postings to the station have been discontinued as a result of an outbreak of poliomyelitis.

LONDON, Sept. 21—(CP)— The Russians announced the capture of Chernigov, 77 miles northeast of Kiev and on the Kiev-Gomel railway, a Reuters News Agency Dispatch said today.

LONDON — The whole German Desna River defence line collapsed today under a terrific Red Army onslaught which broke the Nazi stand along the entire west bank and took by storm the important basion town of Chernigov.

Red Forces Outflank Nazi Anchor

Take Velizh City 10 Miles From White Russia Border

LONDON, Sept. 21—(CP).—Blasting into the Smolensk defence zone to outflank that German central front anchor, Red Army forces stormed on today from captured Velizh, 65 miles to the northwest, while further south they had slashed across the Kiev-Chernigov highway on the middle Dnieper River and cut the main Crimean escape railway between Zaporozhe and Dniepropetrovsk.

The Moscow communique disclosed an amazing list of triumps marked up by the hard-slugging Russian troops, including the start of a great wheeling movement pointed toward Cherkasy, key rail centre on the Dnieper southest of Kiev, in an attempt to entrap the hundreds of thousands of German troops reported massed in the river bend.

More than 1,130 towns and villages fell before the slashing Soviet advances, the Russian war bulletin said. Tremendous piles of war equipment, including strings of fully loaded troop and material trains, tanks, armored cars, guns and ammunition were reported taken intact, as well as great caches of grain, indicating the haste in which the Nazis were fleeing on practically all sectors of the battle front.

The enemy left more than 10,000 dead on the field of battle, the Russians said.

Entire Front Crumbles

While the whole German front appeared to be crumbling under the terrific battering by the Red Army legions, the Nazi situation in the Smolensk theatre verged on the precarious, Soviet front line reports indicated. Here the Russians apparently were hurling in immense concentrations of artillery, infantry, aircraft and tanks to clear the swamps and mine-filled forests around that bastion. Yesterday's advance carried them within 30 miles of the stronghold.

The fall of Velizh not only flanked Smolensk but placed Red Army spearheads within 10 miles of the White Russian border and only 45 miles northeast of Vitebsk on the rail line from Smolensk to Latvia. The old Polish border is less than 115 miles to the west.

Cross Snov River

Below Smolensk and west of fallen Bryansk, the Soviet columns pushed 45 miles forward to storm Kletnya, and were racing on for the white Russian frontier as other units farther south crossed the Snov River 40 miles from Novozybkov, a junction on the Bryansk-Gomel railroad.

In the middle and southern Dnieper valley, Chernigov, Kiev, Poltava, Dnepropetrovsk, Cherkasy, Zaporozhe and Melitopol were all threatened with imminent capture. The advance of the Soviet columns was so swift that at one point, near Poltava, the Moscow war bulletin said, they were able to rescue 16,000 Russian civilians who had been rounded up for forced labor in Germany.

Capture of Slavgorod, on the extreme southern front, placed the Russian forces in that sector only 15 miles from the Dnieper.

Stalin Shows New Trend Toward Church

By WADE WERNER
(Formerly Chief of The Associated Press Bureau in Moscow).

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—(AP).—Ecclesiastical development in Moscow—once the anti-religious centre of the world—are being watched closely by official and diplomatic quarters here.

Marshal Stalin's recent approval of the organization of a holy synod and election of Bishop Sergei as patriarch of the Russian Orthodox Church was considered significant enough in itself as a possible move toward creation of a state church functioning in collaboration with the Soviet regime, just as the old State Church of pre-revolutionary days collaborated with the Czarist regime.

The publication in Izvestia, official organ of the Presidium of the Supreme Council of the U.S.S.R., of a church order excommunicating all priests and laymen who have co-operated with the enemy, further emphasized the apparent trend toward co-ordination of church and state.

What particularly impressed some observers of Soviet developments, however, was a proclamation of the Orthodox Church last week appealing to Christians of all countries to unite in defence of their faith against Fascism. This appeal, coming from the place where the Comintern used to call on proletarians of all countries to unite against capitalist exploitation, was a sharp reminder of the distance travelled in Moscow since the hey-day of the militant godless league.

It was emphasized again by the arrival in Moscow Sunday of the Archbishop of York, representative of the Church of England, for conversations with the hierarchy of the rejuvenated Russian Orthodox Church.

A Hero's Son

MARCH FIELD, Calif., Sept. 21—(AP). — On the proud chest of nine-year-old Stanley K. Robinson, Jr., of Altadena, Calif., the United States Army pinned the Distinguished Service Cross, Distinguished Flying Cross, and the Purple Heart while personnel of this sprawling air base stood at attention. The presentation yesterday was made on behalf of the youth's father, Col. Stanley K. Robinson, Sr., killed while leading a squadron of bombers in the southwest Pacific.

Bombers Hit Venice, Pescara Port

Advancing 8th Army Forces Further Withdrawal

By NOLAN NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, Sept. 21.—(AP). — Heavy bombers threw new weight into the conquest of Italy by bombarding the historic port of Venice as French troops and island guerillas proceeded to-day by mopping up German resistance on Corsica and the 5th Army registered new gains in the Salerno beachhead.

Slowly and steadily pressing the Germans backward, the 5th Army stormed and took the key town of Eboli, 16 miles inland, which had served the enemy as a communications centre during last week's heavy fighting about Salerno.

Canadians Active.

A military spokesman also announced the Germans are swinging the lower end of a line which formerly enclosed the Salerno bridgehead to the north and east to avoid being trapped by the continued rapid advance of the British 8th Army, which includes units of the Canadian 1st Division.

This retreat already has taken the bulk of the German forces north of the Sele river.

The Germans are using infantry supported by small groups of tanks to fight a delaying action in the Eboli area and the 5th Army also was reported encountering elaborate mine fields and demolitions in its slow but continued advance north of Salerno.

The enemy possesses excellent defensive positions in the hill country north and northeast of Salerno, the spokesman said, and the progress of the Allied troops in necessarily slow in such terrain.

German prisoners were quoted in reports from the front as giving eloquent testimony of the devastating effect of incessant Allied air attacks on retreating German columns.

Cairo headquarters, reporting the bombing of Venice, said one explosion caused there was followed by a column of smoke 5,000 feet high but the full results of the attack were obscured by clouds.

American Planes.

American bombers based on the Middle East carried out the operation and also hit railway yards and bridge approaches at the Adriatic Port of Pescara.

Most of Corsica's Italian garrison of about 40,000 men has joined native guerillas and French troops landed from French warships in a fight to wipe out the German forces on the island, an official announcement said to-day.

The announcement, issued by the Allied naval command, declared that French destroyers of the latest design, which are among the world's fastest warcraft, had dashed into Adjaccio harbour with troops and supplies after a first visit was paid by a French submarine. This submarine joined the French navy after a daring flight from a French port last November.

Finance Minister Dies

Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Kingsley Wood, who is credited with keeping the country's war finances in working order, died suddenly today. He was 62 years old, and since 1918 his progress in the political arena has been rapid.

Labor To Spend A Million For War Victims

TORONTO, Sept. 21 —(CP) — Two major labor organizations—the A. F. L. and the C. I. O. —will spend $1,000,000 next year for the relief of Trade Unionists and their families in Occupied Territory, the Annual Convention of the United Rubber Workers of America (C. I. O.) was told to-day by Irving Abramson of Washington, chairman of the American National War Fund.

Abramson said the entire program provided for an allotment of $3,000,000 by the two unions with the remaining $2,000,000 to be used for War Relief in Britain, Russia and China.

"This is one endeavor when the two ograrizations' difficulties have been removed in the interest of a joint effort in war relief," Mr. Abramson said.

Lt.-Col. Chester F. Sharp, speaking to the convention, said that in one year alone the United States Eighth Air Force lost 419 four-engined bombers in its first year of operations in Europe.

"That means close to a million pounds of rubber we will never see again."

No Strick Pledge.

A "No-strike" pledge was passed by the American Rubber Workers and Alfred Mustin, Union delegate from Kitchener, Ont. moved that a resolution be introduced later placing the Canadian locals under the same pledge.

Another resolution asked for the repeal of the American War Labor Disputes Act, and the members also voted their support of the newly formed C.I.O. Committee for political action in the United States.

Other resolutions adopted expressed support for President Roosevelt; for price control in the United States and called for unity in the labor movement.

Yesterday the convention heard a declaration that Canadian workers need a code for labor similar to that of the U. S.

Critics In British Commons Told Italian Campaign No Second Front Substitute

Churchill Starts Complete War Summary Before Crowded Parliament; Refers To Growing Supremacy In The Air

By E. C. DANIEL—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 21—(AP).—Prime Minister Churchill declared today that the second front will be thrown open "at the right time" and "a mass invasion of the Continent from the west will begin."

Calling the Mediterranean battlefield the "third front," the Prime Minister told the House of Commons in a long war review that the second front "already exists potentially" and "already is rapidly gathering weight...."The second front exists and is a main preoccupation already with the enemy."

"It has not yet been thrown into play," he continued. "That time is coming.

"At what we and our American allies judge to be the right time this front will be thrown open and a mass invasion of the Continent from the west will begin."

Surveying the whole sweep of the war with serene confidence, Mr. Churchill also declared:

No Time Lost.

1. Not a moment was lost needlessly in the operations against Italy and except for the failure of Italian guards to do their assigned duty Benito Mussolini would have been shot when Hitler's parachutists rescued him at Gran Sasso.

2. American forces have landed on the Island of Sardinia to assist Italian troops who drove the German garrison over to Corsica, now being occupied by French units.

3. A tripartite conference of representatives of Britain, the United States, Britain and Russia will take place "at an early date" and no question will be barred from discussion. Any differences will be set aside for a conference of President Roosevelt, Premier Stalin and the Prime Minister himself.

4. The Allies are prepared to place large armies in Italy and to deploy a weighty and active fighting front against the enemy on whatever line he chooses, to resist and to maintain against him with increasing weight and vigor if need be through the Fall and Winter.

Richelieu Almost Ready

5. A French army of 300,000 to 400,000 is being steadily organized and the Battleship Richelieu will soon take its place in the French fleet.

Speaking of the prospect of a Stalin-Roosevelt-Churchill conference, the Prime Minister said:

"No meeting during this war could carry with it so much significance for the future of the world as a meeting between the heads of the three governments for without close, cordial and lasting association between Soviet Russia and their great allies we might find ourselves at the end of the war only to have entered upon a period of deepening confusion."

Mr. Churchill's speech, longest in his career as Prime Minister, lasted two hours and seven minutes. He spoke for an hour and 15 minutes, stopped for lunch, and then picked up where he left off.

CRITICS IN BRITISH

British Forces Land On Dodecanese Isle

CAIRO, Sept. 21 —(AP)—British forces have landed on the Aegean Islands of Kos, Leros and Samos off the coast of Turkey, it was announced officially today.

At the same time it was disclosed that American four-engined bombers from the Middle East bombed Venice, Italy, for the first time yesterday.

The confirmation of the reported occupation of Kos and Leros in the Italian Dodecanese group and the Greek Island of Samos immediately to the north, which has been current for several days, followed an R.A.F. communique announcing that the R.A.F. had seized the Kos airdrome and is operating from there.

The Island of Kos is the second largest of the chain which parallels the Turkish coast in the eastern Mediterranean. It lies about 50 miles northeast of German-held Rhodes, the largest of the group.

Destroy Bridge

The BBC quoted a Yugoslav field communique last night as saying patriot forces had destroyed the bridge between Susak and Fiume, cut the rail line from Suska to Ogulin at several points and erected strong fortifications about Split, which it said the Germans had been trying for eight days to recapture.

The broadcast was recorded by CBS.

Patrols Fight

The United Nations radio at Algiers declared today the situation on the Salerno front in Italy "remains satisfactory" and that the Germans are continuing to withdraw under the combined pressure of the Anglo-American 5th Army and the British 8th Army.

The broadcast reported, however, there had been no large scale fighting, declaring that contact between the opposing forces was confined to patrols.

Bombers Smash French Bases

LONDON, Sept. 21 — (CP). — R.A.F. and American two-engined bombers, striking into France in daylight to-day with a protecting escort of R.A.F. and Dominion Spitfires, gave Northern France a hammering.

The R.A.F. bombers hit coke ovens and by-products plants at Lens while Americans gave the Nazis' Beauvais-Tille airbase, halfway between Paris and the coast, its second hammering in four days.

These attacks were made soon after the German radio reported a night "nuisance" foray by R.A.F. bombers into Germany.

Allied heavy bombers have not been out since Thursday when the R.A.F. bombed the Alpine tunnel at Modane, France, and the Americans bombed the Nantes port area.

Powerful Interests Oppose Marshall

International Skeleton Uncovered By U.S. Army Journal

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

It gives exceedingly to wonder whether the authoritative Army and Navy Journal, a United States publication, hasn't opened the closet door on a rather grim international skeleton by its sensational assertion that powerful interests would like to remove Chief of Staff Gen. George C. Marshall from the Washington scene.

"Acting under the President's instruction," explains the Journal," he (Marshall) has labored zealously to insure the fullest measure of co-operation with our Allies and especially the British, a policy based on the President's and his own appreciation of the necessity of safeguarding American interests . . . Thinking only of winning the war in the shortest time and of saving every American life possible, in connection with the bloody operations which it calls for, Gen. Marshall, of course, has come into conflict with powerful interests which would like to eliminate him from the Washington picture, and place in his stead an officer more amenable to their will."

A Nasty Picture

That's a nasty picture. Who are these powerful interests? The Journal leaves it to us to figure it out for ourselves. The general public has learned of only one difference of opinion between Marshall and critics.

The Chief of Staff is said to have held firmly to the conviction that Western Europe should be invaded directly from England. Other strategists have frowned on cross-channel invasion. Timing the drive is said to have caused some dissension.

Well, it certainly is interesting to know where Gen. Marshall has stood on such invasion, for that has been one of the major issues of the war, as Moscow hasn't allowed us to forget.

This column has persistently pointed out that the quickest way to victory would be this admittedly highly-dangerous operation—always provided the Allies were properly set for it. Nobody with any knowledge of military affairs would suggest such an invasion short of full preparedness.

Nazis Prepared.

One of the arguments against cross-channel invasion now is that the Germans are better prepared for an attack on the French and Belgian coasts than at any other place. For this reason the Nazis would like the Alles to try this operation. It also is argued that failure might be catastrophic for the Allies.

Just as this article was being finished there arrived from London a bulletin quoting Prime Minister Churchill as telling the House of Commons:

"I never regarded this African operation as a substitute for a direct attack across the channel on the Germans in France and the Low Countries."

It looks as though he had taken quick cognizance of the Army and Navy Journal editorial, and to have given this as an answer. Maybe the Allies still will find it feasible to invade Western Europe while the Russians have the Nazis on the run.

Huns Dictate To Vatican

Pope Warned No Half-Way Measures

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(CP).—The Nazi-sponsored Fascist government in a broadcast to Italy last night by the Berlin radio warned: "Let the policy of the Vatican force us not to have recourse to radical measures."

As recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, the statement declared that "the Vatican, the prelates, all the hierarchy of the church, from the Pope down to the parish priests, have this choice: Either with Fascist and Catholic Italy or against it. It is not a problem of consciences. It is a dilemma that is before the men of the church. It is not a problem of faith. It is a dilemma that is before the organization of the Catholic church."

Earlier last night two Vatican radio broadcasts indicated manoeuves had interrupted some Vatican City routine, even while the Berlin radio denied the placing of any restrictions there.

3 Fliers Die Within Week

Poliomyelitis Claims 2 From Trenton

TORONTO, Sept. 21 (CP)—Three young members of the Royal Canadian Air Force have died of Poliomyelitis within the past week at the Toronto Isolation Hospital, the civil health department said last night. Two of the victims were brought from the R.C.A.F. station at Trenton, and the third was admitted from the Toronto Manning Depot, but had been stationed at Trenton previously.

Up to last Saturday a total of 30 cases of the disease had been reported from various parts of the Province, including nine in the Trenton area.

Next-of-kin of the dead airmen have been advised and their names will be released later.

One of the latest victims from the Trenton station was brought by ambulance to the hospital here Wednesday, with two fellow-airmen applying artificial respiration en route. It was not stated whether this airman was one of those who have died.

GERMANS PLANT 60 DEADLY MINES AT ENTRANCE TO HALIFAX PORT

French From North Africa Invade Corsica Island Battle German Garrison

Nazis Bottled Up On Eastern Coast
French Occupy Capital
Huns Have Army Of Over 25,000

LONDON, Sept. 21—(CP).—French troops were battling on the soil of Metropolitan France today for the first time since the collapse of the republic in the spring of 1940 as Commandos from North Africa fought side by side with patriots of the mountainous island of Corsica against the German garrison.

Announcement of the landing of the Commandos, some of the forces which took part in the Tunisian campaign, came in a terse communique issued last night in Algiers by Gen. Henri Giraud. The communique gave no details of the fighting, but said it had "taken a favorable turn."

The Stockholm Svenska Dagbladet publishing dispatches from German-controlled Marseille, said, however, that French forces had occupied Ajaccio, Corsica's capital and an air and naval base, after a sharp fight with the Germans. The Nazis were said to have retired to the eastern shore of the island, where they were receiving reinforcements from the Italian mainland and the Island of Elba. The German garrison also was augmented by troops withdrawn from Sardinia, seven miles to the south, from which the Nazis were driven during the week-end by Italian forces.

It was hoped here that the French forces, bulwarked by Italian troops, would quickly subdue the Nazis, estimated to number about two divisions or between 25,000 and 30,000 officers and men.

Prior to the collapse of France Corsica was heavily fortified by the French and had many underground installations and anti-aircraft batteries. After the African campaign was successfully concluded by the Allies, the Italians sent in approximately 40,000 men and occupied the island. Nazi submarines were said to have used Ajaccio as a submarine base and other Germans were garrisoned there.

After the Italians took full control of Corsica a state of siege was proclaimed.

Control of Corsica—a department of metropolitan France—would give the Allies facilities for carrying the war closer to the Germans both in France and in northern Italy.

50 Miles From Italy

The island is located only 50 miles from the Nazi-held Italian mainland in the vicinity of the La Sepzia naval base and the great port of Genoa. Long range fighter planes and bombers from Corsica could freely attack the Po Valley, where the Germans are expected to make their major stand in northern Italy.

Further, the island is less than 200 miles from the French mainland and industrial cities of the Rhone Valley, which would thus be brought within easy bombing range.

The announcement that French Commandos had landed on Corsica followed shortly a broadcast from Algiers in which Gen. Giraud warned the Germans that any man wear-sharply against those who had accused the Allied leadership of bungling in Italy.

He said that the Mediterranean campaign is not "a substitute for a direct attack across the channel on the German in France and the low countries"—that he had never regarded it as such.

"On the contrary," he said, "the opening of this new front in the Mediterranean was always intended to be an essential preliminary to the main attack upon Germany and her ring of subjugated and satellite states."

Achieved Quickly.

He disclosed, however, that he and President Roosevelt set Italy's elimination from the war as their principal objective when they met in Washington last May, and added that no one "would have expected it to have been so rapidly achieved."

The date on which the Italian invasion had originally been planned, he told the House, was September 15, but it was moved up to September 9 "as the result of decisions taken before the fall of Mussolini, and what has taken place in any case would have happened in Italy at the earliest possible moment."

"The Italian surrender was a windfall," he said, "but it had nothing to do with the date of harvesting the orchard."

Turning to the air war, the Prime Minister announced that the weight of bombs dropped on Germany in the past year was three times that of the preceding 12 months and that Britain's aircraft supply now exceeds that of Germany by more than four to one.

Fewer Planes Lost.

Saying that the almost total destruction of German war centres is continuing on a great scale, Mr. Churchill disclosed tht the percentage of plane losses to the R.A.F. in the first eight months of 1943 was less than the same period last year and that the morale of the crews was consequently higher.

Mr. Churchill added, however, that German U-boats had become active again and that one convoy is being attacked at the present time.

In a further disclosure of Russia's participation in the Italian surrender, the Prime Minister said the Soviet Government studied the armistice terms and authorized Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to sign them in its name.

He also revealed arrangements had been made to land an American armored division in Rome at the same time as the main invasion of Italy, but that it was not possible because the Germans held the air fields.

The galleries were crowded with dignitaries of the United Nations to hear the Prime Minister give an accounting of his conduct of the war and of the strategy conferences at Quebec and Washington.

A Long Speech.

Before Mr. Churchill entered Foreign Secretary Eden told the House the Prime Minister's speech would be an unusually long one.

After paying tribute to Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who died today, Mr. Churchill began his war review with the statement:

"I never have regarded this African operation as a substitute for a direct attack across the Channel on the Germans in France and the Low Countries."

On the contrary, he said, "the opening of this new front in the Mediterranean was always intended to be the essential preliminary to the main attack upon Germany and her ring of subjugated and satellite states."

Declaring he knew in advance of the Russian counterstroke at Stalingrad, Mr. Churchill said Premier Stalin at Moscow "was able to speak to me with confidence of his ability to withstand the German attack."

"For a whole year," he continued, "we and our great Allies have had almost unbroken successes by land, by sea, and by air."

At the Washington Conference last May, Mr. Churchill said, he and President Roosevelt set before them as their principal object complete elimination of Italy from the war. No one, he added, "would have expected it to have been so rapidly achieved."

Telling of the contribution which "ever-increasing mastery of the air" had made to the Allies' ground victories, Mr. Churchill said "the weight of bombs discharged on Germany by the R.A.F. in the last 12 months is three times that of the preceding 12 months."

"The havoc wrought is indescribable," he said, disclosing that "the R.A.F. at present is maintaining in action nearly 50 per cent more aircraft than Germany."

U.S. Air Force Grows.

Mr. Churchill said that on top of the R.A.F. effort was the rapidly expanding weight of the U.S. Army Air Force in Britain.

The fact that Britain's supply of aircraft now exceeds Germany's by more than four to one, Mr. Churchill continued, "opens the possibility of saturating German defences on the ground and in the air."

If the R.A.F. growth continued, he said, "we should with very small loss to ourselves be in a position when actual methodical destruction of every building of the enemy would become possible."

"Complete strategic air domination of Germany by Anglo-American Air Forces is not necessarily beyond our reach even in 1944, with consequences, if it were attained, which cannot be measured but most certainly would be profound."

Turning to the Pacific war to which the Quebec Conference was very largely devoted, Mr. Churchill cited "a new feature in the resistance of Japan," in evacuating the Aleutians instead of fighting to the last man."

Burma Push Soon

He said Lord Louis Mountbatten soon would arrive in India with a staff of officers to set up headquarters in New Delhi, which will conform with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's Anglo-American model in the Mediterranean theatre.

He said the fundamental fact of Japan's situation was the diminution of her shipping. She is losing ships and planes faster than they can be replaced.

Turning to the fall of Mussolini he explained that British and American authorities "were naturally anxious to find some authority with whom we could deal so as to bring about the unconditional surrender of Italy in the shortest time and with the least possible cost in the blood of our soldiers."

The new Italian government soon put out peace feelers stressing "the deadly character" of their difficulties with the occupying German troops, he said, but the Allies insisted nevertheless on unconditional surrender.

Would Tip Hand

He declared it was not possible for the Italians to hand over Mussolini before the landing "as that would have disclosed our intentions to the enemy and the Italians were in the position of having still to appear as Allies of Germany."

The Badoglio government, he added, took careful measures to hold Mussolini, but did not provide against "a heavy parachute descent at that particular point"—San Grosso, where the Germans seized him.

"They (the Italians) had one card up their sleeves—Carabinieri Guards had orders to shoot Mussolini if any attempt was made to rescue him but they failed in their duty," Mr. Churchill [illegible]d.

The suggestion th[illegible] days were lost and blood need[illegible] shed, Mr. Churchill said, "is as ill-founded in fact as it is wounding to those bereaved. The timing of our main attack on Italy was fixed without the slightest reference to the attitude of the Italian government."

Fuel Dealers Deliver Under Handicap

With all his delivery staff on holiday Saturday, knocking off work for the entire day to go to the Lindsay Fair, a local fuel dealer was left to face the music. First he took an order from local institution for half a ton of coal for the kitchen range. This was a must order, so the dealer went home, put on an old suit of clothes, loaded up half a ton and delivered it himself.

Then he had eight tons left in a car from the night before, and to avoid demurrage he had to turn in and unload it himself.

Monday morning produced an irritating incident on the consumer front. A load of coal was held up at the curb while the driver went in to enquire where it was to be unloaded. That customer took a look at the lawn and then at the truck, and protested that the grass would be messed up, and so on with the result that the driver took the load back to the yard.

Delivery First

"We are doing our best to put coal into bins, that is when we have any on hand, but we are not going to stop to consider whether a lawn is going to be spoiled a bit by a truck," the dealer remarked today. "If a customer would rather go without coal, that is his choice, but they can't blame us. We were told by a representative of the fuel controller last Friday that if difficulties continue people may consider themselves lucky if they get a ton of coal dumped on their lawn."

The incident was cited as an indication as to the lack of co-operation that still seems to prevail here.

Meanwhile, it was reported today by Alderman Glover that the council's emergency fuel committee will begin to sell slab wood at once. The council has the remnant of a depression time contract with Peterborough Lumber Company, and it was felt that people needing fuel might be burning slabs in this present weather as a means of saving coal that will be more sharply needed later on.

One estimate of the quantity of slabs the council can count on immediately is between four and five hundred cords.

As to the attraction of the Lindsay Fair at the week-end, not only did the hired help at one yard take the day off, but at two others only two of the men reported at each of them Saturday morning.

Kingsley Wood Dies At 62; Held Many Posts

LONDON, Sept. 21—(CP)—Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, died to-day. He was 62 years old. The man who was credited largely with keeping Great Britain's Wartime Finance on an even keel died on the eve on an anticipated announcement of his pay-as-you-go plan or workers' income tax.

Sir Kingsley, son of a Wesleyan minister, was born in 1881 and began his political career in 1911 as a member of the London City Council.

Seven years later, in 1918, he was elected to represent the District of Woolwich West in the House of Commons, and has stood for that constituency without a break ever since.

Once in the Commons, his progress was rapid. After a year he became the Parliamentary Private Secretary to the Minister of Health and in 1922 was appointed Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Health. Then, in 1929, he became Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Education.

Secretary For Air.

His first major office came in 1931 wh[illegible] he was appointed Postmaster-General, holding that position four years, when he became Minister of Health.

Then, in 1938, he took over the post of Secretary for Air and in the year immediately preceding the war worked to increase Britain's air power.

[illegible] May, 1940, he was made a member of the War Cabinet but was dropped from this inner circle in February, 1942, in another shakeup.

In 1930 he became chairman of the executive committee of the National Conservative and Unionist Association—the Conservative party.

Insurance Men Told Of Course

The Life Underwriters' Association of Peterborough resumed their activities for the fall term by a luncheon meeting ot the Empress Hotel, with President Harold Howay in the chair.

The program was arranged by Oscar Smith, manager of the Canada Life who acted as chairman.

Mr. E. G. Pridham, C.L.U., branch manager of the Mutual Life gave an interesting talk on the chartered Life Underwriters course which is made available to all life insurance salesmen by the Life Underwriters Association of Canada. He not only outlined the benefits from a salesman's point of view but stressed the value of the course as far as the general public were concerned. Mr. Pridham said he had experienced in so many cases where clients were not given the proper advice in arranging their insurance program that every life insurance salesman should avail himself of this course for the benefit of his clients. He stated that so many changes had taken place in State administration and succession duties that a salesman with the C.L.U. degree had considerable more knowledge than the salesman who had not taken the course.

Mr. Pridham paid tribute to those with the C.L.U. degree in Peterborough, Charles Ray, Sun Life; T. H. Taylor, Sun Life; E. L. Sackville, Manufacturers Life and John Nornabell, Mutual Life. He also mentioned F. B. Sargent, Great-West Life who had been successful in passing his second year examinations.

Following Mr. Pridham's address a humorous dialogue was given by F. B. Sargent, district manager, Great-West Life and Jack Arnott, representative of London Life. The title of the dialogue was "Selling a Tough Prospect."

Correspondence was read from the Department of Agriculture and the Life Underwriters Association of Canada asking the insurance men of Peterborough to help with canning and harvesting the fall crops owing to the food shortage. Organization for this is under way.

Father Blown Up

SOUTHEND, England, Sept. 21 — (CP). — Eric James Brown, 19-year-old private in the Suffolk Regiment, appeared in court Monday on a charge of murdering his invalid father, Archibald Brown, 47, by blowing him up with an anti-tank mine.

The prosecution declared that the mine was placed under the cushion of a bath chair used by the elder Brown, and that when it exploded the invalid was "literally blown to bits."

A nurse wheeling the chair was injured. She said all she could remember was that after the explosion her patient and the bath chair disappeared.

The hearing continues today.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 21—(CP).—Wheat futures reached their highest levels in six years yesterday on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange as good shipper and export buying continued in the pit. Values were strong for most of the season and showed only slight recession at the close.

Trading was active with an estimated 1,800,000 to 2,000,000 bushels taken from the pit. Offerings in the form of hedging were well absorbed on the scale-up.

Chicago houses made fair purchases in rye where the May option established a new seasonal high of $1.02⅞. Other futures showed fractional gains early in the session, but later slipped near previous closing levls.

Attempt To Block Harbor Foiled By Alert Navy Minesweepers Reap Harvest

U-Boats Believed Responsible
Mines Sown In Main Channel
Only One Small Freighter Lost

By FRANK FLAHERTY—Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Sept. 21—(CP).—The Germans tried but failed to block Halifax harbor with mines to sink outgoing and incoming ships last June, a naval announcement disclosed today.

They laid some 60 mines in the ship channel leading into the big port but they were discovered promptly and a clear path through the minefield was swept within 24 hours so a convoy could go out.

Canadian and British minesweepers stationed on the east coast, many of them patiently sweeping for mines which had not appeared since the outbreak of war, swung into action for their first real job on an enemy's death trap and completed the work of clearing the minefield in three days.

No Lives Lost.

No lives were lost and no ships of importance were lost. One small freighter, a straggler from a convoy and sailing in waters labelled dangerous, was sunk and is believed to have been a victim of a mine, although the cause of loss is not certain.

The first enemy mining operation in Canadian waters since the start of the war, the mines are believed to have been laid by a submarine. In the First Great War about four mines were found off the Nova Scotia coast, but were believed to have been dumped overboard from a neutral merchant ship.

The mines laid in June were of the "moored magnetic" type and were described by veteran minesweepers seaman who operated overseas as more powerful than any they had seen before. They were moored to the ocean bottom but designed to explode magnetically.

The enemy made just one fatal slip that gave his game away. He left one of the mines on the surface where it was spotted, and the minesweeping fleet was rushed into action.

"Enemy submarines mined the approaches to Halifax harbor in early June in an arc intended to close the port to all shipping," said the Navy announcement.

J. Gordon Mann To Sell Ayrshire Herd

J. Gordon Mann of Smith township is announcing the dispersal of his Pinecrest herd of Ayrshire cattle by auction on Wednesday, October 6.

"I can't get the help I need, and so I have decided to sell," was Mr. Mann's explanation of the reason for the sale which is advertised in the latest issue of The Canadian Ayrshire Review.

And the tail is going along with the hide as indicated by his intention to sell his milking machine and separator.

Mr. Mann has been one of the leading breeders of Ayrshires in this province. His herd consists of fifty head, including the sire "Bois de la Roche Golden Sun"—Class AA, junior champion of the Canadian National Exhibition in 1940. Its dam was Lady Grace of Kelso, which produced 84,694 pounds of milk, 3,514 pounds of fat in eight lactations. The Pinecrest herd was founded in 1926 with Class AA and R.O.P. animals, and only blue blood males have been used.

Included in the herd that is to be sold by auction are twenty springing cows, four fresh cows and eight springing heifers. Twenty-one of the females are sired by Hobsland Copper King, imported, Class AA and R.O.P. sire; five sired by Pinecrest White King, Class AA, son of Robinhood of Sprinkbank, and the dam, Pinecrest Violet, 24,285 pounds of milk and 1,001 pounds of fat. Some of the yearling heifers are by "Glen Campbell Financier," ten heifer calves are by the herd sire.

The announcement also gives the information that the Garmandale section of the herd of J. Gordon Mann and Son will still be carried on by W. Clarence Mann.

Lions Hear Talk About Accidents

The Peterborough Lions Club celebrated on Monday night their 100 per cent attendance meeting in honor of the president, James Dutton, Jr. The meeting also marked the opening of the membership attendance contest, in which many members have indicated their interest. The speaker of the evening, Mr. Harvey Jackson, special representative of the Zurich Accident and Liability Insurance, Toronto, was introduced by Lion Stan Darling.

Mr. Jackson gave an illustrated talk on accident prevention—cause and effect. He pointed out that most accidents could have been prevented had the proper precautions been taken.

"It is the duty of everyone to recognize danger and remove the cause. Accidents do not happen, they are caused and statistics show that one person in every 14 suffer from the effects of accidents. Employers today, as never before realize the value of accident prevention and are safeguarding their employees by means of extensive educational campaigns on cause and effects of accidents," he said.

Two pictures were shown to the club, one the subject being Cause and Effect — the second 'Horse Sense.' Lion Bruce Sargent thanked the speaker on behalf of the club for presenting such an interesting talk.

Lion Frank Woolley read the financial statement of the club which was received with approval by all members. The statement shows the club to be in a strong financial position, and the many enterprises undertaken by the Lions during the past year proved to be highly successful. The proceeds will in due course be directed to Lion charities.

The draw of the evening donated by Lion Norm Brown was won by Lion Frank Stokoe.

KEENE

Bethel Church To Observe 115th Active Year

KEENE, Sept. 21 —(ENS) —The 115th Anniversary of Bethel congregation will be held on October 3, at 7:30 p.m. when the guest preacher will be the Rev. E. Pugsley of Norwood. Special music will be given by Keene choir under the leadership of Miss Margaret Bryce.

The history of this congregation goes back to the days when Otonabee was a dense forest, when the call to worship was answered by Anglican, Methodist and Presbyterians who came to the church service held in the humble home of John Fife. This service was held at that time once a month and the piety of those early settlers was seen in their devotion to the worship of God and the training of their children in reverence and Godly fear.

The present Church was erected in 1896, the corner stone being laid by the late Sir James Flavelle when the Rev. James Liddy was minister. It is recorded that the church was opened on October 11th, 1896, without one cent of debt. The present minister, Rev. George Murray and the offical board extend an invitation to all former members and adherents to attend this anniversary.

CAMPBELLFORD

Taggers For Blind Raise Sum Of $180

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 21. —(ENS).—A real good job was done by between thirty and forty taggers, neary all of public school age, who on Saturday canvassed residents of this town to raise money for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

It was the Society's annual appeal to the people of this district who responded generously, increasing their giving by 50 per cent. over what was realized a year ago. Total proceeds of the day are expected to run close to $180, all of which will be used to further the society's work among the blind in this county. Saturday's campaign was organized by Mrs. G. A. Ironside who voiced appreciation on behalf of the local executive to all who assisted in making it a success.

Heavy Storm Protects Vessel Helps Canadians Sink Cruiser

Written for The Canadian Press
By VLADIMIR BELAYEV

MOSCOW, Sept. 21 (CP) — In Murmansk, just as in any other wartime seaport, they tell in quiet fashion the stories of tough going at sea. Things are better on the Britain-to-Murmansk convoy route now but there was a time when they were exceptionally tough and the stories of the sailors who saw these convoys through came from men of every nationality.

One Canadian putting into Murmansk was Lieut. Basil Sidor of Toronto. He came as an officer aboard a British cargo vessel and in June found the wintry weather off the Russian coast a sailor's friend.

Plane Attack

Sidor's voyage was uneventful until his ship was off the Norwegian coast when an enemy reconnaissance plane was sighted.

Nothing more happened that day. Next morning the weather was fine and clear but about seven o'clock there came the drone of aircraft. Six German bombers were coming up in formation.

"They stood out clear against the cloudless sky," said Sidor. "The same minute we could make out three enemy destroyers in the distance, headed for our lone vessel. Our crew opened fire as the German aircraft circled overhead and one of them dived, dropping his bombs astern of us.

"Meanwhile the destroyers opened fire, the shellbursts raising spouts of water to port and starboard. Our ship suffered one direct hit and some of the men were wounded."

Cruiser Helps

Then the aircraft started using a bit of cloud for cover from the ship's anti-aircraft fire, diving into the attack at intervals so Sidor ordered the ship's heavy gunners to concentrate on the destroyers and leave only the machine guns to operate against the bombers.

"Then," he said, "the boom of heavy fire reached us from the distance and shortly afterwards we could make out the outline of a British cruiser speeding to our rescue. The two German destroyers turned off to engage the cruiser while the third stuck to us with her supporting aircraft.

"Next thing we knew a sudden gust of wind struck us, an ice-cold blast from the north. Almost immediately it grew dark.

Banks of cloud appeared and it began to snow.

"As we rode out there on the sea heavy snowflakes came floating down and it reminded me of Toronto in December. It was hard to believe that only a few minutes before it had been bright sunshine."

Weather Helps

That sudden advent of weather was the saving of Sidor's vessel. Overhead the enemy aircraft wheeled in vain attempts to discover the ship's whereabouts and the grey hull of the German destroyer loomed through the driving snow, athwart the cargo boat's course.

"She had evidently lost track of us and this sudden appearance proved her undoing because our gunners were quick to send several salvoes home," said Sidor. "When we arrived at Murmansk the captain of the British cruiser informed us he had accounted for a second German destroyer."

More Training Only Hope Of Agriculture

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 21 (ENS) —A more comprehensive program of vocational training in secondary schools was seen as the sole hope for agriculture in this province, according to W. A. Goodfellow, M.P.P., who was guest speaker at the Rotary luncheon here on Monday.

Speaking on the "State of Agriculture," Mr. Goodfellow reminded Rotarians that their business prosperity was closely linked with that of the farmer and "it will be my duty as a member of the Legislature to bring to attention any ideas for the betterment of agriculture in this county."

He expressed the opinion that despite wartime demands for agricultural products, the farmer was not much better off economically than he was at the war's beginning. He reiterated that agriculture must be made prosperous if the country is to prosper. Though one-third of the people in the Dominion are engaged in farming, only 14 per cent. of the national income accrues to the farmer and this factor had much to do with the continuance of the depression during the years 1935 to 1938," he said.

Weather Influences.

"The farmer is both capitalist and laborer—mostly laborer in the past ten years — but in as much as he owns his own business he is a capitalist. His business is affected both by weather and prices and of the many things he has to contend with the weather is one over which he has no control whatever." This year Ontario is going to have one of the smallest crops on record and evidence of the general condition of agriculture is seen from the many farm sales. Agriculture is being aggravated by the labor situation resulting from the war and more attractive wages being paid in other industries. A survey made two years ago in Ontario revealed the average age of active farmers was 51, a fact which only served to make the labor problem more acute.

There were other factors entering into the farm picture, however, and one of these, according to Mr. Goodfellow, was the absence of the conveniences found in most urban homes. Few farms are equipped with modern plumbing, yet there is no one would appreciate it more than the farm woman whose earning power is much greater than her urban counterpart.

Speaking particularly of Brighton township, where he had been clerk for the past three years, Mr. Goodfellow declared that not more than 20 farms in the entire township were equipped with inside plumbing. Another heavy load being borne by the farmer was caused by old debts. In Northumberland county farmers had more than $432,000 in chattel mortgages outstanding, a fact which would seem to indicate that most of the farms in the county are mortgaged, the speaker declared. During a five-year period, the rural population of Brighton township had dropped by 500 people. Actually what was taking place as farms were liquidated under the auctioneer's hammer, was that the big farmer was increasing his holdings. In Mr. Goodfellow's opinion it was the prosperity of the small farmer which was required to balance the economic pendulum.

Vocational Training.

Describing himself as a strong supporter of the Federation of Agriculture (he resigned from its executive following his nomination as a Progressive Conservative candidate), Mr. Goodfellow asserted it was up to the farmer to plan for the future. He felt the government should take the initial steps in fostering organizational planning but foresaw certain difficulties as "the farmer is an individualist and it is hard to get him to organize." But if 1944 food production levels were to be reached it would be essential that farmers organize from what he called the "long range viewpoint." Parity prices, not subsidies, are what the farmer wants, according to the speaker, who saw the erection of additional cold storage facilities built with low interest government loans as an answer to better market control.

"Little can be done, however, unless people are educated to become interested in agriculture. Vocational training of a type that would create interest in agriculture and fit men for leadership in the farm community, is essential to the long range farm program. The farm youth is handicapped under the present educational system, and though he did not favor an "agricultural high school" the speaker insisted teachers should be thoroughly qualified both in vocational training and in the science of agriculture. "The only way to encourage them to go back to the farm is to offer vocational training along these lines."

A vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Rotarian N. Alex. MacColl and guests at the meeting included Bandsman Don Bennett, Kingston; W. J. Armstrong, W. A. Kingston, J. F. R. Douglas, all of town; F. J. Long, Peterborough; U. Workman, Warkworth, and Rotarian Charles Smith of Saskatoon, Sask.

PORT HOPE, Sept. 21—(CP)—The Port Hope Sanitary Company, in a statement issued Monday, said Japanese Canadian Nationals will be brought here "sometime in the future" to work at this plant in order to maintain a sufficient number of men to keep the plant in production.

"These men are not enemy aliens but Canadian Nationals no less than others of different origins born in this country," said the statement. "They were second and third generation Canadians and not of the coolie class but educated men, many of them university graduates."

Diet Important In War Time

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 21 — (ENS) — Several of the articles they will put on exhibition at the Fall Fair here were on display at the September meeting of the Seymour West Women's Institute at the home of Mrs. M. Waddell.

The business of the meeting was conducted by second vice president, Mrs. Ray McCulloch, and following a discussion of the ditty bags which the Institute is preparing to ship, ten ladies volunteered to write the accompanying letter which will go with the bags to sailors in the Canadian Navy. A report from the committee which operated the booth in conjunction with the Street Dance recently staged by the Seymour Agriculture Society indicated proceeds amounted to about $20. Following an appeal from the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, the Branch voted to make a contribution of $1.00 to this fund.

To Mrs. Harry Hoard, who for several years had been an active member of the Institute, members expressed regret at her leaving the community and tendered an invitation to attend as many of the future meetings as possible.

Balanced Diet.

Main feature of the program was the topic, "Wartime Housekeeping" given by Mrs. Donald Rutherford, who declared that in busy homes to-day were more responsiblities than one pair of hands, one heart and one mind could cover. She said the housewife was playing a vital part on the home front and one of her important functions was to provide a balanced diet containing all the essential elements.

She cited six essential foods which should form a part of the daily diet—pasteurized milk, meat or fish, eggs, vegetables, fruits, oatmeal or whole wheat cereal and bread. "It has taken a war to focus attention on nutritional problems and we as a nation are just beginning to realize that civilian health is just as important as the health of the armed forces."

Mrs. Rutherford spoke of the importance of cooking food properly so that vitamins are not destroyed. She urged her listeners to "eat to keep fit and work to win". Referring to clothing the speaker warned members to shop wisely and buy only what is needed since any other plan will only aggravate material shortages. The prevelance of rayon type of materials makes careful laundering a necessity and a fact which should be remembered on wash day is that these materials will not stand the same vigorous treatment as pre war fabrics.

Other items on the program included a piano selection by Miss Evelyn Stephens, community singing for which Mrs. Donald Rutherford presided at the piano, a reading on "Courage" by Mrs. Howard Clark and a reading by Mrs. Hoard.

At the close of the evening, dainty refreshments were served in the dining room which was gaily decorated with pink and white streamers while the floral decorations were mainly gladioli in the same shade.

Assisting the hostess in serving were Mrs. Percy Reid, Mrs. William Craighead, Mrs. E. C. Pollock, Mrs. Gerald Mitchell and Miss Bernice Fry. Guests of the evening included Mrs. Fred Thompson, Mrs. George Airhart, Mrs. Lisle Bennett, Mrs. Ernest Thaine, Mrs. Gerald Mitchell, Mrs. Percy Reid, Mrs. Thomas Watson, Mrs. Alvin Pollock, Mrs. Jack Thompson Mrs. Jack Nayler, Mrs. Frank Haig, Mrs. William Craighead, Misses Josephine Locke, Muriel Todd, Shirley Hutcheon, Thelma Wallace, Marjorie Wallace, Dorothy Eagleson, Clara Thaine, Edna Wallace, Leila Linn, Hazel McKenzie, Marian Wallace, Enid Hay, Violet Wright, Bernice Fry, Ruth Fry, Joyce Spencer, Greta Spencer, Myrtle Fry, Lorraine Fry, Margaret Fry, Helen Nelson.

Nazi Prisoners Form Union To Defeat Hitler

MOSCOW, Sept. 21.—(AP).— A "Union of German officers' was formed here Sept. 12 by more than 100 Generals and other officers from five Russian prisoner-of-war camps, it was announced yesterday, with the aim of bringing about the downfall of the Hitler regime and the establishment of a "free, peaceful and independent" Germany.

Calling themselves the "Generals and Officers of the 6th German Stalingrad Army," they told their countrymen and army that Germany faces worse isolation than in 1918 and added, "continuation of the senseless, futile war might any day cause a national catastrophe."

The Union, they said, will be part of the previously-formed "National Committee of Free Germany" which has been increased in size.

Fear The Worst.

Finland, Hungary and Rumania, they declared, are certain to fall out of the war soon proving that Germany has lost the war and only Hitler and his regime are to blame.

"It now is necessary to save all Germany," they said.

"We suffered the pangs of hell. In Germany, we were given up for dead, but we have been born again for a new life. We can not keep silent any longer."

The appeal was drawn up at a meeting in Moscow attended by General of Artillery Walter Von Seidlitz, Lt.-Gen. Alexander Elder Von Daniels and Gens. Otto Korfes and Martin Latman in addition to more than 100 other officers.

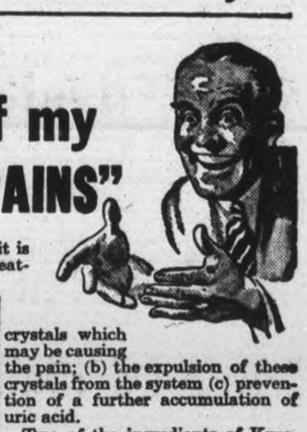
The Communist party organ Pravda devoted a full page to the announcement of the organization, reprinted from the newspaper, "Free Germany," organ of the "National Committee of Free Germany."

Artillery General Walter Von Seidlitz, who commanded the 51st German Army Corps at Stalingrad, was listed as chairman of the Officers' Union and vice-chairman of the National Committee.

Blow Up Troop Train

BERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 21—(AP). —A Chambery, France, dispatch to the Tribune de Geneva said yesterday that Italian forces had blown up the Italian end of an 800-metre (½ mile) tunnel in the Alps while a German troop train was passing through. The dispatch said 30 persons were killed and 150 wounded.

"That's how I got rid of my RHEUMATIC PAINS"



On the experience of Mr. Basey, it is perseverance that is important in treating rheumatic pains. He writes:—

"I was abroad for over seven years, and when I returned I began to get rheumatic pains—particularly in the feet and arms. Three years ago I was taken into hospital, unable to move any joint of my body. I left the hospital after two months, when I was somewhat better. I was recommended to take Kruschen Salts, and I have taken them continuously. Since then I have gradually got rid of my rheumatic pains until I am now entirely free of them".—M. Basey.

To bring real relief from rheumatic pains, a remedy should desirably perform three separate functions. These are (a) dissolution of the needle-pointed uric acid crystals which may be causing the pain; (b) the expulsion of these crystals from the system (c) prevention of a further accumulation of uric acid.

Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts are very effectual solvents of uric acid. Other ingredients of these Salts assist the kidneys to expel the dissolved crystals. Still other salts prevent food fermentation taking place in the intestine, and thereby help check the further formation of mischievous uric acid.

Kruschen Salts come in two sizes 25c and 75c at all drug stores.

COBOURG

Court Remands R.A.F. Bigamist

COBOURG, Sept. 21—(ENS)—LAC. Fred V. Jones, R.A.F. instructor stationed at Kingston, pleaded guilty in police court yesterday to a charge of bigamy. He was arrested during the week-end at the home of a Cobourg woman whom he had married on September 11 of this year. However, Jones already has a wife, it was revealed, whom he married in England in 1935. The Crown was not ready to proceed yesterday and Jones was accordingly remanded in custody for one week.

Drunk in charge of a car, Russell McMurray of Colborne made the mistake of almost running into a car driven by Constable Frank Atkinson at Brighton on Saturday night. A short time later the constable found McMurray behind the wheel of the car which had been parked. Someone had removed the ignition key. McMurray was charged with drunk driving and given seven days in jail when he appeared in police court yesterday.

Douglas Moore of Colborne was fined $50 and costs or 30 days on a second offense for drunkeness. Constable Atkinson stated that Moore was intoxicated in a restaurant in Brighton Saturday night and that his language was not of the best. He has a previous conviction on the same charge in Trenton. Moore didn't have the $50 so took the jail sentence until he raises it.

Britain Told Of Need For Increase In Coal

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(CP) — The BBC Monday said that Ebby Edwards, secretary of the British Mineworkers Federation, had warned miners that "unless more coal is produced either the people will be too cold this winter or the fighting forces will go short of essential supplies."

The broadcast, recorded by CBS quoted Edwards as saying the coal situation is "worse now than at any time since the war began" and that nearly all recent stoppages at the mines should have been prevented by negotiation.

Churchill Advocates Basic English

In a recent address given at Harvard university, Winston Churchill said that he thought that Basic English would make an excellent world-language, and it is known that President Roosevelt agrees with this opinion. The need for an international language has been felt ever since French declined as the language of international diplomacy, and Basic English has much to recommend it. Compared with other languages, it is easy to learn. It is a reasonable and acceptable language, and not a hodge-podge like Esperanto. Its grammar is of the simplest. It consists of about 650 nouns, and 200 verbs and other parts of speech, so that its vocabulary can be mastered with ease by any one who applies himself to the task.

Basic English is largely the invention of Mr. C. K. Ogden, of the Orthological Institute and the University of Cambridge; he was helped in some respects by Mr. I. A. Richards, also of Cambridge. Its purpose is to bring the English language down to an irreduceable minimum of words which will still allow accurate expression of ideas of every sort. The present Basic vocabulary of 850 words is the result, and examples of writing in Basic are impressive in their clarity and simplicity. It must be clearly understood that if Basic English were to become an international language it would be necessary for English-speaking people to learn it as well as other peoples. They would have their own peculiar difficulties, for using Basic English, to the speaker of standard English, is like wearing tight boots is to a man who has gone barefoot all his life.

The acquirement of Basic English by English-speaking people would, however, have many advantages. For one thing, Basic does not lend itself to the expression of confused thought. In our ordinary speaking and writing we often cloak our ignorance in a capacious garment of words; the speaker of Basic English must have something to say or he must keep quiet. As a language for international diplomacy Basic English has this to recommend it: in Basic a man must speak the truth or he must lie—there is no room for those delicate and troublesome shades of meaning which hover between the two extremes.

We find upon enquiry that although many people have a good idea of what Basic English is, they have never seen an example of it. Therefore we are going to reprint here a portion of the Sermon on the Mount, from The New Testament In Basic English, published by the Cambridge University Press; compare it with the version in the fifth chapter of St. Matthew:

And with these words he gave them teaching, saying, Happy are the poor in spirit: for the kingdom of heaven is theirs. Happy are those who are sad: for they will be comforted. Happy are the gentle: for the earth will be their heritage. Happy are those whose heart's desire is for righteousness: for they will have their desire. Happy are those who have mercy: for they will be given mercy. Happy are the clean in heart: for they will see God. Happy are the peacemakers: for they will be named sons of God. Happy are those who are attacked on account of righteousness: for the kingdom of heaven will be theirs. Happy are you when men give you a bad name, and are cruel to you, and say all evil things against you falsely because of me. Be glad and full of joy; for great is your reward in heaven: for so were the prophets attacked who were before you.

As you may see from this, Basic English is a little constricted in its expression; it leaves small room for eloquence. But with a good grounding in Basic, it would not be difficult for a man to gain a greater command of English, approaching our grammatical snags and our eccentricities of vocabulary slowly. Whether, in the long run, this would be good for our language or not is a matter which only time could decide; English which has been much abused already, would hardly be purified by use as a lingua franca for the whole world. But it is the fate of languages to change and evolve, and if the language of Shakespeare is to become the language of the world who can say that the change is not a good one?

The Juvenile Delinquency Problem

It is easy to work up public alarm about juvenile delinquency on very slight grounds; we feel that the situation in Ontario, and in our own city, however, is bad enough to warrant comment. The local police have come to the conclusion that much of the petty thievery which has been widespread in Peterborough during recent months is the work of boys so young as to be mere children; there is reason to believe, also, that lack of proper parental supervision is the most important cause of the situation. When the father of a family is in the armed services, and when the mother is either in war industry or unequal to her responsibilities, the lookout for the children is poor and their temptations are many.

When juvenile delinquents are caught, what is to be done with them? A nice balance must be held between weakness and over-severity in punishing young offenders. The ideal remedy, perhaps, would be an establishment to which juvenile delinquents could be committed and where their special troubles could be studied and a new way of life presented to them. But such establishments do not exist, and the Chief Justice of this province said only last week that the Guelph Reformatory trains boys to be criminals, instead of setting them on the right path. We are certain that Chief Justice Robertson would not have made such a startling charge if he had not been perfectly sure what he was talking about. If reformatories are breeding-grounds of criminality, then we do not want any children, however troublesome, committed to them.

The problem of the juvenile delinquent, we feel strongly, is chiefly a psychiatric problem. But at present our means of dealing with young offenders by psychiatric methods are pitiably limited. One of our tasks, when the war is over, will be to find some means of dealing adequately with juvenile delinquents, which contains none of the danger imputed by the Chief Justice to the Reformatory. Meanwhile, the responsibility rests heavily upon the parents.

Another Of Those "Diaries"

Some American and Canadian newspapers are exciting themselves over the supposed diary of a Japanese physician, N. Tatsukichi, serving with his country's troops in the Pacific war. The diary is said to be "now in the possession of American authorities" and portions of it have been published in order to show what fanatical patriots and fighters, and what inhuman beasts the Japs are.

We do not take much stock in enemy diaries; too many of them have proved to be fakes, written to create sensation. Wars always bring us a few of these clever frauds, and they often have startling successes. In this war we have already had The Diary of a Nazi Flier, supposed to have been written by one Gottfried Leske, a pilot in the Luftwaffe, but actually the clever concoction of an American journalist, who admitted the fraud after the book had sold many thousand copies. The diary of the supposed Leske bore striking resemblance to this Japanese diary: it came to the hands of the publishers by mysterious means, it revealed the violent patriotism of the Germans, and it also gave us a piquant taste of German brutality and sentimentalism.

In fighting the Japanese it is doubtful whether it is good policy to publish extracts from Japanese diaries, whether real or fraudulent. They serve only to stir up useless hatred among civilians, to distress and alarm the relatives of the men who are actually fighting the Japanese, and to add to the mass neurosis which is inseparable from war. The men who are fighting the Japs know all about them and are, we are convinced, capable of dealing with them adequately. The publication of propaganda of this sort serves no good purpose.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The Germans are in Rome, but they are not doing as the Romans do.

Many a train of thought is delayed by a hotbox.

Still A Move Ahead Of The U-Boats

By
A. J. McWHINNIE

AS the United Nations put the finishing touches to their plans for the coming offensive, rumours have begun to circulate of mutiny in the Italian Fleet, and mutinies among the U-boats.

The authorities in London and Washington, very wisely, are discarding the probability of any such Axis troubles from their reckoning.

The German line has always been to make European "listening posts" into "talking posts," and to plant inspired false "news" in such quantities that, they hope, the Allies may be made first complacent, then confused, then disappointed.

Berlin's greatest campaign on these lines can be expected during the next few weeks.

Mr. Churchill says setbacks in the war on U-boats must be expected; Goebbels does not want the Allied people to be so prepared. Goebbels himself hopes that if the story of U-boats mutiny can be planted firmly in the Allied minds, while the U-boats try to get their second wind, then the increasing numbers of Allied submarine hunters—destroyers, frigates, corvettes, aircraft carriers, and ocean planes of the Fleet Air Arm and Coastal Command—will be taken off their guard when the next round of the U-boat campaign opens.

There have been naval mutinies through the pages of history. But those mutinies have always started in big ships. There can be no question of mob-psychology when only 40 or 45 men are living together in the confined space of a submarine—40 or 45 men who know each other intimately and can watch each other closely.

ADMIRAL Karl Doenitz, German Naval Commander-in-Chief, is not only Germany's greatest U-boat expert. He believes that U-boats should have the cream of the German naval service and priorities of supplies. You do not get mutiny from your best fighting men even when those men are up against such terrific opposition, dangers, and new menaces as the U-boat men are today.

In any case it is not easy to mutiny or refuse to sail in ships of Totalitarian States where a firing-squad awaits the first man to flinch or falter, no matter how overwhelming the odds against him.

In the past few months—months in which the ability of the U-boats to sink Allied convoys has steadily deteriorated — Berlin spokesmen have given no fewer than eight excuses for the U-boat failures. These excuses have ranged from the particularly stupid "No Allied ships at sea" which was the most illuminating of all, down to "U-boats withdrawn for anti-invasion preparations" which was also untrue.

Mr. Churchill, when given the Freedom of the City of London the other day, indicated that during June U-boats were being solidly destroyed, yet, at the same time, the U-boats had not been seriously attacking the Allied convoys.

The first part of that news proves that there were plenty of U-boats at sea during June, and the second part indicates that for one reason or another the U-boats failed to press home their attacks.

SEA and air anti-submarine forces quite obviously have been making it increasingly difficult for the U-boats to get near enough to the freighters to loose their torpedoes in effective action.

There seems no doubt, on analysing the figures for recent months that, so far, the Allied formula for victory at sea—"The next best thing to killing U-boats is to keep them down, well under the sea," has been working out.

With the Churchill statement that more than 30 U-boats were destroyed in May, as a guide, there does not seem to be any doubt that Hitler has lost, in addition to his submarines, large numbers of trained, skilled, experienced, U-boat men who are less easily replaced than U-boats.

During the past six months the losses by death and capture of U-boat men may, according to my own unofficial estimate, be even well over 3,000. The figure for May alone is apparently over 1,200, based on an average of 40 officers and men to each U-boat.

But no half-yearly stocktaking analysis would be complete without the other side of the underwater war picture.

During the same six months British submarines operating in the dangerous, narrow waters of the Mediterranean which Axis U-boats have found overwhelmingly difficult, have had their casualties. When British submarines surface under the eyes of coastal batteries to shell coastal positions, coastal road transport, oildumps, a radiolocation station, and even coastal railways, losses must be expected.

Yet the losses of Britain submarines in the whole half year of 1943 have totalled only ten, against German losses which reached more than 30 in a single month.

AXIS submarines have been failing to smash up great convoys steaming across the wide oceans, and at the same time have avoided narrow waters in which British submarines have been achieving such spectacular, audacious triumphs.

It will cost the Axis admirals much time and anxiety if they start now trying to make the U-boats achieve similarly daring achievements in narrow waters.

Wherever there are Allied ships steaming near the coast there is air protection for those ships as well as strong anti-submarine naval escorts. If U-boats can be detected and destroyed from the air out in wide waters, the menace of Allied counter measures to U-boats in narrow shallower waters must prove to be overwhelming.

Meanwhile the world's two greatest submarine experts are in conflict as the next round of the underwater war is about to open.

In Berlin Admiral Doenitz is no doubt devising new tactics for the U-boat of which he is the master brain.

In his headquarters in the North of England there is Admiral Sir Max Horton, Britain's great submarine pioneer and expert.

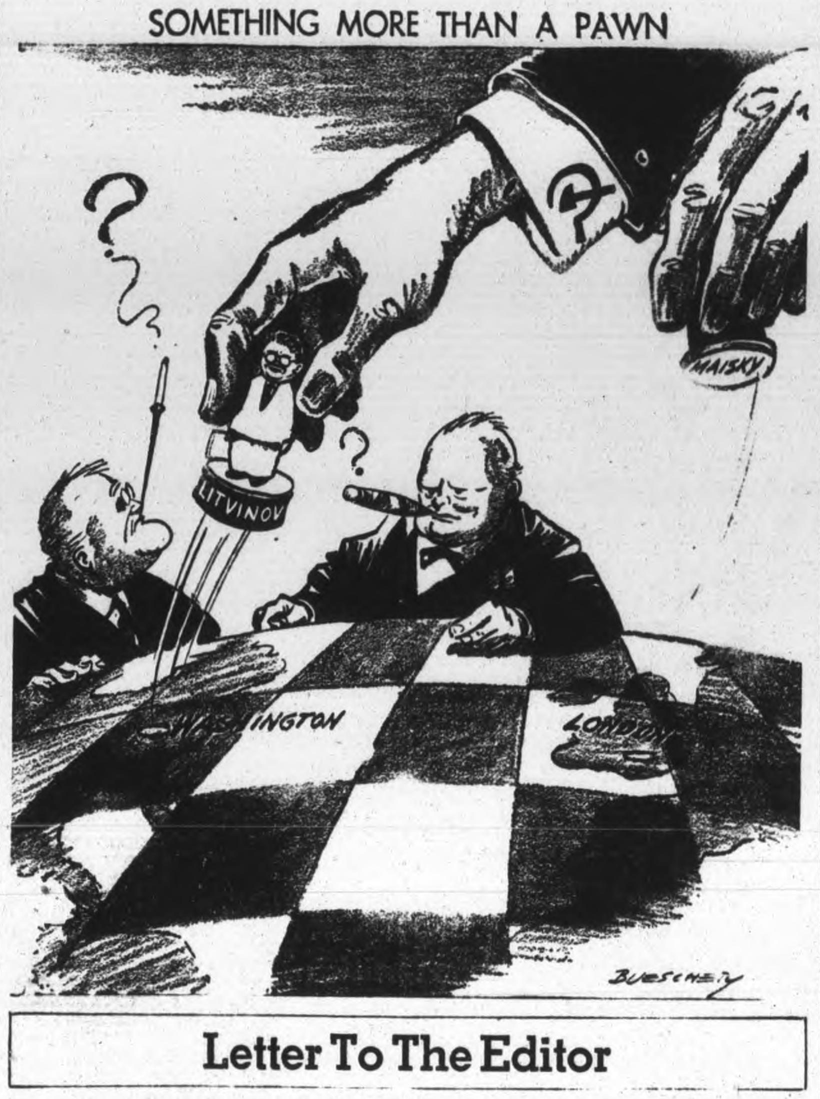
The situation today is that the last moves were made and won by Admiral Horton. And the British Admiral awaits the next move of the German Admiral—and believing he has prepared for whatever may come.

A NEW JOKE

"What makes you laugh at your own joke?" inquired a friend of Israel Zangwill one day when, in convivial company, that witty writer had just perpetrated a bon mot at which all had laughed and he the loudest.

"Well," responded Zangwill, "why shouldn't I laugh? That joke was as new to me as to you."

SOMETHING MORE THAN A PAWN



Letter To The Editor

A MISUNDERSTOOD CONVICTION

Editor Examiner;

Sir,—On August 26th, on David Rush was fined $50 and costs by Magistrate Prentice of Toronto for an infraction of Order 121 of this Board, which prohibits the use of motor trucks for carrying passengers.

This event has been widely represented as the conviction of a farmer for giving his wife a lift while using the truck in the regular course of his business.

If that were so the criticism which has been expressed in the press would be warranted. Accordingly, I personally investigated the matter and have delayed writing you until I could verify all the circumstances of the case. I now give you the facts and I think you will agree that they throw quite a different light upon the matter and justify the action taken by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board which is charged with responsibility of conserving such critically short supplies as gasoline, tires and motor transport equipment.

1. At the time the offence was committed (June 7) Rush was not a farmer. The truck was not a farm truck but was owned and registered in the city of Toronto by Rush's father-in-law, one Max Gold.

2. At about three o'clock on the morning of June 7th, the police noticed the truck cruising on a number of streets in the Markham Street district of Toronto. On their own initiative the police followed and finally stopped the truck which was carrying no freight and in which Mrs. Rush was a passenger.

3. When questioned by the police, Rush stated the truck had been at a nearby garage for repairs, and that he had just picked it up on his way home from a friend's house on Markham Street. Mrs. Rush however, volunteered that they had driven in to Toronto from Dunnville. Enquiries at the garage established that the truck had been taken out by Rush at noon on the preceding Saturday and had not been returned to the garage. In the Police Court Rush stated in evidence that he and his wife had been to a midnight show and on their way home picked up the truck from a parking lot.

4. The facts of the case were carefully examined by Board investigators, by Board Enforcement Counsel and by the Board's Enforcement Administrator at Ottawa before leave to prosecute was issued by the Board. In sentencing Rush to a fine of $50, the Magistrate presumably took into consideration the fact that there had been a deliberate, wasteful use of gasoline, tires and equipment. It is scarcely credible that he would have imposed such a fine for a mere technical infraction and certainly this Board would not have proceeded with the prosecution had that been the case because all Board officers were advised shortly after the Order first issued that truck drivers are permitted to carry two passengers in the cabs of their trucks when the trucks are being operated as freight vehicles.

No prosecution has ever been initiated by this Board against any truck operator for carrying passengers in the cab while using the truck for transporting goods or for returning to its base after transporting goods. In order that there may be no possibility of a misunderstanding of this nature ever developing, Order 121 is now being amended to define more precisely the prohibition of wasteful and unnecessary use of trucks.

Yours very truly,
DONALD GORDON,
Chairman.
The Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Ottawa, Sept. 16.

Business Is Now A Sin

(THE FINANCIAL POST)

FEW United Church laymen have probably examined the Report of the Committee on Evangelism and Social Service, Toronto Conference, 1943.

Here are a few of the recommendations and views which that report puts forward:

Discussing plans for the postwar world the report comments that: "Many plans brought forward seem to be intended to operate under a continuance of the capitalistic system which perpetuates 'free enterprise and private initiative,' still leaving the means of production and distribution of the necessities of life in the hands of the privileged few, which system proved to be inadequate in pre-war days."

This report, which was distributed just prior to the Ontario election, states: "We would urge the necessity of political action....by open support of those candidates in Dominion, provincial and municipal elections whose avowed policy most nearly coincides with our interpretation of the social action necessary to bring about a more just and equitable society in which all will have the opportunity to fulfill their God-given destiny."

The report goes on to urge the necessity of getting "a new way of doing the world's work."

Under the heading 'The Church and Labour" the report states in part: "We believe that the next great battle of the Kingdom of God is to be fought on the industrial and economic front. We do not suggest that an unjust and outmoded economic order is the only evil thing in our contemporary society, but it is our conviction that it is the major issue and marks the point at which the tension between the old order and the new reaches the upheaval stage."

The report declares that while "No one is disposed to regard the Labour movement as synonymous with the Kingdom of God," the United Church and organized labour ought to "get together....both co-operating at the point of the major issue of the hour....There must be closer identification of organized religion with organized labour and a more courageous participation in the struggle of the workers on the part of the Church." The report recommends that "responsible representatives of Labour be invited to present their case to congregations at Sunday services or on other opportune occasions."

Are the sentiments and the majority of the clergy or people of the Toronto Conference of the United Church properly expressed in this document from the Committee on Evangelism and Social Service?

Is a section of United Church clergy planning to establish itself as a political pressure group, as this document recommends?

The clear implication of this document is that businessmen members of the United Church, as well as the businessmen members of other churches, are the unjustly favored beneficiaries of an "evil thing" which must be eradicated.

The "free enterprise and private initiative" system is put definitely in the category with sin of all kinds, including drunkenness, prostitution, stealing, swearing, etc.

Interesting, isn't it?

Advertising and Democracy

Eliot Warburton, Liaison Officer for the Ministry of Information on the staff of the High Commissioner of the United Kingdom in Ottawa, in his address before the advertising and Sales Executives Club of Montreal, cast interesting light on the workings of business in a democracy as contrasted with conditions in a totalitarian state. In Nazi Germany advertising has no place; the people are told what to buy and the press is directed by the government. In Great Britain, on the other hand, the press, like the people, is free, and the purchaser has an open choice of commodities.

Newspapers and other businesses have had a trying time in the United Kingdom because of war's developments. Goods in many lines are extremely scarce: it is a seller's market, with fewer products and the buyers with plenty of money to spend. Of necessity, advertising has been adversely affected and the size of the newspapers has been drastically reduced. Nevertheless, business continues to advertise through the medium of the press, paying higher rates for smaller lineage. It is testimony to the capacity of British newspaper management and staffs that despite the handicaps of the times, only 12 of Britain's 1,950 newspapers have had to suspend operations. The newspapers serve in war and in peace and the wise and farseeing advertiser keeps his trade name and his merchandise constantly in the public eye.—Montreal Gazette.

A Bible Message

O Lord, how manifold are thy works! in wisdom hast thou made them all: the earth is full of thy riches....Thou sendest forth thy spirit, they are created: and thou renewest the face of the earth. The glory of the Lord shall endure for ever: the Lord shall rejoice in his works....

I will sing unto the Lord as long as I live: I will sing praise to my God while I have my being. (Ps. 104: 24, 30, 31, 33.)

For the word of the Lord is right; and all his works are done in truth. He loveth righteousness and judgment: the earth is full of the goodness of the Lord....

The Lord bringeth the counsel of the heathen to nought: he maketh the devices of the people of none effect. The counsel of the Lord standeth for ever, the thoughts of his heart to all generations. (Ps. 33: 4, 5, 10, 11.)

Unconsidered Trifles

At a regimental dinner, the colonel came round and put a fatherly hand on the shoulder of the young subaltern.

"Look here, my boy," he said, "this is your first dinner, and I know you won't mind a little advice from me. Go easy with the decanter, and don't try to stick it too long. Here's a good tip for you. You see those two candlesticks there? Well, when you begin to see four instead of two, clear off."

'All right, sir," said the young man. "But I can't see more than one at present."

"Could you become president of the United States?"

"Why not?" persisted the official.

"You please excuse," begged the Italian. "I very busy right now sella de peanuts."

Wild Oats in Parliament

The House of Commons the other day echoed to the most startling, most devastating attack in recent years on a long-cherished institution. It came from an astonishing source. A member for Glasgow branded oatmeal porridge as "one of the greatest swindles worked on an innocent and unsuspecting people." Worse: he suggested that this traditional breakfast food—the dish, presumably, that built the brawn of Bruce and Wallace—had no food value at all!

Can such statements go unchallenged? Are parents and school teachers, both north and south of the Border, prepared to abandon all those promises to youth, that they will be a bigger boy or a bigger girl, that their hair will curl, that they will qualify for the first eleven, or head the class in Latin, if they will eat up all their porridge. And what of the convincing posters which influenced at least one generation, with a picture of Wee Ma'Greegor, knees far below his kilt, complaining, "Ma mother won't give me any more porridge. It makes me grow oot o' ma clothes"?

Can the nursery retain its faith in the epicurean judgment of Goldilocks if it is proved that the breakfast of the Three Bears contained no nourishment? Surely the gentleman from Glasgow should consider the millions of persons who grew up firm in the conviction that "Eat your porridge" was an unwritten Commandment, only by oversight detached from the other ten.

A survey might reveal that porridge no longer fills the northern bowls morning after morning, year in, year out. Memory, however, still dignifies the tradition, and only the most reckless of iconoclasts would voice a doubt.

Summer Work Wages Creates Problem for C.A.S.

The September meeting of the Children's Aid Society was held on Monday afternoon in the Council Chamber with the president, Mr. James Dutton, in the chair. Miss Rachael Young, supervisor, gave a report on the work of the Society during the months of June, July and August, reporting that 112 families had come to the attention of the Society, as compared with 80 during the same period last year, and increase of more than ten per month.

Miss Young regretted that, because of this increase, the staff had been forced to disregard seemingly minor complaints to the point of making one visit, or even an office interview, suffice. This, she felt, was a backward step to the days when warnings were given families without any attempt being made to help them. Investigations for the Dependants Board of Trustees are taking up an increasing amount of the Society's time.

Among the problems faced by the Society in the last three months was that of children left alone, an ill parent who refuses proper treatment and should have no responsibility for the child, drunkenness, poor housekeeping, and the problem of children who have earned good wages during the summer and now feel that they would rather work than go back to school. As this last is less necessary now than ever before, Miss Young feels it is impotant that these children of fourteen and fifteen should remain at school.

Records Good

The emergency work, Miss Young said, has permitted too little time to be spent with the wards of the Society, but she expressed satisfaction with the work records of the boys and girls who were employed during the summer, although some problems have arisen out of this.

Four wards were discharged to their parents, two adoptions completed and fourteen cases under the Unmarried Parents Act came to the attention of the Society. Several children might be placed for adoption if the services of a mental health clinic were available to help in the decision.

In discussing the matter of the investigation for the Dependants Board of Trustees, it was suggested that a temporary assistant be engaged to help with these, in order to give the staff more time for their proper work. The possibility of the re-establishment of a Mental Health Clinic in Peterborough was discussed and at Mr. G. K. Fraser's suggestion it was decided to write to Dr. Vivian, Minister of Health, suggesting such a course.

Mr. A. Archibald reported that the large refrigerator ordered for the shelter had been out of stock, but that a smaller size had been accepted and was proving quite satisfactory. Mrs. G. R. Marshall and Mr. T. Grady were appointed to look after the purchase of apples and potatoes for the shelter.

Bishop Speaks To League

The September meeting of the St. Peter's subdivision of the C.W.L. was held on Monday evening in the Knights of Columbus rooms. His Excellency Bishop MacDonald and Rev. Father Finn were present at this meeting and each member was introduced to His Excellency.

The president, Miss Lillian Hurley, presided and conveners' reports included that of Mrs. P. J. Burke, in charge of the military work; Mrs. George Lynch, the Navy League; Miss Theresa McNamara, Red Cross convener, and Mrs. Carroll, liaison officer for this organization.

His Excellency Bishop MacDonald spoke to the members on the obligations of the league and its purpose in parish, diocesan, national and international work and tentative post-war construction. Musical numbers were given by Miss Phyllis Cowie and by Miss C...erine Corkery. Accompanists were Miss Marion Best and Miss Marnie Corkery.

The members voted $10.00 to be given to the corvette, "Peterborough," and also $25.00 to St. Peter's School library.

Sir Harry Ross Skinner, 76, known for his work as an engineer in Africa, is dead. He was director of high explosive supply at the Ministry of Munitions in the last war.

BLAME THAT SICK HEADACHE ON YOUR LIVER

Headache is often Nature's warning the system is "backfiring" with impurities. A sluggish liver not producing enough liver bile, is generally to blame.

Your liver must produce 1 to 2 pints of bile daily to help digest fatty foods, promote regularity. If it slows down, poisons accumulate. This leads to sick headaches, sour stomach, indigestion, billousness, bad breath, a worn-out, half-sick feeling. The gentle, all-vegetable way to stimulate liver bile is with BILE BEANS.

"The Medicine That Copies Nature", Bile Beans contain 10 pure vegetable extracts which act on liver, stomach and kidneys ever so gently. These small liver pills do not gripe, nauseate or weaken like harsh purgatives. Mild, yet effective.

For a peppier, brighter tomorrow, try Bile Beans tonight. Prove for yourself their amazingly gentle action. Over 7 million boxes used last year, convincing evidence of how greatly they are helping others.

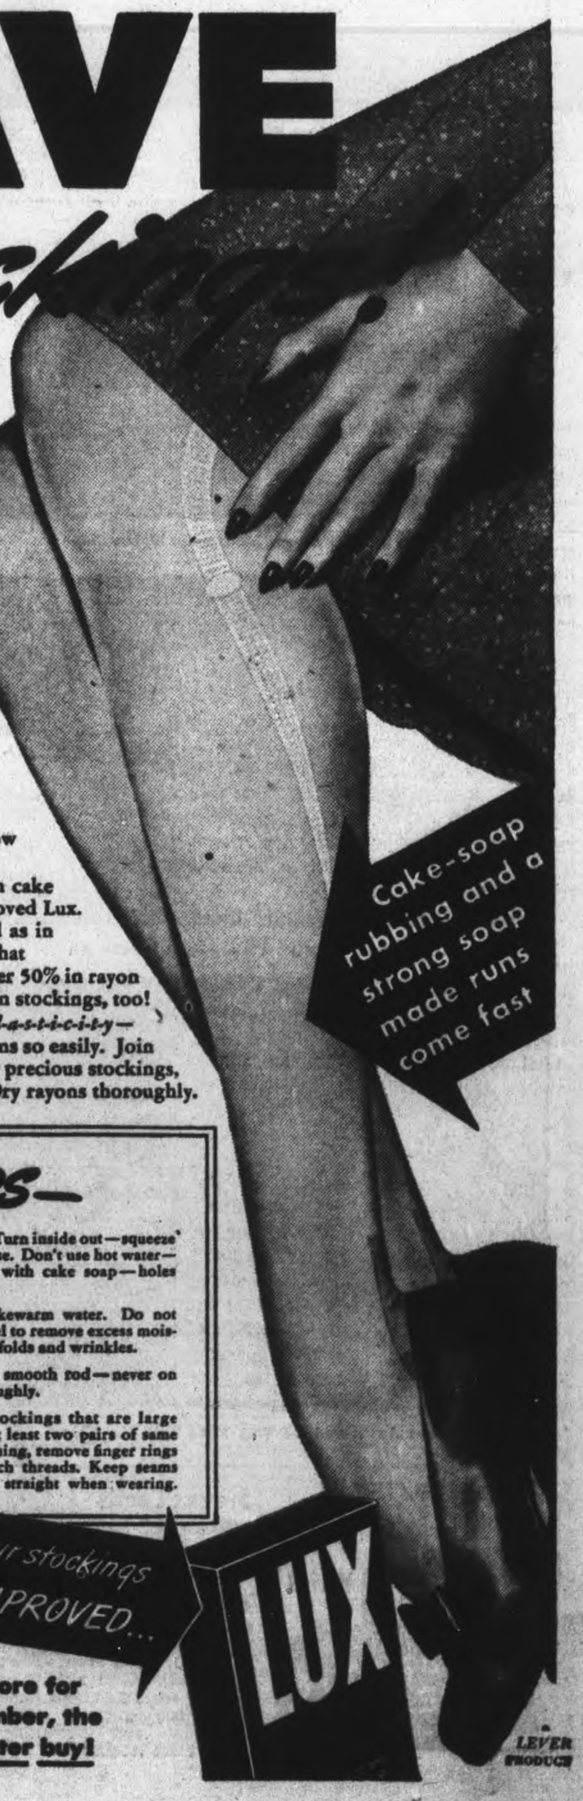
SAVE Stockings



● A famous test laboratory recently discovered something you should know about stockings!

Some stockings were rubbed with cake soap, some washed with new, improved Lux. Then they were pulled and strained as in everyday wear. These tests proved that washing with Lux cut down runs over 50% in rayon stockings. Similar results with cotton stockings, too!

Dipping in Lux saves stocking e-l-a-s-t-i-c-i-t-y—that's why threads won't pop into runs so easily. Join the Lux Daily Dippers and save your precious stockings, too. Dip them in Lux every night. Dry rayons thoroughly.

THRIFT TIPS—

WASHING ... Dip after each wearing. Turn inside out—squeeze lukewarm, rich Lux suds through hose. Don't use hot water—it may fade the colour. Don't rub with cake soap—holes may appear.

RINSING ... Rinse thoroughly in lukewarm water. Do not wring or twist. Roll in Turkish towel to remove excess moisture. Unroll immediately. Shake out folds and wrinkles.

DRYING ... Dry indoors. Hang over smooth rod—never on radiator. Dry rayon stockings thoroughly.

CONSERVATION HINTS ... Buy stockings that are large enough and the right length. Get at least two pairs of same colour and wear alternately. In washing, remove finger rings that may catch threads. Keep seams straight when wearing.

TONIGHT Dip your stockings in NEW IMPROVED... LUX

The mildest, safest LUX ever made! New, bigger package, more for your money! And remember, the large size is an even better buy!

Stukus Leads

TORONTO, Sept. 21—(CP)—Big Annis Stukus of Toronto Balmy Beach was the biggest point-getter in the opening day's program in the Ontario Rugby Football Union's senior series, it was shown yesterday in scoring statistics compiled by The Canadian Press. The husky quarterback tallied nine points for Beaches against Ottawa Combines, kicking two successful three-point placements and converting his team's three touchdowns.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The Westclox girls, senior champions of the local Girls' Softball loop will take up their quest for the intermediate Ontario title tomorrow when they invade Stratford for a game with the Classic City girls who have conquered Guelph and St. Catharines. The series will be a best-of-three affair with the second game to be played here on Saturday afternoon and if a third should be necessary it will be staged on Saturday evening. It was expected that the Westclox first appearance in the provincial playdowns would be in the finals but it is intimated that the Preston Rivulettes, last year's champs, have been reinstated and will enter the final round, although the Big Bens have not been officially notified of that development yet. The Stratford team on its season's record looks strong but the Westclockers are entering the round with lots of confidence. The only drawback is that the Big Bens have not had a league game for a month or a game of any kind since they played Ottawa here in an exhibition affair two weeks ago yesterday. That will be a disadvantage but Manager Pat Hayden's squad hope to overcome it and get away on the right foot in the series by winning right in Stratford tomorrow.

With the exception of Eunice Armstrong who has a bad knee and may not be able to see action in the provincial series the Peterborough champs are in good shape for the acid test. They have Marg. Watson and Isobel Bullock ready to do the pitching duties, with Isobel Bullock and Beryl Dobbin available for the catching job. For the infield positions Jean Castle, Viola McLean, Verna Patterson and Marg. Hawthorne and Beryl Dobbin when she's not catching will be in lineup along with Eunice Armstrong if she is able to play while Barbara Rome, Aggie Anderson and Doris Walker will look after the outfield posts. Tomorrow evening's game has been called for 6 o'clock in Stratford but the Westclockers have asked the league officials to get the contest under way at 5 o'clock so that ample light will be available for a full nine inning's play. The Big Bens will motor to Stratford, leaving tomorrow morning so as to arrive in plenty of time for the important battle. They made a close bid for provincial honors a year ago and this time hope to go all the way through. They will have Peterborough fans pulling solidly for them as they engage in their initial battle in the Ontario series.

Acid Test For Colts

Soup Campbell's Oshawa Colts are billed to swing into action in Toronto this evening in the first game of their O.A.S.A. intermediate A series with the strong Toronto Invictus club who have just overwhelmed Owen Sound in two straight games. Flash Hollett and Long John Sinclair are stars of the Toronto outfit, concerning which Coach Campbell has the following to say in his column: "With "Long Jawn" Sinclair zipping 'em over with his blazing speed, Owen Sound batters with the exception of Jordan, couldn't do a thing in Toronto. Invictus has a real club behind Sinclair too, including "Flash" Hollett of Boston Bruins' fame and several others of Senior "A" calibre. As a matter of fact, this looks like another one of those years when Toronto rings in a team of Senior calibre softballers making a bid for the Intermediate "A" title. However, the Colts may surprise even Mr. Sinclair. It's not so long ago since the same group of Oshawa softballers made "Bus" Benson, another Toronto senior ace, take a back seat in an O.A.S.A. playoff series and last year's Colts beat a smart Toronto team when they eliminated Lipsons. The Oshawa club has plenty of experience—batting power, defensive strength and excellent pitching and that combination will be hard to beat, no matter who tries it. Should Invictus eliminate Owen Sound this afternoon, the first game of the O.A.S.A. semi-finals will be played at Oakmount Park in Toronto on Tuesday at 5:30 o'clock."

A Different McCready

They have their troubles in the Belleville City Softball League too where the final championship series has been held up by squabbling. Here is what Ken Colling says about the mixup in his Belleville sport column: "Following the unsatisfactory conclusion of Wednesday's No. 5 I.T.S.-Reliance city league softball championship game both teams are now rather reluctant to continue the series for the city title. FO. Mel Warren says his Flyers are of the opinion that they should be awarded the title owing to the "stalling tactics" of Reliance. On the other hand Coach Pryke of Reliance is indifferent about the whole thing and lays the blame for the game being late in starting at the Flyers' door. "After all they were supposed to have an umpire of their own on hand and we waited 20 minutes and he didn't show up. That's why we didn't get seven innings terminated," stated Coach Pryke as he said Reliance was cooling off towards the series. In the meantime the problem is being handled by Vice President Joe Samain who hopes to have a solution to announce soon. (Can't play next week boys, remember the Belleville Fair.)"

* * * * * *

Frank Tunney's weekly wrestling card last night was featured, as this column predicted, by a fighting display by Earl McCready, who usually wrestles as clean as a whip but last night fought Doc Tony Felice in his own back alley style. It wasn't the customary McCready technique but the crowd got quite a kick out of it at that. They realized that the Moose had a score to settle after the coat-hanger incident in Toronto the other night and they cheered every time he waded into the Coast bad man. Before the bout there was suspicion that Felice might try something of the same kind here and when he refused for some time to allow Referee Maxwell to search him the crowd was sure that he had a secret weapon to use on the Aurora farmer. However the rowdy Doc was merely kidding the troops for when he finally submitted to being searched he was given a clean bill. With McCready slugging it out with Felice and Hogan and Flanagan in a riotious battle in the main bout the Tunney card dished out plenty of fireworks. There has been more wrestling on some of the bills this season but few of them produced any more action.

The Syracuse Chiefs will battle it out with the Toronto Leafs for the Governors' Cup. The Chiefs cleaned up their series 4 games to 2 last eve when they swamped Newark Bears 14 to 4 in the final fixture. So far as being a contest was concerned the affair was a washout. The more than 10,000 Syracuse fans in attendance could have gone home and celebrated before the last half of the first inning was over for the Chiefs had a parade around the bases in the opening frame that included everything but a drum major and a brass band. Before Newark could get the side out Syracuse had scored nine runs and the rest of the game was a total loss so far as interest was concerned. Now the Chiefs and Leafs will hook up in a best-of-seven series with the first game in Toronto tomorrow night and the second in the same city Thursday after which the teams will shift to Syracuse for games Saturday, Sunday and if necessary Monday—if any more battles are required after that the series would revert back to Toronto to be finished there.

QueenMaryCrew Loses 2 to 1 In Fast Battle

Queen Mary and Queen Alexandra Public School soccer teams opened the school schedule on Monday afternoon, on King Edward Park, when the north-enders gained the decision in the early part of the game by the score of two to one. Simmonds getting the two goals for the winners and Bradley for the losers.

First Half.

Second Half.

A re-organized eleven by Queen Mary resulted in Butcher replacing Finnie at centre-forward and his presence was made known through his aggressive play that eventually allowed Bradley to pick the corner of the upright, thereby giving Jary no chance to save. Encouraged by their success, Queen Mary boys went out on the offensive but failed to convert after carrying the play into goal. Queen Alex halfbacks responded with clever tackling to hold their opponents in check. Full time: Queen Alexandra 2. Queen Mary 1.

Queen Mary:—V. Revoy, goal; J. Gray and R. Knapp full backs; J. Shield, R. Fisher and J. Flowers, half-backs; J. Collins, R. Russel, K. Nichols, G. Bradley and L. Smith forwards. Subs: W. Finnie, H. Grafstein, J. Barnsley and H. McEwan.

Queen Alexandra:— W. Jary, goal; R. Morgan and D. Crawford, full backs; D. Richardson, C. Jewell and T. Morin half backs; J. Nicholls, G. Simmonds, G. Dracup, K. Powers and A. Hawthorne forwards. Subs: D. Welsh and L. Gaskill.

23 Top Horses Named For Stakes

TORONTO, Sept. 21. — Nominations for this year's renewal of the historic Grey Stakes, one of the features of the opening day's program of the Ontario Jockey Club at Woodbine Park on Saturday, total 23.

Among those nominated are the Riverdale Stable's Nimblefoot, winner of the Clarendon Plate at the Woodbine Park last Saturday, and Frank Ellin's Air Pan. The latter is unbeaten in his three starts this season.

Others on the list are: Joe's Mistake, Good Mixer, Robert T., Attester, Maracay, Garza, For Freedom, Jessica, Cyperac, That's Easy, Heysiris, Huelwen, Pygarg, Hemfox, Echo Beach, Executive, Green Bush, Sand Storm, Acara, and Sayonora.

The Grey Stakes had its first renewal back in 1906. Recent winners of this race include Gallant Foe, Air Sure, Jacscarf, Second Helping, Peterhof, Poona, Aldwych, Abbatoro, Horometer, and Brannon.

The Grey Stakes carries a purse of $2,000 added, an increase of $800 over last year. It is an "open" event for juveniles, and the winner is considered the best two-year-old in training in the Dominion. The distance is one mile and 70 yards.

Weights for the Grey Stakes will be announced on Thursday.

TRAIN LIGHTING.

Lighting in passenger trains will soon be up to the new standards agreed between the Ministries of War Transport and Home Security. It will be an improvement on last winter but still not the equivalent of peacetime conditions.

LAWN BOWLING

To Benny Chesler's rink goes the honor of club champions. Taking the lead right on the first end and increasing it by leaps and bounds as the game progressed they finally finished up with a 33-8 score. They clicked on everything, and everything came their way. Try as H. Darling would, he could not just make the grade. Everything went haywire, with the result that the game was not at all interesting from a spectator's viewpoint. However, that is how some games go. So we offer congratulations to all and hope to see all around again next season.

In the finals of the extra series primary competition it looked for a while as if the Moore rink was going to have a walkover, but a big six along about the tenth end put the Burns boys right back in the game, and from then on steadily increased their lead till they finished up on the long end of the event 24-15.

In this series the rinks were turned around with the younger players doing all the skipping. To say they did a good job is putting it mildly. They did an excellent piece of work, and so we say to them also, congratulations.

Our program for Wednesday is this: Men's doubles, choose your own partner. Play commences at 1:30 o'clock. Three 16-ends; fee $1.50 per pair. Continuous playing. No supper hour. We'll be seeing you.

Charley Keller, Yankees — They call him King Kong; if he can't scare the opposing pitchers into submission, he clubs 'em....Has hit 28 home runs and has drawn more than 100 walks this season—all on a .271 batting average....Made only four hits in the '42 World Series but two were homers, accounting for five runs....Appearing in fourth World Series in five years of major league ball.

Danny Litwhiler, Cardinals—Danny played in 151 games for the Phillies last year without making an error, and apparently it wasn't an error when he hurt his leg in a race on opening day last spring....That led to his being trade to the Cards and to the brand new experience of collecting a World Series cheque...Hitting an undistinguished .266.

SYRACUSE CHIEFS DOWN NEWARK TO ENTER FINALS AGAINST LEAFS

Score 9 Runs In First Take Game 14-4

By The Canadian Press.

Toronto Maple Leafs, by virtue of their clean sweep over Montreal in the semi-finals, ruled slight favorites to-day to defeat Syracuse Chiefs in the final round of the International Baseball League play-offs and advance into the Little World Series against the American Association champions.

Aided by a nine-run first inning the Chiefs last night downed the Newark Bears 14-4 in the sixth game of the lower-bracket semi-final round and earned the right to oppose the Leafs, 1943 pennant winners, in the finals. Toronto had eliminated Montreal Royals on Sunday, completing a four-game sweep of the best-of-seven series.

The best-of-seven-game final series opens in Toronto on Wednesday night, League President Frank Shaughnessy announced in New York last night, with the second game also in the Canadian City on Thursday night. The third and fourth games, and fifth, if necessary, will be played in Syracuse on Saturday, Sunday and Monday when the series will revert to Toronto if further games are required.

Pitcher Not Named.

Although Manager Burleigh Grimes has not yet announced his starting pitcher, it is not unlikely that Luke (Hot Potato) Hamlin, former National Leaguer, will open the series for Toronto. During the regular season Hamlin established a league record by shutting out Syracuse five times. He had eight shutouts during the year.

Millard Howell, who hurled two good games for the Chiefs in their six-game brush with the Bears although he won only one, may be the choice of Manager Jewell Ens.

The American Association play-offs to determine that loop's entrant in the Little World Series open to-night, with third-place Columbus meeting Milwaukee, 1943 pennant winners, and fourth-place Toledo engaging second-place Indianapolis.

New Orleans Tops

DETROIT— (AP)— New Orleans Jax came through last night in defense of their women's amateur softball championship by defeating Phoenix, Ariz., 7-0 in the final clash of the world's tourney before 5,000 fans. Nina Korgan, who pitched her 1941 and 1942 teams to the title, was credited with a one-hit performance.

TORONTO, Sept. 21 — (CP)— The Senior Amateur Hockey situation is clarifying in the West although it remains cloudy in the East.

Apparently Vancouver Island will see some hockey despite the ban on service teams. The probability is that Victoria Machinery Depot, a civilian team, will operate in a league with mainland clubs, New Westminster Canadian Airways, Vancouver St. Regis and possibly Vancouver R. C. A. F. Nanaimo is unlikely to have a team this season.

An Alberta Service League is likely to include the Red Deer Army team, feature Mac Colville, Jim Henry and a few other big-name players, and at least two Calgary clubs. Lethbridge is likely to be left out of the league and of course Edmonton remains without a rink and will have no senior hockey.

Saskatchewan is unlikely to have a senior league. The R. C. A. F. has announced it will not sponsor Saskatoon and Yorkton teams again and Regina Army is not eager to operate. Flin Flon Bombers are anxious for another season's play but chances are they'll be without a league.

The Winnipeg Service circuit will function again with each service represented.

Rumors of varied set-ups are flying in the East but the picture remains a bit confused. One rumor says the Ottawa Senior League will not operate. One of 1942-43 members, Kingston Frontenacs are hoping for a hook-up with Toronto service teams. Red Hamill, former Chicago Black Hawks star, has been named coach of the Kingston club to succeed Wally Elmer, who has resigned to devote more time to his business.

Despite the ban on an army team in Cornwall, that St. Lawrence river city hopes to have a team again in the Quebec Senior League. There has been little information to date on the prospects of the Quebec circuit and the same applies to the Maritimes.

Incidenally:

Lou Adelman, a stor for 20 years with Winnipeg Football teams and one of the greatest snapbacks in Western grid history, is writing a football column for the Winnipeg Free Press—the column formerly done by Joe Ryan, now a Government employee at Ottawa .... When Russell Johnson pitched that no-hit softball game for Hamilton Majors last week in beating St. Catharines 3-0 it was the only nine-inning perfect game this corner has heard of in Canada this season. Not a single St. Kitts batter reached first.

Yank Pennant Still Uncertain

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The major leagues will swing into their last intersectional round robin of the season tomorrow and instead of everybody ogling St. Louis Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers as appeared likely when the schedule was drawn up, attention will be centred on the New York Yankees' games with Detroit Tigers.

The three games with the Dodgers this week only mean to the Cardinals a chance to rub salt on old wounds. They could do this effectively by bumping Brooklyn out of second place if they haven't let down as the result of clinching the National Legaue pennant Saturday.

However, the controversy over second place in the senior circuit will be in eclipse until the Yankees complete the businss of winning the American League flag.

They had a chance to do it at Washington last week-end, but were set down surprisingly in three consecutive games as the Senators reinforced their hold on the runner-up spot.

As a result the Yankees still need a combination of five victories of their own or defeats for Washington to eliminate the Senators.

Burrards Win

VANCOUVER, Sept. 21—(CP)— Vancouver Burrards withstood a late attack by New Westminster Salmonbellies last night, to register a slim 7-6 victory and tie up the best of seven game inter-city box lacrosse league playoffs at one game each. Salmonbellies won the first game Saturday 16-14.

Fans Are Angry When Match Is Awarded To Dick Hogan

Skulduggery triumphed in the main bout of Frank Tunney's weekly wrestling card at the Brock Street Arena Monday night when Rowdy Dick Hogan, with a little help from Referee Bert Maxwell, defeated the people's favorite, Irish Pat Flanagan two falls to one. The customers didn't like the windup a little bit. Hogan was surrounded by a milling crowd as he walked across the arena at the end of the bout and when someone tossed a bottle at the coast battler the situation threatened to get serious for a few moments. However police escorted Hogan to the dressing-room and averted trouble.

The winning fall caused most of the uproar. The rough-house Hogan had taken the first fall in 19 minutes and Flanagan evened things up eight minutes afterward. It was hot and heavy in the third round and the Toronto Irishman looked to be well away when he picked Hogan up and bounced him several times with body slams that shook the arena. He tried it the third time and Hogan managed to grab the ropes. When Referee Maxwell broke the hold Flanagan fell on his back and Hogan flew through the air and dropped squarely on his prostrate opponent, easily pinning his shoulders to the mat and Maxwell awarded him the fall, to the disgust of the crowd. Flanagan protested vehemently but the referee stuck to his decision.

It was a tough battle with Flanagan on the catching end of a lot of rough stuff by Hogan who punched and pulled hair, gouged and kicked to his heart's content. The Toronto grappler came back at him with some of the same punishment to the delight of the fans but it did not stop the Coast battler who kept on handing out the rough stuff. It won for him, too, for he took the first fall by the simple expedient of punching and kicking Flanagan until he had him nicely softened up and then using a body slam for the kill. Hogan was roundly booed after the referee had raised his hand to signify the fall and he responded by inviting his hecklers to come into the ring and fight it out.

After the rest he went back at Flanagan with the same tactics and had the Toronto man in difficulties several times. However Flanagan finally got an opening to slip in his pet mule kick and it landed right on the button to topple Hogan off his feet. Flanagan promptly flopped on him and pinned him to the mat. The fall came after eight minutes.

The battlers went nine minutes in the third round before the unexpected ending that saw Hogan cash in on the referee's action to get the fall that won the bout.

Both Counted Out

Earl McCready won a battle with Doc Felice in the semi-final bout but lost the chance to win the decision because of his anxiety to get even with the Coast mat artist for the coat-hanger incident that featured the last Toronto card. Last night's crowd did not see the usual amiable McCready do much wrestling but they did see him do more fighting than in any previous bout here. He went after Felice early and gave him a rough ride with punishing arm and toe holds and on one occasion he had the rocking-chair cradle hold on the Doc and had him all set for a few spins around the ring but it was too close to the ropes and Felice saved himself on that occasion.

A little later McCready kicked Felice through the ropes and he hit the floor with a jolt. Then he started to parade around outside the ring, inviting McCready to come out and fight him there. However the Moose declined the bid. A little later, however, when Felice was tossed out again, McCready followed him and they started to battle on the floor of the rink. They managed to get back before Referee Maxwell finished his count. However when Doc landed outside for the third time McCready lost his head and climbed over the ropes and fought him first on the apron of the ring and then on the floor. Referee Maxwell proceeded to count both men out and just as he reached the count of ten Moose felled the coast battler with an elbow smash to the jaw, while the crowd cheered. It was an automatic draw but McCready had the satisfaction of beating Felice to the floor and he was probably willing to settle for that.

A Win for Miller

Sergt. Ted Miller of the R.C.A.F. won the curtain-raiser from Johnny Gyroffy of Ottawa after 15 minutes of smart wrestling. The two boys put on a good show with punishing head and arm holds and honors were about even until a monkey drop hold that mis-fired cost Gyroffy the bout. The Ottawa boy had twice floored the Air Force grappler with the hold but when he tried it the third time in succession he failed to make good and dropped to the floor himself when he missed connections. Before he could recover Miller pounced on him and spread him for the fall. It was a good exhibition of clean-cut wrestling and might have gone for a draw if the break hadn't bobbed up.

Bert Maxwell refereed all three bouts and Fred Scates was in his usual dual role of announcer and timer.

To the 42nd Company of the Canadian Women's Army Corps went the handsome trophy inscribed: "Canadian Forces Overseas, C. W. A. C., champions, England, 1943" —according to a cable from London last night describing the climax of the Women's Softball Championship of the mother country.

Nos. 41 and 42 Companies qualified for the three-game titular competition for the cup and the 42's started off badly with a 17-9 reverse. According to their sports officer, Lieut. Doris Yarwood of Edmonton, however, they swept the next two games by pluck and determination by the scores of 12-4 and 25-5. The Ontario Amazons on the championship line-up were Ptes. Helen F. Ings of London and Margaret E. Sheldon of Cochrance, and L. Cpl. Eileen M. Pembroke of Owen Sound. The championship series was played in Hyde Park where large crowds of English spectators gathered to witness the Canadian girls slamming 'em out to the accompaniment of mystifying rooting by the weaker sex.

Hamilton In Finals.

In the fourth game of the semi-finals, Hamilton last night walked off with a 1-0 decision against St. Catharines at Hamilton in the Senior semi-finals of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association and will now clash, with the Toronto finalists. Newell Woods, for the winners, allowed only one hit.

Facing domestic as well as baseball worries, Manager Leo Durocher of the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday filed a denial in the St. Louis Circuit Court against the allegations of his wife, Mrs. Grace D. Durocher, of general indignities on which she based her claim for divorce, on which a hearing has not yet been set.

Card Southpaws Carry Load In World Series

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(AP)—It might be a good idea to tip off the National leaguers that they're looking for a leak in the gas meter with a lit match when they holler that (1) the Yankees can't do a thing against left-handers and (2) that the three top St. Louis Cardinal southpaws figure to be fearful things to the Bombers in the forthcoming world series.

The chief thing wrong with that picture is that no one seems thinking about what the Yanks might do to the retired portsiders.

So far this season, the Yankees have encountered 16 southpaws. They've won 20 and lost 12 in those games.

While the Cards' top three—Max Lanier, Alpha (Bet) Brazle and Oklahoma Harry Brecheen—are all tops, there isn't a Carl Hubbell in the lot.

Mediocre Pitching

The way things shape up, however, Billy Southworth practically has to depend on his southpaws to turn the trick. As a mater of fact, the tossing on both sides is strictly out of the grab bag, because Joe McCarthy's Yankee staff, aside from Spud Chandler, is mostly hot-and-cold.

Right-hander Mort Cooper, a 20-game winner again, is the ace of the Cards deck, but he was clubbed out twice in last year's series and has been whacked with abandon in two all-star game appearance. Despite that, he'll probably get the call to lead off the first game.

Like Cooper, Chandler, the bell-cow of the Yanks' mound corps, has been largely a series flop. He's had two cracks at series rivals—and failed each time.

With 19 victories already in the satchel for this year, Spud appears certain to hit the 20-game mark and become the Yanks starter in the first game.

Canadian Minesweepers Frustrate Enemy Plans To Bottle Up Halifax Harbor With High-Explosive Mine Fields

The Royal Canadian Navy's fighting ships, manned by sailors from every province in the Dominion, recently foiled enemy attempts to plug Halifax Harbor with mines. Today the Navy has complete control of eastern Canadian waters. Here a mine explodes close astern of one of the minesweepers.

Here is Sub-Lieut. William Hodge, R.C.N.V.R., of Winnipeg, who played an important role aboard his tiny magnetic minesweeper. One of Canada's "black ensign fleet" which keeps Halifax harbor free of enemy mines. Lifebelts are a "must" at all times.

The Royal Canadian Navy's fighting ships, big and small, manned by sailors from every province in the Dominion, recently frustrated enemy plans to bottle up Halifax harbor with high-explosive minefields. Here are the ships, taken during the mine disposal operations when one slip could spell disaster, as they plunge and roll through heavy seas.

Boats Proudly Display Battle Insignia

AN EASTERN CANADIAN PORT, Sept. 21.—(CP). — Canada's tiny "Black Ensign" minesweeping fleet —riding high with pride — churn in and out of harbor these days bearing their own special marks of distinction, a tribute to their victory over the Nazi attempt to bottle up shipping in Halifax with high-explosive mines.

These marks of distinction are Mine Destruction Insignia conspicuously painted on the ships in the form of bars, chevrons and stars signifying the number of mines destroyed by each individual ship and flotilla. They are in different colors, some meaning the ship got a certain number themselves, others meaning they assisted in the destruction of a certain number.

"The largest numbmer destroyed by any one ship totalled 28," one official said, "and they're the proudest ship in the whole navy. They didn't waste any time in chahlking up their score on the funnel. Other ships came pretty close to beating them and it was stiff competition all the way through.

Envy Of All.

"Right now, the minesweepers are the envy of every ship that ties up here."

The man immediately responsible for the safety of ships and the elimination of the German mine threat to shipping was Lt.-Cmdr. R. M. Barkhouse, R.C.N.R., Halifax port mine-seeping officer, who told interviewers „we knew exactly what we were going to do—we had made our preparations for this long in advance.

"I must say we were lucky—very lucky—for the best plans in the world can go astray," he continued. "But we had three problems first to clear a channel for convoys, second to determine the extent of the minefield by exploratory sweeps, and third to mop up the mines. Our men did all three.

"I'd like to say a word about the officers and men. From seamen to C.O. they were wonderful. For two weeks they kept going at 20 hours a day, and there wasn't a single defaulter. The more they swept the more they wanted to, and I didn't hear a single grumble."

A veteran minesweeper Lt.-Commander Barkhouse himself went to sea during the first three sleepless days and personally directed the operations of his fleet. During the First Great War he sailed the first Canadian drifter sweeper to Gibraltar and put it to work.

Terrific Explosion.

Lieut. Bob Stark, R.C.N.V.R., of Victoria, skipper of tiny sweeper, said the men had to wait a long time for a crack to "real" minesweeping, but were "rewarded a hundredfold."

"We waited nearly four years for this to happen, and when it did—well, everyone knows how the crews responded," said Stark, at 23 the youngest Volunteer Reserve minesweeping skipper in the fleet.

"The first mine excited them — the rest just made them determined to finish the job as soon as possible. And that's just what they did. No crew did a better job than mine.

"Even though for five straight days we ate three meals a day up on the bridge and averaged less than four hours' sleep a night we never were happier in our lives. We felt that at least we were accomplishing something after the months and months of monotonous sweeping."

Sub-Lieut. Jack Cavanagh, R.C.N.V.R., of Thessalon, Ont., said the ship "rumbled and rolled" when the first mine went off," he said. "The paint went flying off the pipes. I remember hearing someone mutter something about a mine and rushed up top and sure enough it was a mine."

Leading seaman James Clayton, R.C.N.V.R., of Brockville, Ont., was on watch in the Diesel room when the first mine was destroyed and admitted he was "kind of scared."

"I had been minesweeping for a year and this was the first excitement I had run into—it was worth waiting a year for," he added.

Allies Take Eboli Beyond Salerno

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, Sept. 21—(AP).—The Anglo-American 5th Army has captured Eboli, southeast of the Salerno bridgehead.

A communique today said:

"The 8th Army continues to advance in the face of light opposition. In the Salerno-Agropoli sector the 5th Army has made more progress. Eboli has been captured."

Eboli is about 17 miles from Salerno and about 12 miles inland.

The Northwest Africa Air Forces concentrated their attention yesterday on the Salerno battle area in Italy and without opposition practically wiped out a large convoy of enemy motor vehicles.

Fifty gasoline and oil laden trucks travelling west of Potenza were bombed and strafed and when fighter bombers pulled away 30 big tank trucks were afire and others were damaged. Other motor transport also was attacked, and the day's bag was 67 destroyed and as many damaged.

Bombers attacked roads and railways within a short distance of the front and once again not a single German aircraft came up to try to stop them.

Pound Roads

During last night R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. Wellingtons bombed roads and railway yards in Benevento, some 30 miles north of the Salerno front and a key point in the German supply system.

American heavy bombers hit the railway yards at Toree Annunziata, the tracks south of Pompei and three roads south of Sarno. Medium bombers attacked the road junction at Castelnuovo and the bottleneck between two railway yards at Formia, halting southbound traffic.

The night before, in the face of bad weather, R.A.F. Bostons started fires, hit roads and railway junctions close to the battle area. Yesterday mediums bombed Avellino and Calabritto in the rear of the battle front. Dive-bombers knocked out some gun positions.

There were no losses in yesterday's raids and since there was no opposition no German planes were shot down.

24 Hun Divisions Go To Balkans

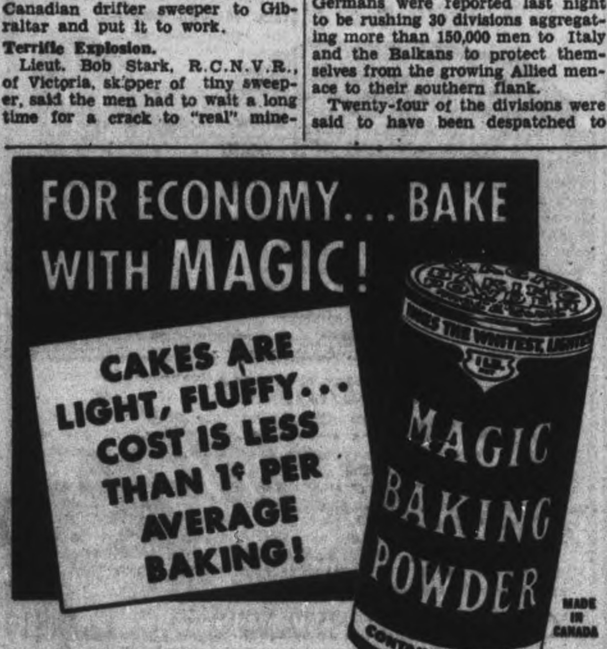
LONDON, Sept. 21— (AP)—The Germans were reported last night to be rushing 30 divisions aggregating more than 150,000 men to Italy and the Balkans to protect themselves from the growing Allied menace to their southern flank.

Twenty-four of the divisions were said to have been despatched to the Balkans and the others to Italy..

These figures came from an informant who is in clandestine communication with sources inside Germany. While they are not subject to precise confirmation, they stood up well against the background of known facts.

The informant said 12 of the divisions were drawn from Hitler's strategic reserves behind the Russian front, while three were taken from Norway and one from Holland. The other 14 were said to be of sub-standard quality, made up of youngsters, convalescents and middle-aged men drawn from the interior of Germany.

This would bring the German troop strength in Italy to about 24 divisions, while the forces sent to the Balkans would largely replace the 27 Italian garrison divisions lost to Hitler upon Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio's surrender.



Report Fake Il Duce

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(AP).—Max Jordan, European manager for the National Broadcasting Company for several years, expressed belief last night that the voice purporting to be that of Benito Mussolini in a European broadcast on Saturday was not that of the deposed Fascist leader.

Workers Frozen On All Jobs Affecting War

OTTAWA, Sept. 21 (CP)—Thousands of workers in high priority industries today went to work at jobs that they cannot leave or be fired from unless a selective service officer approves.

Regulations which practically amount to "freezing" of all male workers in industries of "A" and "B" priority were announced late yesterday by Labor Minister Mitchell—the latest step in the government's program to conserve manpower.

There are no age limits in the new regulations but they do not, "for the present," apply to female employees.

The minister's announcement said the new order provides that: "Employers in "A" or "B" labor priorities may not release male employees without the written permission of a selective service officer. Similarly, male employees in the industries may not give notice of separation to their employers without first having secured the written permission of a selective service officer."

Included in "A" and "B," the two highest priorities, are all war industries and essential civilian services, including the delivery of coal in cities, food processing and meat packing plants, newspaper publication, the dissemination of news.

Many Affected

Local employment and selective service officers are to notify employers that they are in either of the two specified categories, and further elaboration of the industries affected is expected to be issued by the labor department within a day or two.

Mr. Mitchell said that "many thousands of firms" come under the provision of the regulations.

"While every effort will be made to avoid imposing hardship on any individuals, the need of preventing avoidable labor turnover in industries highly important to the war effort is greater than ever, and the new rules are expected to give substantial assistance in that direction," he explained.

The regulations do not interfere with men joining the armed forces or reporting for medical examination or military training under mobilization regulations.

The announcement said that instructions which are being issued to selective service officers will permit job-change permits being issued in cases where "obvious hardship or unfairness" would result from refusal to issue such permits.

adian Navy and the Royal Navy cleared a six-cable (1,200 yards wide) channel within one day to permit a convoy to sail, a feat which drew the congratulations of the Admiralty."

The mining operation was kept secret until now for security reasons.

Immediately upon discovery of the mines, long-prepared plans for action by the winesweeping fleet went into action. Its first task was to clear a channel for ships and to keep that channel swept.

Navy Minister Macdonald said in the statement these operations were carried out "like clockwork," and he had high praise for the officers and men of the minesweeping fleet for their unrelaxed vigilance in a tedious and monotonous job since the outbreak of war.

He said:

"They discharged their duty when faced by enemy action with a thoroughness and efficiency which could not have been excelled—without a single casualty and with a greater degree of success than the most hopeful, knowing the hazards, could have expected."

The crash of exploding mines as they were touched off gave many a seaman whose work has been dull for a long time the thrill of direct contact with war.

In Groups of Six.

George Johnson, 22 of Winnipeg, officer of one of the ships, said the fleet worked in groups of six sweepers from early morning to midnight and sometimes at night—"and believe me we were glad when it was all over."

"I saw 12 mines exploded and the sight of them going off is something I shall never forget," he added. "It's impossible to describe."

AB. Allen Bon of Schreiber, Ont., gunner on one of the ships, has been minesweeping since October, 1940, in Canadian and overseas waters and got a thrill out of the operation.

"I saw lots of them go off overseas but none as big as these," he said. "When they went off the explosion was at least 10 times the size of a depth charge explosion."

Sub-Lt. Harry Hampson of Montreal described the explosions as a "great blast of smoke and water" with a kind of 'rumbling roar' which took three minutes to settle down.

Shaw Thanks Friends Through London Times

LONDON, Sept. 21 —(CP) — George Bernard Shaw, whose wife died September 12, inserted the following in the personal column of to-day's Times of London:

Mr. Bernard Shaw received such a prodigious mass of letters on the occasion of his wife's death that, though he has read and values them all, an attempt to acknowledge them individually is beyond his powers.

"Therefore he begs his friends and hers to be content with this omnibus reply and to assure them that the very happy ending to a very long life has left him awaiting his own turn with perfect serenity."

Expect H.M.C.S. Peterborough Will Be Launched In November

A meeting of the Corvette Committee of the coordinating Citizens Committee was held Monday night to discuss details of the supplying o fequipment for the ship which is to bear the city's name. Committee members were advised of the Navy's point of view in these matters by a representative of the Directorate of Special Services, Sub-Lt. C. A. Hutchins.

H. M. C. S. Peterborough, which is under construction now at yards in Kingston, will be launched late in November or sometime in December and will be ready for commissioning about three months later. In answer to questions regarding the ceremonies of launching, Sub.-Lt. Hutchins explained that decisions largely rested with the ship-builder himself and it could not be determined at the present time whether it would be possible for the corvette to be brought up to Port Hope after the commissioning.

It is the Committee's aim to make more personal the city's interest in the ship, and in order to accomplish this it is planning to supply the personnel of the vessel with many conveniences and articles for entertainment that will make life pleasanter and help to while away idle hours at sea and in port.

The Navy representative explained that while the service favors a system of this kind, realizing its value as a morale builder, it has nevertheless been felt that an equitable distribution through a general clearing house should prevail with regard to all woollen goods. and a regulation exists to carry this out. However, he admitted, it might be possible to get the ship stocked with such goods if they were brought aboard at the outset.

Check Supply List.

One by one the articles on the supply list were brought up for discussion and the questions of kind and quantity and acceptability from the Navy's point of view were examined by the Corvette Committee. These articles ranged all the way from washing-machines and sports equipment to the small personal items that may also be included in the ditty bags.

Quite a few of the items, though very useful on board ship, have become difficult to obtain, and in some cases—as with electric toasters and irons—the Navy itself has taken over and seen to the supply. Radios present a problem, because by the re-radiation of an ordinary receiving set the presence of a ship may be detected by a submarine, and radios which eliminate this feature are nearly impossible to buy.

Supplying of furnishings for ward-room and mess rooms — such things as carpets, mats and curtains —will have to wait upon the word of the ship's captain, who is not ordinarily appointed until a month before commissioning.

An idea of the wide extent of the city's plan to supply the good ship Peterborough is gathered from a list of other goods which will be supplied by the Committee. It includes: Ashtrays, small parlor games, candies and sweets, writing paper, magazines and books, phonograph records, cigarettes, soap, scrubbing basins and boards, coat hangers, sewing kits, hot plates, waterproof flashlights, food luxuries, musical instruments, ditty bags, coffee percolators and numerous other electric fixtures.

$2,500 Be Required.

Ross Dobbin in charge of Finance stated that at least $2,500 would be required in cash between now and early spring to meet expenses in the initial outfitting of the ship, and that continuance of the Committee's work therefore could be met by budget appropriations. Mayor Hamilton said that Directors of the Community Fund did not feel they could give money out of the Fund's surplus this year because none of the money had been collected for this purpose, but it had been agreed that the Corvette Committee should be made an agent of the Community Fund next year. In adjourning the meeting, it was resolved that a further meeting of the Committee should be held in two weeks' time to consider progress and act on suggestions made.

The membership of the Corvette Committee of the Coordinating Citizens Committee is made up as follows: George A. Macdonald, chairman; Ross Dobbin, Finance; H. Garner and C. E. LaBranche, publicity; Gordon Miller, electrical equipment; Mrs. F. Hooper, Mrs. W. Fanning and F. Edgar, furnishings; and an executive committee composed of G. K. Fraser, G. Wilson Craw, Ian MacRae, W. A. Richardson, Percy Moore, H. B. Cowan, Jr.

$10 Is Found In Old Pipe

James Clinton, 17, of Toronto, discharged from the local Military Training Centre Monday pleaded guilty in police court this morning to stealing $10 from Pte. Louis Jobin, stationed at the local camp.

Provost Sergeant Joseph Yateman of the Military Training Centre staff testified that when the money had been missed he had interviewed Clinton who at first stated that he knew nothing of the missing $10.

Later the witness said that in examining a pipe owned by the accused, he had found that the stem had been removed and the $10 bill was hidden beneath some adhesive tape. with one end shoved into the bowl of the pipe.

Questioned by Magistrate O. A. Langley, Clinton admitted that the money found in his pipe had been stolen from Pte. Jobin.

At the request of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., who said that the police wanted to look into the boy's record Clinton was remanded for a week for sentence.

"Sometimes I think these men commit crimes to get out of the army," Magistrate Langley stated.

Crown Attorney McElderry replied that that was not the case with Clinton. The accused, he said, had already been discharged from the army before the crime was committed.

18,000 Workers Affected In Peterboro Area

Approximately 200 firms at a rough estimate and some 18,000 to 20,000 workers in the area of the local Selective Service Office will be covered in the order announced on Monday restricting labor turnover in high priority industries, it was stated this morning by W. H. L. Mellis, labor officer.

The area of the Peterborough office includes the counties of Peterborough, Victoria - Haliburton, Northumberland, and part of Durram County, it was said.

Pointing out that the order does not come as any kind of surprise to his office, Mr. Mellis related that preparations are under way for notifying employers that they are either in A or B categories, and that forms will shortly be sent out to all businesses brought in by the new order.

The necessity for such an order as this for controlling manpower loss from a high turnover in essential industries was underlined by the labor officer when he cited as an instance one important plant where in 18 months' time 441 employees had been hired and 541 had left their jobs.

Too Late Now.

Mr. Mellis went on to say that those who have made plans to change employment but have not already gotten to the point of filing notice of their intentions are simply out of luck if they happen to be employed in an A or B category industry. "The written separation notice," he said, "must have been put on file last week in order for such a person to effect a change in the future."

He added that to fulfill the purpose of the labor decree it would not be possible to grant the written permissions required to obtain exemption from the order without entirely adequate cause.

Women are not included in the present order, Mr. Mellis stated, and may still change jobs without receiving written permission from a Selective Service officer, but they are required as before to file the customary separation notice.

Dog Hit By Car Left By Driver

That a dog struck by an automobils had wandered around with a broken leg for five hours before he could be located and put out of his misery was the statement made in police court this morning by Humane Society Inspector Gerald Dunford after William Jessup, Lakefield, employed in a local plant, had pleaded guilty to abandoning the animal and causing unnecessary suffering.

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., fined Jessup $20 and $2.50 costs.

Jessup said that he did not think the dog had been run over by the car. He said he had been unable to avoid hitting the animal. He had stopped a block away but passengers in the back seat of his car had said that the dog had gone under the car without being struck by the wheels, and that it had disappeared so he had driven off. Later he reported the occurrence to Chief Garnet Samis at Lakefield.

Inspector Dunford said that after the accident two men who were passing by picked up the injured dog and laid him on a nearby lawn. They telephoned the inspector, but when he got there the dog had disappeared. That was at 7 o'clock in the morning, and it was five hours afterward before the animal was discovered in the corner of a yard near the C.P.R. station. The inspector said that the accident had happened on Rubidge Street.

"I don't think you did all you should have," Magistrate Langley told Jessup in imposing the fine. "There was a lot of unnecessary suffering caused."

LIEUT. ROBERT KIRKPATRICK

Bob Kirkpatrick Is Promoted

Word has been received by cable of the promotion while on active service overseas of Robert A. Kirkpatrick, of Peterborough, to the rank of lieutenant.

At the time of his enlistment as a private in the Engineers three years ago, Lieut. Kirkpatrick was employed as inspector at the Canadian General Electric plant here. He rapidly advanced to the rank of sergeant and after going overseas two years ago became a sergeant-instructor and was later assigned to special duties in connection with selective service, which took him to the camps of nearly all Canadian units then in England.

Soon after his return to his own unit, on the completion of these special duties, during the course of an inspection tour, he had the privilege of having a personal chat with His Majesty the King, which received mention in a Canadian Press news dispatch published at that time.

About a year ago, on the suggestion of superior officers, Lieut. Kirkpatrick voluntarily reverted to the rank of private in order to transfer to the Ordnance Corps, where greater use might be made of his special qualifications, particularly in connection with tire building and repairs. He was soon selected for officer training and following a six months' course in an officers' training school overseas, he successfully passed all examinations and has now been granted his commission.

1,218 Soldiers Get Cigarettes

The regular monthly meeting of the Canadian Legion Branch 52 was held no Monday night with a good turnout of members. President George Gimblett occupied the chair.

Peter Wallace reported on the progress of the property committee in making various improvements throughout the building, particularly the auditorium. Since the last meeting in June Harold Yelland stated that 12 ailing members had been visited by his committee.

Robert Hotrum brought to light the fact that during the last year from the Friday night cigarette bingo 1,218 individual lots of 300 cigarettes, or a total of 365,400, have been forwarded to our lads overseas serving in the army, air force, navy and also to prisoners of war.

A considerable number of new members have been initiated by the executive during the summer recess and five more were taken into membership at this meeting.

On the motion of J. Playford, an effort will be made to have a large number of veterans working on the sale of Victory Bonds in the coming campaign.

It was mentioned with regret that one of the Hall trustees, R. E. Layfield, has departed for Vancouver where he will make his future home, and Hurrell Dodds was nominated to fill the vacancy.

Tenders Are Called For Winter Clothing

On motion of Magistrate E. A. Gee, seconded by Mayor James Hamilton, the Board of Police Commissioners at its regular meeting Monday decided to ask for tenders to supply the winter clothing needed by the police department.

Chief Constable Newhall had submitted a list of requirements, the most important item of which comprised 16 pairs of winter trousers.

It is probable there will be a special meeting to let the tender as soon as possible.

An application from the Peterborough Boy Scouts' Association, asking permission to hold its annual Apple Day on Saturday, October 16, was received, and the Commission passed a resolution authorizing the Scout appeal.

R. Routley was granted a taxi-driver's license, his application having been approved by the Chief Constable.

Another $330 Will Finish 25th Donation

The Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund now has just a little over eighty-five per cent of its immediate objective in the raising of funds to help the sufferers from air raids over Britain on hand. Translated to actual figures, this means that of the $2,240 required for a donation of £500, the sum of $1,900 is now on hand in the bank, leaving the sum of $330 required to make its raising an actual fact.

Recently in speaking of post war plans in Britain, the statement was made that this country would be looked to for the purpose of supplying the materials to rebuild many of the devasted areas, among which mention was made of one particular locality where only ten houses had been left intact, where formerly ten thousand had stood before it was bombed from the air.

This represents a community larger in size than this city, and had the loss of only the number left intact occurred here, everyone would indeed be horrified, and thousands of people would stand by to give every assistance they were capable of.

The sending of help direct to these people who have suffered in such a way as the fund does in the name of the citizens of the city and district which now has totalled more than £13,000 must give rise to every feeling of thankfulness on the part of the recipients and their fellow countrymen, which undoubtedly will be reflected in a cordiality which later on will be demonstrated in a great many ways, but the greatest part of it all lies in the personal good feeling that those who have helped cannot help but feel from having done some good for others.

Personal Gifts

To demonstrate this in a practical way, there are two personal donations listed from those who have both given on a number of occasions, one of which is the lady who gives under the name of "In as Much" whose regular donation of $10 appears today for the 32nd time, and then Sidney C. Boyles of Cavan who himself served the country during the last Great War, is once again listed with another $5.00, he too having given on a number of occasions previously.

It would hardly be possible for people to make such repeat contributions as this, unless they were imbued with that feeling of sympathy for others and loyalty to the cause, which causes people to unselfishly think more of others in need, and less of self.

Bag Potatoes Nets $4.25

The victory garden of Len Callender of the C.G.E. Co. Ltd. must have been a real success, for he was able to donate a bag of potatoes for a draw, which was held in the Stationery and Printing Department to raise the sum of $4.25, which is also listed today, and perhaps will inspire others who have a surplus to utilize it in some way or other to give a helping hand where it is badly needed.

Birthdays of all sorts come and go, and usually the one thus celebrating is the recipient of gifts. There is an old saying "It is more blessed to give than to receive," and this perhaps might be applied to a contribution suggestive of such in today's list, and whether it does or not, one thing is certain, and that is that one cannot better celebrate their natal day, than by doing some good for others in preference to having others do something for them.

Previously acknowledged	$62,819.32

Postmaster Advises Sending Boxes Early

The volume of Christmas parcels for troops overseas handled by the Post Office last year reached the proportions of "a regular little Christmas rush" as the deadline for mailing approached, it was said today by Charles Lacheur, Postmaster.

In advising relatives and friends of servicemen to get their mail in early and not delay until the last minute (November 1), the Post Office points to the heavy volume of last year that nearly swamped the mails in the final days and to the certaintly that matters will be even tougher this season if people are not careful to get their gifts out early.

"For one thing," the Postmaster said, "there are many more servicemen in foreign parts now than a year ago, and then too, a lot of them are much further away."

With Boys In Services

The editor of this column will welcome extracts from letters from boys serving or any other information concerning them.

By JEAN STENTON

Nine Peterborough and district men graduated at air schools across Canada over the week-end. R. C. CLARKE, of Cobourg and J. E. MOORE of Fenelon Falls got their wings as air bombers from No. 1 Central Navigation School at Rivers, Man. Graduating from No. 3 Bombing and Gunnery School at Macdonald, Man., was H. C. ANNABLE of Lindsay. D. J. McMULLEN, of Campbellford, was one of a class of airmen from the United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand and Canada to get their wings as wireless operator air gunners from No. 2 Bombing and Gunnery School at Mossbank, Sask.

Others graduating were R. M. POWELL of Peterborough, as an air bomber at Malton; F. C. HILL, of Peterborough, graduated as a navigator at No. 5 Air Observers' School at Malton; W. J. TWILLEY of Port Hope at the Jarvis Bombing and Gunnery School; G. A. B. Price of Actinolite, received his wings as a pilot at Dunnville; and K. B. Philip of Port Hope, graduated as a pilot from Hagersville.

F.C. GORDON FREDERICK, of Lindsay, who is home on furlough, is anxious to get back into battle again, after several months of resting due to injuries received when his plane crashed into a petrol dump and lorry after a bombing raid over the Bay of Biscay.

He was rescued from the burning aircraft by Flt. Sgt. David Coates, who was awarded the George Medal. Since his accident he has worked in a factory to exercise his hands which were burned in the accident. He is the eldest son of Mrs. Jean Frederick of Lindsay. and he has two brothers, Bruce and Eugene, serving in the R.C.A.F.

THIRD OFFICER MARJORIE HAZLEWOOD, who visited the city some months ago with the first Navy Mobile unit recruiting for Wrens, is now a Sub-Lieutenant, and was recently appointed recruiting officer for the province of Quebec. A member of the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Reserve, she is attached to H.M.C.S., Montreal. Her picture was one of a series of drawings made of service personnel by the artist Grant Macdonald.

LAC. KEN J. GODDEN, of Campbellford, joined the air force to fight, but at present is stationed in the millionaires' paradise of Nassau. He has found the Bahama Islands beautiful twelve months in the year with not only small flowering plants, but trees and shrubs such as oleander and cocoanut palms. It is quite a contrast to Ontario, but not hard to take and the flier has been able to get his fill of bananas and pineapples. LAC. Godden is attached to the R. A.F..

P. O. DICK WATKINS

Dick Watkins graduated in August as a sergeant wireless air gunner from Mossbank, Sask. and has just been commissioned as a pilot officer. He enlisted in July 1942, having been an employee of the C. G.E. and Genelco for three years. P.O. Watkins is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Watkins, 19 Park street south, and he had attended the Collegiate.

A number of Lindsay boys have cabled their relatives of their arrival overseas. They are: ROY CARTER, ARNOLD JOHNSTON, NORMAN AVERY, TEDDY McLAUGHLIN, GEORGE BLACK, ALBERT and RICHARD HILYEA. A third Hilyea brother CECIL, has been serving in Sicily.

LIEUT. DON OWEN, of Campbellford, who has been serving in Sicily, has written home telling something about the life there. He wrote that it hadn't been such a tough show due to the fact that the Allies had the best commanders and superb equipment.

"The boys put up a grand show and are justly proud of the fine words of praise from General Montgomery. He has classed us as seasoned veterans of the 8th Army, and that is the most flattering thing he could say as far as we are concerned. There can be no doubt as to the outcome of the fighting we will be doing ahead. We have a commander who never starts an operation unless success is assured and he has a habit of being right.

"Montgomery has the complete confidence of his troops. He can be seen any day dashing around the front in his jeep giving a cheery wave to all and sundry.

"I did not realize that there were still people who lived in so primitive a fashion. Sanitary and housing conditions are beyond description. We passed through a bombed town in our travels, and the damage was terrific. We know now what Churchill meant when he promised the Italian people death, dust and ashes. The Yankee pattern bombing of airfields and all strong points is really neat. There isn't a space of twenty feet left untouched."

One of the jobs which has been undertaken by two girls of the Women's Division at Fingal, is that of teaching airmen aircraft recognition. While under a sergeant instructor of the R.C.A.F., the two girls do most of the teaching unsupervised. When they enlisted they knew practically nothing of the work and now they know every recognizable feature of nearly 50 different aircraft, British, American and Italian.

Of the many funny happenings of the Sicilian campaign which have been relayed to Canada, one of the oddest is the story of SGT. MAJOR JACK BRUCE, of Port Hope, who slept through the historic landing in Sicily, while his ship stood a few miles off shore. His own landing was described as follows:

"We came into a sandy beach but our landing craft couldn't hit shore as we got on a sandbar about 35 feet out, so we waded in, thigh deep in water. Once ashore we got on dry socks and made our way to the assembly area.

"We spent the night there and the enemy came over to attack our ships. I thought the London barrage wa ssomething, but you should see the ones the ships put up. It was truly great. Louder and more spectacular than the London one and more concentrated. It is surprising the few enemy planes we saw."

Sgt. Maj. Bruce wrote of entering one town and seeing the natives carrying planks of wood and old doors and no one knew why. Once outside the town, they found what it was all about. There was a German Army barracks and as soon as the enemy had been routed, the natives took over the buildings and started to tear them down for fire wood. It seems they have been unable to get wood for a long time.

The 1943 version of the old "whiz-bang" cards of the last war have begun to arrive in Peterborough from men serving with the Canadians in Italy. Outside of the fact that the wording may be slightly different and the card more elaborate, it varies little. A list of statements dealing with the writer's health and interests are printed there and he just has to cross off the things which don't fit. It saves a lot of wear and tear on writing letters, but leaves the recipient somewhat let-down. They are issued as a rule to men going into an active fighting area, since soldiers have little spare time left. Questions such as "I am wounded in the arm," or "I am just leaving the hospital," or "I have just left the hospital" take a prominent place on the card.

Navy Men Need Many Comforts

Life in the Canadian Navy in the Atlantic in mid-winter was no bed of roses, Sub-Lieut. C. A. Hutchins, R.C.N.V.R., Ottawa, told members of the Peterborough Rotary Club at the weekly luncheon Monday in stressing the need of providing special comforts for the boys in the blue of the Navy.

Lieut. Hutchins, who is director of special services, said that life on a corvette or destroyer in winter weather was far from pleasant, and was made endurable only because of the additional comforts of woollen garments, special foods and other articles not provided in the ordinary issue.

He explained that he was here to co-ordinate the efforts to provide the required comforts for the corvette H.M.C.S. Peterborough, which is to be launched late this year.

Lieut. Hutchins said that the Canadian Navy was doing a great job in keeping the Atlantic sea lanes open and pointed out that the Navy which had begun the war with 1,700 officers and other ranks, and only 15 ships, had now a fleet of 500 warships and a personnel of 60,000. He stressed the hardships that crew members had to undergo while on duty in the Atlantic and the need for the comforts that organizations at home could supply.

Food Question Cause For Much Concern

"We are going to be scratching our heads a year from now on the food question," declared Professor W. R. Graham, of Burlington, Ont., a former member of the staff of the Ontario Agricultural College, in an informative address before the Peterborough Rotary Club Monday on the food problem as it affected the Canadian farmer.

Declaring that the farmer had been working for nothing and paying his own board for years Professor Graham said that the Canadian farmer was not dumb and intimated that he was going to produce what promised to pay him the most.

"The food administrators must decide what foods they want the most," the speaker said. "Then if they will make the price profitable they will get the desired foods. The farmer can switch from one crop to another in a hurry."

Professor Graham said that the two big problems facing the farmer were the manpower shortage and the shortage of proteins. "There are not enough proteins in the whole North American continent to feed the existing livestock 75 per cent of their requirements," the speaker declared, adding that the livestock population had been increased by one-third since the beginning of the war.

Pointing out that milk was the best protein food on the farm today, Professor Graham wondered whether the farmer, in view of the increase in cheese prices would continue to feed milk to hogs. Canadian farmers, he said, had made a wonderful response to the demands that had been made upon them for bigger hog production and a greater production of eggs for dehydration purposes. "However the farmer has had to pay highly for his patriotism," the speaker emphasized, adding that he was just wondering what was going to happen next.

Professor Graham was introduced by Rotarian F. C. Paterson who referred to the speaker's long connection with Ontario Agricultural College and the contribution he made to the progress of the poultry industry both in Canada and the United States.

Rotarian G. A. Gillespie proposed the vote of thanks to Professor Graham.

Rotarian Ward Smith, officer commanding the Peterborough Air Cadet squadron sponsored by the Rotary Club spoke briefly to call attention to the fact that this is Air Cadet League week and that the local squadron has been asked to raise its membership to 150 cadets, about double the present strength. Rotarian Smith said that the request for the increase had been made by the R.C.A.F. authorities. He said that two parades had been planned for this week on Tuesday and Friday nights and that recruiting headquarters were being established in a George street store.

Jabs Neighbor With Pitchfork

LINDSAY, Sept. 21—(ENS)—Admitting that he struck Stanley Wallace, a neighbor with a pitchfork, Walter Clarke of Pleasant Point district, was fined $25 and costs in police court yesterday on a charge of assault causing bodily harm. His 16-year-old-son, Reid, was given two years suspended sentence on a similar charge.

Appearing in court wearing bandages, Wallace stated that he had been struck followisg a dispute over Clarke's cattle that had strayed on this property. He had decided to impound the animals in the barn yard when Clarke appeared with his two boys and hired man, John Swartman. The accused admitted that he tried to lift the closed gate from its hinge pins deespite the efforts of Mrs. Wallace to stop him. Her husband struck him he said and it was then that he used a pitch fork wounding Wallace severely. At the same time his 16-year-old son seized the injured man by the throat bearing him to the ground.

DOROTHY DIX

WAYS OF YOUTH AS INSOLUBLE TODAY AS IN SOLOMON'S TIMES

DEAR MISS DIX—We, who no longer follow the ways of youth because they are so different from our standards, or perhaps the years have taught us some small part of wisdom, are often appalled at their indifference to stability. Here is a case in point that hurts me because I have known the lad from his babyhood. He gave the world no peace until drafted, and with only a short furlough he married and left almost immediately for his encampment, only to discover that the South was filled with pretty women, more attractive than any he had even met or expected to find anywhere.

The fetters of marriage now irk him. He is thoroughly disillusioned with his hastily snatched wife left behind, and he has but one desire—that he may now be free to enjoy all the possible excitement the new location, new girls and new people hold for him. He was absolutely frank in his admission of this to me. His wife is still here and will very soon understand the change she must discover in him. I put this question to him and he replied that he supposed she would, but he doesn't care.

Here is an incidence of great unhappiness to come. Or will it? Perhaps neither of the parties to this contract care. Can you help solve the problem?

Solomon's Words Go Double With Modern Youth

ANSWER — Ages ago Solomon wrote that one of the insoluable mysteries of the world was the way of a man with a maiden. This goes double for the modern youth and maid whose sentimental reactions to love and marriage are anybody's guess. They seem to fall in love and out of love with a celerity that would baffle a quick-change artist. They break up their homes as casually as they would check out of a hotel room. And they seem to regard divorce as a painless remedy for all errors of judgment in picking out their mates, and a sure cure for that tired feeling when they get fed up with domesticity.

Apparently they do not take seriously situations that we used to consider tragedies that would darken a whole life. For nowadays we see divorced husbands and wives meeting upon the most amicable terms and even stepping out together, and children who are shuttled back and forth between so many parents and step-parents that they hardly know which ones of them are their own fathers and mothers. Seemingly no one is hurt by the breaking up of love's young dream, and marriage is an arrangement that you only stick to as long as you find it agreeable.

It is because I get so many letters from both men and women, telling me that they are so tired of their mates and want to swap them off for someone else, that I have done my humble best to try to deflate the war marriage boom and to persuade young people to put off marriage until after the duration, and then see whether they really want each other.

For I foresaw that what has happened to this lad of whom you write was bound to happen to innumerable other boys who married on the spur of the moment girls who looked good to them because they were the best ot the village crop, and there was no rival with whom to compare them. Or because they were the best of the village homesick and lonely at the thought of going away and they wanted a familiar hand to cling to.

They were certain at the time that they loved only Pol and would be faithful to her, but when they got into the outer world and met other girls, better looking, more glamorous, more sophisticated, with a subtler technique, their little flame of affection burned out as quickly as a match in the wind, and they regretted their marriage.

Among the casualties of war will be the wreck of the thousands of marriages which should never have taken place—gin weddings that occur after the fourth cocktail; furlough weddings in which a boy and girl marry after a few weeks' acquaintance, without knowing anything about each other's characters, backgrounds, tastes or habits; marriages in which a boy grows into a man in the army and finds he no longer has anything in common with the little cutie he has saddled himself with for life. And the trouble is that divorce doesn't wipe the slate clean, as these youngsters think it will. Always there are regrets, as there must be at the breaking of any ties.

Sometimes a wife who clings to a man whom she loves, even if he doesn't love her, and will not let him go. Often little children. And only too often the distasteful task of a man not being able to marry the woman he loves because he has to pay alimony to the one he has tired of.

A bad business, however you look at it, marrying in haste.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX — What do you think of a girl who wants to buy the license and pay the judge so she can be married to a soldier boy who has not been able to save enough even for the wedding expenses? We, his family, know nothing about this girl.

A MOTHER.

Humiliating Marriage Bound to Fail

ANSWER—Well, I'd say the girl is dead set on matrimony. Furthermore, I would opine that such a marriage had small chance of success because a man who is married under such humiliating circumstances will always feel that he had been shanghaied into the holy estate instead of entering it of his own free will. And to his dying day his wife will throw it up to him.

No man wants to play second fiddle at his own wedding, and he won't do it if he has a particle of self-respect. I should certainly advise this soldier to wait until he is in a position to support a family before he marries. Marriage is like everything else, it has to have an adequate financial backing.

DEAR MISS DIX—We are two girls, one 18, one 21. We go out secretly with two married men whose ages are 23 and 25. They profess to love us very much, but they cannot get divorces from their wives until the war is over because if they do they will be drafted. We love them enough to wait for them as we have them part of the time. Their wives know nothing of these affairs. Our consciences hurt us, but their wives couldn't love them as much as we do. What should we do?

TWO CONSTANT READERS.

ANSWER—Be thankful that the fool-killer is not abroad in the land, else you would be two casualties. Haven't you enough sense to know that two young married men who are double-crossing their wives and who are draft-dodgers are not fit for you to waste a single thought on? They would be as untrue to you as they are to their wives. Your conscience is telling you what to do. Listen to its admonitions.

For Wednesday, September 22.

Moderately active and favorable conditions are shown in this day's mutual and lunar aspects, which indicate peculiar entanglements or affiliations, which may be turned to good account by shrewd and subtle manpiulation, perhaps secret agreements of well thought out strategies. New things may be engineered under such tactics, perhaps innovations, novelties or bold initiative, but in all be alert to misrepresentation and fraud. Be wary with financial or legal writings.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of peculiar experiences in which strange contacts or agreements may cause future adventures both unwise and unprofitable. It may take much perspicacity, shrewdness and acumen to sidestep complications. Innovations, unique ventures or high-pressure enterprise may call for much discretion and sound sense, with financial documents subject to trickery or fraud. Be wary with strangers.

A child born on this day should be energetic, resourceful and talented in novel ways which may render it open to suspicion.

Home and School

The September meeting of the Home and School Council was held Monday evening at the Y.W.C.A. with the president Mrs. E. Chambers, in the chair. It was announced that the annual Home and School Church parade would be held at St. Paul's Church on November 8 and representatives were asked to urge their associations to attend. The problem of fund-raising was discussed and it was decided to hold a musical evening, with the various associations taking part.

The arrangements for a training school for leaders and the final plans for the musical evening were left in the hands of the Executive. Mrs. C. Doughty was appointed to represent the Council at the Local Council of Women.

Mrs. Chambers read the report of the Federation Executive meeting in Toronto, in which, with regard to subscriptions to the "Home and School Review," Peterborough with nine associations and Toronto with about 50 associations, each subscribed to 83 copies of the H. and S. publication. It was suggested in the report that associations do not take up collections at the monthly meetings, as the association is not a money-making organization. Mrs. R. L. Hale, education convener for King George Association, read a recent editorial from the "Examiner" on school attendance.

Fun to Reduce on Low-Calory Diet

"Fewer Calories — More Food!"

If you could only see yourself as you'll look after a low-calory diet! Slim as a willow and years younger.

It would be worth it even if you had to go hungry a while, but you can lose two pounds a week without skipping a meal, a course or a vitamin!

You just avoid dishes that are dynamite in calories. A good serving of pork and beans has 400! But a whole lunch may have less—ham (100), buttered string-beans (65), baked potato (100), fresh pineapple (25). Only 290 calories in all!

You may even have desserts. A chocolate fudge sundae (450) is out, but lemon ice has only 100.

It's easy to keep your good resolutions as you see your new slim figure emerging. Also your properly-planned diet has the vitamin foods that make you prettier each day—carrots (20 each), egg (70).

Our 32-page booklet has 42 low-calory menus, tasty and scientifically planned. Includes a calory chart, a 3-day liquid diet to start reducing.

For your copy of THE NEW WAY TO A YOUTHFUL FIGURE send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

BREAK LESSER RULES

ONE SUPPOSED rule of defensive play against a No Trump contract is to return your partner's suit. Another rule of general defense is to lead up to weakness in the dummy. Neither of these is as important a rule as to make the play which seems best calculated to defeat the contract. Doing that may necessitate your departing from the two rules stated, which are lesser ones. There are times even when the main rule of defense—to beat the contract—calls upon you to lead up to the dummy's best suit.

North: ♠ J 10 8 ♥ Q 9 7 ♦ Q J 7 4 ♣ K J 10

West: ♠ K 7 4 ♥ 5 4 3 2 ♦ 10 9 6 2 ♣ 4 2

East: ♠ 6 3 2 ♥ 10 8 6 ♦ A 3 ♣ A Q 8 6 3

South: ♠ A Q 9 5 ♥ A K J ♦ K 8 5 ♣ 9 7 5

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2♦	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT

West led the diamond 2, which East took with the A. Now came the real point of this deal. Just a bit of study will show that, if East returns the suit, South can score three tricks in diamonds, three in spades and three in hearts. Even if West, when in with the spade K, should return a club, the defenders will score only four tricks, with two in clubs, one in diamonds and one in spades.

Exactly the same result will be obtained if East switches on the second trick to a heart or spade, in order to "lead up to weakness in the dummy."

Just one return will beat the contract, and it should be clear to a fine player, as it was in this case to one of the Navy's best, Captain John O. Huse, U. S. N. He sent back the club 6, right into the dummy's tenace. He saw that this would leave him a major tenace over the dummy's remaining clubs, so that, if Mrs. Huse could win a trick in the West and had another club to return, the contract would be set a trick.

As soon as Mrs. Huse got the lead with the spade K, she did exactly that, and it was just too bad for South.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ Q 6 ♥ Q 9 5 ♦ K 10 9 5 ♣ A K 8 6

West: ♠ K 10 8 5 3 ♥ 6 2 ♦ Q J 8 ♣ 9 7 4

East: ♠ J 9 7 4 ♥ 8 4 ♦ 7 6 4 3 ♣ J 10 2

South: ♠ A 2 ♥ A K J 10 7 3 ♦ A 2 ♣ Q 5 3

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

If North passed originally, because he had his cards badly sorted and misread his strength, what should he do after South then opens this deal with 1-Heart?

Claims Losses Light So Far

By MARK WATSON
Baltimore Sun Correspondent, Representing the Combined United States Press.

WITH THE 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 19. — (Delayed)—Although no precise report of our casualties is yet publishable it can be said that in proportion to the task thus far performed by the 5th Army in the Italian campaign losses sustained have been extremely light.

This applies to both British and American components of Lt.-Gen. Mark W. Clark's Command and one surmises that it applies to the British 8th Army.

Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's troops could hardly have made such remarkable speed in their northward dash except against scattered, relatively weak opposition which automatically suggests light losses.

I DON'T "DOSE" CONSTIPATION

I Found a "Better Way" Than Harsh Purgatives!

I discovered "dosing" constipation brings only temporary relief, at best. If yours is the common type, due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in the diet, do what I did, correct it instead. Eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN every day!

This crisp, delicious cereal (it's grand in muffins, too) supplies the proper "bulk" to help keep you regular . . . naturally. But it must be remembered ALL-BRAN doesn't work like purgatives. It takes time. Eat ALL-BRAN every morning, drink plenty of water, and see if you don't look and feel worlds better! At your grocer's, in two convenient sizes. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

TIPS FOR TEA-STRETCHERS

1 Don't waste tea today that you'll want tomorrow. Never make more than you're sure you'll serve.

2 Always make your tea from young, TENDER leaves. Extra fragrance, extra flavor, extra tea-goodness in every cup. Ask . . . by name . . . for Tender Leaf Tea.

At your grocer's in two convenient sizes . . . also in improved FILTER tea balls.

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

Jamboree Soon

An important scouting event will take place Saturday as the hut at the Scout grounds will be officially opened for scouting events.

Although a few details are yet to be completed the hut is ready for any scouting duty. It will be used as a shelter and is a structure 16 by 40 feet painted green with a white trim. On Saturday many officers and members of the local Association were at the grounds fixing doorsteps and wielding the paint brush.

It is expected that some of the provincial officers will be here for the official opening. At the same time the postponed jamboree will be carried out. We are looking forward to fine weather. A good program of sports and camp fire has been arranged. Everyone is invited to attend and parents are urged to do their best to be on hand to witness their sons in action.

Attention All Officers

Have you arranged for transportation of your boys yet. If not, why not get busy at once. Those officers in charge of games should see that equipment needed is on the grounds in ample time. Cub packs will need 3 rope and stick of wood for the knot relay. Brown paper bag and 5 potatoes for potato race. Books for book balancing will be provided; also rope for tug of war.

Scout events Tubtilting and pillow fighting equipment is needed. And don't forget supper. It is planned that the camp fire to start about 7 and close at 8:15 p.m.

Apple Day

It has been planned to hold our annual Scout Apple Day in conjunction with Dominion Apple Day Saturday, October 16 and application has been already made to the police commission. We will be holding a meeting of all leaders, both Cub and Scouts, on Wednesday, October 6, time and place to be given out later to discuss the final details for Apple Day.

Annual Registration

October is about to knock on the door and bring us forms to fill out for the registration of our Cubs and Scouts. Let Peterborough district get in at the first this year. Last year one of our Scout groups did not get the papers completed until way into May.

At St. Luke's

A full Pack attended the Council Rock at the last meeting to welcome a new chum, Douglas Baptie, to the jungle. After receiving attendance and holding inspection the game "Indian Get Up" was played. Test work on first star followed with the game, "Corn in Egypt" to complete that section of the evening.

We would call the parents' attention to the registration fee as requested by dominion headquarters. Five cents extra each week for the next five weeks will meet this fund. Your help and cooperation will be appreciated and the cheer up fund will be laid aside for that period.

Every Cub is asked to attend the meeting Tuesday night, September 21, for final arrangements for the jamboree.

On Saturday, September 25, the pack will meet at the usual spot at 1 p.m. sharp. Bring your supper. Don't be late and miss the cars. Parents should see that boys have admission forms with them Tuesday night.

All Saints Troop

The troop started out on its fall meetings with 18 boys in attendance on Friday. Ray Foy, Frank Wright and Bill Rowbottom will remember this meeting for some time. At an investiture ceremony they were accepted into the World Brotherhood of Scouting. We wish them good scouting.

Next week it is expected that some eight members of the pack will come into the troop through the going-up ceremony.

At St. John's Cubs

Twenty-eight boys were on the jungle trail as events for the jamboree were run off. During the evening the pack bade farewell to Wilfred Woodcock who left the pack to join the troop. Wilfred, known as Brown Tips in the pack, is a two-star Cub and will wear the leaping wolf on his scout uniform.

Five new chums were also welcomed to the pack, Trevor Mitchell, Tom Lewis, Kent Lewis, David Bacon and Keith Delahaye have asked that their names be added to our roll.

Old Scouts in Town

PO. Charles Jefferies, former St. John's Rover Scout, was in town over the week-end and with his wife and son David after an absence of over one year. Charles, better known as "The Judge" has been on service at sea and it was the first opportunity he had to see his son and heir, now 5 months old.

Cpl. Ken Brown is also home on furlough and Mike Crough, former Sacred Heart leader, now sergeant at Camp Borden, was noticed down town.

LAKEFIELD

Grove Begins Fall Activities

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 21 —(ENS)— Lakefield Preparatory School opened last week with a capacity enrolment. There are 100 boarders and 4 day boys. The teaching staff is the same with ten members serving under the headmaster, G. Winder Smith.

There are quite a number of new boys filling the places left by those who have graduated, mostly to the armed forces. Classes have begun with a good swing, and the lads are facing the new term with a fine resolve to excel in book-learning as well as games.

The sports are this year partly under the direction of a former prefect and now senior student, Edgar Moore, son of the Rev. Mr. Moore of Peterborough, who is also doing some junior instruction. The hopes of Grove first team look good for a first-class season of rugby; and practices on the upper field are enthusiastically attended.

Promotions

R.C.S.C.C. "St. George," the Sea Cadet unit of Lakefield Preparatory School, is now under way with George Lee, CP.O., D.S.M., as chief instructor. A more-than-adequate program has been drawn up for this year, and the boys will have a half-hour a day at least of purely nautical teaching and drill, both on the field and in the boats, of which there are nine dinghies and two cutters.

Promotions in the Corps are here noted: Cadet C.P.O. Terry Martin, Windsor; P.O. Jim Eayrs, Toronto; P.O. Andy Harris, Toronto; L.S. Chris Patton, Toronto; L.S. John Giroux, Toronto; L.S. Bill Strathy, Toronto; L.S. Ian Hyde, Montreal; L.S. Gus Nanton, Winnipeg; L.S. Larry Smart, Toronto; L.S. Rowan Roy, Toronto; L.S. Sandy Campbell, Vancouver; L.S. Robert Preston, Vancouver Island; A.B. Bob Langmuir, Toronto; A.B. Peter Wilkes, Toronto. It is interesting to note that the Corps and the School have lost three fine English lads: John Morrell, Ralph Brocklebank, and Richard Stone, all of whom having attained the poper age have returned to their homes in England. Word has been heard here of their safe arrival.

Annual Picnic.

The annual school picnic on Stoney Lake was held on Saturday when the school, 120 strong, with staff and friends, went aboard Capt. Young's Islinda for a cruise through Young's Point and Clear Lake to Stoney Lake and Eel's Creek. The party arrived at noon, when lunch was served. Some boys brought canoes, and others fished. Several good catches were landed by the smaller boys, who later cleaned the fish themselves and had them for Sunday breakfast.

The summer number of the Grove Chronicle has come off the press and presents a sparkling appearance with a new cover design of Sydney Watson, well-known Canadian artist, who is also on the Lakefield staff. The book is replete with interesting records and stories by pupils and staff, and owes much to Lorne Mitchell, who edited the paper.

With the shortage of domestic help this autumn the school has applied a novel arrangement in the dining hall. Groups of boys are chosen for the week to act as the waiters. As a result, the lads are trained in helping one another.

Visitors

There were a number of interested visitors to the school on Sunday, including A. Fortye of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Terry Hall, Peterborough, and their guests Mr. and Mrs. Jack Young of Toronto, also Major and Mrs. J. Williams of Quebec. Under the bright September sun dozens of the boys were on the lake in boats, others were in the woods with their hut-building, and some had journeyed to Young's Point on their bicycles to renew old acquaintances there. The usual chapel service was held on Sunday evening, when the Rev. Mr. Wood, Lakefield, the school chaplain, preached a stirring sermon on th part each boy plays in the religious services of the school.

Mrs. A. Lampman, who is a daughter of the late Dr. Mackenzie, has returned to Lakefield, and she is assisting the matron, Miss Perry, in the school's dietetics. Mrs. Robinson, secretary, has just returned from her home in Halifax, whence she journeyed by Trans-Canada plane.

Goes To Moscow

MOSCOW, Sept. 21—(AP). —The Archbishop of York, representative of the Church of England, arrived yesterday at a Moscow airport for a series of conversations with the hierarchy of the rejuvenated Russian Orthodox Church.

The Archbishop alighted from the plane clad in the purple cassock and four-cornered mitre of his office and was greeted by the Metropolitan Nikolai of Kiev and Archbishop Sergei of Gorky, who welcomed him in behalf of the Metropoliton Sergei of Moscow, newly elected patriarch of all Russia.

LAKEFIELD

Inspector Finds Good Library

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 21 — (ENS). —S. B. Herbert, acting inspector of public libraries, inspected the Lakefield Library last week. Mr. Herbert in his report said:

"The library has a clean, attractive appearance. Miss Yonge, the librarian, while not a Library School graduate, knows her business, and is giving efficient service. The whole atmosphere of the library is pleasant and restful. I wish there were more libraries like Lakefield's in the Province.

"The books of the library are in good repair. Changing and classification are very good as Mrs. Ridpath (member of the Board and a former librarian) had some library training in Hamilton before coming to Lakefield. The circulation is fair in the adult section and splendid among the boys and girls.

"This is a free library, and the town supplies light, heat, janitor service and room, also $414.50 a year, which equals at least the 50 cents per capita the library would receive under ordinary conditions."

Girl Ordained

TORONTO, Sept. 21 —(CP)—Miss Erla M. Currey of Toronto was the fourth woman to be ordained by the Toronto Conference of the United Church of Canada at services yesterday in Westminster-Central United Church here in which 10 young persons were welcomed into the ministry.

Clark Dubbed Frontline General Speeds Through Minefields In Fast Jeep

By REYNOLDS PACKARD
(Representing the Combined American Press)
(Distributed by The Canadian Press.)

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 19 — (Delayed). — Lt.-Gen. Mark Clark visited the central part of the Salerno sector to-day, riding in a jeep through a minefield strewn with dead animals and the bodies of Germans.

Gen. Clark, who is becoming known to his men as "the Front-line General," not only inspected outposts, but also went into two cities which had been taken and examined the damage they had suffered.

He discussed problems with various commanding officers in the field, including the heads of a number of patrols which he met while they were attempting to make contact with the Germans.

Wherever he stopped, he was surrounded by men who crowded around to hear his remarks.

At several places where the fight had been extremely hard the General got out of his jeep and congratulated not only the officers but also the men on the fine showing they had made.

Veteran Writer Dies In Eire

KILLARNEY, Eire, Sept. 21 — (CP).—The Earl of Kenmare, 52, who under his former title of Viscount Castlerosse, was one of London's best-known newspaper columnists before the war, died suddenly to-day at his home here.

At the time of his death he was director of the Evening Standard, the Daily Express and the Sunday Express, newspapers of Lord Beaverbrook with whom he was long associated. He was widely known throughout Canada and the United States, particularly among newspaper publishers.

Death followed by less than nine months his second marriage, to Enid, Viscountess Furness, last Jan 26. He had suffered from heart trouble for several years. His first marriage to Doris Viscountess Castlerosse, ended in divorce and she has since died.

R.A.F. Man Bigamist

COBOURG, Sept. 20 — (CP) — LAC Fred Vivian Jones, an R.A. F. instructor stationed at Kingston, was arrested on Saturday on a bigamy charge. Police allege Jones was married in 1935 and that his wife still is living. He is alleged to have gone through a form of marriage with a Cobourg woman on September 11.

List Committee To Probe Abitibi

TORONTO, Sept. 21—(CP) — A committee of three Toronto men has been appointed by Premier Drew of Ontario in a bid to find "some normal form of management" for the Abitibi Power and Paper Company Limited, representing a once-great industrial empire whose assets totalled more than $100,000,000.

In announcing appointment of the committee last night, Mr. Drew said he feels it is in the interest of the public, investors and company workers that efforts be made to restore to normal management a company which went into receivership in 1932 and whose affairs since then have been frequently before the courts because bondholders and other interests could not agree upon a plan of capital re-organization.

If the committee fails to arrange an agreement on a voluntary basis without delay, the Premier said, a commission will be appointed "to bring in formal findings to assist the government in preparing legislation which will bring this unsatisfactory situation to an end.'

Members of the committee will be Hon. Frank J. Hughes, K.C., chairman; Dr. Gilbert Jackson and William Zimmerman K.C.

Soldier Released On Murder Count

LONDON, Sept. 21 (CP Cable)—Henry Smith, 20, Montreal soldier, was discharged in the Old Bailey court today after pleading not guilty to a charge of murdering William Raven in the latter's Baker street flat a month ago.

George Frederick Brimacombe, 21, Kinistino, Sask., also a Canadian soldier, faced a similar charge but was convicted on a charge of manslaughter and was sentenced to three years in prison.

No evidence was taken, but at a previous hearing it was indicated in evidence the soldiers, who were taken to Raven's flat for a drink, had got into a fight with their host when he tried to get "fresh."

Hitler Plan For Peace Given House

Story From Hess Indicates Huns Want To Quit

By E. C. DANIEL
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 22 (AP)—The full story of Rudolf Hess's flight to Britain disclosed today that more than two years ago, when Britain still was near its lowest depths in this war, the third in command of the Nazis declared Hitler wanted to call off the fight without making any "oppressive demands" on Britain, but demanded that Britain get rid of Prime Minister Churchill.

The story of the No. 3 Nazi's fantastic flight "on a mission of humanity" to Scotland was told in an official government statement after two years of silence, during which Hitler was allowed to worry over what his deputy might be telling British officials.

The official account, made available to Commons today by Foreign Secretary Eden, revealed very few facts that had not leaked out at least in outline to the public.

It did, however, contain a specific list of six peace terms, one of which stipulated Hitler's refusal to negotiate with Prime Minister Churchill, who was accused of planning the war since 1936.

What Germany wanted from Britain, Hess said, was a free hand in Europe and especially with Russia, but the forebodings of a long war, for which Germany was ill-prepared, were seen in Hess' statement.

Would Destroy Britain

If the peace terms offered by Germany were rejected, Hess told officials, Hitler expected to destroy Britain utterly and keep the country in a state of permanent subjection.

He later restated the terms in writing, adding a provision for a simultaneous peace with Italy.

Throughout the conversations with Hess, the government said, it was made clear to him that there was no question whatsoever of any negotiations with Hitler or his government.

In the official account of the sensational flight, the government declared:—

Hess stressed Germany's power in the air and in U-boats and averred Britain would be beaten by a blockade at least within two or three years. He expressed horror at a prolongation of the struggle.

He gave his "word of honor" that Hitler never intended to wreck the British Empire or dominate the world.

Hess' "peace plan" was this:

1. Germany should be given a free hand in Europe.
2. Britain should have a free hand in the British Empire except that former German colonies should be returned to Germany.
3. Russia should be included in Asia, but Germany had certain demands to make on Russia which would have to be satisfied either by negotiation or by war. There was no truth in rumors that Hitler planned an early attack on Russia. (Germany attacked the following month, in June.)
4. Britain should evacuate Iraq.
5. A peace agreement would have to contain a provision for reciprocal indemnification of British and German nations whose property was destroyed by war.
6. Hitler would not negotiate peace with Mr. Churchill who he said planned war since 1936, but only with a new British government.

Hess emphasized Hitler wanted a permanent understanding with Britain on the basis she retain the Empire intact. He pictured his flight as intended to give Britain a chance to open conversations without loss of prestige.

Mr. Eden furnished Commons an authoritative account of the sensational flight of Hitler's one-time deputy, who was regarded as the No. 2 Nazi until his mysterious ar-

Japs Preparing To Move War Industries

LONDON, Sept. 22.—(CP).—The Japanese government has decided to prepare "for moving of government departments, industrial establishments and the civilian population from Tokyo as well as other important cities in the interest of improving their defence," the Tokyo radio said to-day.

The broadcast listed a number of drastic measures, including total mobilization of the civilian population and the abolishment of age limits, to make all liable for national service, which it said were announced to-day by Premier Hideki Tojo and the government information office "in view of the decisive phase upon which the war will enter during the coming months."

The government also announced these measures:

Increase of anti-aircraft defence forces, especially the "air protection in industrial regions."

Checking Traffic.

Special measures for the protection of government buildings and factories in Tokyo and other big cities.

Strengthening of government control over all industry.

Centralization of traffic on land and water.

In one of the gloomiest broadcasts to come from the Japanese capital, the announcement said the aims of the measures were:

"The Japanese nation in all its classes and professions must fully understand the seriousness of the present internal and external situation and must be inspired by an unbending will to victory.

"The nation's entire strength must be concentrated on the armaments industry, especially on the strengthening of the Japanese Air Force.

"Strict self-sufficiency of Japan and Manchukuo as regards food supply must under all circumstances be assured.

Trains Blown Up Near Toungoo

NEW DELHI, Sept. 22 (CP)—R.A.F. fighter planes, sweeping over central Burma on offensive patrols yesterday, blasted Japanese rail and river transport in widely separated areas, a British communique said today. No planes were lost in the sweeps.

Successful attacks were made on the railway north of Toungoo, where two troop trains were strafed and heavily damaged. Japanese troops fled to nearby cover to escape the low-flying patrols. The engine of one train blew up while the other was left enveloped in steam and its tender on fire, the communique said.

Other targets damaged or destroyed included a concentration of rolling stock and motor transport at Yeu station. Another motor convoy east of Chauk was raked. The water tower at Myingyan was attacked and river craft on the Cindwin and Kaladan rivers were given a severe lacing.

Kiev Visible To Reds From Front

1,000 Towns, Villages Liberated; 7,000 Huns Slain

LONDON, Sept. 22 (CP) — The gilt church domes of Kiev, glistening in brilliant sunshine, now are visible to Soviet troops through clear autumn weather, dispatches from Moscow said today.

Thus the Red Army had another goal of its great summer offensive in sight, the capital of the rich Ukraine.

Hitler's badly mauled German divisions reeled back to their eastern defence wall on the Dnieper River as the Red Army scored new advances along the whole length of a 750-mile front.

Dangerously weakened by the incessant hammer blows of Russian artillery, tanks, infantry and planes, the once invincible German legions apparently were being broken up into isolated units and nowhere, according to the latest Moscow war bulletin, were they able to halt the surging Red Army tide.

Take Chernigov.

The last formidable barrier before the Dnie er on the central front was battered down yesterday when a savage Soviet drive slashed across the Desna River line between Bryansk and Kiev. With the capture of Chernigov, most important German base on the lower reaches of this river, the way was open for Red Army forces to strike directly at Kiev and Gomel. The latter, 80 miles northwest of Chernigov, is the gateway to White Russia.

At Chernigov, the Russians were miles from the Dnieper, 25 miles from the southern border of White Russia, while the old Polish border was less than 160 miles to the west.

Another 1,000 towns and villages were liberated by Russian advances yesterday, while upwards of 7,000 Nazi troops were slain and many more captured, the Russian communique said. Soviet guns destroyed 80 enemy tanks and 34 more were listed in the enormous quantities of war equipment said to have been left by the Germans in their precipitious retreat.

In addition, the Soviet Air Force, credited with 63 Nazi planes destroyed over the front yesterday, blasted concentrations of railway trains at Gomel, Vitebsk, and NORTH BAY, Sept. 22 — (AP).—Officials of the internment camp at nearby Monteith today said a German prisoner-of-war who escaped from the camp Monday by cutting his way through a wire barricade, is back in custody. His identity was not revealed.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police confirmed the report that the man was back in custody but had no details.

Invade Balkans This Fall; France In Spring

By ERNEST AGNEW
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 22 (AP)—An Allied invasion of the Balkans this year, followed by a full-scale assault on western Europe next spring, now seems probable in the light of Prime Minister Churchill's war review in the House of Commons yesterday and developments on the fighting fronts.

Despite a vast improvement in the Allied shipping position there is a general feeling in London that a front in western Europe cannot be opened before next year unless the German army suddenly cracks wide open.

On the other hand announcement that Allied forces had occupied the Aegean islands of Kos, Leros and Samos strengthened a growing belief here a thrust into the Balkans is imminent.

London newspapers conjectured that such an offensive might be launched simultaneously from eastern Italy—where Mr. Churchill said he does not expect more than a delaying battle by the Germans—and from the newly-acquired Aegean bases.

The News Chronicle described the prime minister's address as "the most encouraging survey of events he has yet given to parliament," while the Daily Express referred to it as "Churchill's most optimistic speech since he took office."

Said the Daily Telegraph: "The sweep and scope of the story captivated the House of Commons. It would have taken a cast iron critic to withstand such good news."

31 Americans Trapped A Week

WITH THE 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 19 (Delayed)—(CP)—American troops advancing today near the bloody triangle between the Sele and Calore Rivers came upon 31 American infantrymen who had been trapped there for a week with Germans all around them.

Tide Of War Turned By Carriers

Sea-Borne Planes Answer To U-Boat Problem

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Sept. 22 — (CP).—On a spring day in 1940 a British cruiser towed the fire-blackened hull of a German merchant ship into the harbor of Kingston, Jamaica. That hull was what was left of the express cargo boat Hanover. Canadians had had a part in capturing her. And she was to play a great part in winning the Battle of the Atlantic for the Allied Fleets.

The Hanover was a blockade runner. Overtaken by a British ship and the Canadian destroyer Assiniboine, she was put out of action and the Canadians formed a boarding party which prevented the Germans from scuttling her.

Twenty-one months later, some 900 miles off the French port of Brest, the Hanover met her end, not as the Hanover, but as H.M.S. Audacity, the first escort aircraft carrier, the first of a line of ships that was to win the Battle of the Atlantic against the German U-boats.

5,000-Tonner.

Nobody would ever have recognized the Hanover when she came out to sea as the Audacity. Not even the Germans. For, when they finally sank her they reported her sinking as a Fleet carrier of 23,000 tons. The British Navy, of course, knew her as the ex-Hanover, a 5,000-ton motor ship.

From the day she went into service with a new 400-foot flight deck built over the cargo holds to the day that every available submarine in her area was concentrated to get her, was only 14 weeks. The Germans got her, right enough, but they were unable to undo the lesson she had taught—that sea-borne air-power would beat the U-boats.

During her 14 weeks of work she had made half a dozen trips with the regular Gibraltar convoy. One of them got through without loss and others suffered lightly. Audacity's good work brought to the Admiralty a ray of hope during the darkest period of the war at sea.

Audacity was equipped with six Martlet fighters, each of them doing a 4½ sea patrol each day. On one day, according to the record, Audacity's aircraft sighted 17 submarines. That was the day the submarines closed in and got her.

But her aircraft, up to that time had strafed a score of submarines, sunk a half dozen with the aid of surface escorts and shot down a whole squadron of long-range Focke-Wulf Kuriers.

These were the lessons learned from the Audacity's tour of duty: There was the bare record of merchant ships saved. There was proof that continuous air patrol around a convoy kept U-boats under water and reduced their effective speed from 20 to seven knots so their convoy drew away. There was proof aircraft could be put up from a deck only 400 feet long and 60 feet wide during an Atlantic winter.

So Britain and the United States turned to converting freights to escort carriers, improving as they went along.

Labor Transfers Possible Under New Law

OTTAWA, Sept. 22—(CP)—Selective Service officials said today that workers in high priority industries, frozen in their jobs by a government order issued Monday, may be permitted to transfer to another high priority industry if such transfer is considered justifiable by the local Selective Service officer.

No change in employment by such male workers may be undertaken without a permit. If, for instance, a newspaperman in one city decided to transfer to another newspaper in the same city, he would require a permit.

By the same token, if a newspaperman were able to drive a railway engine and wished to change to the railway service, he would make application to the Selective Service Officer.

Before he granted a permit for the change to be made, the Selective Service Officer would take into account the respective needs of newspapers and the railway service in his community. Whether or not he granted the permit would depend on the labor supplies available to the two services. If the newspapers were short of help and the railways had sufficient engine-drivers, then the permit probably would be denied.

Briefly, the regulations state that male employees in "designated" establishments—those with "A" or "B" labor priority rating—may not quite their employment without the permission in writing of a Selective Service Officer, and, correspondingly, they may not be dismissed without such approval.

Officials said the purpose of the regulations was to see that the Dominion labor force was used to the best advantage. This meant that recognition had to be given changing conditions, in that the labor demand of one high priority industry might be greater than that of another at particular times.

Form letters briefly outlining the regulations are being sent to employers in "A" and "B" priority industries, with advice that their place of employment has been classified as a "designated establishment." The letters include a notice summarizing the regulations which is to be posted for the information of employees.

Take Campagna, St. Cipriano In Latest Advance; Naples Called Horror City

Official Word Of Canadians Lacking
North African Air Force Continues To Pound Hun Communications

By N. NORGAARD—Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, Sept. 22—(AP).—Huge fires and demolitions scarred Naples today as the Germans hastily threw a defensive ring around the city to retard Allied armies steadily pressing outward from the Salerno bridgehead.

The city of nearly 1,000,000 normal population in southern Italy was described officially as overhung with smoke.

A military spokesman said the enemy was establishing a strong defence line on the approaches to Naples from the south and east, but the extent of their demolitions in and near the city gave evidence the Germans hoped to hold back Allied attack toward the city from the Salerno area.

The 5th Army meanwhile fought its way steadily east and northeast from Salerno, with British troops chasing fleeing Germans from the town of San Cipriano, and Americans taking the towns of Campagna and Montecorvino-Rovella.

Corsica Battle Rages.

On Corsica French soldiers and native patrols pursued a German garrison estimated at 12,000 men toward the eastern shores while R.A.F., R.C.A.F. and United States bombers blasted at the principal avenue of German evacuation from the island—the Corsican harbor of Bastia and the Italian port of Leghorn.

The military spokesman said he had "nothing to add" to Prime Minister Churchill's statement yesterday that American troops had landed on Sardinia, but the belief prevailed here that whatever units were sent to that island intended only to cooperate with an Italian division which already at Premier Pietro Badoglio's command took control and compelled the Germans to flee.

Another menace to the Germans on the Italian mainland, Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's British 8th Army, which includes units of the Canadian 1st Division, drove northward and inland occupied the key highway and rail centre of Potenza.

A Railway Centre

Occupation of Potenza, which is a junction point of five main roads, gave the Allies control of the entire inland highway and rail systems south of a line extending eastward from Salerno.

Frontline reports told how 5th Army troops, steadily beating a path through the rugged mountain barrier north and northeast of Salerno, were encountering fierce enemy artillery and mortar fire.

To the east of Salerno, however, Lt.-Gen. Mark Clark's troops met only small enemy rearguard detachments and the Germans there appeared depending primarily upon extensive mining and demolitions to hinder the advance and to give their own troops the opportunity to withdraw.

British and American troops swinging northward in a pivot action found portions of the Salerno plain littered with the battered remnants of German tanks, guns and trucks and other equipment.

A military spokesman, declaring "the first phase of the Salerno battle now is definitely over," added "we have inflicted upon the enemy heavy losses in personnel killed and captured and in equipment."

Cut Retreat Lanes.

Further trouble for the hunted Germans came from Allied planes which sought to cut off the last avenues of escape or reinforcement by the bombing of Bastia.

R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. Wellingtons as well as American heavy bombers from Britain which have now arrived in Africa, joined in the con-

British Request Spanish Troops Leave Russia

LONDON, Sept. 22—(CP)—Foreign Secretary Eden disclosed in the House of Commons today that Sir Samuel Hoare, British Ambassador to Spain, had warned Gen. Franco that the presence of the Spanish Blue Division on the Russian front is a "serious ob stacle to development of cordial Anglo-Spanish relations."

"The Spanish government have undertaken to look into the complaint," Mr. Eden added, "and we look to them for an early improvement in the situation.

The statement was taken as foreshadowing the possibility that the Communist-hating Franco regime might withdraw its forces now fighting against Russia from the Eastern front.

Stressed Complaints

Ranging over a wide field of foreign relations questions connected with Allied military progress, Mr. Eden reported that Sir Samuel, on the eve of his departure from Spain for London, had drawn to Franco's attention the complaints which the British government had made of Spanish discrimination against British interests.

Mr. Eden reported that "some of the complaints had been remedied" before this conference and that things are "better than they were" with Spain.

Meanwhile he said, the government is constantly reviewing the situation in Tangier, where the Spaniards unilaterally took control of the international zone in 1940, and takes a "serious view" of the Enemy Raiders Hit East Anglia

LONDON, Sept. 22—(CP). — Two big formations of Allied planes roared out over the Strait of Dover this morning to attack objectives on the Continent in a continuation of the daylight air offensive.

The last large-scale raids were last Thursday, when R.A.F. night bombers struck at the Modane Alpine tunnel in France and American daylight planes hit Nantes port facilities.

Since then two-engined bombers have borne the brunt of aerial warfare, raining destruction on German airbases in three of the last four days.

German air raiders scattered a few bombs over East Anglia and southeast England last night, causing some damage and casualties, the Home Security Minister announced, but the raids were not on a large scale.

Slight enemy activity also was reported over northeastern and eastern England, but no bombs fell in those areas.

Two enemy planes were destroyed over Britain during the night, it was announced.

Churchill Puts Finger on Russian Issue

Shows Eagerness To Solve Important Problems Which Exist

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Prime Minister Churchill has the knack of hitting the nail on the head, as he again demonstrated yesterday by the manner in which he drove home the points of his notable two-hour war report to the House of Commons.

Outstanding was the Premier's warning of the need of cordial relations between the Anglo-American Allies and their Russian colleague—a subject which long has been driving many timid statesmen to the hurricane cellar. He broached the matter by announcing that not only will there be a conference of representatives of Britain, America and Russia "at an early date" but that this will be followed by a Roosevelt-Stalin-Churchill parley.

Mr. Churchill thus approached a great issue which is causing increasing anxiety—that is, the need of ironing out important differences in viewpoint between the Anglo-American partnership and our Soviet ally. These problems are largely political and unless they are solved they will bode no good to a post-war world which will be entering a new epoch in the progress of mankind.

To my mind the fundamental fact to which all parties must adjust their outlook is that Russia's star seems to be leading her straight to domination of most of Europe and Asia after this war. Look at it whatever way you will—politically, economically or militarily—and the answer is the same. This vast, self-contained, invulnerable empire will be the most powerful unit of the eastern hemisphere. That's a decree of fate, and the only way to meet it is to recognize it and strive for a frank understanding.

Post-War Questions

Among the questions on which the Soviet and the western Allies appear to be rather far apart is that relating to the method of handling the defeated Axis countries, and especially as regards the treatment of Germany. Britain and the United States demand unconditional surrender, which would be followed by military occupation.

Moscow, on the other hand, has nodded approval of the activities of German officers and others in Russia who have formed committees and are trying to persuade the German people to overthrow Hitler and form a government which they hope might secure a negotiated peace. The signs are, too, that the Soviet doesn't car for the Allied plans for supervising Italy.

Princess Elizabeth Serves

Absence Of King Princess May Serve As Councillor

LONDON, Sept. 22—(CP). — The House of Commons agreed today that in future when the King is absent from the realm, Princess Elizabeth may serve as one of his councillors of state.

The King made the request for parliament's agreement in a message read to the House today.

This carries forward one more step in the preparation of the Princess for queenship and will give her an opportunity to try her hand at statecraft.

On the King's last foreign trip, to visit the troops in North Africa, she was excluded from the Council of State, headed by the Queen, because she was a minor. She will attain legal majority on her 18th birthday next April 21.

The King's action suggested he may contemplate another trip some day to visit his forces abroad.

Nazis Mine Naples Area

Italians Forced To Work As Laborers

WITH THE 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 20 (Delayed)—Refugees from Italy who arrived in 5th Army territory declared the Germans are mining the Naples area in expectation of an attack by 5th Army forces.

One of the refugees, an Italian captain in civilian dress, said he left Naples last night and arrived in the Salerno area this morning. He asked that his name be kept secret because his family is still in German-occupied territory.

"Already they are making Italian soldiers do forced labor," he said. "In Naples they won't trust us to do any military work because they know we will do everything we can to sabotage their defence against the Americans and the British. The Germans make the Italian soldiers do laborers' work loading trucks, digging ditches and trenches, even digging and covering up latrines.

AMERICAN CHIEF OF STAFF HONORED WITH NEW WAR APPOINTMENT

Gen. Marshall Named Allied Chief

Early Invasion Expected With This Move

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22—(CP)—Disclosure that Gen. George C. Marshall, United States Army Chief-of-Staff, has been nominated for supreme command in the field of all Anglo-American land, sea and air forces made it fairly obvious today the hour for storming Hitler's European fortress is fast approaching.

Announcement of the appointment of Gen. Marshall to the most extraordinary military assignment in history—climaxing a series of charges which pictured British interests at attempting to kick the American leader upstairs—is expected to be made soon by Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt.

That he has been chosen for the post, subject only to final approval by the British government, has been established, coinciding with new evidence that a massive invasion of western Europe is being mounted in Britain.

A Big Job

Gen. Marshall's responsibilities as supreme field commander, as decided by the Prime Minister and president at Quebec, will be world-wide, but his first tough task will be the destruction of Nazi Germany.

There was no official reaction immediately forthcoming from London, but one competent source there said "Marshall would be one of the best leaders in the world for such a post." And unofficial comment generally was favorable. It is also reported the Canadian Government has agreed to the appointment but that, likewise could not be confirmed here.

Gen. Marshall's projected appointment, particularly with respect to the European theatre, is designed to assure close co-ordination among all the armies now in action as well as those slated for assault in the direct attack across the Channel which Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons yesterday will be undertaken when the Allies are ready to strike that essential blow.

Authorities here expect that Gen. Marshall as Allied Commander with immense armies and air forces at his disposal will brook no delay in making sure attacks come at such places and times as will keep Germany off-balance and in retreat. It has been said of him that one of his cardinal principles is never to give the enemy a chance to recover his footing once he has lost it.

Paratroopers Seize Huon Base

Japs' Coastal Road Blown To Bits In Aerial Offensive

By BOB EUNSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 22—(AP)—Only two days after the fall of Lae, New Guinea, Australian paratroopers seized a village 60 miles to the northwest while waves of Allied bombers wrecked airdromes, bridges, trucks and roads along a path of future conquest for 350 miles north. The seizure of Kaiapit by transport-flown Australians last Saturday night was disclosed in a communique today. Kaiapit is inland on the Huon Peninsula behind the Markham Valley positions which airborne troops seized Sept. 5 to set in motion a pincers movement which swallowed up Lae in less than two weeks.

50 Bombers in Raid

On Monday, more than 50 two and four-engined bombers without a loss strewed tons of bombs and 120,000 rounds of strafing bullets among the communication areas around Astrolabe Bay, some 70 miles north of Kaiapit. Four important bridges on Japan's coastal supply road were blown to bits. On the same day, fighters escorted bombers in a 43-ton bombing of airdromes at Wewak, more than 300 miles north of Lae.

The Japanese air force lost three fighters out of a formation of 25 which inflicted some damage and casualties in a raid on Nadzab, the airstrip 20 miles back of Lae which Australian paratroopers occupied 17 days ago.

The enemy paid his biggest price of 20 planes in a raid, reported today, made by 30 dive-bombers and 20 fighters last Saturday on Allied positions at Barakoma, Vella Lavella Island, in the Solomons.

Near New Georgia, the Japanese are manifesting alarm over the threat posed by Allied attempts to completely occupy Arundel Island within artillery range of the enemy's Vila garrison of Kolombangara.

Under cover of darkness, the Japanese sent reinforcements in barges across narrow Blackett Strait, but most of them were driven off by Allied gunfire.

British Forces Land On Dodecanese Isle

CAIRO, Sept. 21 —(AP)—British forces have landed on the Aegean Islands of Kos, Leros and Samos off the coast of Turkey, it was announced officially today.

At the same time it was disclosed that American four-engined bombers from the Middle East bombed Venice, Italy, for the first time yesterday.

The confirmation of the reported occupation of Kos and Leros in the Italian Dodecanese group and the Greek Island of Samos immediately to the north, which has been current for several days, followed an R.A.F. communique announcing that the R.A.F. had seized the Kos airdrome and is operating from there.

The Island of Kos is the second largest of the chain which parallels the Turkish coast in the eastern Mediterranean. It lies about 50 miles northeast of German-held Rhodes, the largest of the group.

Destroy Bridge

The BBC quoted a Yugoslav field communique last night as saying patriot forces had destroyed the bridge between Susak and Fiume, cut the rail line from Suska to Ogulin at several points and erected strong fortifications about Split, which it said the Germans had been trying for eight days to recapture.

The broadcast was recorded by CBS.

Patrols Fight

The United Nations radio at Algiers declared today the situation on the Salerno front in Italy "remains satisfactory" and that the Germans are continuing to withdraw under the combined pressure of the Anglo-American 5th Army and the British 8th Army.

The broadcast reported, however, there had been no large scale fighting, declaring that contact between the opposing forces was confined to patrols.

Disastrous Fire Hits Bancroft

BANCROFT, Sept. 22—(ENS) — Fire which is believed to have been caused by faulty wiring swept quickly through a block containing two dwellings, a store and an office at 3 o'clock this morning, causing damage estimated at between $7,000 and $10,000.

The two homes were those of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Switzer and Miss V. Woodcock, and these were beside Woodcock's Ladies' Wear Store and an office belonging to Frank Boalim. The building owned jointly by Miss Woodcock and Mr. Boalim is situated on Hastings Street adjacent to the telephone building.

Mrs. Switzer was talking outside of her home at 3 o'clock when she glanced around and saw the flames shooting out of her house, and they spread rapidly to the other buildings. The town fire equipment was operated by a volunteer crew which fought the blaze hard, and the Department of Lands and Forests at Bancroft sent additional pumps and hose.

The hard work of the fire fighters kept the flames confined to the block. Only the fact that the building was sheeted with tin saved the Telephone Exchange and the apartment of R. W. Blatherwick above it, and the Bancroft Bakery on the other side.

Everything in the Switzer and Wood homes was destroyed, but most of the contents from the store were brought out.

A MOTHER'S MEMORY.

As the young airman passed her table in the restaurant, the little woman with glasses and hair lightly touched with grey gazed briefly but intently on the blue which once her own hands had caressed. You felt certain she did not notice the youth it garbed so smartly like all his fellows in the continuing procession of the last four years. And somewhere in that great and valorous company you followed the fleeting light of memory in her eyes as it rested on her own boy who used to come home occasionally, as this one does, between times of learning to use the wings which in some mischance were crushed on a Canadian training field. And remembering that personal tragedy of the war you understood the little fugitive droop of expression before she was caught back into the conversation of her luncheon friends. You never know these days the little ghosts of sadness that move about commonplace scenes.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 22 — (CP).—Wheat prices held firm on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday, with export trade on a fair scale. At the close values were ⅞ to 1¼ cents a bushel higher, with the October future touching a new seasonal high of 1.18⅝.

There was good export buying in the October future, credited to the United States Commodity Credit Corporation and placed at 1,780,000 bushels.

MORE ABOUT—

31 Americans

for the Salerno beachhead.

Patrols moving up after dawn this morning saw the men walking wearily out of a woods. Their helmets identified them as Americans. Their general appearance was one of complete fatigue.

This correspondent happened along as two of them came out of the woods and sank down to rest at the roadside they told how they and their comrades had lain hidden.

They hug holes over which they placed branches and leaves. They were out of ammunition and there was nothing else to do but try to escape detection. The Germans kept moving in and guns and tanks were set up less than 200 yards from their hiding place.

For three days they scarcely moved from their holes. At night they crawled to the river for water and managed to find an Italian garden with nothing in it but corn and onions. That was all they had to eat for a week. Then the American artillery offensive to drive out the Germans began.

The Americans stayed in their holes with shells falling all around them. Then wave after wave of medium bombers came over. The area became like a section of hell.

The bombardment finally eased and the Germans began pulling out.

The health officials are visiting the station to discuss a quarantine it was reported here and in the meantime all contacts with the cases are being kept under supervision at the air station hospital.

Fl. Lt. F. H. Smith, Trenton station medical officer, said last night that leaves so far have not been cancelled but intimated that the inquiry might be followed by some action.

CAMPBELLFORD

Wm. Armstrong Still Active In 86th Year

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 22 — (ENS) — Still the active head of the business with which he became associated as a boy some seventy years ago is William J. Armstrong, former mayor and school trustee of this town who no Monday celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday.

For several years the oldest and still one of the most forward looking business men in the district Mr. Armstrong continues to supervise all of the buying and actually does much of the selling in the business his father, the late W. W. Armstrong established here in 1881.

When he came to this town from Blairton with his parents in 1887, Mr. Armstrong had already been well initiated in the retail business since as a lad of twelve he had begun clerking and doing other jobs. Though it was six years after his father had established a general store in this town that the family actually moved here from Blairton. W. J. Armstrong was soon recognized by citizens for his worth both as a business man and leader in the community, and attesting to his popularity was the fact that without previous municipal experience, he contested the mayorality and for three successive years— from 1914 to 1916 he served as the town's firs' citizen.

Hard Worker.

Further evidence of his interest in municipal life was demonstrated by his sitting for a number of years on the Board of Education. He actually assumed control of the business he still operates forty years ago following the death of his father and now counting back to the time when he first worked behind the counter Mr. Armstrong has been associated with the retail trade for 73 years.

In addition to his business, Mr. Armstrong has also been active in church, fraternal and political circles having for 28 years been an elder first of St. Andrew's Presbyterian and (following church union) of St. John's United Church. His membership in the Masonic Order dates back for many year, and his affiliation with the Tory party in this riding to the time he cast his first ballot. Nor has his interest in politics waned in any sense of the word, for Mr. Armstrong was one of the busiest party workers here prior to the August election.

His wife, a former Campbellford girl, Annie Bell, died here twenty years ago and Mr. Armstrong is himself the oldest surviving member of the original family. A half-brother, Charles lives in Toronto and a sister, Mrs. H. B. Denike is in Dartford while Simon Armstrong who passed away two years ago, will be remembered in Peterborough where he served as city clerk for more than half a century.

Though his birthday actually came on Monday, a quiet family celebration was observed on the preceding day when two granddaughters, Ellenor and Williamene Allan both with the R. C. A. F. were home on leave. A grand son, Bill McEachern has been overseas for the past three years. Joining with other members of the family to mark the anniversary were two daughters, Mrs. Jack Allan and Mrs. J. D. McEachren both of town, while the only other member of the family of three girls, Miss Lena Armstrong, Reg. N. of New York City, was unable to be present.

Speaker Urges Value Of Ideals

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 22 — (ENS) — Rev. Dr. W. P. Fletcher, B. A. of Marmora United Church was the guest speaker at the annual anniversary services held at Zion Church on Sunday.

Dr. Fletcher gave two splendid addresses to the large congregations which he urged to adhere to noble religious ideals. He delcared many people took the attitude of "What's the use?" and fell into the same habits as others such as drinking and gambling. The speaker noted with regret that better times for the farmer had not caused any increase in church attendance and yet the rural people needed God and worship to provide them wtih spiritual strength. A church life is not complete when kept only for individual and family interests. It must be enlarged for others and for world mission, he declared.

A feature of both services was the special music sung by the choir which in the morning gave the chorus "We Would Be Building Temples" followed by a duet from Miss Isobel Irwin and Mr. John Coggins who sang "My Father Knows." During the evening service the choir offered "Light of the World," and a mixed quartette sang "So Near to the Kingdom of Heaven" followed again by Miss Irwin who sang as a solo "Enough To Know." For the splendid music much appreciation was due to Miss Bernice Wright the church pianist, and to Mr. John Coggins guest soloist from Burnbrae church.

COBOURG

Girls Sentenced For Attack On Supervisor

COBOURG, Sept. 22—(ENS)—Planned with a callous brutality more in keeping with reformatory or penitentiary inmates, a mass delivery which didn't mature, was revealed in police court yesterday when two girls from the Ontario Training School for Girls, Cobourg, appeared in a charge of assaulting Miss Clara Hinman, night supervisor at the school. Each received a year in Mercer.

Miss Hinman was laid up in the hospital for five days after the attack.

The two girls lured her into the dormitory at night on the pretext that one of them had a pain, and while one girl held her, the other slugged her on the head with a steel-cleated shoes, which was a court exhibit.

"It might have been an attempted murder or manslaughter charge instead of the assault charge you are now facing," declared Magistrate R. B. Baxter in sentencing the two to one year each in reformatory.

One of the girls was Gladys Thompson, 16 years of age, Toronto, and the other was a 15-year-old Negro girl whose home is in Hamilton but who was born in Detroit, Michigan.

Reported Sick

Clara Hinman told the court that on the night of September 7, while on duty at the girls' training school, she received a call to one of the dormitories as one of the girls complained of having a pain.

"I took my flashlight and went into the dormitory and then went out for an aspirin and glass of water for the girl. When I went back to the bed, someone seized me from behind, clamping a hand over my mouth and then someone started to hit me over the head with something. I later learned that it was a shoe. I received scalp lacerations, abrasions and bruises and was in the hospital for about five days. It was dark and I didn't recognize the girls responsible," testified Miss Hinman.

Mrs. M. Pender, superintendent of the school, testified that the affair had happened about twenty to three in the morning. As a result of her investigation she learned the identity of the two girls responsible, and they were the two accused girls in court. Mrs. Pender produced a woman's shoe with steel cleats, and blood-stained. A hair brush, owned by one of the accused, was found nearby. Miss Hinman was bleeding very badly from scalp wounds and when the blood could not be stopped, she sent for a doctor. The lacerations were so bad that the doctor found difficulty in attaching the clamps.

Bad Records

The case records of the two girls were quite bad, Mrs. Pender revealed in reading their histories into the court record.

Both girls admitted their guilt, the younger one stating that she had played sick to get the night supervisor into the dormitory.

"We planned to knock her out and take her keys. The whole bunch in the ward would have broken out along with us, that is all except three who we were not sure of. I held her arms while the other girl hit her over the head," stated the Negro girl.

"You might have killed her," commented the magistrate in sentencing them. "If you don't mend your ways you'll spend your lives in institutions."

COBOURG

Vagrants Tell Court Positions Await Them

COBOURG, Sept. 22.—(ENS).—It was the old story yesterday in police court when two elderly transients appeared on vagrancy charges. Both craved a chance to get out of town to go to jobs which they said were awaiting them. Thomas Gorman told the court that it was his first "visit" to Cobourg since the Centennial about six years ago. The other was Joseph Nealand.

"If you want work so badly why not see the local Selective Service officer here," suggested the magistrate.

Warily, Nealand replied that he was "signed up" with another Selective Service office.

"All right, get out and on your way." said the magistrate.

COBOURG

Council Discusses Need For Caretaker

COBOURG, Sept. 22.—(ENS). — Cobourg town council at its meeting Monday deliberated for some length over the question of whether or not the services of the caretaker of the dump should be retained any longer, now that a municipal garbage collection system was in force. Under the terms of the present system, the collector has to look after the dump.

After the discussion had gone on to some length, Mayor Jack Burnet reminded council that the bylaw which covered the municipal garbage collection had not yet been passed. The new system of collection started last July 12.

On motion the matter was left to the Health and Sanitation committee.

Accounts passed were as follows: Highways and streets, $347.40; public buildings and printing, $93.06; police, $5.10; fire, water and light, $18.90; market, $155.33; health and sanitation, $31.75; finance, $165 and direct relief $62.98.

Friends Give Shower

BAILIEBORO, Sept. 22 —(ENS) —The home of Mr. and Mrs Percy Elgar was the scene of a pleasant gathering last week when over one hundred friends and neighbors met, bringing a shower of gifts to their daughter, Miss Maretta, prior to her coming marriage.

A short program of musical numbers was prepared and Joseph Thorn acted as chairman. Miss Pearl Smith read the address, to which Maretta replied.

The evening was spent in dancin gand games.

The Bishops And Social Justice

The General Synod of the Church of England in Canada is always an interesting meeting, but the opinions expressed by two bishops will give special interest to the Synod held in Toronto last week. The Bishops of Calgary and Quebec led a discussion on social justice, and spoke their minds fully and freely. The Right Rev. H. F. Ragg, the Bishop of Calgary, said: "I may go to jail for saying this, but I think we should lead the people against any government that will not give social justice". And the Right Rev. Philip Carrington, the Bishop of Quebec, spoke thus:

"When Mr. John Bracken comes to Quebec he calls on the bishop. When Mackenzie King comes to Quebec he comes to see the bishop. And I had a nice talk with M. J. Coldwell the other day. It does not matter to me who does it, I but I want to see some measure of social justice given to the people of this country. Canada has one of the worst records in the matter of malnutrition of children. I don't think there is much hope of the bishops giving a lead in this matter. The bishops are too busy with other matters, such as the rights of dioceses, the establishment of a primatial see, and so on. We haven't time for this matter of social justice. If you want action, why not tell the politicians that there are 1,600,000 Anglican votes in Canada for the party which will see that people have food and clothing and a roof over their heads."

This, we feel, is excellent. Vigorous attacks upon social evils by the Church have done good in the past, and will do good again, and if the Bishops of Calgary and Quebec want to lead a crusade against social injustice they will gain support from many sources, the Examiner among them. The people of Canada, of whatever religious denomination, are glad to hear from courageous men who see evil clearly and fight it unsparingly; we need such men now as we have seldom needed them in our history. We can assure the Bishop of Calgary that he is in no danger whatever o. going to jail for what he has said, though he might lose his mitre in a political fight. For that is what the Bishops are apparently proposing—a political fight; we hope that they know what such a fight may involve.

Churches have two ways of bringing about social changes. By devoted and vigorous preaching of Christianity they may influence men toward what is good in life, hoping that social amelioration will follow as a consequence of their teaching. Or they may begin at the other end of the problem and attack social evils directly, throwing their influence into political struggles and fighting in the foremost rank for the social changes which they consider necessary for the public welfare. The United Church, in its most recent Report of the Committee on Evangelism and Social Service, has given indications that it means to take the latter course, and the Bishops of Calgary and Quebec apparently wish the Church of England to follow its example. The difficulties in the way of such a course are many, but not necessarily insuperable.

We think that the Bishop of Quebec, however, might be well advised to reconsider his suggestion that there are 1,600,000 Anglican votes for a party which promises social justice. The census lists 1,751,188 Canadians as adherents of the Anglican Church, but at the Synod last week it was explained that 896,435 of these have no actual contact with the Church. Their votes, therefore, could not be counted on, and we do not think that the other 854,753 (some of whom are not of voting age) could be counted upon to form a solid bloc in any federal election. It would take several years to turn a church which has been primarily spiritual and educational in its purpose into an effective political agent.

Whether a church forfeits some part of its spiritual influence when it enters the field of politics is a question which each church must answer for itself. In Great Britain the Archbishops of Canterbury and York have given many opinions on planning for the future and on reform of the social order, and as they have seats in the House of Lords it may be said that they are already in the political arena; in Canada there is no analogous situation, and politics is a rough game, offering no place to those who are not prepared to give and take hard knocks. If the Canadian bishops wish to develop political power and use it to further ends which they believe to be good, they must prepare themselves for long years of bitter struggle.

We do not suppose that the bishops imagine themselves to be alone in their desire for social justice. That expression is vague, and can be made to include a great deal of ground, but insofar as it means a square deal for everybody, the right of every man to make the most he can of his abilities, and the equality of all men before the law, it is part of the expressed program of every political party in this Dominion. There is no disagreement about the goal, but only about the means to be used of reaching it. Any contribution which the Anglican Church can make toward achieving that goal will be welcomed by a majority of Canadian people.

Do You Know Why?

Do you know why this Dominion is called Canada? If you do you are rather an unusual person. Recently an American newspaperman visited this county for some fishing, and while he was at Buckhorn he asked the members of his party why our country was called Canada. No one was able to tell him. He said that on a train journey here he had gone through a crowded passenger coach, asking every traveller the same question; he received no satisfactory answer.

We have not been able to find information on this point. In the Encyclopaedia Britannica there is a long article on Canada by the late Sir Robert Borden and Professor G. M. Wrong, but it does not give the desired explanation; the Makers of Canada series is equally uncommunicative.

We have a dim recollection of having once read in a Canadian history that Jacques Cartier mistook the Indian word "kenneta", meaning a village, for the name of the country as a whole, and that our word Canada comes from that source. The story is an apt one, but we cannot vouch for its authenticity. If any reader is able to lighten our darkness we hope that he will write us a letter on the subject.

Naming The Cow

Criticism of city-dwellers is a popular sport on the farm; and there are few city-dwellers who are not ready to offer advice to farmers. Often the city sophisticates do not confine their strictures to farming methods, but criticize farmers as a class, as well. We have even heard city people accuse farmers of lacking imagination.

Lacking imagination, indeed! City people who feel that way should make a round of the fall fairs, and learn better sense and better manners. Let us suppose, for instance, that one of these city critics were to be faced with the problem of naming a cow. What name would he choose? Bossy, as likely as not. Or perhaps he might rise to some such original flight as Browneyes, or Sweetbreath—for city people still believe the old nonsense about a cow having a sweet breath.

But what does the farmer do? He evolves the most poetical and aristocratic names he can think of, and gives his cow an appelation of which she may be proud. If he is a particularly proud dairyman he will have the name inscribed on a metal plate, and will put it up over the stall where the cow lives and does her business. Recently we heard of a cow called Springbank Snow Countess; consider that for a few minutes. It calls up a picture of a high-born beauty, chilly and distant in manner, but with a promise of warmth and affection upon closer acquaintance. Another cow is called Glenview Pontiac Dora de Kol; there is a name which would not be amiss in the Social Register. Yet another is Doreen Francy Rag Apple, obviously a skittish, debutante, cafe-society sort of cow. And another, well-known to dairymen, is Susie Corndyke Fayne Lass, a name fit for a princess among cows.

Think of the thoughtful affection which appears in these names! Think of the pride of the milkmaid or cowman who walks to the pasture gate and calls "Here Susie Corndyke Fayne Lass! Here Doreen Francy Rag Apple!" And think of the pride of the cow who responds! She will be no red-eyed old terror with a crumpled horn, but a high-stepping society cow, filled to the neck with cream. Anyone who says that farmers have no imagination merely shows his ignorance.

Debunking John Milton

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

THE literary fashion for debunking great men is one which can be overdone very easily. Robert Graves' interesting new novel, "Wife To Mr. Milton," oversteps the mark which separates severe criticism from abuse. It is common knowledge that Milton was surly, crabbed, hard to please, and unpleasant in his personal habits, but he can hardly have been such an unrelieved churl as Mr. Graves paints him. In his life he suffered much, both from outward circumstances and from the demands of his own peculiar nature, and his sufferings were visited by him upon his family and his friends without stint; but he must have had a few amiable characteristics; his nature cannot have been all gall and wormwood.

ONLY a very foolish person expects a man of genius to be extraordinary in every respect; and only a very foolish person thinks that he has disposed of a genius when he has shown that the genius possesses some of the foibles of less gifted men. Milton was a genius, a mighty poet who is commonly esteemed as second only to Shakespeare in all English letters; it is not really important to posterity that he was jealous and petty in his personal life, that he tyrannized over his womenfolk, and that his daughters heartily wished him dead. Would anyone exchange Milton for one of his daughters? Genius such as his may be excused anything.

IN his latest novel Mr. Graves gives us the story of Milton's first marriage, told from the point of the woman whom he married. It was anything but a romantic match; young Milton accepted Marie Powell as part of the terms of settlement of a debt which her father owed to his family. His wooing was not ardent; he looked upon women as inferior beings, and upon the generality of mankind as inferior to himself. The match was made in cold blood, and there is no evidence to show that there was ever any strong attachment on either side; it is true that Milton wrote a fine sonnet to the memory of his second wife, ("Methought I saw my late espoused saint, brought to me like Alcestis from the grave"), but his first marriage appears to have given him nothing but vexation. Marie Powell was the daughter of a Welsh Cavalier, and all her training and heredity were opposed to the austere manners and grisly religion of her husband. Mr. Graves draws a flattering picture of Marie. Possibly their life together was the cat-and-dog affair which he has set forth in such detail; Mr. Graves is a scholar of accomplishment, and he can usually back up his most extreme statements with some historical evidence. When he makes Marie call Milton "Stinkard, Base Slubberdegullion, Cheesy Plagiarist" it is not hard for us to believe that he appeared to her in this light. A plagiarist he certainly was (so was Handel, to name but one other, and Shakespeare was such an unashamed lifter from other men's works that the name is too good for him), and he certainly stank of tobacco and the peculiar Puritan odour of sanctity. But who cares, now? We have his poetry, and his faults have long been dust.

ROBERT GRAVES' novel is excellent and entertaining reading. Few admirers of Milton's poetry will fail to be entertained by this account of his private life; sublime as "Paradise Lost" and "Samson Agonistes" are, their high morality palls upon most of us after a dozen pages; we long for one touch of humanity — a drunken Porter, or a fat and delightful rogue like Falstaff; the man who wrote such stuff, we feel, was undoubtedly a poet of the highest endowment, but he must have been a devilishly uncomfortable man to know personally; he denies too great a part of human nature to be loveable, and he is too intent on being admirable. Only a reader who shared some of Milton's kill-joy Puritanism could genuinely savour every page of his vast, chilly and marmoreal poems. "Wife To Mr. Milton" is written with a strong and somewhat unfair anti-Puritan bias; all Puritans were undoubtedly objectionable, and their Commonwealth was undisguised Fascism, but they were not fools; some of them, on the contrary, were wise and many of them were genuinely well-meaning.

THIS book is written with all the careful art which we expect in a novel by Robert Graves. No historical novelist now living has so sure a touch as he; his mastery of the background of his books, and his use of an idiom proper to his subject cannot be criticized. His one fault, if it is a fault, is his tendency to crowd his pages; he spares us no detail, and thus the flow of his narrative is impeded, and the reader wearies of matter which would be more in place in a text-book of history. But he is brilliant in dialogue and description; he makes his people live, and he never descends to the inanities which are the plague of most novels on historical themes. In his line, he stands head and shoulders above all his contemporaries. "Wife To Mr. Milton" must be accounted a success, though not as fine as the novels on the life of the Emperor Claudius by this author. Personal spleen, and a desire to belittle a great poet have marred it; if the author had shown just a little more sympathy toward Milton—for Marie Powell was no companion for a highly intellectual man—his book would have escaped this criticism. But he has attempted to nag Milton for errors committed 300 years ago, and he has overdone it.

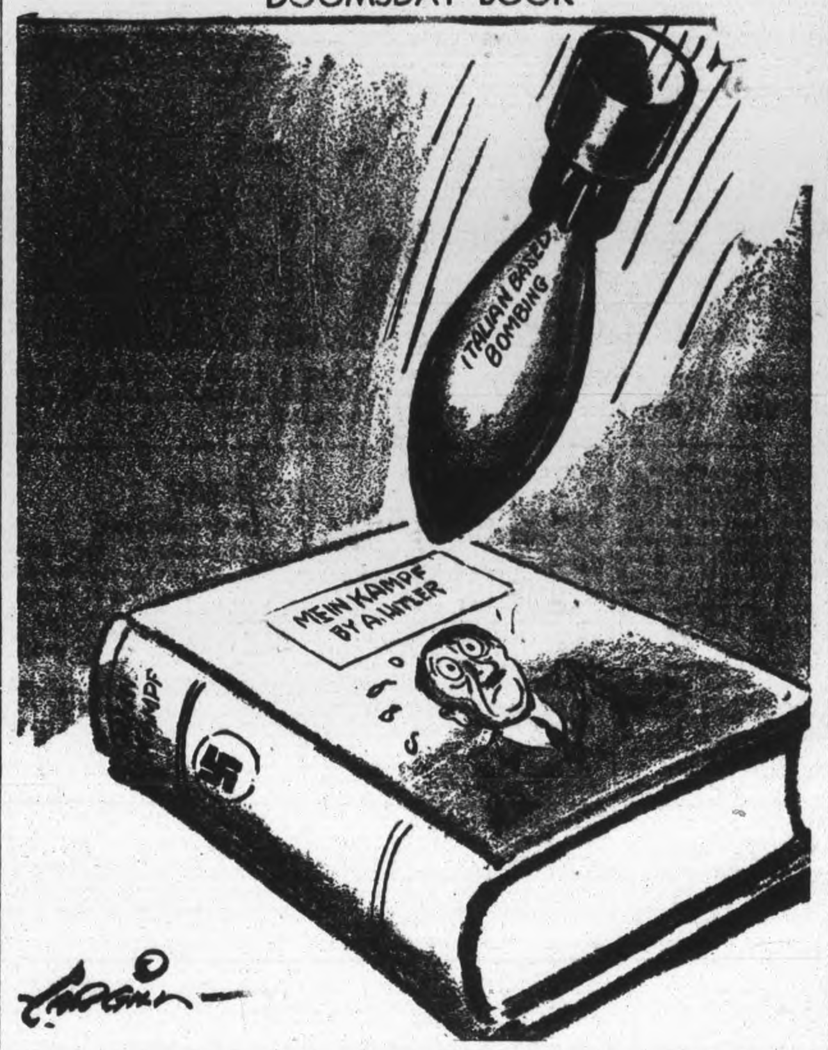
"DOOMSDAY BOOK"



Price Control Reduced Local Wood Supply

(By HARRY THEOBALD)

SOME of the local fuel dealers complain that several news items published in the Examiner since midsummer or thereabouts, reporting an impending shortage of wood in Peterborough, have left in the public mind an impression that they simply threw up their hands and made no effort to restock their depleted yards.

In fairness to the dealers and to the Examiner's news columns, which are guided by the ideal of publishing the facts of any matter as they are presented, it must be pointed out that there is something to be said on both sides.

And that important and salient 'something' is briefly this,—the essential factor of costs and controlled prices as they affected the Peterborough fuel trade was not brought out in discussions of prospects for the fall and winter needs of the public with the emphasis and clear significance they required for understanding by anyone not acquainted with their full meaning to the trade.

THE schedule of permissible charges which the fuel dealers received from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board early in the season was given to the Examiner at a meeting of representatives of the dealers and the city council about the middle of June. Publication of those six or seven pages of prices would have meant nothing to the public. What was required in direction was something of the clear and forceful explanation of costs which the dealers have recently presented, perhaps with the accents of the first chill weather of autumn.

That meeting in June is recalled as having placed most of its emphasis on the outlook for coal deliveries, and featured the request of authorities that the public accept a 50-50 allotment of hard and volatile coal, instead of holding out for an entire supply of anthracite.

Not until last Saturday when an Examiner reporter heard this coal and wood problem discussed in Toronto, and incidentally on the way, was the price significance of the June schedule understood as a barrier to the Peterborough dealers carrying on their usual bush operations. And those operations extended back to the winter. Extreme conditions of snow and rain and freezing interfered with cutting operations in the bush, and the district to the north came out of the winter with less work done than in a great many years, as a result of the combination of labor shortage, adverse weather, higher costs and so on.

In the phrase of one of the dealers, "we were licked from the start," and the import of that statement was simply that the trade would have had to take a loss on every cord of wood under the prices and associated circumstances which proved to be detrimental to Peterborough.

A NEWS COLUMN observation of that meeting is this,—if more emphasis had been placed on stressing the prices facts, (and some of them were amended later) and less on the coal situation, the Examiner would have had more readable news relating to fuel wood from that June meeting.

So that is a statement of the two sides of this case. The dealers apparently did not think then of an explanation, nor a defense, of their position; and leaving a price schedule, prepared for the trade, in the hands of a reporter is not likely to secure an interpretation of its information for the uninitiated.

At any rate the apprehensions of the dealers as to wood prospects were not emphatically stated and therefore not reported with the message which they now know should have been featured from the beginning.

SO MUCH for the report of that meeting in June. There is not one word to which the dealers can take objection, and on their own side is their failure to explain to the public the seriousness of the situation into which conditions had carried them.

As to one or two other references to the fuel outlook in subsequent articles in the Examiner, it should be said that they mentioned not only available news but also opinion. If members of the Council kept persuading themselves that the city would have to get into the wood business, and the dealers had earlier urged them to do so for the benefit of the public later on, that was legitimate news, and if any fuel dealer expressed suspicion that this rival or that might be thinking more of post-war business than of the stringencies of the present, that, too, was proper news. Grant that it was nothing more than a suspicion, but the fact is that no active dealer organization with all kinds of helpful plans such as pooling of help and materials has grown out of the summer conversation; at least none that the public and press know of.

ON the other hand, it should be understood that the fuel dealers are passing through a most trying period, day by day, and that the public on its part in too many instances does not try to help the trade in a business that is bristling with troubles.

The public knows now, according to the trade explanation—which they left more or less understated or generally neglected previously — that the price control structure applying to Peterborough wood-getting leaned too heavily against the trade, and that they could not adopt it and meet expenses, but the dealers themselves are largely to blame for not building up their own case with their customers earlier in the year.

At the Centre of Empire

(By SCOTT YOUNG, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Sept. 22 (CP)—September has been a big month so far for Britons. The new clothing coupons came into effect and the Allies invaded Italy, in that order.

It would be hard to say which caused the greatest excitement among the public, but it would be about six to five by any Cockney bookie that in outward ecstasy the release of clothing coupons beat the invasion of Italy by a short head. It doesn't take people long to get used to things, and Britons are getting used to invasion—Africa, Pantelleria, Sicily and now Italy. They never have a chance to get used to clothing coupons.

It was tough trying to use them for the first few days. On the first day, knocking off in mid-afternoon to buy a pair of shoes, I found the Strand crowded with disappointed people standing around in practically their stocking feet looking dejectedly at signs in every shoe-store window which said: "Today's quota sold out. Shop re-opens 10 a.m. tomorrow." The next day I got there early, with a lot of other people.

Of course, only 20 of the year's supply of 40 coupons were available for use, and as shoes cost nine coupons you have to knock off buying for a while after that. The authorities recognize the clothing ration isn't enough to clothe one properly, but figure (or did at first) that the backlog of pre-ration clothing should make up the difference. After four years of war there isn't much backlog. Everybody complains, but few demand a change. They know the relaxation will come as soon as possible, because Hugh Dalton, president of the Board of Trade and boss of the coupon kingdom, doesn't like going around in stocking feet and worn trousers any more than anyone else.

It was in a pub in Westminister, near Belgrave Square, where rich and aristocratic London once held full sway.

Two people were talking. One was an Englishman with what we call a "Kensington" accent—rapid, with one word out of every five or six accented heavily.

He was in civilian clothes.

So was the other, a Belgian. He talked English with a foreign accent.

The Englishman was telling a girl with him about how his manservant had been transferred to war work, and how difficult it was getting along without him.

The Belgian was speaking, too, and the voices sort of ran together. "We are a family of four, three sons and one daughter," the Belgian said. "In the last war my father was shot by the Germans....for us it was just four years behind the German lines, trying to keep alive."

(The Englishman said: "His father was with my father, too. They've been with the family for as long as I can remember.")

"After the war," the Belgian continued, "w had nothing, of course. My father was dead. W had to build from nothing. My older brothe worked and my mother worked, and my siste and my other brother and I went to school.... By 1938 our family was on its feet again. We h a good house.

"The next year the war came, and the Germans captured our place again right at the first The husband of my sister was shot, like my father had been. My sister was a nurse, so she wen into the field with the army....She had her arm blown off. My oldest brother was a corporal. H was killed. My younger brother was a captain He was taken prisoner. I escaped.

"My mother and sister are in Belgium now, s is my youngest brother...."

I think he is like the rest of my people. The are doing what they can."

The Belgian seemed philosophical, almost fatalistic.

"We will go back after the war," he said, "an we will start to build all over again. I hope w will have a roof over my mother again before sh dies."

The Englishman said gloomily to his compa ion: "You have no idea how frightful it is t get up in the morning without a cup of tea."

Nurses Share In Battle Hazards

Inclusion of a dozen nursing sisters of th Army Medical Corps in the latest casualty lis from the battle of Sicily, as victims of injurie from bomb splinters during an enemy air raid shines a bright spotlight on the valiant and vita service of stoutnearted women in battle zone across the world.

Perhaps more than any of the women's auxiliary corps attached to the fighting forces, th nursing detachments are not only essential unit of active battle formations but share in the hardships and the hazards of those engaged directl in the job of fighting the war on sea and lan and in the air.

The speed and mobility of modern warfar make it especially essential that medical unit with their nursing staffs should move with fighting establishments as they advance into batt zones. Their stations of succor are set up a points often dangerously close to the front line where the enemy is being engaged. They mus often work at risk of flying bullets, shellfire an bombing.

While honoring the sailors, the soldiers an the airmen who swept through Sicily and on int Italy itself, let us add a salute to the wome whose courage and skill played such an essentia part in the campaign — and saved countles wounded warriors to fight again. — Montrea Gazette.

Needs Of Farms Reduce Blood Donors

The list of blood donors at the first clinic of the present week on Monday contained a total of 69 names, a figure that holds at about the same level as in recent weeks. Though the holiday season is over and more donations can be expected from that source than during the summer months, it is said that farming requirements are holding down the number of contributors from outlying districts, a situation which will probably improve near the beginning of the month.

Mess Room Chatter

WITH THE R.C.A.F. SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Sept. 21—(CP). — Coastal Command is talking about the record set up by an R.C.A.F. crew flying out of Iceland. This crew sighted and attacked a U-boat three minutes after setting out on its first patrol.

Skipper of the crew was Victor Miettinen, former Northern Ontario gold miner from Cobalt. With him were Alexander McKinnon of Kirkland Lake, Ont., a sergeant, and Sgts. Bernard McKeough, Linwood, N.S., and J. A. Wise, Vancouver.

They were flying in a Hudson aircraft and sighted the U-boat seven miles or so away, heading for the Atlantic shipping lanes. The sub crash-dived and the boys were able to claim it as possible damaged after they dropped their stick of depth charges just ahead of the submarine's swell.

More about anti-submarine war: Sgt. Harold Oliver of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., was involved in a Coastal Command attack from an Icelandic base. He spotted the German submarine fully surfaced in the North Atlantic and helped attack it from a height of 50 feet while all the guns of the submarine were firing at the aircraft. Oliver was flying as second pilot in an R.A.F. Liberator at the time and the skipper, an Australian, received an immediate Bar to his D.F.C. for the successful attack.

As the Liberator banked steeply after the attack the crew saw their target hidden in the eruption of depth charge explosions and the plumes of water had scarcely subsided when four or five Germans were seen in the water. The air crew was officially credited with a "kill."

Just as a Canadian Mustang squadron won a ball game by four runs from another Canadian Mustang Squadron the winning team learned that one of their pilots, F O. J. Malcolm Robb, former Toronto lawyer, had shot down his first victim. It was an ME109 which Robb saw burst into flames.

Robb was in the lineup for the ball game, but at the last minute was called out on a train-busting operation with FO. Gus Garry of Ottawa. The two pilots found a goods train near Rheims and after hitting the locomotive were heading for home when they found themselves on the "blind" side of an enemy fighter flying at about 100 feet. Robb downed him.

FO. Ted Farah, ex-Canadian Press man from Toronto, who is a press officer with the R.C.A.F. in North Africa, tells about LAC Andy Sproule, of Toronto, moustachioed and sun-tanned who is working behind the counter in a sergeant's canteen. Sproule says: "If I go back to Canada and say I ran a lemonade stand on the edge of the desert they'll think I was affected by the heat."

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The Stratford Kroehlers, the girls' team who play Westclox here on Saturday afternoon in the second game of their provincial playoff series are evidently a bunch of battlers. They cleaned up their round with the St. Catharines Merry-Macs the hard way. After losing a forfeited game at home the Kroehlers went back to St. Catharines Saturday, defeated the Merry-Macs 12 to 3 in the afternoon and then took the series by winning an evening game 5 to 4. Evidently the Stratford girls rely chiefly on the hurling of Hazel Baynton for she pitched both games for them last Saturday holding the Merry-Macs to four hits in the afternoon affair and allowing only five in the nightcap. The Stratford batting order is Evelyn Easson 2b, Doris Harloff rf, Jean Aiken c, Hazel Baynton p, Greta Harmer lf, Helen Doubrough 1b, Betty Appel ss, Ruby Huras cf, Gladys Heinbuch 3b. The Westclox girls are playing in Stratford this evening and hope to come home with a win. Manager Pat Hayden announced yesterday that he proposed to send Isobel Bullock to the mound for the game in Stratford, confident that she would stop the Kroehlers as effectively as she did the Ottawa team here several weeks ago.

* * * * * *

Incidentally the St. Catharines-Stratford series produced all kinds of trouble for the umpires. The Stratford crowd invaded the field last Wednesday to attack the St. Catharines umpire and as a result the Kroehlers eventually forfeited the game. At St. Catharines it was the Stratford umpire's turn to be assailed. After Page of the Classic City had called a St. Catharines girl out at the plate there was a near riot. The Stratford Beacon-Herald describes the incident as follows: "The rumpus all came to a head in the eighth innings, with the St. Catharines' team at bat, when Umpire Page called a St. Catharines runner out at the plate. Two spectators who demonstrated from the start that they were attending the game for the sole purpose of creating a disturbance, hopped over the rail and attacked the umpire. The pair were followed by more, as is usually the case in an outbreak, and soon the whole ball park was in an uproar. Incidentally, one of the attackers attended the evening game but presented himself in the uniform of the R.C.A.F., possibly for his own protection, and he kept himself very quiet all through the game. Following the outbreak St. Catharines police arrived on the scene to prevent any further rioting, but, despite a league ruling that the home club must provide police protection, there were no policemen present at the evening game."

In The Olden, Golden Days

Just to make some of the old time fans feel bad we hasten to mention that 20 years ago today, Sept. 22, 1923, was quite a baseball day so far as Peterborough was concerned. This city had no fewer than four ball teams in action that afternoon in four different O.B.A.A. series and better than that three of the four came home in front. At Riverside Park Lou LeBarr's Lakeviews hooked up with Niagara Falls in the first game of the junior O.B.A.A. finals and Frankie Whitehouse, young southpaw pitcher, giving one of the greatest performances of his career, scaled the heights by pitching a no-hit, no-run game against the invaders. The Lakeviews won handily by 8 runs to 0 with Whitehouse setting down no fewer than 16 of the visitors by the strikeout route. Meanwhile another Peterborough team, Alex. Kay's Curlers, playing against Hamilton Typos at Oshawa in a sudden-death game for the O.B.A.A. midget title were also winning by the shutout route, finishing 5 to 0 in front with Inky Wood on the rubber coming through with a brilliant performance. He held Hamilton to three scattered hits and fanned 15 batters.

* * * * * *

At Cobourg a third Peterborough team, the C.G.E. intermediate squad faced Oshawa in the third game of their playoff series. Each had won one game and the round was all up to the result of the third battle. Facing the acid test the Electricians made it decisive by taking Oshawa into camp 7 to 1. Bun Frost, smooth-working C.G.E. right-hander, had the losers under control all the way, allowing Oshawa only five scattered hits and C.G.E. won going away. The only Peterborough team to lose that afternoon was the Maple Leafs who met the Hamilton youngsters at Hamilton in an O.B.A.A. juvenile battle. The Leafs were a bit unsteady and were finally beaten 9 to 2 in spite of the fact that Chuck Bradley, smart young lefthander struck out nine Hamilton batters.

Hogan Gets His Chance

Rowdy Dick Hogan's victory over Irish Pat Flanagan Monday night may have been unpopular with the fans but it was a good break for the Pacific Coast rough-house artist for it has earned him another main bout billing and against an opponent whose scalp Hogan has been seeking for the past month. Promoter Frank Tunney announced yesterday that he was giving the rowdy Housepainter another crack at Gentleman Jack Clayborne. Ever since the Ebony Flash beat Hogan here last month the back alley battler has been howling that the colored grappler won on a fluke, with a lot of help from Referee Maxwell. "Give me another chance at that bird and I'm willing to bet he won't be in any shape when I get through with him to do any leaping over the referee's head," Hogan declared last Monday and he has kept up the clamor so persistently and with renewed volume this week after beating Flanagan that Tunney has given in. He has matched Hogan with Clayborne as the main attraction next Monday night and we have an idea every wrestling fan in town will be hoping not only that Clayborne beats the Coast menace again but that he takes Hogan to the cleaners. The rowdy gentleman from the far west has got the goat of the whole town. The fans here are neutral when it comes to a Hogan bout; they don't care who trims him.

Outboard Marines and Brintons tucked the local softball season, so far as Peterborough leagues are concerned, away last night when they met in the final game for the Industrial League championship, with the Outboards coming down in front 14 to 5 to take the final round three games to two. The winners earned the title, finishing in first place in the regular league season, taking the semi-final series from C.G.E. Drafting Room and then coming from behind in the finals to overcome Brintons. The Carpet Weavers made a determined bid for the honors and deserve credit for the fight they put up, making the final series a fitting climax to a very successful season. The league has provided a lot of recreation for industrial workers, most of them in war jobs, and plenty of entertainment for softball fans and the officers and teams are to be congratulated upon the success of the loop this summer.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: It looks like Luke Hamlin for the Leafs and Millard Howell for the Chiefs as Toronto and Syracuse tie into each other tonight in Toronto in the first game of the final series for the Governors' Cup....Incidentally the Chiefs won the cup last season but we have an idea that it is liable to winter on this side of the border....Herb. Payne will be the Peterborough umpire when the Westclox battle the Kroehlers in Stratford this evening....Saturday afternoon's game here with Stratford is called for 2:30 o'clock and will be played at Riverside Park....If a third game is needed it will be played here in the evening...Toledo and Columbus won the opening games in the American Association playoffs, the Mud Hens nosing out Indianapolis 2 to 1 and the Red Birds overpowering Milwaukee 11 to 1....Hamlin has whitewashed the Chiefs five times this season and should make it six tonight.

Long Race Meet

LOUISVILLE, Ky. —(AP) —A 19-day fall meeting, longest in the history of the track, has been scheduled for Churchill Downs starting October 16. The program includes the $5,000 Breeders' Futurity, annual fixture at Keeneland in Lexington which track is still undecided as to holding a meeting this Fall.

Late J. McGraw Honored By War Board

BALTIMORE, Sept. 22 (AP)—The late John J. McGraw, Mr. Baseball himself during the golden era of the New York Giants, is slated to receive an honor today usually reserved for statesmen, war heroes, the great in science and kindred professions.

The beloved "Muggsy"—and it was all your life was worth to call him that to his face—will have his name emblazoned on a Liberty ship, marking the second time in this war that baseball figure was so honored. The first was Lou Gehrig, late New York Yankee first baseman, whose name was selected by New York school children.

McGraw's widow was to sponsor the vessel in ceremonies at the Bethlehem-Fairfield shipyard.

It is fitting that McGraw should be so honored by a Baltimore launching for it was in this city during the nineties that he first came into the baseball limelight. He was a rugged, heavy-hitting third baseman, a stand-out among the old Baltimore Orioles.

Oshawa Whips Toronto Team

TORONTO, Sept. 22.— (CP).—Oshawa's softball team, Eastern Ontario intermediate "A" champions, last night scored three runs in the eighth inning to wipe out a 2-1 early lead of the Toronto Invictus squad and score a 4-2 victory in the first game of a best-of-three series for the Ontario Softball Association Intermediate "A" championship.

Second game will be played at Oshawa Saturday afternoon (2.30 p.m.) and if a third game is necessary, it also will be played at Oshawa, Saturday.

Russ McLaughlin, Oshawa hurler, allowed Toronto only six hits, while the Eastern Ontario titlists got 11 hits off Jack Sinclair, pitcher for the Toronto champions.

Oshawa bunched two hits with two errors and an outfield fly to score three eighth-inning runs. Invictus had taken a 2-0 lead in the second inning and Oshawa scored their first in the third.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—(AP)—Abe Greene, the only "duration champ" recognized by the N.B.A.—he doesn't have to defend the presidency every three months—hopes to stir up some real action in the lightweight and featherweight fisticuffing divisions before long. . . . The idea, he says, is to get the once-retired Sammy Angott into the Beau Jack-Bob Montgomery 135-pound argument and to provide a logical contender to fight N.B.A. Champ Phil Terranova in November . . . After some urging by Abe, Angott will start a tour in Detroit early next month and probably visit Chicago, Cleveland and Portland, Ore.

Sal Bartolo, Pittsburgh Jackie Wilson and Chalky Wright may fight it out for the featherweight shot. . . . Complicating the affair, New Orleans Commissioner Izzy Mattes ruled that Terranova and Jackie Callura of Hamilton, Ont., couldn't go through with a scheduled return bout there until Callura earns the shot by fighting Juan Villalba. They'll likely clash Oct. 4 or 11.

You Pick 'Em

Roy Weatherly, Tuck Stainback and Johnny Lindell, Yankees — (there's no telling who'll play) . . . Weatherly is the "regular." Hitting only .261 now but he's won a lot of ball games with clutch hits . . . Stainback, a ballhawk but hits in the .240 class—usually in streaks . . . Lindell, a converted pitcher who can powder the ball when he hits at all. Not too sure of himself in the field. May also play right field against southpaw pitching.

Harry (Dixie) Walker, Cardinals —He's no Terry Moore, in more ways than one; doesn't get the jump on the ball the way Terry used to . . . hits in long streaks and might run into one during the series.

Ready To Bomb Yankee Bombardiers In World Series

Here is a quintet of St. Louis Cardinals' pitchers who are aching to take a smack at the touted hitting power of the New York Yankees, their opponents in the forthcoming world series. The Ottawa Citizen said today it has learned that some time within the next 10 days defence headquarters will announce their policy covering Army hockey for the coming season.

"Not until then," says the Citizen, "can the Quebec Senior Hockey League or individual clubs make their plans for the 1943-44 season. Actually Ottawa Commandos, like the N.H.L. authorities, are marking time.

"If the Army policy allows for Canadian Amateur Association teams the tip is out to watch Toronto Army Daggers. Billy Taylor is in the Queen City while Gordie Drillon and Syl Apps are a couple of others reported about to enlist in the Army at Toronto."

The Citizen said that only five of last year's Ottawa Commandos, Allan Cup champions, appear to be available this year—Pte. Johnny Inglis, Cpl. Kenny Kilrea, Spr. Alex Shibicky, Pte. Al Barnes and Spr. Joe Cooper.

Girl Taken Out

That 16-year-old blond placement kicker—Agnes Rifner—has been removed from the high school football team at New Castle, Ind. She went into one game but missed her two tries. Now the school has been notified there is a rule forbidding "mixed" personnel on teams, so Agnes it out.

A Prices Board official at Halifax said yesterday that the supply of small arms ammunition for civilian use "cannot possibly be increased without seriously jeopardizing dynamic war production." He was commenting on requests for ammunition from hunters and retailers.

William Byerly, right-handed pitcher from Sacramento, will report to the Cards at St. Louis today as a possible help for the team's short-handed mound staff for the remainder of the season.

Saint John Dockmen won the New Brunswick senior baseball championship last night and advanced to the Maritime finals on the strength of a 7-2 victory over Scoudouc's R.C.A.F. team in the deciding game of a best-in-three series. The Dockmen will meet either Halifax Navy or Springhill Fence Busters for the Maritime crown.

Brampton Wins.

Brampton Army defeated Crowland Union Jacks, last year's holder of the 1942 Ontario Baseball Association Intermediate A crown, 4-3 to win a best-of-three semi-final 2-1 yetserday. Brampton will advance to the Intermediate A final against Tecumseh.

James (Sunny Jim) Fitzsimmons, one of the best-known trainers on the American turf, has accepted appointment as steward at Tropical Park for the winter season. He is the only man who has saddled two winners of the American "triple crown"—Gallant Fox and Omaha, who both won the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

Bivins Fight Off

PITTSBURGH — (AP)— Next Monday's fight card which was to have included Jimmy Bivins of Cleveland, N. B. The card was cancelled because Curtis Cheppard, Pittsburgh heavyweight who was matched with Bivins, lost to Nate Bolden in Newark Monday night.

Win Fifth Game 14 to 5 Deciding Series

Outboard Marines won the championship of the Industrial Softball League last night when they defeated Brintons 14 to 5 at Brinton field to take the round three games to two.

The Outboards had taken the first game of the best-of-five finals. Brintons came on with two wins to go in front but the Outboards rallied to sew up the series and then, with everything depending on the final battle, had the punch to put over a decisive win.

The winners broke in front last night, scoring two in the first inning, but Brintons struck back hard in the third ... ne to send four runs in and take ... e lead. Clarence Corbett's homer with two on the bases was the big feature of that rally.

Outboards picked up a run in the fourth to make it 4 to 3 and then broke the game wide open in the next inning when they drove six runs over the home plate. They came back with five in the sixth to put the contest on ice.

Murphy pitched the entire game for the winners, with Metcalfe catching, while Phillips, Rose and Byers were the Brinton battery. Gilmour was the plate umpire, with Drummond and Dunford on the bases.

LAKESHORES EVEN SENIOR LACROSSE FINALS FOR SEASON'S UPSET

Beat Combines 11 to 5 In Fourth Game

MIMICO, Sept. 22. — Led by Tommy Love, 'teen-age Toronto boy, and veteran Joe Murphy, the amazing Lakeshores bowled over Mimico-Brampton Combines 11-5 at Drummond Park Tuesday to even the Ontario Lacrosse Association best-in-seven finals at two wins each. The fifth game will be played in Brampton on Thursday. Around 2,100 fans were present.

Love Is All.

Love, besides playing a good all-round game, notched four goals to lead all in this respect, while Murphy stood out with his play-making, especially in the opening half. Gord Gair scored three goals, while Piper Bain and Red Hartley were defensive stars.

For Combines Bill Isaacs whisked home two goals, with George Thompson and Bill Mulliss the best of the rest.

The losers looked stale, their team play was mis ing, and a lot of individual work resulted. Lakeshores were sure death on loose balls and repeatedly beat Combines to the draw.

It was a rough tussle, and its fire communicated itself to the stands, where there were several outbreaks. Ross Gimblett retired in the third quarter with a head injury.

(Best-in-Seven Finals)

Future Games

Wednesday—Syracuse at Toronto (first game).

Millard Howell Starting Hurler

TORONTO, Sept. 22—(CP).—Millard Howell, young righthander, who has not defeated Toronto Maple Leafs this season, is the choice of Manager Jewel Ens of Syracuse Chiefs in tonight's first game of the International League's final round play-offs.

Howell, who found his stride only as the season drew to a close, lost to the Leafs twice during the season but he has been hot in recent appearances.

Burleigh Grimes, manager of the pennant-winning Leafs, and whose club knocked off Montreal Royals in four straight, is countering with Luke Hamlin, who established a league record by blanking the Chiefs five times during the campaign. He opposed the New Yorkers in 43 innings and gave up only 25 hits.

Against him the Chiefs had a batting average of .167.

The second game of the series to determine the league's representative in the Little World Series also is carded here for Thursday night. Friday night is open and the best-of-seven game series will be resumed in Syracuse Saturday.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press.

The "long count" fight, most famous in boxing history, was staged at Chicago 16 years ago to-night between heavyweight champion Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey. The challenger pummelled Tunney to the canvas in the seventh round but Referee Dave Barry, native of Montreal, pushed Dempsey to a neutral corner before starting his count. Tunney won the bout on points. He retired undefeated in 1928.

Writers Prefer Yank Infield To Cards Stars

By SID FEDER,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22— (AP)— Out on second base in the coming World Series the Yankees will have a guy named Joe who wants to get even.

Joe Gordon, one of the New York infield for five years, this season has been hitting a hat-sized .233 and he's been in less than 100 double plays for the first campaign since joining the Yankees.

But for a year now Joe has been remembering those headlines and the hitting and the base-running that made him the goat of last year's series. For a year he's been burning to get even.

That's why any comparison of the New York and St. Louis infields, based on the numbers in the book, figures up about as accurately as a spinster bragging about her age. Because if Gordon gets hot, he'll put on quite a show.

The Yankees are the best on performances, with Nick Etten overshadowing Ray Sanders on first, having knocked in 100 runs against 67.

Rookie Bill Johnson is showing the old army game to third baseman Whitey Kurowski, the St. Louis kid who broke up the 1942 series.

Cards Are Good.

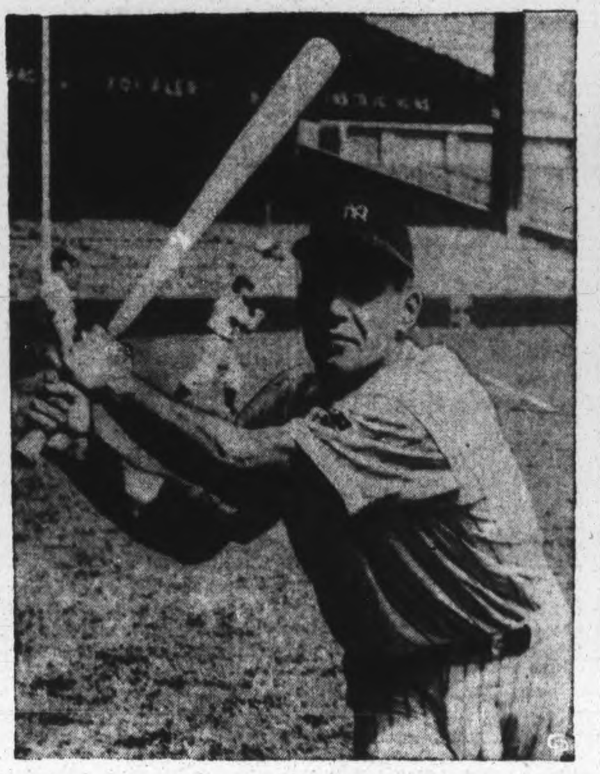
And off the figures, the Cards are plenty good with Marty (the Thin Man)) Marion and Lou Klein, the freshman from Louisiana, strutting their stuff against the aging Frankie Crosetti and the flash.

Shifting the scenes for a look at the backstop branch of the inner defences, 28-year-old Walker Cooper, on the job in 113 games this campaign, has spryness— if nothing else—on Sweet William Dickey, the ageless ace who handles most of the Yank catching chores. Right now William is waltzing around with a .362 batting mark for the 75 days he's been in while Cooper's is .304.

The four Yankee infield regulars —Etten, Gordon, Crosetti and Johnson—have hit 33 homers to 29 and have driven home 271 tallies compared to 229 for the Card outfit.

For that reason alone you have to give the New York first line the top piece of cake.

Yanks' No. 1 Home Run King



Taking a slice out of the apple at New York is the number one home run king of the Yankees for the '43 season, Charlie Keller, who has belted the ball for 27 four-baggers. He will try his home run technique against the Cardinals in the World Series.

Dodgers Meet St. Louis And Need Win

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

The major leagues settled down to business again today for two weeks of solid playing before the season closes and the New York Yankees take up the now serious task of clinching the American League pennant.

New York needs a combination of five victories or Washington defeats to eliminate the Senators. On the form the Yankees have shown earlier these should not be beyond their powers, but Detroit Tigers, with whom they are to open a four-game series today, have been one of their toughest foes over a period of many years.

The Yanks are not trailing any club in a season's series, but with the Tigers they are no better than even—nine victories apiece.

Hank Borowy is expected to go to the mound for New York today in quest of his sixth successive triumph and is likely to get Rookie Rufus Gentry for an opponent.

In the National League Brooklyn Dodgers tackle St. Louis Cardinals in a battle to hold second place against Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates.

TORONTO, Sept. 22 — (CP) — Bernie Slattery, outside wing with the Montreal Army team in the Quebec Rugby Football Union, is taking a correspondence course in the team's signals and plays. Bernie is stationed at St. Johns, 30 miles from Montreal. So coach Phil Shaughnessy sends him, by mail, all the new signals and instructions and Slattery works them out in a shadow drill. Young Shag, on of the International Baseball League President, thinks somebody's been tapping his mail because army bowed to Verdun Grads 31-0 Saturday.

Quip of the week:

Alf (Vancouver Sun) Cottrell: "So the pro gridders back east are beefing because of a threatened cut in their after-game refreshments, Eh! Kicking for the pint after touchdown, what!"

From here and there:

Vancouver Mutuals Softball team stopped off in Saskatoon en route to Detroit to participate in a championship tournament. Northern Saskatchewan curlers were critical, recalling "somewhat bittety" that the 1943 McDonald's Briar Canadian Curling Championship, scheduled for Saskatoon, was called off to eliminate unnecessary travel. Walt Riddell of the Saskatoon Star-Phoenix commented: "They wonder why civilian softball players can travel and curlers can't" .... Award of the hockey hall of fame to Kingston, Ont., has set sportsmen there planning big things. Mayor H. A. Stewart suggests a civic sports centre be built in the Fair Grounds with a baseball and football stadium, civic arena and home for such games as tennis, softball, badminton and track and field.... Bill Gaynon of the Niagara Falls Review suggests Howie Morez should be the number one name in the hall of fame.

Incidentally:

Reports say Calgary Army will have an even better hockey team than last season, including Tommy Anderson, Doug Lane and Ken Stewart on defence, Max Bentley, Alex Kaleta, Walter Rimstad, Doug Grant, Joe Fisher, Tony Desmarais Andy Chakowski as forwards .... Coach Reg Threlfall of the Winnipeg R. C. A. F. grid team is doing tricks because of the manpower shortage. He has Myron Caine, 250-pound former Ottawa lineman, playing halfback, Don Burno, a Toronto lineman, at end and an outside wing, Chick Chikowski, work in the backfield.

WARNING TO MOTORISTS

Guard Your Gas Ration Book

Your gasoline ration book is valuable property. Its loss or theft will deprive you of the use of your car—temporarily, perhaps permanently. Remember—under no circumstances will a lost or stolen book be replaced within thirty days of the time its loss is reported to the Oil Controller. In some instances a new book may not be issued even after that period.

If you wish to continue to drive your car, guard your book carefully. Locking it in your glove compartment is not safeguard enough—thieves always look there first. Carry your book carefully on your person when needed. Keep it under lock and key at home, when not in use.

18 Miles Off Smolensk.

In their drive to push the invaders from Russian soil, the Red Army spearheads were within 18 miles of Smolensk, which was slowly being flanked on the north and south.

In the south, Red artillery was shelling Melitopol, on the Crimean railway, from emplacements three miles away. Front dispatches said that on the lower stretches of the Dnieper, Cossack patrols were so close at some points that they were breaking through at night to water their horses in the river.

Capture of Melitopol would cut the only overland avenue of reinforcement, supply or escape of the German garrisons in the Crimea.

Russian columns striking toward Dnepropetrovsk, Ukrainian power city on the Dnieper, had captured the railway junction of Sinenlikovo, 25 miles to the east, and another spearhead had gained 15 miles in a drive down from the northeast.

Thus the Germans were reported to be caught between the air squeeze on the escape port of Bastia and the rapidly advancing French, who were closing in on Bonifacio and Porto Vecchio on the southwest and southern coasts.

The Germans remaining inland attempted to recapture the heights of Sorba and Inzecca but the attack was beaten off by the French.

Three of a kind!

CANADIANS ARE ALL ALIKE in one important respect. They do their own thinking and get there under their own power. It's a national characteristic.

No pampered or servile people could have built this nation. It took men of courage and moral fibre to clear the forests, dig the mines—to build our farms and factories, our cities and our towns—to give us a standard of living that is the envy of the world. Canada's greatness stems directly from the self-reliance and initiative of individual citizens. These qualities provide a sure foundation on which to build for tomorrow.

rival in Britain.

Mr. Eden related:

Before he reached Scotland in 1941, Hess told the Duke of Hamilton, he tried to arrange a meeting in Lisbon and three times previously attempted to fly to Dungavel, Scotland, near the Duke's home. Hess said he met the Duke at the 1936 Olympic Games in Berlin.

He attempted a flight in December, 1940, but was turned back by the weather and other factors.

He did not want to come at the time of British successes in Libya, he told the Duke after he was incarcerated at Merryhill Barracks, lest it appear a sign of weakness on the part of Germany. He waited until Germany was again gaining successes—that is, in the Balkans.

Hess insisted that he came to Britain without Hitler's knowledge.

He told the Duke, who interviewed him on May 11, 1941, at Merryhill Barracks, that he had come to Britain on a "mission of humanity."

The Duke who was a wing commander in the R.A.F. and did not recall having met Hess before, flew to London and reported the conversation, telling authorities he believed the prisoner was Hess. This fact was confirmed by I. A. Kirkpatrick of Foreign Office, who had known Hess and who talked to him May 13, 14 and 15.

Hess' aim was to convince responsible British persons that Britain could not win and its wisest course was to make an immediate peace.

C.C.F. Says Drew Takes His Time

TORONTO, Sept. 22—Criticism of alleged tardiness of the Drew Government in implementing election promises was voiced at concluding sessions of the first C.C.F. Opposition caucus at the Parliament Buildings yesterday. The caucus of the 34 newly elected C.C.F. members, begun Monday morning, concluded at 7 o'clock last night, but several committees will hold sessions today, including the special labor committee appointed.

"Frequently expressed during the meetings," Opposition Leader E. B. Jolliffe said last night, "was the opinion that the new Government is acting too slowly or not at all on promises made during the election campaign."

Mr. Jolliffe said that two new committees on diverse matters were added yesterday to the 21 named Monday. They will do intensive work in preparation for the coming Legislature session.

Whether or not the Government should be asked to call an emergency session of the Legislature earlier than February was discussed, but what decision was reached was not made known. Policy of the Opposition on "urgent Provincial problems" was laid down, but not disclosed.

Women To Tag For Christmas Overseas Boxes

The Peterborough Women's Active Auxiliary and the five I. O. D. E. chapters are holding their annual tag day on Saturday to raise funds for the Christmas boxes of army men and women serving outside of Canada.

Every year these women set aside one day when they go all out for funds to see that the men and women from this city know they have not been forgotten by those at home. While the women face difficulties this year because of the rationing, they are undismayed and say they will manage to find something to fill the parcels. The deadline for submitting names of soldiers and C. W. A. C. members is October 1.

The taggers will be working in six shifts on Saturday from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m. Each of the I. O. D. E.'s and the Auxiliary will take their turn and there will be taggers posted at the C. G. E. gates.

Farm Canvass In Aid Of Federation

Seeking an equitable method of financing the association, the directors of Peterborough Federation of Agriculture have planned for October a canvass of all the farmers of the county to explain to them the prospect of how much can be accomplished from so little when everybody is contributing on a moderate and fair basis.

Legislation passed by the Ontario government at its sessions this year permits a municipality to levy one-fifth (1/5) of a mill on the assessment of farms, the proceeds to be used for the financing of the Federation.

One-fifth of a mill on an assessment of $3,000 would be only 60 cents. No farmer would ever miss that fraction of a dollar, but if all the farmers in the county were contributing by that means, the total amount would be adequate for the sustaining of the county branch of the Federation, with help for the national organization with sufficient funds to expand the work of the organization in the interests of Canadian agriculture.

That is briefly the purpose of this canvass. The Federation in its provincial and national membership decided that the tax levy method was the fairest and most convenient. It is fair because the accomplishments of the organization react to the benefit of all farmers. Farmers who are concerned about their own interests know that by this time they simply have to help themselves. They have a permanent office in Ottawa and already have a record of achievement which is the soundest promise of a more active and broader future program.

First Organized

Peterborough farmers should not forget that they were the first county in Ontario to organize as a branch. They were in the Federation from its infancy, and they have every reason to be satisfied with the growth which they fostered from the earliest stage.

Naturally, George Mullen, president, and his associate directors are hoping that this same spirit will be manifested throughout the county during the course of this appeal for support, and that the response will be unanimously in favor of the financing project.

The townships are being divided on the school section basis. Canvassers are being appointed to call at every farm home, tell the story and persuade the owner to sign a card declaring his assent to the one-fifth of a mill assessment.

All that is required according to the assessment to the Municipal Act is that "more than twenty-five ratepayers of any township shall in writing authorize the township council to add one-fifth of a mill to the tax rate. Then the township council may by bylaw levy and collect such rates annually, provided that any such ratepayer may in any subsequent year revoke his authorization whereupon the bylaw shall not apply to such ratepayer."

Helps Alls

Here is another clause in the amendment: "The township treasurer shall deposit the sum collected under this section in a special account and shall from time to time upon demand pay such sums to the treasurer of the Federation of Agriculture for the county in which the township is situated."

However, these are details which will be explained in the canvass. The directors are eager to have farmers thoroughly understand the proposal because they are convinced that no farmer who has a full realization of the benefits which can accrue to him and all his neighbors would withhold his assent. It is another case of one for all and all for one, except that this time it is a rural all and a rural one.

The system is thoroughly democratic. Any time a farmer wishes to withdraw his support from the Federation all that he has to do is to notify his township treasurer to that effect, and his name will be stricken from the list of subscribers through the agency of the tax roll.

The canvass will be made in October, and farmers are being urged to say a good word for the project in the meantime, and create an understanding of its purpose and generally prepare the soil for an unanimous affirmative from this county.

Loan Objective

MONTREAL, Sept. 22.—(CP). — The goal of the Province of Quebec in the forthcoming Fifth Victory Loan campaign to-day was set at a minimum cash objective of $326,000,000.

Loan officials issued a statement which said: "We are convinced that the minimum cash objective will not only be attained, but actually passed."

No Beer-Making

KINGSTON, Sept. 22 — (CP). — Since the depression left this city, residents here apparently would rather buy beer than make it. Officials at the local Customs office report that whereas in the depression years of 1933-34, 264 people registered their intentions to brew beer for home consumption, so great a decline has taken place that in the last two years no one has registered.

Wagar was an instructor at Camp Borden, and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Wagar, 273 Park Street.

Car And Truck Collide; C. Deck Injured

One person was injured and a truck and automobile extensively damaged in a traffic accident at King and Reid streets at noon today.

Gus Yeotes 317 Boswell avenue, was driving a car owned by his father, Louis Yeotes, same address, west on King street. As he was crossing the Reid street intersection a truck owned by H. H. Dindale and driven by Colin C. Deck, Dalhousie street, travelling south collided with the side of the Yeotes car.

Yeotes was unhurt but the automobile was considerably damaged. Deck was knocked unconscious by the impact and suffered facial injuries. He was taken to the Standard Medical Clinic by Police Inspcetor J. F. Reid. It was found that he was not seriously hurt and he was then taken to his home.

Damage to the two vehicles is estimated at around $300.

Lloyd Spinks Held In Italy

Previously reported missing in Sicily on August 9 Pte. Lloyd G. Spinks, a Peterborough member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, is now officially reported as a prisoner of war in Italy.

His wife residing at 385 Mark street received word to that effect Tuesday. The telegram from Ottawa state that word from Italian sources intimated that Pte. Spinks was a prisoner. Further details were promised later.

Pte. Spinks enlisted with the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment in 1940 and has been overseas for two years.

Soldier Is Held On Murder Count

SOUTHEND, England, Sept. 22—(CP Cable)—Eric James Brown, private in the Suffolk Regiment, today was committed for trial on a murder charge after police read in preliminary hearing a statement quoting the youth as admitting he placed a grenade in his father's bathchair "primarily for my mother's sake."

The statement said his mother's life had become "complete drudgery as the result of my father's treatment of her."

"I therefore decided to cause his death in a manner which would no longer leave him suffering" the statement said.

The elder Brown, Archibald, aged 47, was an invalid for some time.

The prosecution said Saturday that the elder Brown had been "literally blown to bits" when an anti-tank mine was placed under the cushion of his bathchair. Today's hearing indicated a grenade was used.

Mrs. Brown testified her husband once tried to strangle her.

Another Staff House

HESPELER, Ont., Sept. 22—(CP). —A residence for 150 women war workers will be built here and sponsored by Wartime Housing, Ltd., it was announced. The building will include a reading room, writing rooms, dining rooms, kitchen, laundry and bathrooms.

Entire County Labors At Tomato Picking

Every available person in Prince Edward county has been working this week picking tomatoes, "even children and old people," according to the report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. About half the crop has been havested. and canning plants have had a steady run, but without any glut.

Picking apples and tomatoes has been the main job in Northumberland, especially in the townships along the lake front.

Large numbers of good dairy cows are being bought in Hastings for Americans. Bush operators in Muskoka and Parry Sound are looking for men, "and finding it extremely difficult to locate satisfactory help."

Some Peterborough farmers are beginning to inquire about seed for next year. New seedings in Frontenac are in excellent condition. Some threshermen in Lennox-Addington say they have at times worked all day for a couple of hundred bushels of grain. Corn is an exceptionally good crop and silo filling is under way.

More Farm Sales

More than the usual number of farm sales is being advertised in Huron. Exhibitors at fall fairs are fewer this year especially in the livestock classes. A large quantity of western grain is being delivered to Elgin farmers.

A Lambton county comments: "Some farmers are completing their fall work as quickly as possible and plan on taking employment in industry for the winter months." In Lincoln county farmers are not buying as much concentrates as they did last year. "and as a result some herds of dairy cattle are down in condition."

Supply of spring grain in Lincoln is really serious, although there will be sufficient hay and a fair amount of corn ensilage."

PCI Attendance Shows Decrease Of 71 Students

Attendance at the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School is seventy-one fewer students than last year. The total enrolment is 941 as compared with 1,012 at the beginning of the term of 1942-43.

Enrolment figures show a slight falling off from last year, suggesting a decision by some of the young people of Peterborough and its district to grab wartime wages that will soon be spent, instead of using their priceless time of youth and preparation for the opportunities the future is bound to bring.

These youths are taking the short view of life, rather than the long, content with the brief and easy way of the present instead of fixing their ambitions on a farther horizon.

Comparison of department attendance follows:—

Grade 10 academic—this year 142; last 91.

Grade 9 all courses—this year 297; last 300.

A LOT OF MILK NEEDED.

Britain's School Milk Scheme, introduced in 1934, now provides milk daily for about 3,500,000 schoolchildre in England and Wales and 525,330 school children in Scotland.

War—25 Years Ago

By The Canadian Press

Sept. 22, 1918—The 7th and 8th Turkish armies in Palestine were virtually annihilated, leaving their entire transport in British hands. On the Balkan front the Bulgarians fell back on the Doiran front and the Serbians continued their rapid progress toward Uskub.

Four Boys And Seventy-Seven Girls Are Attending Peterborough Normal School

"Too many girls is a thing impossible,"—remember that transitory song-hit of pre-war days! Surely the four lads at the Normal School will hardly subscribe to its general idea of delight in profusion of feminity as they find themselves completely surrounded by seventy-seven girls.

If these were normal times somebody would surely have to do something to correct that unbalance up at the school on Classic Hill.

The Normal is beginning another school year with its new principal, E. H. McKone, and eighty-one students of whom seventy-seven are girls.

Enrolment is ten under last year, but attendance at the pedagogic institutions throughout the country has declined from last year while the country is faced with a disturbing prospect of a steadily reducing supply of teachers if the present trend continues.

Some schools are paying up to $1,200 even for uncertificated teachers who otherwise have acceptable ability, and to tide over the present shortage married women who quit the profession for matrimony are coming back this term temporarily, taking schools here and there and generally helping to get the young generation started in life.

"There may be too many flowers and beautiful things in this world of ours,—— but too many girls, ta, ta-ta, ta, etc...." that theme bounces back from that extraordinary and fascinating proportion of 77 to 4. Some lads are always getting a break in life, and without any effort.

Peterborough Presbytery Meets In St. Andrew's United Church

The Peterborough Presbytery of the United Church met in St. Andrew's Church Parlour on Tuesday, with Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, chairman in charge.

Rev. E. W. Rowland reported that Rev. H. H. Mutton had been inducted at Bridgenorth in July. Mr. Mutton was welcomed to the Presbytery. The following lay members were welcomed as new members: W. H. Girven from George Street Church, Robert Collins, Hastings; I. H. Keifer, St. Andrew's, J. B. White, Cavan; Mrs. H. M. Richardson, Pontypool; William Seymour, Fairmont. Letters of sympathy were sent to Dr. D. F. Drummond, A. Stewart, George Garbutt who were ill.

The Finance Committee was asked to re-consider the method of assessing various charges for Presbytery and Conference Funds and to report to next Presbytery.

Dr. George Easton spoke to the Presbytery as president of the Conference. The real purpose of the church, he said, was to be missionary. If a congregation has not the missionary spirit it is not Christian. This war is one of a conflict of ideas. The materialist idea is set over against the spiritual. "We must emphasise voluntary generosity. Some objects are supported by taxes, others by gifts. We must be serious in the matter of giving. Our freedom has its bases in the Bible and in Christian thought and we must not allow the soil to peter out for we cannot take our spiritual heritage for granted."

Form Association.

A meeting of the lay members of the Presbytery was held at 12 o'clock, at which it was decided to form a Layman's Association. The following officers were elected: President, I. H. Keifer; vice-president, W. F. Fallis; secretary-treasurer, J. Rogers.

Lunch was provided by the ladies of St. Andrew's Church, who were thanked for their hospitality. Mrs. I. H. Lillico responded.

At the afternoon session, Dr. J. C. Cochrane, newly elected secretory for the Pension Fund spoke. Dr. Cochrane has been superintendent of Missions in Northern Ontario for many years. He had had the utmost cooperation from the other departments of the Church, and they had undertaken to visit every Presbytery in Canada this year. The debt on the Church is almost gone and now we must face the Pension Fund which is actuarially unsound. He urged ministers to not feel diffident in presenting this matter to their congregations. In 1942 pensions came to $800,000 there were 806 retired ministers on the fund and 719 widows. The income was inadequate to pay the accounts to widows alone. The average annuity to ministers was $577, to widows $376. Claimants increased since Union from 1300 to 1600. The grant from the M. and M. Fund has steadily decreased, this has meant a loss of $965,000, 34 claimants were over 90 years of age. The executive, the chairman of the Pensions Committee and Rev. F. W. Craik were appointed a committee to introduce a policy of education regarding the state of this fund.

The cause of Colleges and Secondary Schools was presented by R. F. Downey. James Harvey was certified to Victoria College for another year.

Letters will be sent to Revs. Morgan Rowland and V. E. R. Zufelt who are acting as chaplains to the armed forces.

The Pastoral Relations Committee was named to have oversight of the Rraserville charge in Mr. Rowland's absence.

The Home Missions report was given by Rev. G. Murray, the grant to Apsley was $125, Hiawatha $450, Wesley Church has no supply at present, the Pastoral Relations Committee was given authority to get a supply and provide transportation.

Mr. H. G. Walker spoke for the Propery Committee. Trinity Church was granted permission to sell the Reid Street Hall for $5,500 the proceds to go to help to build a Sunday School for the church. Hiawatha received permission to demolish a shed, and to build a garage.

Rev. F. W. Craik reported for the M. and M. Fund. If each member gave 3 cents a day it would provide a sufficient income for the fund he said. Only 35 per cent of the people give to missions and 700 churches have sent in nothing up to September. Rev. E. E. Pugsley said that this Presbytery had an increase of $544 this year. It was decided to have interchanges of pulpits to advocate this fund. A Presbytery Missionary Rally will be held in St. James' Church on Wednesday, October 6, at which a moving picture prepared by Rev. A. E. Moorehouse will be presented.

Rev. J. E. Glover represented Publications, and spoke favorably of the S.S. Publications, and the church paper "The Observer" which had nad an increased circulation.

Dr. E. W. Young reported for Evangelism and Social Service. The ministers were asked to promote active evangelism during October, November and December. The observance of World Wide Communion on Sunday, October 3 was advocated. The excellent published statement on venereal diseases by Lieut.-Col. D. H. Williams, R.C.A.M.C. was commended to ministers and laymen, thanks was expressed to the Federal Government for its deep concern over this scourge. Attention was called to the fact that 546,068 people who registered as United Church people were not members of the church, neither were they certified as under pastoral supervision. There was a great field of operation for the congregations.

It was decided to hold a spiritual conference on some day in November or December, the theme to be selected by the E. and S.S. Committee. Dr. Young also introduced a motion to revise the obituary service at conference, this was passed, and the motion will be sent to all the Bay of Quinte Presbyteries, and the conference executive.

Christian Education was presented by Rev. J. F. Everson. Several local S.S. conventions have been arranged, Campbellford 23rd Sept., Norwood on the same day, Gilmour Memorial Church Oct. 13. There is a fine opportunity for Temperance Education in the Sunday Schools, and for the contests sponsored by the W.C.T.U.

A vote of thanks was presented to the minister and office bearers of St. Andrew's Church, the ladies who provided lunch, and Mrs. R. B. Harle who acted as pianist for the day.

Food Shortage Due To Buying

ST. THOMAS, Sept. 22—(CP)—Robert Syer of Toronto, consultant for the management service division of the Prices Board, said last night that Canadians bought more food by volume in 1942 than in any previous year and spent a larger percentage of income on food.

Addressing a meeting of food dealers, he said the scarcity of many articles of food which resulted in the inauguration of rationing programs was not the result of decreased production but followed a change in the buying habits of people, who having more money, wanted to live better.

Production of jam for civilian use in 1941, he said was 33,000,000 pounds. "In 1942 the production for civilians was 63,000,000 pounds and this year it will be approximately 47,000,000."

He warned that the end of the war will not immediately change the supply picture in Canada. "This nation will have to feed countries in Europe looted by the enemy."

Speaking of price control, Mr. Syer said food costs in Canada advanced 24 per cent from the outbreak of war until price control was effected. "Since that time they have risen six per cent."

Sergeants Mess Repeats Aid To War Victims

For a long time the members of the Sergeants Mess of the Prince of Wales Rangers have sponsored the passing of a penny box around among themselves at regular intervals on behalf of the sufferers from air raids over Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund.

In peace and war, this Regiment has for a great many years been an integral part of the city's life, although not always under the same name, and perhaps no better appelation could be found than that of Peterborough's Own, so it perhaps would seem only natural that they should wish to support a fund acting as an assist to the war, which is so closely identified as belonging to this city and district.

Today there appears the sum of $5.50 in the name of the Sergeants Mess, this being at least six times they have contributed in a like manner, and being only a comparatively small group whose membership through the exigencies of war have been constantly changing, this stands much to their credit.

Penny Boxes Help

Quietly in its own way, the penny boxes, about forty in number, distributed in various places of business in the city and closely situated areas have done a wonderful job on behalf of the fund, and their record in the aggregate total raised stands second highest of any one activity operating on its behalf.

Today there are three boxes listed, the lead in this being taken on this occasion by the ones placed in the Canadian Bank of Commerce, where John E. Keyes, the treasurer for the fund is the manager, the amount being credited this time to it standing at $4.70, among which was a one dollar bill, a rare enough occurence as far as this fund activity is concerned as to merit a little special mention.

The other two boxes listed are collections made from those situated in Zeller's Store, which has regularly appeared in this column and also the one located in the R. Hall Ltd. Store.

Bingo and Draw

Preliminary announcement is now made of a Bingo and Draw to be sponsored by the South-end Conservative Association in the Orange Hall on Brock street, on Thursday, September 30, commencing at 8 p.m. The proceeds from this event will come to the fund, and a number of prizes have been donated for the occasion.

A draw will also be held on a set of handmade crocheted table mats, for which tickets may now be procured, and the price of admission to the bingo will be 25 cents, and 10 cents for an extra card.

Normal School Students Welcomed At Reception

The annual formal reception, at which new students to the Peterborough Normal School are welcomed to the school and to the city, was held Tuesday afternoon at the Normal School, where a brief program and a delightful afternoon tea were held.

The students and the guests were received by the new principal of the Normal School, Mr. E. H McKone, Mrs. McKone, and members of the Normal School teaching staff, after which they went to the auditorium, where, a brief program of speeches, and three delightful piano solos by Miss Musa Cox, supervisor of music for the Peterborough Schools, and an accomplished pianist, were presented.

Mr. McKone welcomed the pupils to the Normal School and hoped that they would find their stay there pleasant, and assuring them that they would like Peterborough. He paid tribute to Dr. J. A. Bannister, ex-principal of the school, and said that he hoped he would be able to fill adequately the position so ably filled by his predecessor. Dr. Bannister, in addressing the pupils, said that 51 years ago, he had been in the same position that they were in that day, and he wished them success in their chosen careers. Their financial rewards, he said, would not be great, but there was a hidden reward which would make their work worthwhile.

Mr. Gordon K. Fraser, M.P. also spoke to the students, wishing them success in their important task and Mr. Harold Scott, M.P.P. spoke, telling them that in their profession, teaching, they were building for the future. Mayor James Hamilton, Dr. C. M. Scott, chairman of the Board of Education, and Canon W. P. Robertson, president of the Ministerial Association, who were to have spoken, were unable to be present.

At the close of the program a most delightful tea was served by students and members of the staff, under the supervision of Miss Olga Johnson, household science teacher, who also had charge of the preparation of the refreshments. Tea was poured at a lace-covered table centred with a beautiful bowl of cosmos and other flowers in shades of orchid and mauve, and tall green tapers in silver holders, by Mrs. Q. McKinney and Mrs. F. B. Smitheram.

Among the guests present were Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Bannister, Miss Helen Bannister, Canon and Mrs. W. P. Robertson, Dr. and Mrs. G. S. Easton, Dr. and Mrs. Smart, Rev. Fr. E. J. Finn, Hon. Price Control and Rationing News

The Women's Regional Advisory Committee, Consumer Branch, Central Ontario, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, answers questions put to this paper regarding price control and ration regulations.

Q.—I have ordered two tons of nut coal and one ton of nut coke for my stoves. My dealer says I must take the other ton in soft coal. Other dealers in this city are letting their customers have half coal and half coke. Couldn't I have the same?

A.—You should direct your inquiry to the Hamilton District Committee for Fuel Supply. These local committees have just been set up in the larger centres.

Q.—Is plain unsweetened grapefruit in glass jars rationed

A.—Yes, all canned fruit is rationed. You may buy 10 fluid oz. by surrendering one D coupon. Canned fruit juices, however, are not rationed.

Q.—For the past few months my husband has been doing guard duty at military hospitals. In his off hours he has one and sometimes two meals a day at home. Is he entitled to rations?

A.—If your husband is in the Army and is residing in barracks, the military authorities are supplying him has rationed commodities in his meals there and he would not be entitled to extra rations at home unless he gets five or more days' leave....However, if your husband is staying in barracks and eating his meals at home he should apply to the military authorities to get his ration book back for his own use.

Q.—Myself and my neighbor were refused our ½ pound sugar for D1 ration coupon by our storekeeper. We wanted the sugar instead of the other sweet spreads. Is this right?

A.—Your grocer was wrong. D coupons are good for jams, canned fruit, syrups, etc., but if you would rather take your coupons in sugar, you may of course. One D coupon is good for ½ pound sugar...Many women who have time to can their own fruits or jams would rather make their own than buy the manufactured variety and welcome this extra sugar allowance. It also means that more manufactured jams, etc., will be on the store shelves for war workers and business people who often have not the time nor facilities to can their own fruit and for people in remote regions where fresh fruit is not available at any season.

For Thursday, September 23

FAIRLY active day, the success of which depends upon the concentration, good judgment and wise counsel needful to unwind tangles and problematical situations and calling for much vigilance, sound insight and consideration of a set of circumstances both contradictory and treacherous. There are some indications of growth and expansion but at the same time limitation and stringency. Carefully organized projects, critical analysis and good judgment might strike a balance. The personal equation might have weight especially where the young and charming figure.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a rather perplexing and mystifying year, in which subtle undercurrents seem to baffle and bewilder. For shrewd handling of such peculiar situations there must be good organization of plans and projects, backed up by sound logic and commonsense, although personality, charm or glamor may be a determining factor for success in both business and social or romantic aspirations. Beware of intrigues.

King Victor Does The Honors

NeutralsWarned Keep Hands Off

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22—(AP)—Britain and the United States warned neutrals today against pulling German financial chestnuts out of the fire of invasion in Italy, and apparently set a pattern for handling German interests in territories to be reconquered later.

Disclosing that the Germans are trying to dump their Italian investments in neutral territory, the Anglo-American statement warned that the two Governments would not recognize such deals.

The democracies "reserve the right to treat as invalid any transfer to neutral ownership of any enemy-owned right or interests in property in Italy," said the statement from the State Department.

The announcement went to all neutral Governments in Europe and to Argentina.

German interests systematically have moved into the business of conquered countries, particularly France, where the Nazis took over parent companies to divert the country's industrial wealth to German holdings.

The threat that Italy soon will be in Allied hands apparently prompted the Germans to try to cash their holdings through neutral sales now and escape the risk of complete loss to the invading Allies. However, the joint Anglo-American announcement probably will cut the market out from under the Nazi industrialists.

DOROTHY DIX . . . .

WOMAN TRYING TO MAKE OVER HER HUSBAND CRUSHES HIS DREAMS

Opens Door to Another Person Carrying a Salve Jar to Calm Man's Feelings.

A WOMAN whose husband has forsaken her for the Other Woman writes me that she simply cannot understand how he could have done so when she has been such a good wife to him.

"I have done everything for that man," she says indignantly. "I have literally made him over. When I married him he was a happy-go-lucky, hail-fellow-well-met sort of chap and I have changed him from being a good-time Charlie into being a dignified gentleman. I criticized his grammar and pronunciation until I broke him of the sloppy way in which he talked. I nagged him about the way in which he ate until now he could give Emily Post pointers on table etiquette. And I taught him how much better for his stomach simple food is than the highly seasoned dishes he loves.

Complete Renovation Job

"I practically changed all of his habits and personal ways. I separated him from all of his old friends and substituted mine for them. I saved him from his grafting family who were always writing him about the taxes coming due, or somebody being sick, or something for which they needed money, so that now he rarely hears from his brothers and sisters, and even his mother hasn't been in our home for years.

"I spent the best years of my life slaving to make my husband what he is, and now he says he doesn't love me any more and wants to divorce me and marry another woman. That's all the thanks I get for all my work. Men don't appreciate what their wives do for them, and there is mighty little reward a woman gets when she tries to improve her husband."

No doubt this is true, for such is masculine vanity that when a man leads a girl to the altar he thinks that he is a pretty good matrimonial bet just as he stands, and that he doesn't need to have any excrescences lopped off of him or any frills added to him. Also, he artlessly believes that his wife considers him a world's wonder and is thanking her Guardian Angel for her luck in getting him, and he never even suspicions that even while she is promising to honor and obey him she is planning to change everything about him from his politics and religion to the cut of his hair and the color of his neckties.

Women Inherited Reforming Complex From Eve

Why women do not, in the first place, pick out husbands who come up to their hearts' desire instead of choosing misfits with a view to altering them to their tastes, has never been explained. It belongs among the mysteries of feminine psychology that causes nine women out of ten to pay a high price for a dress or a hat at a fashionable shop and then tear it apart and make it over as soon as they get it home. It has something to do with the reforming complex which they inherited from their Great-grandmother Eve who started doing over the Garden of Eden before she had gotten fairly settled in it. And it may be the reason why so many women marry drunkards and gamblers and roues and ne'er-do-wells who offer them an unlimited field for their endeavors.

But while improving a husband may be a sport for the wife, it isn't much fun for the husband who is having all of his tastes and his habits lifted. In fact, it is an extremely painful process, for it not only destroys all of his self-esteem root and branch, but sweeps away all the little pleasures and emoluments with which men pad matrimony, and that repays them for giving up their liberty and assuming women's board and shopping tickets.

Every man who marries does so in the fond belief that in his wife he will find a claque who will never tire of giving him the glad hand, and that no matter how small a swath he cuts in the world, there is one person who appreciates how big and strong and wonderful he is.

Man's Dreams Shattered By Criticisms

But when Friend Wife begins correcting his pronunciation and editing his grammar and telling him which fork to use, that beautiful dream is smashed into a thousand smithereens. And when the Little Woman insists on going with him to pick out his clothes and drag him to symphony concerts when he wants to go to a prize fight, he knows that she does not look up to him as the head of the house, but considers him a moron child whom she has had to bring up by hand.

Why women do not realize that the one person on earth whose admiration a man craves more than that of anyone else is his wife's, and that when she fails to give that to him, but instead torments him with her criticisms and fault-finding, she has turned his marriage into cinders, ashes and dust, no one knows.

But we do all know that for a wife to try to improve her husband is the most dangerous adventure in which she can engage, and that when she begins telling her husband of his faults and weaknesses she is simply opening the door to some woman who carries a salve jar in her hands instead of a hammer.

Visit Aluminum Plant

KINGSTON, Sept. 22—(CP).—An 11-man war expenditures committee of the House of Commons returned to Ottawa last night after inspecting the plant of the Aluminum Company of Canada here. All members expressed enthusiasm over their visit and said work under way is much more extensive than they realized.

Government Too Slow

TORONTO, Sept. 22 —(CP) — Opinion that the Government of Ontario Premier Drew is acting "to slowly or not at all" on promises made in the August 4 Provincial Election campaign was "frequently expressed" at a caucus of the 34 C. C. F. representatives elected Aug. 4. E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario C. C. F. leader, said last night at the end of the two-day caucus.

CobourgMinister Vice-President Of Alumni Group

TORONTO, Sept. 22 — (CP). — Rt. Rev. J. R. P. Sclater, Moderator of the United Church of Canada, last night expressed the hope that his church would respond to the resolution passed at the recent General Synod of the Church of England in Canada expressing willingness to enter into discussion, conference and prayers with anyone wishing to confer with it on the prospects of closer cooperation among the churches.

Dr. Sclater told the Emmanuel College Alumni Association at its annual meeting that the Church of England in Britain had links with the Lutheran Church in Germany, and that if all the Protestant churches were linked their common efforts would be able to bring help to the churches of Germany.

"If it were only possible," he added, "without bruising anyone's spirit, for us to worship together—not simply praying and preaching in each other's churches, but receiving and celebrating Communion—that would be a glad day for Canada and the world."

Rev. Wendell P. Woodger of Cobourg was elected a vice-president of the Alumni Association, and Conference representatives elected included Rev. C. Parks, Bay of Quinte, Rev. H. S. Fiddes, Hamilton, and Rev. J. Anderson, London, Ont.

LAWN BOWLING

On Thursday evening R. Hendry's rink and James Harrison's rink will play for the Consolation finals.

There were only a few of the real 'fans' that came out last evening to see the semi-finals in the Consolation event. True, we didn't stay around ourselves very long, but there was one highlight of the night, just as we were leaving to catch a bus to come down town. Clegg's boys were laying shot and A. Aitkenhead, who was skipping the Harrison rink, had one bowl to play. He took aim and let go, hit the kitty, carried it well back, and when the boys all untangled themselves it was found that Harrison was laying eight shots, scattered all over the green. We believe it to be the first possible scored this season.

The ladies held a rather hurried-up tournament of their own on Tuesday afternoon, with six rinks making up the draw.

It won't be long before the annual meeting will be held. We noticed Bob Hendry had some nomination papers ready for distribution. He no doubt will be around to see some of the boys.

Make Your Party a Success With These Games

A PARTY GAME

Don't sit and worry about your party being a success? If you're entertaining a few servicemen at your home do not be at a loss as to how to entertain them. It's so easy to work up a few interesting games.

The illustration above shows the mixed music game. The leader of this imaginary orchestra stands in front of players who sit in semi-circle. To begin, leader pantomimes a violinist, and players imitate trumpeters. When the leader changes and blows a saxophone, the orchestra begins to fiddle.

As the leader switches from one instrument to another, players immediately start to perform on the instrument the leader has just stopped playing. Those failing to do so, pay a forfeit when game stops.

Our 32-page booklet is full of games for all kinds of parties. The games are of all types—from brain teasers to rollicking action games. No party will be dull with these to play.

You can easily make your party a success with a few of these games.

For your copy of PARTY GAMES FOR ALL OCCASIONS send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

CORRECT YOUR MISTAKE

DID YOU ever pass your hand on the first round for the simple reason that you had sorted your cards carelessly and didn't realize that you actually held a sound opening bid? If that never happened to you, then you are a very unusual young man or young woman. If it has happened, and your partner then opened the bidding, what did you do on your next turn? Your job is really to let him know, the best you can, that you should have bid in the first place, by making some kind of a force or else a jump to game.

South was "fit to be tied" after he made an unbid grand slam following West's lead of the diamond Q. North was practically looking for the nearest exit as his partner flailed him for his underbidding. When he could finally get a word in edgewise, he pleaded: "Didn't you ever have your cards sorted wrong, so that you passed a hand you should have bid?"

Indeed South had. But, when North admitted that he found the club A after he had passed, and therefore realized he should have opened the bidding, there was no excuse for his subsequent action except one—he was flustered by his first error and did not think clearly.

Noting his strength, North should have bid three in clubs or diamonds, a jump, after South opened with 1-Heart. Since he bid only 2-Clubs, and South then jumped to 3-Hearts—a terrific bid after the partner had made an opening pass—North should have gone direct to small slam in hearts, if the pair was not using any artificial slam convention, or else should have employed whatever convention was in use to ascertain the controls for slam purposes. He had two chances to correct his first slip, but fumbled them both.

U.S. War Board Considers Paper Problem

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP) — Six factors, including circulation and population increases, will be given the United States war production board in handling the requests of newspapers for additional newsprint allotments.

W.P.B. said it would compute the amount of an allotment increase on the basis of economical use of paper by publishers. Requests for increases will be denied if investigation proves the publisher can meet his requirements by conserving regular quotas.

The six factors listed by W.P.B. for increases:—

1. Population increases in the paper's trading area.
2. Circulation boosts prior to Dec. 31, 1942, by legitimate reader interest and not by promotion.
3. Curtailment of paper usage in 1941, which reduced the newspaper's base quota.
4. Consumption of newsprint during 1942 by papers which did not exist throughout 1941.
5. Suspension or merger of newspapers, requiring changes in the quotas of other papers in the area in order to guarantee adequate service for the trading area.
6. Temporary suspension of publication during 1941 due to strikes, mechanical difficulties or similar causes.

Similar standards were adopted for magazine and book publishers.

TEA CUT.

London's tough fish porters, it seems, must have strong tea. So "Harold of Billingsgate" who has been serving them for 20 years, will close his cafe. The Food Ministry has halved his tea allocation and Harold said that under the cut he wouldn't be able to "possibly make tea as strong as they (the porters) need it."

Rubber Workers Draft Political Plan

TORONTO, Sept. 22 (CP)— S. H. Dalrymple, general president of the United Rubber Workers of America (C.I.O.), stated at the international convention of the union which opened here today that the C.I.O. had established a committee for political action in the United States.

Dalrymple, a member of the committee, said: "Immediately after the appointment of the committee, meetings were held in different parts of the United States.

"Definite policies were outlined and we are now in the process of setting up a permanent national organization with a national and 14 regional offices for the purpose of co-ordinating and effectuating the organized labor political strength of America.

"Workers are organized for the purpose of solidifying their numerical strength in electing congressmen and state legislators who will enact laws that will be for the benefit of the people as a whole and not for a privileged few."

The ballot is labor's weapon, he said. "By using that weapon we can protect and strengthen the rights of labor. Remember that the restriction of the basic rights of labor has come from congress and state legislators.

KEENE

Rally Day Services Set For October

KEENE, Sept. 22— (ENS) —The rally day services will be observed at Keene United Church Sunday school and church services when special addresses will be given and music on Sunday, October 26.

Last Sunday the topic of the sermon was "The Fundamental Teachings of our Christian Faith." In the course of his sermon the Rev. Mr. Murray said that "We take too much for granted that the teachings of Christ are known— the gospel of Christ is an unknown quantity in many of our lives."

He told of a high school teacher who did not know where the story of the Good Samaritan is found. As a result of this lack of knowledge here is paganism growing in our midst. There is great need for the proclamation of the Gospel of Christ. Some churches are more concerned about the gospel of finance than the great purpose for which the church was formed to worship God and extend the Kingdom of God," he declared.

The choir sang an anthem with Delbert Coward taking the solo part. Sergeant Donald Murray, who was home on leave, presided at the organ.

Millbrook Leaders Are Given Ideas For Mission Bands

MILLBROOK, Sept. 22 — (E..S) —A meeting for leaders in Mission Band work was held last week, Mrs. L. W. Smith and her daughter Miss Margaret, the latter the leader of the St. Andrew's Church Snushine Band, being joint hostesses for the gathering.

The guest of honor was Mrs. Elizabeth Hanscom of Peterborough, Presbyterial Band secretary, who brought a wealth of material in the way of wall charts, posters, study books, program helps, and pictures. Practical information in the use of these was given in concrete form. Mrs. Hanscom carrying out this helpful plan for leaders of all Bands in the Presbytery.

The "standard of recognition" was presented in attractive form as a large daisy mounted on a green background, each petal bearing one of the sixteen points necessary to obtain the handsome certificate given each Band that reaches the objective. The points are: 1, Members purpose; 2, 10 meetings; 3, 60 per cent attendance; 4, study book taken up; 5, temperance, one study a year; 6, peace; 7, worship service; 8, prayer for missionaries; 9, activities; 10, co-operation; 11, World Friends taken; 12, Leader's Guide; 13, Missionary Monthly; 14, special meetings; 15, quarterly reports; 16, report to Auxiliary at least once annually.

Mrs. Hanscom explained the points individually, and in illustrating a suitable worship service had as background a three-paneled screen, with arched tops, with the picture "Follow Me" centering the middle panel, and the others illustrative of the year's study; in front of this an open Bible was flanked either side with offering plates, and on each side of these candles which the child invited to do so would light, at the same time giving the call to worship by means of a simple Bible verse.

Leaders may make any variation on this that they see fit, she said, but the whole created a most suitable atmosphere to begin a meeting. The verse on the prettily-tinted offering plate read: Children who walk with Jesus' way, find Him go with them all the way.

All the handwork, it was pointed out, has a teaching value, and many samples were shown; also the leader's scrap book, ready to pass on to anyone succeeding her in the office.

Following the helpful conference Mrs. Smith and her daughter served light refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed, Miss Dorothy Smith arriving home for the week-end, and other guests including Robert Hanscom, who accompanied his wife, and Rev. A. L. Sisco.

Sky Trains use Nylon Tow-lines

Early in July a Douglas C-47 transport plane took off from Dorval Airport, near Montreal, and crossed the Atlantic—towing a freight-loaded glider. Thus the first trans-Atlantic sky train became a fact!

This achievement highlights the increasing importance of glider operations in modern warfare. Today, winged armies—airborne soldiers—are flying into action in big troop-carrying gliders towed by aeroplanes.

Naturally, the tow-line that links the glider and its towing plane is a vitally important length of rope. Only an exceptional rope would possess the tremendous strength and elasticity necessary to withstand the pull and strain of high speed, long distance air transport. That's why the nylon tow-line was developed . . . because nylon excels all other yarns in the combination of lightness, tensile strength and elasticity.

Nylon tow-lines—less than an inch thick and exceptionally light—are being widely used in glider operations . . . once again demonstrating, by wartime use, the outstanding qualities of this yarn that originated in the chemists' test tube. At its plant in Kingston, Ontario, C-I-L is now producing nylon exclusively for military use. When the war is won, nylon will once again be available for general consumer production.

The use of nylon for sky train tow-lines is another example of a product of Industrial Chemistry that is aiding the war effort.

Munitions Produced Many Times Faster than During the Last War

by CARBOLOY CEMENTED CARBIDE TOOLS

WINNING important production battles in war plants everywhere in the Dominion are Carboloy cemented carbide tools and dies—produced by Canadian General Electric. For Carboloy is the "magic metal" that cuts through steel as easily as a knife cuts through butter. It steps up machining speeds wherever metals must be cut or processed, making munitions output many times faster than was possible during the last war. Carboloy tools are releasing machines and men for other war work. And they are helping conserve tungsten, supplies of which have been drastically cut by war developments in the Pacific.

Manufacturers of War Equipment interested in the application of Carboloy tools and dies to war production problems are invited to contact their nearest C.G.E. office.

NAZI TROOPS TRAPPED ON CORSICA

Russians Capture Poltava Overrun Gomel Sector; 3 Armies Converge On Kiev

1,200 Germans Killed Near Kerch Strait Where Huns Face Annihilation Seeking To Escape From Kuban Bridgehead

By JAMES M. LONG—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 23—(AP).—The Moscow radio said today that Soviet troops are storming into White Russia in the Gomel sector, shortly after a German announcement that Nazi forces have abandoned Poltava, gateway to the heart of the Ukraine.

The Moscow announcement, which quoted the newspaper Izvestia, organ of the Praesidium of the Supreme Council, was recorded by Reuters News Agency.

Gomel, in the area where the new break-through was announced, is a rail centre about midway between Kiev and Smolensk, within a bare 15 miles of the Dnieper River and within 150 miles of the Polish border.

Poltava, a city of 90,000, lies on the Vorskla in the wheatlands on the Ukraine, and is a control centre of a network of railways radiating to Kharkov, Kiev, Kremenchug and Dnepropetrovsk. It is 80 miles west of Kharkov, 87 miles southeast of Kiev, 61 miles northeast of Kremenchug on the Dnieper and 77 miles northwest of Dnepropetrovsk at the Dnieper bend. It was captured by the Nazis on September 20, 1941.

The city was isolated yesterday when Red Army forces stormed the town of Dikana, 15 miles to the north, and Golovach, six miles to the south. The German broadcast said Nazi troops destroyed all military installations in Poltava before they continued their retreat westward toward the Dnieper.

Kiev, Russia's fourth largest city and keystone of the German defence wall on the Dnieper River, was menaced from three directions today as Red Army forces continued to roll up victory after victory along the flaming 750-mile front from Dimidov in the north to the Kuban bridgehead on the Black Sea.

More than 8,000 Nazi troops were killed in the struggle for Dimidov, a Moscow communique declared, after the enemy had launched 12 counter-attacks in vain attempts to hold the city. Three hundred prisoners were reported taken and tremendous amounts of war material seized.

On the Kiev salient, capture of the village of Lyeski, 18 miles northeast of the Ukraine capital, brought the church spires of the city within view of the advancing Russian forces. Other Soviet forces were at Ostroluchye and Pereyaslav, 50 miles to the south and within five miles of the Dnieper, the Russians said. Meanwhile a Red Army spearhead stormed the town of Zolotonosha, 35 miles further south and a scant eight miles from the river.

A three-way drive on Kiev, from the north, centre and south was imminent, Russian front dispatches indicated, with the centre push mounted from captured Berezan, 35 miles directly east.

Take 49 Big Guns

On the Kuban bridgehead, far to the south, Anapa, one of the last ports from the Caucasus, was cleared of German forces who now are pushed back to the Kerch Strait. The Moscow war bulletin said 1,200 Germans were killed and 200 captured in the bitter fight for this port and that the Nazis abandoned great stores of war equipment including 49 big guns.

Formations of Red Army planes assisted in this operation, wiping out two battalions of the enemy and smashing 120 trucks and 15 field

Allied Powers Must Supply Italy With Coal

LONDON, Sept. 23 — (CP).—Britain, hard pressed to find sufficient fuel for industries and domestic consumption, is faced with the added problem of supplying Allied forces in Italy, and perhaps civilian needs there as well.

As a starter, fuel must be rushed to Italy to keep railways operating as they come under Allied control.

Most Britons believe they will shortly have to do with less coal in order to supply Italy's basic needs but there is no doubt that the sending to Italy of any commodities which are needed in Britain would be resented. And the people are particularly sensitive about the coal position.

Strikes, shortage of labor and increased industrial coal consumption have created serious production problems in the coalfields. A minimum of 30,000 more miners is urgently needed.

Nevertheless, South Wales collieries have been asked to submit estimates of coal they could supply for use in Italy. Before the war most of the 2,500,000 tons exported yearly from Britain to Italy came from Wales. Germany continued to supply about 12,000,000 tons annually, but this has been cut off now.

"Relief coal will mean as much as food to Italy over the coming winter," commented a leading Welsh exporter. "Already the industries of Italy are starved of coal because of the recent suspension of deliveries from Germany."

Since Italy's fall suggestions have been made that Italian prisoners in Britain be sent to the pits to provide necessary manpower. "Italy needs coal....Let Italians dig it," said the Sunday Dispatch.

27-Year-Old Murder Solved

MONTREAL, Sept. 23 —(CP)—Luigi Stabile was today sentenced to be hanged Jan. 14 for the murder 27 years ago of his brother-in-law, Carmeno Festa.

Mr. Justice Alfred Lazure passed sentence after a jury returned a verdict of "guilty."

Stabile, who had told the court he had "nothing to say," bowed to the bench and quietly said "thank you" after sentence was passed.

Mrs. Stabile was in a state of near-collapse when the verdict was delivered and she left the court room before her husband was sentenced.

The child, daughter of Mrs. Frida Miller, weighed six pounds and 10 ounces. A disease as serious as the fatal type of polio usually will kill the child before the mother, the physicians explained.

Hitler Planned Invasion In September 1940

LONDON, Sept. 23 —(CP) —The gigantic air attack that Germany hurled at London three years ago this month definitely was the preliminary step toward invasion of Britain, it was disclosed to-day.

Twenty-five hundred barges massed in ports across the English Channel and the North Sea were to have carried Hitler's invasion hordes to the shores of England as the climax of a five-week program culminating in mid-September.

The planned preliminary steps were to have been the knockout of the R. A. F. and then the bombing of London to shatter the will and ability of the British people to resist.

This information, obtained from sources which may not be specified presented a broader picture of events that occurred during those dark days than it was possible to give then or since.

The daring and tireless pilots of the R. A. F. carried the major burden of throwing this enemy invasion program awry—the men who long ago were immortalized by the words of Winston Churchill: "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

The R. A. F. then was out-numbered four to one by the German air force's 3,450 planes.

The force that battled back 400 German planes on September 15, 1940, and 850 on September 27 amounted to only 28 squadrons — less than 350 planes— some of which fought three times in a day.

Massive Raid Fires Hanover; 26 Bombers Lost; Nantes, Emden Also Bombed

Dawn Raid By Americans On French Airports Does Extensive Damage; Oldenburg Near Bremen Pasted By R.A.F.

By GLADWIN HILL—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 23—(AP).—Allied air forces threw a quadruple punch into enemy Europe with an R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. mass raid on the Reich city of Hanover last night, an American heavy bomber attack on Nantes today, and two U.S. medium-bomber assaults deep into France.

All were carried out within a period of 18 hours.

The Air Ministry said "a very strong force" of Britain's biggest bomb carriers roared into north central Germany during the night to attack the important railway and factory city of Hanover. Twenty-six of the bombers were listed as lost.

R.C.A.F. headquarters in its communique announced that Lancasters, Halifaxes and Wellingtons of the Canadian bomber group participated in the heavy raid and that five of the missing bombers were Canadian. R.C.A.F. Mosquitoes also joined the R.A.F. in the fighter command's intruder operations, attacking airfields of Holland and northwest Germany.

"Preliminary reports show that a highly concentrated attack was completed in 30 minutes, leaving very large fires with smoke rising to a great height," a Ministry communique said.

Railroad Centre.

Smaller British bomber formations attacked the port of Emden, in the extreme northwest corner of Germany, and inland Oldenburg, a big army, air force and railroad centre east of Bremen.

The American heavy bombers, streaking across the Channel at dawn even before the British formations had returned, attacked naval installations at Nantes and two airfields at Vannes-Meucon and Kerlin-Bastard in western France.

Following up their long-range visit late yesterday to Evereaux-Fauville, 45 miles west of Paris, American two-engined bombers this morning attacked airfields at Conches, 60 miles west of the French capital.

The British-Canadian night raid on Hanover was the fourth big Allied air blow in three months against Nazi rubber sources. Amid Hanover's big industrial concentration of refineries, locomotives and tanks works is the Continental Gummiwerks, Germany's largest rubber factory.

Damaged In July.

This plant was hit in July by the Americans who in June had attacked the rubber factory at Huls. A week ago the R.A.F. fliers laid their destructive bombs across the big Dunlop works at Muntlucon, France.

(Today's German communique said "Hanover and Oldenburg report casualties among the civilian population as well as considerable damage to public buildings. Anti-aircraft forces shot down 21 enemy bombers.")

R.A.F. fighters swept into Holland and northwest Germany on intruder patrols during the night, the Air Ministry announced, and destroyed one enemy aircraft. Enemy air bases were the chief targets of the fighters.

The attack on Nantes, important German submarine base situated at the upper end of the Bay of Biscay, represented a round trip of some 500 miles for the bombers. Nantes was among targets hit by the Americans a week ago in a daylight raid on the Biscay area.

Elderly Woman Brutally Murdered

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, Ont., Sept. 23—(CP).—Her battered head covered with blood, the body of 60-year-old Martha O'Melia was found early today lying on a boulevard in the centre of this Lake Ontario town by two soldiers, and police said she had been murdered.

Coroner John Ball ordered a post mortem examination of the body as provincial and town police pressed their investigation into the death. Inspector Andrew Grant of the Provincial Police from Toronto is expected here today to direct the investigation. The post mortem will be performed by Dr. Lorne Whittaker, pathologist at the General Hospital in nearby St. Catharines.

The body was found at 6.45 a.m. by Sgt.-Major L. B. de Santis of Port Colborne and Sgt.-Major C. N. Lundy of Niagara Falls, who immediately notified Night Constable H. Hinchcliffe. The body was lying on a boulevard two blocks from the Town Hall.

Chief E. Ball of Niagara-on-the-Lake was assisted in his investigation by Cpl. C. W. Wood of the Provincial Police at St. Catharines.

There were indications that the woman was criminally assaulted, police said.

Residents of the area said they heard screams about 3 a.m., and it was presumed she was killed about that time.

From the bruises and lacerations on her face it was thought that the woman was beaten to death with fist blows.

Widely-known in town, Miss O'Melia had lived here since childhood. She was born in the United States.

A brother, Edward, was formerly a Customs official at this port and now is employed as a civilian at Camp Borden.

He has been notified of her death and is on his way here.

2,098 Bombers Lost

LONDON, Sept. 23—(CP).—Air Secretary Sir Archibald Sinclair told Commons yesterday that 1,651 British and 447 American bombers, based in Britain, were reported lost over northern Europe during the eight months ended August 31. He added that 306 British and 100 American planes were lost during August and 195 British and 108 American craft in July.

Churchill Gives Election Talk Strength

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Sept. 23—(CP)—Those who believe there will be a Dominion election this year—and there are many who do—had their convictions strengthened yesterday by the comment of Prime Minister Churchill in the British House of Commons.

Mr. Churchill, announcing his hopes of having a long-sought conference of Empire prime ministers next year, said each of the Dominions "has had or is going to have an election."

This comment, coming on the eve of a special parliamentary caucus of the Liberal party opening here Friday, to be followed next week by a meeting of the National Liberal Federation Advisory Council—the first since the war—had political circles here buzzing.

In a statement Wednesday, on Mr. Churchill's expressed hopes for a conference of Empire premiers early next year, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said he had discussed this with the British leader in Quebec last month and promised to attend at any time the meeting could be conveniently arranged.

Within Matter Of Months

It was assumed in some quarters here that at the same time Mr. King discussed the next general election with Mr. Churchill whose comments in London Wednesday would make it appear he expects a general election here within a matter of months.

Gordon Graydon, acting House of Commons leader of the Progressive Conservative Party and leader of the official Opposition, was in Ottawa Wednesday and told The Canadian Press that he was advising his constituents to be ready for a possible general election this year.

Mr. Graydon intimated his party would not be averse to a general election contest this fall, and it is believed the C.C.F. party, which had such remarkable success in the recent Ontario elections, would like to see an election called at once.

But it is known that a strong school of thought in the Liberal party believes there should be a period of organization and that at least a year is necessary for this purpose. And it is the government that will decide.

GRANBY, Que., Sept. 23 (CP)—Organized Catholic Workers of Quebec, winding up their four-day annual meeting, were told last night that they may accept for full membership in their syndicates "all men of good-will providing that, as syndicate members, they conform their acts to the Christian social doctrine."

Bastia, Sole Escape Route Blockaded By Navy; Planes Harass Fleeing Army

Allies In South And Central Italy Advance 10 To 15 Miles; Huns Scuttle 30 Ships, Block Naples Port

By WES GALLAGHER—Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, Sept. 23—(AP).—Allied sea and air power threw a blockade around Corsica today, cutting off German troops fleeing from French and American troops closing in on Bastia, the enemy's last seaport.

It appeared doubtful that the Germans would be able to hold out on the island much longer under combined air, land and sea pressure.

Allied warships bombarded the strip of coast weher the road of retreat runs close to the sea, and supported the troops which carried out a furious attack near Solenzara, 60 miles south of Bastia.

On the Italian mainland Anglo-American troops made advances of 10 to 15 miles in central and southern sectors in a forward sweep which was gradually forcing Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring to uncover the inland approaches to smoke-smothered, dynamite-shattered Naples.

Allied soldiers were within sight and sound of the systematic wrecking of Naples by German demolition squads.

As the noise of frequent explosions from the smoking city rolled over the hills, Allied headquarters announced that the Germans had scuttled at least 30 ships at Naples and blocked practically every berth along the docks.

Many Fires Visible

"Fires have been burning along the docks for several days, apparently as the result of demolitions," said the announcement, which was based on aerial reconnaissance. "Charges were seen to burst along the docks."

Aerial photographs also showed a large industrial area north of the docks had been wrecked by bombings and the railroad yards demolished.

"The extent to which this is going on indicates the enemy is determined to make the big port, one of the largest and best peace-time harbors in Europe, completely useless to Allied troops when they occupy it," the announcement stated.

In the inland sweep British and American troops swung the right of their line forward toward the Adriatic, with Salerno serving somewhat as a hinge, and straightened out several deep mountain bulges.

Moving North

They advanced 10 miles northwest of Potenza, 15 miles north of Sala Consilina and 10 miles west of Mottola which is north of Taranto, capturing the towns of Acerno, Avigliano and Genosa.

Acerno is 18 miles east and slightly north of Salerno and six miles north of Campagna, reported captured yesterday.

Avigliano is 50 miles east of Salerno and about eight miles northwest of Potenza, also reported captured yesterday.

Genosa is 25 miles northwest of Taranto and 14 miles inland from the Gulf of Taranto.

(The German communique today admitted "a dent made by the enemy in our positions near Contursi" but claimed the break was "cleaned up in counter attacks. The enemy has brought up fresh forces in that eastern sector of the front without, however, so far commencing an attack."

North and northeast of Salerno the Germans were putting up a stiff and stubborn battle on the direct, shoreline route to Naples and little advance was made.

Dealers Require Permission To Freeze Beef

OTTAWA, Sept. 23 —(CP)—The Canadian Meat Board by order effective Sept. 27 prohibited today the storage of certain designated qualities of meat by any packer or other person without first receiving authority from the board.

The order is designed to "supplement the arrangements of the government in purchasing beef suitable for domestic reserves and for export to the United Kingdom if required at the established floor prices."

The order states that no packer or other person may freeze any beef, or store any beef frozen on or after Sept. 27, which bears the Canadian government inspection legend and is of the qualities known as "special," "commercial," or "cow," specified under a meat board requirement effective Sept. 21, without first obtaining the authorization of the secretary-manager of the meat board, L. W. Pearsall, Ottawa.

Meat board officials said no beef yet has been sent to the United Kingdom, although it is hoped such supplies will be available if cattle marketings are good in coming months.

Under the terms of the order, the free movement of beef supplies to where they are needed most will be made possible.

After recurring shortages which led to limited beef supplies in various eastern centres last year, cattle marketings have substantially improved in 1943.

Heavier cattle now are being marketed as a result of good feed crops last year, and meat rationing has given a clear picture of Canadian home requirements.

Canada To Have R.C.A.F. College

TORONTO, Sept. 23.— (CP). — Canada's First Air Staff College, modelled closely after the R.A.F. staff college established in England in 1920, will be officially opened here Oct. 4, it was announced today.

The college will perform much the same function for the R.C.A.F. as the Royal Military College at Kingston, Ont., does for the army, providing administrative training for selected Canadian airmen.

Courses will take 10 weeks and it is expected 36 officers will be accommodated during each course.

One of the main objectives is to instruct students in complete coordination between the various services so that key officers will have a complete understanding of the interdependency and relation of the R.C.A.F. with the army and navy.

The directing staff includes: Group Capt. R. M. McKay, Winnipeg, chief instructor; Group Capt. R. F. Davenport, Belleville, Ont.

Speech Applauds Decision

Australians Want Action In Pacific

CANBERRA, Sept. 23 — (CP) — Australia has every reason to be satisfied with the decision of United Nations leaders to prosecute Pacific war with the same vigor as in the European theatre, said the speech from the throne read to-day by the Governor-General, Lord Gowrie, at the opening of a new session of parliament.

The Commonwealth Government's war policies, the speech said, would be governed by the Commander-in-Chief's strategical plan of operations, as related to the global strategy of the Allies.

(No further indentification of the commander-in-chief was given but presumably it was a reference to Gen. Douglas MacArthur).

The Australian Government had expressed appreciation to Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt for their assurance of equal vigor in fighting the Japanese as well as the Germans, the speech said.

Stating the policies and views of the new government of Premier John Curtin the speech from the throne pledged that assistance to U. S. forces would be continued under reciprocal lend-lease. Primary consideration would continue to insure maximum contributions to the southwest Pacific, but the Commonwealth would contribute food and supplies to other theatres as well.

MacArthur's Statement Puzzles Nation

Construed To Mean Burma Drive May Slow Pacific Thrust

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst.

One of the many things the world likes about Gen. Douglas MacArthur is that this great soldier speaks his mind as befits a man of action, but his unusual statement in Australia that however subordinate may be his role in the war, he hopes to play it manfully, leaves one with feelings of deep puzzlement as to why he thought it necessary to issue it.

The General's declaration is wholly cryptic to the public, and the usual news sources in Washington profess to be equally at a loss. There's no indication of what inspired it beyond the fact that obviously something is troubling him.

People Admire Him.

Is it that the supreme commander of Army, Naval and Air Forces of the Allied Nations in the Southwest Pacific (to give him his full, rather terrifying title) feels that he has been in some way belittled? If that is what he thinks, he is wrong, for his position in the esteem of the American people is as high as the skies. He is a great national hero and his place in the American Hall of Fame is secure.

All sorts of guesses are being made as to exactly what is in McArthur's mind. But nobody has got closer to it than that apparently he feels he is being circumscribed somehow in carrying out his strategic conception for the Pacific theatre. This, as he says, "contemplates massive strokes against only main strategic objectives," which would "obviate the need for storming the mass of islands now in the enemy's possession." One of his most cherished objectives, of course, is recapture of the Philippines.

Many observers think perhaps MacArthur is talking about the coming Burma drive, and the appointment of Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten as Allied Commander in South-east Asia. Well, it's hard to see how Mountbatten's appointment could subordinate MacArthur or detract from the latter's command. It might easily be, however that the staging of the Burma show, which will call for the massing of vast striking-power in the Indian theatre might temporarily deprive the General of resources which he would like for his own offensive.

Be all that as it may, the Allied High Command says the Burma show is to go forward. That's in accordance with the general strategy laid out long ago.

Britain Says Planes First

Women Up To 50 Urged To Build Aircraft

LONDON, Sept. 23 (CP)—Urging every provision be made for "the titanic struggle facing us in 1944," Labor Minister Ernest Bevin said today the cabinet had given priority to aircraft construction and urged women up to 50 to go to work in plane factories at once.

In a review of Great Britain's manpower situation before the House of Commons he reported that:

Mobilization has reached a stage not excelled in any other country.

Nearly 23,000,000 out of 33,000,000 persons between 14 and 64 who are available for work are in the armed services, civil defence or part-time employment.

Seven million women are doing part-time work. More than 1,000,000 women are doing voluntary, non-paid jobs.

Ninety-one per cent of Britain's unmaried women between 18 and 40 are employed. More than 80 per cent of childless married women in that group also are working.

More than 1,000,000 men and women over 65 are in the war effort.

Two and a quarter million more people are employed in munitions making than at the end of the last war.

AMERICANS WIPE OUT LAST OF JAPANESE GARRISON ON ARUNDEL

Troops Land Above Finschhafen

New Guinea Base Threatened In Latest Drive

By WILLIAM F. BONI, Associated Press Staff Writer.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, The Southwest Pacific, Sept. 23 — (AP) — Allied Headquarters announced to-day the seaborne landing of Australian troops above Finschhafen, enemy base 60 miles northeast of Lae on the New Guinea coast, and the destruction of remnants of a Japanese garrison on Arundel Island in the Solomons.

Under protection of warships and planes, the Australians went ashore against enemy opposition at dawn Wednesday six miles above Peacetime Mission headquarters and just below the Song river. At dusk on the previous day, Japanese bombers and fighters sought to attack ships involved in the operations but were intercepted by fighters which shot down four bombers and five fighters.

Near Rabaul.

Capture of Finschhafen on the Huon Peninsula, which is more suitable for ground action than any other territory previously attacked on New Guinea, would give the Allies control of a gulf within easy over water striking distance of Japanese-held New Britain and its stronghold of Rabaul.

On Arundel, directly west of New Georgia, American jungle troops destroyed enemy reinorcements on the island's north shore and also on nearby Saga Karasa island to move within artillery shelling distance of the Japanese garrison at Vila across Blackett Strait on Kolombangara.

Sixty miles northwest of Lae at Kaiapit, which airborne Australians captured Sept. 18, headquarters disclosed that a Japanese patrol of 200 was encountered the night of the transport landings. The Aussies killed 120 of the enemy and routed the others.

Widespread air blows of the Allies augmented the latest ground operations. In the Madang sector of Finschhafen, the already disrupted coastal supply road took a new pounding Tuesday which doubled the bridges destroyed to eight.

Across Dampier Strait from Finschhafen, four-engined bombers dropped 60 tons of bombs on the airdrome at Cape Gloucester, New Britain, and other planes raided the airdrome at Gasmata.

In the New Ireland vicinity, reconnaissance bombers set a 5,000-ton enemy ship afire, sank a 1,500-tonner and bombed two other vessels.

Four New Cases Polio Reported

TORONTO, Sept. 23 (CP)—Four new cases of infantile paralysis have been reported in the Trenton, Ont., area, an official of the Ontario Health Department reported last night.

Two new cases have developed at the Trenton air station where a quarantine was imposed following the death of three airmen from the disease, the official said.

The other two, young children, have been brought to hospital here.

Health authorities said neither of the two airmen is in serious condition. One was brought to hospital here Wednesday while the provincial health department rushed an iron lung to the Trenton air station, where the other airman is in hospital.

Allies Release 2 Assassins From Penal Isle

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
Representing the Combined American Press, distributed by the Canadian Press.

WITH THE ALLIED ARMIES IN ITALY, Sept. 19 (Delayed) — Two men who many years ago attempted to assassinate Benito Mussolini and were condemned to life imprisonment have been released by Allied authorities from notorious penal islands. But one of them, by a ghastly mischance, was killed by a German shell just seven days after he had been at liberty for the first time in 16 years.

The unfortunate victim was the less well-known of the two. He was an anarchist named Lucetti who, in the early days of the Fascist regime, threw a bomb at Mussolini but missed.

At that time there was no death penalty in Italy.

Lucetti was confined on the Island of Santo Stefano and was freed by Allied forces September 10. He was taken to the Island of Ischia and was awaiting transportation when he was killed by a German shell on Sept. 17.

Soldier's Duty

Far more famous was Col. Tito Zaniboni who was on the Island of Ponza when he was liberated.

Zaniboni was one of Italy's First Great War heroes. He was Colonel of a regiment of Alpine troops and had won every decoration for valor that Italy could give.

In 1927 he made up his mind that the best thing he could do for Italy would be to kill Mussolini. He bought the finest high-powered hunting rifle with telescopic sights.

One of the few places Mussolini could be relied upon to appear in public during the first half of the Fascist regime was the balcony of Palazzo Chigi.

Zaniboni finally managed to rent a room about 100 yards from the Chigi balcony and overlooking it.

It was not to be. Zaniboni had entrusted his secret to one man, but that was one man too many.

His friend became panic-stricken at the last minute and just before Mussolini appeared on the balcony agents of Mussolini's secret police broke into his room and overpowered him.

Dread Disease Strikes 3 More

TORONTO, Sept. 23 — (CP). — Ontario Department of Health officials to-day said 17 cases of infantile paralysis now have been reported in the Trenton, Ont., area —12 of them among civilians and five in the R.C.A.F. Station.

Three of the airmen from Trenton have died of the disease.

Officials said three new cases were added to the civilian list today, although the cases were reported before September 11 and were found to have passed the acute stage and have residual paralysis.

Dr. B. T. McGhie, Deputy-Minister of Health, said that Dr. J. E. Moody of the Communicable Disease Department reported to health authorities to-day, but is returning to Trenton to continue his investigations.

No trace as to the origin of the disease has been established.

One of the airmen from Trenton is in hospital here and the other is confined to the hospital at the station. Neither are in serious condition. Officials said an iron lung had been sent to Trenton for use in an emergency.

is located there, and many oil tanks are in the vicinity. It was Hanover's 48th raid of the war.

Out In Daylight.

Before the R. A. F. night raiders returned, Allied daylight bombing formations again were headed across the channel.

Observers along the English southeast coast saw the daylight formations streaking out at dawn even before the night raiders were back at their bases.

In daylight yesterday, American medium bombers protected by R. C. A. F. fighters, made their deepest penetration into Western Europe, loosing their bombloads on the Nazi airfield at Everbeaux-Fauville, 45 miles west of Paris. Several enemy fighters were damaged by the Canadian Spitfires, all of which returned safely.

In accompanying raids, other Allied planes attacked points in France, Belgium and the Netherlands. Targets included the Nazi airfield at Brest, hit by British and Canadian airmen.

Thunderbolts knocked down two enemy fighters in offensive sweeps over France, Belgium and Holland. Fighters escorting the medium bombers blasted three others while the bombers themselves shot down two. Two Allied fighters were reported missing from the daylight operations.

A few German planes dropped incendiaries over a Northeast coast town last evening, but all were reported quickly extinguished.

Mountbatten Command

LONDON, Sept. 23—(CP). — The command of Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, new Allied southeast Asia commander-in-chief, will range from the waters off Madagascar east to Sumatra and will span French Indo-China, Thailand, Malaya and Burma, Reuters News Agency's Far Eastern affairs writer said last night, quoting advices from India.

Railways Active In Every Sphere Of War Effort

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 23—(CP)—D. C. Coleman, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, yesterday described the wartime role of North American railways and asserted that "it is safe to say that none of the warring nations has been any better served by its railways than has the Dominion of Canada."

In an address prepared for delivery before the Canadian Club of London, the C.P.R. president recalled that the depression years and the developing competition offered by other forms of transport had brought Canadian railways in 1939 to a "very low point of activity—if not, in too many cases, to actual insolvency."

It was common, in the years preceding the war, to hear remarks that the railway age was over and that there would be a "steady process of diminution of railway activities, to the point where it might be expected that railways would substantially cease to exist." Nowhere has this belief more developed than in Germany.

Bad Mistake.

"Highly competent observers of military affairs are inclined to think that among Herr Hitler's gravest errors of intuition must be placed his neglect in providing the railway facilities for his attempt at world conquest and his excessive dependence on the construction of new super-highways for military use."

Mr. Coleman related that in 1942 Canadians railways moved the equivalent of almost 5,000,000,000 passengers one mile in 1942, compared with 1,750,000,000 in 1939. Tons of freight moved one mile increased from 31250,000,000 in 1939 to more than 55,250,000000 in 1942. The average load per freight car increased from 27.1 tons to 30.6 and the average number of passengers per train from 48.3 to 115.9.

This increased traffic had been handled in the face of a shortage of labor while wartime conditions made it impossible to undertake expansion programs which would have gone hand in hand with any such development in peacetime.

Wartime freight movement has involved the maintenance of the normal commercial life of the nation and at the same time serving military needs and war industies.

Great War Strides

Discussing manpower, he said that more than 16,000 C.P.R. employees had enlisted for active service. Other members of the railway's staff had been turned over to the Canadian and other Allied governments for special duties.

The C.P.R. steamship service had assisted in the war although "I have neither the time nor the right to give you any detailed account of

In passing the death penalty, Mr. Justice Lazure declared the evidence against Stabile had been "heavy." In charging the jury yesterday His Lordship declared the case was unique in the annals of juriprudence in Quebec province, in that it had been impossible to prove the cause of death after the lapse of 27 years.

Mr. Justice Lazure said that another unusual feature of the case was the part played by circumstantial evidence and the fact it was not necessary for the crown to establish a motive for the commission of the crime.

A skeleton and articles of clothing, identified as belonging to Festa, were found recently by workmen digging in the cellar of a house at nearby St. Hubert where Festa had worked for Stabile until Festa's disappearance in 1916.

Cheese, Produce and Livestock

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 23 — (CP) — Wheat futures again made new seasonal highs yesterday in a moderately active session on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Advances were credited to good export and American buying, most of which was believed to be in anticipation of future business with the United States Commodity Credit Corporation.

Reports from the South that the United States Commodity Credit Corporation was disposing of its supplies faster than it was acquiring them was a market factor in the price upturn.

In the rye pit American houses were on both sides of the market, and values were ⅝ to ¾ cent down.

Howe Denies Date Set

OTTAWA, Sept. 23 (CP)—Munitions Minister Howe said in a press release last night that no order has been issued by the government which could be interpreted as either a ban on the heating of dwellings, stores or offices before a certain date or as limiting the temperatures to which these buildings should be heated during the coming winter. He said the statement was made to clear up misunderstanding.

"Some misunderstanding has apparently arisen over the government's coal conservation policy," Mr. Howe said. "We are receiving reports from various parts of the country which suggest that Oct. 1, Oct. 15, or even Nov. 1 have been set by government order as the earliest dates on which furnaces maybe fired.

"This is not true. Only regional weather conditions can determine the length of the heating season. Because of the nature of the Canadian climate, therefore, it would be impossible to devise an order which would apply equally to all sections of the Dominion.

"While we must conserve fuel, it is equally essentially that our health be preserved," Mr. Howe added. "This we cannot achieve if we work in extremely cold offices or sit at home in uncomfortably low temperatures.

"I appeal to you again to save as much coal as you can, and above all not to waste it...."

airdromes at Maritza on the Island of Rhodes in the Dodecanese and Elevsis at Athens, in Greece, where runways and hangars were hit and six aircraft destroyed on the ground, a Cairo communique said. Nearly 200,000 pounds of high explosives were dropped.

R.A.F. Wellingtons attacked Maleme airdrome on Crete by night.

The Germans were using a small number of tanks in their retreat up the Italian boot, but military spokesmen said the Allied forces were having little difficulty in dealing with them.

In some sectors the Germans laid considerable minefields, but these were not being used at all near the scale used in Tunisia or Sicily.

Although the spokesman identified the Americans in Corsica as small part of the forces involved.

"The enemy continues to cling hard to his positions in the western sector while attempting to withdraw his left flank," the communique said.

Whereabouts of Canadian forces in Italy were still unknown today.

London, however, has reported the 1st Canadian Army Tank Brigade might be fighting in the Salerno sector, while German propaganda broadcasts have said the Canadian 1st Division was fighting there. Official confirmation of these claims is lacking.

The daily headquarters announcement made no mention of the situation in Corsica. It was announced late yesterday that American units are aiding French forces there in a drive to oust German troops from that island.

Britain is importing 100 tons of blackberries, valued at £20,000 ($90,000) from Eire this Fall.

2 Killed, 3 Hurt As Car Hits Parked Truck

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 23—(CP)—Two persons were killed and three seriously injured last night when an automobile drove into the rear of a parked truck on a highway between Delaware and Strathroy, about one-quarter mile north of Mount Brydges.

The dead were John Hvodlik of Kirkland Lake, Ont., driver of the truck, and Clare Wilton, 20, Mount Brydges.

Roy Bramley, Gordon Skinner and Alex Howe, 22, said to have been the driver of the car, were rushed to hospital here where their condition was described as "most critical." Little hope was held for the recovery of Bramley, who suffered a possible skull fracture and multiple cuts and fractures.

The impact of the collision sent the automobile bursting into flames and only quick action by Tom Colvin of Mount Brydges saved further fatalities, police said. Colvin tried to pull the unconscious men from the burning car but found all doors locked. He finally succeeded in extinguishing the flames by throwing sand over them.

Police said Hvodlik had donned overalls to fix trouble which developed at the rear of his truck, which he parked at the side of the road.

COBOURG

Northumberland Faces Seed Grain Shortage

COBOURG, Sept. 23 (ENS) — Grain crop in Northumberland county was generally poor this year and the county faces a scarcity of seed grain for 1944 unless farms make plans to secure it this fall, it was announced by Ralph C. Banbury, agricultural representative for Northumberland County. It is questionable if better seed can be secured from any other county as the bad season has been general.

"The increased price of milk will encourage the feeding of more grain and it is feared that suitable seed might be fed if each farmer does not make definite arrangement for his needs in the near future. More fall wheat than usual may have been planted, and the supply of roughages in corn and hay is excellent. Western grain will make good feed but it is dangerous for use as seed as many varieties are mixed and too little is known of it to use it for seed purposes.

"The potato crop is fair and most injury has been caused by flea beetles and consequent tip burn. Where late blight really exists, it will be recognized by the deterioration smell, and contrary to some opinion, potatoes should not be dug in an attempt to avoid late blight. The better plan is to let the tops die and the ground become dry for a week. By this means the spores do not get on the tubers to as great an extent and conditions are more satisfactory in storage," stated Mr. Banbury.

OBITUARIES

REV. A. F. POLLOCK

COBOURG, Sept. 23 (ENS) — Rev. A. F. Pollock, formerly minister of the Congregational church, Cobourg, was buried here Wednesday afternoon. The death occurred at Ormstown where he had been living since his retirement from the ministry.

The remains were brought here yesterday and interment was in Cobourg Union cemetery, Rev. W. P. Woodger conducting the service. Pall-bearers were John F. Field, George Greer, Harry Field, Fred Greer, E. A. Hircock and T. F. Hall, K.C.

He is survived by his widow, two daughters and four sons. Mrs. Robert Harvey of Cobourg is a daughter.

MRS. WILBERT CARR

COBOURG, Sept. 23 (ENS) — Mrs. Wilbert Carr, who died this week at the family residence, Front Road West, was buried Wednesday afternoon in St. Peter's Anglican cemetery. Her death came after a brief illness.

Formerly Golda Hayden, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hayden of Cobourg and was a life-time resident of the town. For several years she was on the local telephone staff as a supervisor.

She is survived by her husband and a brother, Arthur Hayden of Cobourg, along with two sisters, Eva and May of Cobourg.

Lakefield's Annual Fall Fair Has Record-Breaking Attendance

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 23 —(ENS)— "Canada will be required to feed Europe after the war," said Gordon K. Fraser, M. P., as he encouraged the district farmers to even greater efforts to increase their splendid volume of produce as he opened the Lakefield Fall Fair on Wednesday afternoon.

"Though it was expected that the crops would be down this year," continued Mr. Fraser, "in the majority of cases they have turned out exceedingly well, and it will all be required to tide us over the coming year. However, much as the farmers have been doing, and it has been a noble response with the shortage of help, the drive for food must be kept up."

President Herbert Abbott of the Agricultural Society and Reeve Gordon S. Scriver welcomed one of the largest crowds in the fair's history as they spoke at the grounds following a parade from the village featuring the Grove Boys Band and band of Kingston Military. The boys making a very smart appearance. Rain threatened to mar the event but Old Sol came back out after a few drops of rain fell about 2 o'clock.

Entries in all classes were well filled and some splendid stock shown. Horses attracted a large audience among their own admirers and the black and white exhibit was ample proof that the Holsteins in the district are on a par with the best and a real asset and encouragement to the men striving yearly to improve the strain.

The children's work, plant and flower exhibits, and the Home Department including baking displays all showed keen competition and the large entry in practically all classes displayed the interest taken by the community in these departments.

Tap dancing by the girls and rolling pin throwing to demonstrate the prowess of the women provided interesting sidelights and considerabel amusement especially in the latter.

With the war curbs there were fewer attractions in the sideshow line and usual games of chance, the Provincial Police ousting one which attempted to operate.

Horse racing drew the biggest crowd with fairly close heats in both 2.17 and 2.27 classes giving the fans their money's worth.

Won Worton Award.

Frank Leahy of Douro won the Dr. Worton special prize in the district school children's race with Elwin Garbutt second and Tim Maloney third. Mrs. Clarence Coons hoisted the rolling pin farther than any of her competitors, edging Mrs. Reg. Doubt and both husbands were reported to have left early to dispose of any home stock in the rolling pin line.

Tap dancing honors were taken by Nancy Graham decked very sweetly as a drum majorette with Marlene Crowe second. Mickey McMrnus upheld the Irish as the top stepper, Lionel Brown placing a close second.

In a draw for a chair by the Lakefield Red Cross Nursing Class, Mrs. A. Quinlan of Indian River proved the winner. Over $89 was realized for the work at this booth.

Stan and Ernie Garrett won the log-sawing contest in 42 seconds.

Robert Holtby, Holstein Preisian Association Field Man and originator of the Black and White Show, was enthusiastic in his praise of the entries. The dry class was extremely closely contested with the winner changing a couple of times before the final decision. There were 115 entries with Fred Hubbs of Bloomfield, a well known judge, doing the placing, Stewart Nelson's senior champion of 1942 retained top honors again for the farm.

Prize winners were as follows:

CAMPBELLFORD

60 Garage Men Discuss Issues

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 23 (ENS) —Some sixty members of the Peterborough Branch of the Garage Operators' Association held a dinner meeting, their first, at Campbellford, in the Villa Trent here last night when amid a spirit of friendly fellowship they discussed mutual poblems. President of the banch, Ev Robinson of Peterborough presided and the program included sound pictures screened by Stan Thomas, regional supervisor of the Chrysler Corporation, Toronto.

For President Robinson, who has been elected to that office at the annual meeting held in Buckhorn last June, it was his initial job of conducting a meeting and in his opening remarks he quoted several items of interest from recent issues of the "Garage Operator." He pointed out that in British Columbia garages were compelled to close one-half day each week and gas pumps were open only between the hours of 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. The ruling, he said, would remain in effect there until 80 per cent of the operators voted to change it.

Post War Thought

He told members they would soon receive a government questionnaire regarding the post war absorption of manpower into their businesses. This would be no routine set of questions which could be glanced over and shoved to the back of the desk, but one which would have to receive their careful attention. The president spoke of the recent growth of the Association which had added five new branches in Eastern Ontario with a total of 102 members thanks to organizational work of James Reid.

To operators who were worried about losing employees to other industries unde the selective service laws, Mr. Robinson remarked on the fairness of the Board and said it would pay heed to anyone who appeared before them with a legitimate complaint. An employee designated for transfer to another industry may be retained if it can be shown that the amount of priority work he is doing is equivalent to what his new task would provide. Such an employee may also be retained even if called into the army for unskilled work providing he is a skilled employee of the operator.

Large Increase

Regarding the post war market the speaker felt now was the time to begin setting their house in order to look after the servicing of tractors that have been sold and will be sold when they again face a buyer's market.

The value of the Association as a voice for the garage operator was sounded by ex-president Roy Girven of Peterborough. He spoke of the advantages of sticking together in their own interests declaring "If you ever needed the Association you need it now, and you will need it a lot more in the post war period." Mr. Stan Thomas also raised his voice in praise of the Association which he felt was going to help the trade.

As an introduction to the picture he showed of the Chrysler Tank Arsenal at Detroit Mr. Thomas said the company now had the biggest staff in its history, and to give some idea of the amount of business he said that prior to 1941 peak shipments of spare parts for domestic use reached a volume of 1½ million pounds a month compared to present shipments of war materials alone amounting to 11 million pounds a month plus domestic requirements.

Who Is a Canadian?

It would be interesting to know why we who live in Canada are listed by the census, the national registration and the issuer of passports according to our racial origin, and not as Canadians. Every inhabitant of this country is, in a sense, a foreigner, unless he is a North American Indian. At some time or other our ancestors came here from Europe or Asia, or we made that journey ourselves. But if we were born in Canada, or if we have made a home here, are we not Canadians?

The "racial origin" business can be ridiculous. We know of a woman whose family had lived in this country for two hundred years, but who was nevertheless registered on her certificate of death as of Dutch racial origin, Holland having been the home of her ancestors; we know of families whose names are famous in the history of our country who must give their racial origin whenever it is asked for on a document. Surely they are Canadians if anyone is? What is the reason for this "racial origin" game, which successive governments have play with us?

When we go abroad we are Canadians; most Canadians whose racial origin is English would have a hard time trying to pass themselves off as natives in London. When our troops go abroad to fight they are called "the Canadians", and they have made the name a glorious one in many bloody battles. If the Civil Service had its way, they would doubtless be referred to in dispatches as "troops of varying racial origin originating in Canada", but that will not do for the rest of us; we see nothing wrong with the name Canadian.

It would be an easy matter for Parliament to set this right. It could be done in an hour, if the bill were well drafted, and if Honourable Members would refrain from impassioned and effervescent oratory on the subject. Why not deal with it at the next session?

Opinions On Education

We draw the attention of our readers to the article which appears in our Third Column today. As we have said before, we attempt in that space to give our readers, every day, something which is neither reporting of news, nor direct comment on the news, but a thousand words or so on some topic which will increase their appreciation and understanding of the world and the times in which we live. Today's article is the first in a series on education which is being prepared by the Committee on Democratic Citizenship of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation.

Each week, for some time, we shall publish an article of this nature, and we hope that they will prove interesting to a large number of our readers. The opinions set forth are not entirely orthodox, nor are they revolutionary; they express, rather, the convictions of a group of men and women who have made a career of educating the young, and who may be depended upon to have interesting and well-informed views on that extremely important work. We are glad to do what we can to make these opinions available to the public.

How Many Words?

How many words do you know? Recently in these columns we discussed Basic English, which Mr. Churchill has recommended as a universal language, and which has a vocabulary of 850 words. We thought that most speakers of English would find this somewhat confining, but perhaps we were wrong. A survey taken in the city of Baltimore reveals that the average businessman carries on his affairs with a vocabulary of about 400 words, and that the vocabulary of the average man or woman runs to about 3,000 words.

Think of it! All the hopes, aspirations, despairs and humours of a lifetime crowded into 3,000 words! According to Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, Shakespeare had a vocabulary of 23,000 words; the same authority tells us that Woodrow Wilson knew, and used, 60,000 words, which is astonishing, and tells us a few things about vocabularies which we had suspected beforehand — for instance, that the man who knows most words is not necessarily the most eloquent of men; Wilson was a splendid writer and orator, but not the superior of Shakespeare, or even within measureable distance of being his equal.

If most of us manage to express our thoughts in 3,000 hard-worked words, perhaps the 850 words of Basic English will not cramp us too severely, if we have to use them as a means of communication with people who speak other languages. But, as we have already said, the use of Basic English demands clear thinking, and that is what many people—and perhaps some very eloquent people—will find troublesome about it.

In developing a vocabulary, as in everything else, quality is to be preferred to mere bulk. There is little to be said for knowing thousands of words if the words themselves are such bastard growths as "finalize", "motivate", "keynote" and the like. Eloquent men are those who use good words with skill. Shakespeare wrote many of his finest passages in the simplest of language, but he knew how to use plain words with exquisite art. If any man seeks to improve his chances in life by building up his vocabulary, let him remember that quality in words is far more important than quantity.

Death Of Sir Kingsley Wood

The death of Sir Kingsley Wood robs England of the Chancellor who brought down her most extensive Budgets. Although he was not the sort of spectacular politician who becomes a world figure, Kingsley Wood served Great Britain well from 1918 until his death on Tuesday. He acted as secretary of the Board of Health and of the Ministry of Education at different periods of his career, and he later became Minister of Health. He did an excellent job during his term as Postmaster-General (1931-35) during which time he revolutionized the telephone and telegraph services and made substantial alterations in the British mail-dispersal system, which has so long served as a model to post-offices in the rest of the world. In 1938 he became Secretary for Air, and in the anxious days before the war he worked hard to increase British air-power against strong opposition. In 1940 he became Winston Churchill's Chancellor of the Exchequer, and in that great office he taxed the British people as no nation has ever been taxed since the days of the Pharaohs.

A Conservative in politics, Kingsley Wood was anything but a die-hard. He had, however, his fair share of British caution and anything of a daring nature was uncongenial to him. He could make sweeping changes when he felt it necessary, as in the case of his re-organization of the Post Office, but they were the result of careful planning beforehand; he never took a jump in the dark. This quality brought many accusations of timidity upon his head, but it was a quality which the British people liked, and which he used to their advantage. Kingsley Wood's career, though unspectacular, was one of solid achievement. He served his country well.

NOTE AND COMMENT

No mistake about it, we are living in the 40s—40 ounces and 40 miles an hour.

Apparently the Germans in Italy are admirers of everything that's bootyful.

A Texas butcher is suing a girl for breach of promise. Imagine any girl being dumb enough to jilt a butcher!

There's no reducing course these days which can compare with a good long trip on the railway.

Spinach is said to have originated in New Zealand. Presumably the New Zealanders are careless about weeding, for the stuff has spread like wildfire.

The tobacco crop is reported to have been damaged by frost. Perhaps this will lead to further freezing by the W.P.T.B.

Some women find that the best way to keep that schoolgirl complexion is to hide it where their daughters can't find it.

A butcher has been jailed in New York for overcharging on his meat. A contemporary points out that this is what comes of playing for big steaks, and reports that he went to jail as meek as a lamb. But, we are informed, decidedly chop-fallen.

Salvage experts removed from the Normandie 5,000 tons of superstructure, 6,000 tons of debris, 10,000 cubic yards of mud, 8,000 pounds of broken glass, and 100,000 tons of water. Sounds almost as bad as cleaning a summer cottage before closing it.

Democracy Needs Liberal Education

By A. E. O'NEILL
Principal, Collegiate and Vocational School, Oshawa

THE emphasis placed on education in the recent Provincial elections and its prominence in plans for a post-war world should deceive no one. What is disguised under the name of "education" is only the "fitting" of people for earning a living; and valuable as this may be, it has little more to do with real education than has the conditioning of a race horse or the preparation of a pugilist for a championship bout. In reality, old-fashioned learning with its stress on the humanities—which was pursued as an end in itself but generated power, cultivated wisdom, kindled the spirit, warmed the heart and steadied the emotions in the process—is languishing in disrepute and neglect. The vigorous and reckless campaign for the promotion of vocational training by direct and oblique attacks on all education which is not immediately, obviously or financially useful has just about done its work—the blotting out of liberal education.

EVEN a casual glance at the educational scene proves my assertion. During the Provincial election campaign what did the reformers of education advocate or demand? What do the planners of post-war education for our returning soldiers propose? Gloss it over as they will, dress it up as hopefully as you can, it is cold, stark, angular, sinewy training to fit people for jobs.

This is the "education" that is being heralded, lauded, advertised, demanded up and down the land. It is also the education which, if persisted in, will send our vaunted civilization crashing to its deserved doom. That such a complete surrender to the practical, the material, and the immediate, passes without challenge is a measure of the depths to which we have sunk intellectually and spiritually and for which we propose to make amends by neat, concise, harmless courses in religious knowledge and democratic citizenship. At length, in our day, "soul" has become synonymous with "stomach." And to their everlasting disgrace our educated men and women—nay, infinitely worse! our professed and accepted educationists—either approve and promote or acquiesce by silence.

THE champions of strictly utilitarian training will, of course, brazenly deny their hostility to liberal education. Backed up against the wall and put on the defensive, they will even profess their admiration and enthusiasm for it — but "only for the select few who are capable of profiting by it." The evidence against them, however, is written in the educational history of this Province. By the twin baits of job-training and job-finding, students and parents have been lured away from faith in, or desire for, the more difficult, less spectacular and less immediately useful and remunerative education. Industry and business, sedulously cultivated, have been "sold on" the specious advantages, financial and managerial, of using narrowly trained workers for the simpler skills into which operations of factory and office can be broken down. Naturally public approval goes to the institutions which "deliver the goods"—which give the people what they want rather than what they need. Consequently, useful education, education for a job, vocational education, is enjoying a vogue and support out of all proportion to the contribution it can make to man's fundamental needs, democracy's requirements or humanity's betterment.

Inebriated and emboldened by the heady wine of success, favoured by accommodating regulations and supported by an abundance of public money, the advocates and administrators of "useful" education have so effectively cried up their merchandise in the market places that immediate utility has become the standard by which every subject and every course in our curriculum must stand or fall.

IS IT any wonder then that liberal education is in eclipse and almost in disgrace? Is it any wonder that teachers of so-called academic subjects are forced to defend and teach them on the basis of immediate utility? And is it any wonder that in the present war our young people in alarming numbers were found unprepared for those duties of soldier which require more than the simplest rudiments of education Not until they were given precise and intensive training in specially established schools were they considered mentally fit for undertaking the practical courses in scientific killing. It may well be pertinent, then, to ask how persons inadequately educated for the duties of warfare can be expected to meet the more exacting, if less obvious, requirements of peace—especially in a democratic country where intelligence, judgment and a keen social sense are so necessary for its stability and harmonious development.

If education hasn't a higher function than preparing our youth for jobs, we are wasting public money; for common sense tells us and statistics show that 90 per cent of all occupations require only a very elementary education. Efficiency in most jobs can be best attained, even as in the days of our forefathers, by working at them under the direction of the "older hands." Our intensive mechanization, instead of complicating the business, has simplified it by breaking down operations into petty skills and reducing problems to rules of thumb. Fool-proof checks and automatic gauges eliminate the necessity of thought, calculation or judgment. Our large expenditures for education, therefore, must be justified on other grounds than the need of training youth to earn a living.

OF COURSE, the education of our citizens, young and old, ought to absorb a large and ever larger portion of the national income. But this can be predicated only on the assumption that education will be something far broader, less immediate in returns and more idealistic in aims than practical training. To justify the demand for more education it is imperative that we return immediately and decisively to liberal education—the education, as the words signify, suited to free men. It is imperative that educated men and women who have the welfare of their country at heart—and especially those professional educationists who have deserted the ranks of the faithful to preach the false doctrine of utility, immediacy and expediency—turn from their apostasy and boldly proclaim the true gospel that education is the culture of souls, minds and bodies.

Space does not allow me to delineate what this new education should be or to back my assertions with proofs. But this much I must say: no true democracy, no association of free men such as we envisage for our returning heroes, can function properly or permanently unless its citizens have cool heads and warm hearts. And cool heads and warm hearts are precisely what a liberal education should provide.

To consider man an animal is to degrade him. To treat him as a mere machine is to destroy him. He alone of created things has a great heritage to guide, comfort and inspire him. To turn our backs on the spiritual and intellectual legacy which is ours and concentrate on the petty present and the immediate future is suicide—pardonable only on proof of insanity.

In our schools, therefore, we must bring into focus, and in their essence, all those accumulated achievements, thoughts, experiences, trials and errors, triumphs and disasters, dreams and disappointments which have made man man and given his dominion over the earth. To reduce education to training for jobs by which to make a living is to return to civilization to the cave-dwellers; to allow the rich rose of culture to degenerate into brier; and to graft the wild crab of illiteracy on the cultivated root stock of the tree of knowledge.

THE UNSEEN AUDIENCE

Whitehall Notebook

(By SCOTT YOUNG, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Sept. 23 (CP)—Best information in both political and union circles on the future of the controversy between the British Government and Civil Service Unions which want to affiliate with the Trades Union Congress is that the government will allow these Civil Service Unions to affiliate with the T.U.C. for industrial but not political purposes.

This concession would necessitate amendment of the Trades Disputes Act of 1927, which forbids civil service organizations affiliating with outside groups on penalty of losing all seniority and pensions rights. Legislation to amend the act in this manner may now be in preparation by the parliamentary Labour Party, and probably will be introduced early in the new sittings of Commons.

The Trades Union Congress, while it swings the votes that make the Labour Party strong, is not considered for official purposes a political organization. On this delicate split-hair of official interpretation of the T.U.C. function the proposed compromise settlement can be made workable.

Government candidates, even with the electoral truce by which the major parties do not contest by-elections, find themselves in extremely close campaigns each time a seat is to be filled.

In Chippenham, with a record of 19 years of consistent Conservative majorities and a personal message from Mr. Churchill to the electorate to support the government candidate, David Eccles retained the seat for the Conservatives with a majority of only 195 votes—8,310 in comparison to 8,115 for his opponent, Dr. Donald Johnson, Independent.

The Labour Party became quite concerned about an article by Harold Laski published in the United States and quoted here in which he criticized Clement Attlee, deputy prime minister and one of Labour's men in the coalition government. It met specially to consider the article and later issued a statement dissociating itself from Laski's opinions.

This official statement on the matter was considered necessary because of Laski's position in the national executive of the party. He represents a considerable body of opinion within the party that Attlee has gone so far in co-operation with the Conservatives in the coalition government that his way back to straight Labour politics will be a difficult one.

On Raising Cane

(LONDON TIMES)

AT a casual glance there might appear to be little of real interest in a walking stick, yet the making of walking sticks in their natural state is a highly skilled craft with a wartime export trade extending to America, New Zealand, Australia, Canada, and Africa, and a peace time one stretching to many other countries.

Although cheap walking sticks are cut from planks in many parts or are made from imported bamboo canes or cherry wood, there are only two firms in the country who specially cultivate young saplings and treat them in their natural state, and both these firms are within a few miles of each other round the thick woodland country between Godalming and Chiddingfold on the Surrey side of the border with Sussex. All the leading stick and umbrella retailers in Britain get their natural sticks from them in the first place.

One of these firms has been making sticks for 99 years now. They make over 300,000 sticks for export every year and hundreds of thousands of others for home sale. At present they are working on a new kind of order — making sticks for export to Brisbane for use by wounded soldiers.

The making of a natural walking stick is a scientific craft taking as long as five years to complete. The work is done partly in the woods, and partly in workshops. Some of the sticks are drawn straight from the woods and treated by the craftsmen, but many of them have to be specially cultivated, and this in itself is an art demanding considerable skill and knowledge.

The ground must be well prepared, trenched and manured, and in many cases, the plants are put into the ground in such a way as to force their roots to grow at right angles to the stem. After about two years the sapling is uprooted and cut short. It will then be found that there are a number of small buds growing on it. All but one of these buds are nipped off. The sapling is then replanted in such a way that it lies flat in a trench with the bud facing upwards. By the end of three years, this bud will have grown up to a height of a normal walking stick. Thus the original steam of the sapling will form the handle, while the new bud will have grown into the main stick. A connoisseur will maintain that no handle is successful unless it is grown below ground.

When the plants are uprooted the sticks are placed in beds of sand which are heated above ovens. The action of the sand makes the sticks pliable so that they can be worked without breaking or splitting.

A Bible Message

And I, brethren, when I came to you, came not with excellency of speech or of wisdom, declaring unto you the testimony of God....And my speech and my preaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power: that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God....

But as it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God....

Now we have received, not the spirit of the world, but the spirit which is of God; that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God. Which things also we speak, not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth; comparing spiritual things, with spiritual.

But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned. (I Cor. 2: 1, 4, 5, 9, 10, 12-14.)

SHE WAS THINKING

A little girl was taken to the Zoo by her father. They stood before a lion's cage and the father explained how fierce and strong lions were and how they could attack and devour human beings.

The little girl looked thoughtfully at the lion. Then she said: "Daddy, if it got out of the cage and ate you up, what number bus would I have to take to get home?"

Taormina's Principal Fountain

Fountains in Sicily occupy much the same place in the life of the people that the forum occupied in a Roman community of old. That is, the fountain and its piazza are the centre for exchanging news and gossip, for recreation, for all the varied diversions the people have in common. Taormina's principal fountain lies just outside the old wall, not far from the Porto Catania, the gate facing Catania. About the cool and dripping basin gather the graceful young peasant girls, balancing incredibly large and heavy amphorai of water upon their well poised heads; pretty, kittenish children...loutish water-boys in from the piana with their great barrel-carts to take the ichor of the gods back home; and generally the background for all is a fringe of seedy, admiring youths, casting sheep's eyes at the girls and wondering how long it will be until they can get married—or sail for America!...

From the Porta Catania the old town wall, perhaps twenty feet in height, rambles up the hillside in weird curves and abrupt angles, following the contour of the ground. Now that it is useless as a defence, the thrifty Taorminians have built up a row of tiny houses which cling limpet fashion to the outside of the sturdy old masonry, through which windows have been driven that add greatly to its picturesqueness. Wonderful climbing bougainvilleas and other vines have sprung up from the fertile soil and spread their graceful tendrils higher and higher until almost every window is smothered in a mass of tender greenery and blossom....

Near by a steep gradino is a floral waterfall. On the house-sides, festooning every post and projecting bit of masonry, brilliant flowers foam in pink spray, as from some perfumed fountain father up the hill where roses distill their spicy fragrance from long, nodding branches.—From "Vistas in Sicily," by Arthur Stanley Riggs. Clean out the Poisons

The liver and kidneys are so closely associated in their work of filtering poisons from the blood stream that both are likely to become deranged at the same time.

Hence the advantage of using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which, by reason of the bile salts they contain, increase the flow of bile from the liver and arouse the action of the bowels. By their diuretic influence they help to increase the quantity of liquids and solids for the kidneys to act upon and so enable these organs to purify the blood of disease laden poisons.

To get quick results use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills—the popular family regulator.

French Glorify Canadian Killed In France

Written for Canadian Press
By PO. J. Gilles Duhamel

LONDON, Sept. 23— (CP)— Five thousand men and women of Montlucon France, marched in the funeral procession of Louis Max Lavalee of Vancouver, singing La Marseillaise and carrying red, white and blue flowers with which to cover his grave.

This was Montlucon's tribute to a French-speaking Canadian Air Force pilot. The story of his funeral, last July 24, reached London through a member of the Fighting French forces.

Lavallee's body lay in state in a Montlucon hospital and throughout the morning of July 24 men and women, boys and girls, filed by to kneel before the bier.

Details of the hour fixed for the burial spread quickly and a crowd gathered before the hospital. People came with wreaths and countless bunches of flowers, each bouquet bearing the colors of France.

Other inhabitants of Montlucon met at the cemetery gate at the Eastern end of the town, but saw at once it would be impossible to enter, so as the hearse passed through the gate they showered it with flowers. Police closed the gates.

Once more the crowd struck up La Marseillaise, followed by "It's a Long Way to Tipperary."

Young men and girls swarmed up the encircling wall of the graveyard and joined those who, having arrived in advance of the procession, were already waiting by the open grave.

As the German troops left the cemetery, in a surging wave, Frenchmen swept forward. The crowd moved past the grave, strewing it deep with flowers—Flowers of France.

Green Resents Slur On Labor

OMAHA, Sept. 23 (AP)—Asserting "our workers have done just as good a job as our soldiers," William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, told members of the American Legion today that Legion spokesmen at times "have been guilty of rash and unreasonable statements" toward organized labor.

In a speech prepared for delivery before the 25th annual convention of the Legion, Green declared that "speaking for more than 6,000,000 hard-working and thoroughly patriotic members of the American Federation of Labor I can truthfully say that they bitterly resent the slurs and denunciations that have been heard upon the organized workers of America by people who ought to know better."

National Commander Roane Waring, in delivering his annual report yesterday, repeated what he said before the American Federation of Labor's national convention in Toronto Oct. 2, 1942, that "any group of men who by strike action or slowdowns stopped war material from going to the front, those men were saboteurs and traitors and should be treated as such."

Green declared that "it is quite understandable for people to become incensed over some individual incident or situation, but it is wholly reprehensible to denounce on that account the whole labor movement, including workers and labor organizations that have contributed tremendously to the success of our war effort."

Plans Conference Of Empire Heads

LONDON, Sept. 23 (CP Cable)—Prime Minister Churchill today told the House of Commons that an important, immediate objective of the government is to arrange a meeting of all the empire prime ministers.

He said he had hopes such a meeting could be held early in 1944 and that he had been trying for the last two years to arrange it. He said he understood such a meeting is likely to be more acceptable at "this moment" than an imperial conference.

"Each of these dominions has had or is going to have an election and that has hung over the movements of their prime ministers in Australia and New Zealand particularly as they are very near the war against Japan," he said.

Since the start of the war Mr. Churchill has conferred several times with Prime Minister Mackenzie King and has met at different times Prime Minister Smuts of South Africa and Prime Minister Fraser of New Zealand, in Britain. He has not met Prime Minister Curtin of Australia.

BILLIE RUDKINS CAPTURES ST. PETER'S ATHLETIC CHAMPIONSHIP

Bumper Season Expected In Amateur Hockey

TORONTO, Sept. 23 — (CP). — There'll be no lack of team strength when the Ontario Hockey Association opens its senior and junior series this season.

At a meeting last night, an O.H.A. sub-committee presided over by F. W. (Dinty) Moore of Port Colborne, announced the association has invited 10 Junior A clubs and nine Senior A teams to meet with the sub-committee early in October to discuss groupings and schedules.

The meeting of the junior clubs is set for October 2 here. They are Oshawa Generals, Brantford Lions, Hamilton Whizzers, Stratford Kroehlers, Toronto Marlboros, Toronto Young Rangers, St. Michael's College of Toronto and three teams which did not enjoy Junior A rating last year—Port Colborne, St. Catharines and Galt.

Meet October 3.

The senior clubs, invited to meet the sub-committee here October 3, are Hamilton Majors, St. Catharines Saints, Port Colborne Sailors, Niagara Falls Cataracts, Kingston Army and four Toronto clubs—Navy, R.C.A.F., Research Colonels and Army Daggers. Kingston is the only club not in the league last season.

The sub-committee announced the 54th annual meeting of the O.H.A. will be held here November 20. It announced these changes in 1943-44 regulations:

1. Clubs may dress 12 regular players and an extra goaltender for each game.

2. Players facing off must face the opponents' end of the rink, instead of facing sideways.

3. Any player of a defending team may pass the puck forward from his own zone to a player on his own team up to a red centre line without incurring an offside penalty. To be legal the play must be completed before reaching the red line, but if an attempted pass is made and not completed and the puck goes past the penalty shot line, play will continue if the referee or linesman adjudges an attempted pass actually was made.

4. Players needlessly delaying a game by such practices as tying shoelaces will be penalized.

5. Penalties will be imposed upon players who deliberately fall on a loose puck or pick the puck off the ice by hand.

The sub-committee drew attention to the fact that all managers and coaches must be registered with the O.H.A. by their respective clubs.

Top Scorer

Frank Zak of the Leafs is top scorer of the 257 players who took part in the International League baseball games this season, scoring most runs—100.

Start Talks On Hall Of Fame

MONTREAL, Sept. 23 (CP)—Hon. Harold Connolly, Minister of Industry and Publicity for Nova Scotia, said yesterday he hopes to meet representatives of Montreal, Kingston, the National Hockey League and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to discuss just where hockey did originate in Canada.

Mr. Connolly urged that evidence on the start of the game be submitted by each group so that when the prosposed Hall of Fame of Hockey is erected, it definitely will be at the place where the game originated in Canada. Halifax, Montreal and Kingston are claiming the honor, with the N.H.L. and C.A.H.A. favoring Kingston at present.

The Hall committee, of which he is a member, is going to protest the choice of Kingston for the Hall of Fame, Mr. Connolly said, adding that he had urged the committee to make its protest as quickly as possible.

Westclox girls are faced with the task of having to beat Stratford Kroehlers twice here on Saturday if they want to continue on in the provincial playdowns. In the first game of their home and home series in Stratford last evening the Big Bens were beaten 4 to 2, after a tight and hard-fought battle which they might have won with a little better base-running. They threw away a great chance, wasting three hits and a base on balls in one frame without pushing a run over. Westclox were a bit nervous in the opening inning and the Stratford girls managed to score three markers. After that Isobel Bullock, who struck out ten batters held them to one run for the balance of the game, but the damage had been done as the Big Bens found Hazel Baynton, ace Kroehler pitcher somewhat of a mystery. She held the Westclockers to five hits. Both teams fielded smartly and it was a real championship tussle between two well-balanced teams, with players of both clubs coming up with some smart defensive plays.

* * * * * *

The two teams will meet at Riverside Park at 2:30 o'clock Saturday in the second game of the series and a win for Westclox would tie up the round and force a third game to be played here Saturday evening. The tilt Saturday afternoon promises to be another great battle with Isobel Bullock for the Big Bens and Hazel Baynton for Stratford renewing their pitching duel. Westclox are confident that on their home diamond and with the support of the home town fans they can even up the series and force a third game. They admit that the Kroehlers are a good ball club but they feel that they have the stuff to come through and beat them here Saturday afternoon. One of the biggest softball crowds of the season will undoubtedly be on hand for the game. Peterborough fans are solidly behind the Westclockers in their bid for provincial honors and they will turn out in droves for this all-important battle. The Big Bens hadn't played a game in several weeks and needed yesterday's fixture to get them back into something like their form. They expect to be a lot better Saturday and to come through with a double victory over the classy team from the Classic City. It should be the premier girls' softball attraction of the season.

No Hockey In Sight

Present indications are that unless local hockey executives and players change their minds later in the season Peterborough will be entirely without O.H.A. hockey during the coming winter. Officers and players alike were unanimous at the end of last season that they would not care to face another campaign with all the games played out of town and no opportunity to practice without travelling to Lindsay. There is no chance of ice being available at the Brock Street Arena this winter and the only alternative would be to play the games in Lindsay. With the gas ration cut down since last winter support from Peterborough which supplied the bulk of the patronage last season would necessarily dwindle and that is another obstacle in the way of carrying on during the coming season. The Petes had 25 trips out of town last winter with the result that the strain of all this travelling and unavoidable lack of sleep had the team worn to a frazzle by the end of the season and they were finally nosed out by an Owen Sound club that they would easily have taken to the cleaners had they met them earlier in the campaign.

* * * * * *

A winter with no Peterborough team in O.H.A. hockey would be a deplorable situation but that is just what is shaping up. Ironically enough this city from a player standpoint is in good shape. The only losses from last season are the fast-travelling left-winger Joe Blewett who is now in the Army, the hard-hitting defence player Don Crowe with the R.C.A.F. and likely to be overseas before the opening of the new season and Leo. Giroux, the big French-Canadian rearguard who finished the season with the Petes and is now in England with the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps. These losses are offset to some extent by the fact that Jack Jopling, discharged by the R.C.A.F. after long service overseas will likely be available. So far as forwards are concerned the razzle-dazzle line of Honey Tompkins, Bun Kingdon and Art Heal is still intact and on hand for the other line are Ned Vitarelli, Jack Jopling, Doug. Mortimer and Eddie Starr. Defenceman Johnny Godfrey and Les Burton and Goalie Ray Harding are still around and about all the Petes would need this winter would be a couple of defence players and possibly another forward. But what's the use. It is simply a case of lots of material — and no team.

Something At Stake

The announcement that Gentleman Jack Clayborne is to wrestle Roughhouse Dick Hogan in the main bout of Frank Tunney's weekly wrestling show next Monday has drawn from local fans an unanimous hope that Black Dynamite will take the turbulent Hogan apart and forget to put him together again. Clayborne has an added incentive to put the works on the Housepainter for he has been given the assurance that if he beats Hogan decisively here that pressure will be put on John Katan to give the Ebony Flash a return bout in Peterborough. That is something that Clayborne has been seeking ever since Palermo John pulled a fast one on the colored grappler in a bout at the local arena in August. Gentleman Jack has always maintained that Referee Bert Maxwell slipped up badly on that occasion and his opinion is shared by about everybody who saw the bout. Katan has stubbornly refused to meet Clayborne again since that night but he may change his tune when the Athletic Commission gets after him. With so much at stake the negro battler will probably do his utmost to make a monkey out of Hogan here Monday night and in that ambition he will have the full support of local wrestling enthusiasts.

Luke Hamlin and the Toronto Leafs Governors' Cup hopes ran smack up against the law of averages last night. The veteran Toronto pitcher had shutout the Syracuse Chiefs five times this season but he wasn't equal to the task in the first game of the final series, Syracuse taking the opener 5 runs to 3. They were teeing off on Hamlin all the way through and finally broke through his delivery in the final frame to salt the game away. Meanwhile Millard Howell, young Chief right-hander was making the Leafs hitters look positively feeble at the bat. They did manage to get three runs in the opening frame when left-fielder Kelleher let a roller get away from him with the bases full and it went for a triple but after that Howell had the Toronto gang at his mercy. Their night's total with the willow was three hits, a smart performance for a young pitcher who hadn't been able to beat them all season. Tonight the two rivals clash again in Toronto and the Leafs will be on the spot, needing a win to go into Syracuse on even terms with the Chiefs and facing the ace of the Ens' staff, Cuban Tomas De La Cruz. Nick Strincevich is slated to do the gunning for the Toronto athletes.

Cricket Club Has Had Difficult Year

The Peterborough Whitaker Club had a very difficult season and the results and the averages make rather depressing reading, but, taking conditions into consideration, are to be congratulated on carrying on and keeping the game alive here.

It was not so much a lack of players as getting opposition and transportation. Peterborough is very isolated in a cricket sense, only Grove School and T.C.S. Port Hope being within reasonable distance, and the nearest other opposition is at Oshawa.

A wet spring prevented two school matches and caused a lack of practice. Later long intervals between matches were not good for morale.

The club played seven matches, won two, lost four and drew one. Wins were over Grove School and Oshawa. Losses to Picton R.A.F., and a tied game with Veterans, and the club owes much to the R.A.F. team.

Secretary Radford worked hard to make the best of a bad job and was always strongly backed up by President Gordon Monkman. Captain Frank Dyer did a lot of good work in getting up teams.

The future is of course uncertain and we must hope for the best.

In a low-scoring season the Club's innings only averaged 50 so the batting averages are low. No one scored 100 and there is only one double-figure average. Frank Dyer holds both the aggregate and the average. He made a bad start but later scored 34 against Oshawa and 24 against Picton, and his final figures are 67 runs, average 11.16. Second and third places are taken by B. Roberts 34 runs, average 8.50, and F. Smith 58 runs, average 8.28. The following also batted and scored the runs given after their names: A. Pagett 21, G. Colbran 21, W. Dyer 21, T. Williams 18, G. Adsom 17, J. Parry 13, G. Langhorne 11, E. Honeywell 10, J. Wild 10, A. Sargent 9, E. Fenelon 3, H. Trethewy 2, J. Wade 1, G. Monkman 1, and T. Busby 0. In bowling G. Adsom took 14 wickets, average 9.07; F. Dyer 24, average 9.62; G. Colbran 11, average 10.36; J. Wild 3, average 14.13; J. Wade and A. Sargent each bowled in one match and each took one wicket.

A bright feature at the end of the season was the success of the soccer game between Picton R.A.F. and Mount Hope R.A.F. for the benefit of the War Victims' Fund. For the third successive year this was sponsored by the club, and these matches have been a direct result of the happy relationship with Picton established on the cricket field during the last three years. These cricket and football games have brought here a large number of old country boys and made them familiar with Peterborough. Apart from financial reasons, many British homes will receive a favorable account of these visits, which is a good advertisement for the city.

WITH THE R.C.A.F. SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Sept. 23. — (CP). — Flt. Lt. Tommy Walker is putting an early hill in the air with hockey gossip, a reminder that an English winter is just ahead.

Toronto's Tommy, former Olympic swim star who directs all sports activities for the Canadian Bomber Group, announced that an ice league similar to the one last season, starts again within a couple of months.

The ultimate champion of the Bomber group will face the top Canadian fighter squadron team in a series for the R.C.A.F. Overseas Crown. A Bomber team took the overseas title last season.

The former ace Boston Bruin line, Bobby Bauer, Milt Schmidt and Porky Dumart are attached to different stations in Bomber Group and will compete against each other this season. Milt and Porky were ice opponents part of last winter, but Bobby will be making his English debut. He was the last of the trio to arrive overseas.

Turning to boxing—growing ever more popular on air stations—the note book shows that Cpl. Harry Hurst of Montreal, one of Canada's leading welterweights, has dropped a couple of close decisions to R.A.F. opponents. Harry, a comparatively recent air force arrival on this side, says his biggest difficulty is finding sparring partners.

It appears that Don Welsh, Charlton Athletics footballer who has played for England, will make a big bid this season for another place on England's International team.

Making his debut for Liverpool in an exhibition match with Everton, he scored three goals in the final four minutes. That broke a tie and gave the Liverpudlians a 5-2 triumph.

Speaking of Internationals, there will be four in Britain this season with possibility of a fifth.

England will play Wales at Wembley Sept. 25, while Scotland and England clash at Manchester Oct. 16. A return England-Scotland match is scheduled for Glasgow next April 22, and Wales will play England May 6 at a Welsh site to be decided.

A third match between England and Scotland is in the negotiations stage with a date provisionally fixed for Feb. 19 at Wembley. Proceeds of wartime Internationals go to the Red Cross and other war charities.

Remember when you got off work with that stuff about attending grandmother's funeral and then you went to the ball game or the races? Well, just before a Windsor race meet, the following appeared on the mess notice board of a district barracks:

"Applications for compassionate leave or (sic) funerals will be considered after the Windsor races, not before."

Add Popular Pastimes: Six-man soccer which the Canadian Bomber Boys are taking to with a vengeance.

WESTCLOX GIRLS DROP FIRST ONTARIO PLAY-OFF TO STRATFORD

Return Game Set For Next Saturday

STRATFORD, Sept. 23—(Special to the Examiner)—Nicking three runs in the first inning, after the visitors had notched a single one Stratford Kroehlers defeated Peterborough Westclox 4-2 in the first game of the Provincial Women's Softball Union intermediate semi-finals here last evening, and go to the Liftlock City for the second and possible third games on Saturday.

Both Hazel Baynton of Stratford and Isobel Bullock of Peterborough, the opposing hurlers, were shaky during the opening frame, the visitors scoring an unearned run when the Kroehler defence wobbled and committed a pair of errors. Stratford counted a trio of markers in the first inning, when they placed the first two runners on base on a single to the box and a walk and after being pushed along on a sacrifice, one scored on G. Harmer's fielder's choice and the other two romped home on Betty Appel's single to left. The latter also scored Kroehler's fourth counter in the third when she homered to the left field fence. After that Isobel Bullock was tough to hit, Helen Doubrough getting as far as third on a triple in the fifth but dying there.

Peterborough collected their second run in the fifth inning without the semblance of a hit, a walk to Barbara Rome, wild pitch, error and infield out allowing the runner to come in.

Nice Fielding

From a fielding standpoint both teams turned in some nice efforts, Agnes Anderson, Marg Watson and Barbara Rome of Westclox and Evelyn Easson, Betty Appel and Doris Harloff of Kroehlers coming up with the best plays.

In a hitting sense, Jean Aiken, starry catcher for Stratford led the parade with two out of three, while Agnes Anderson of Westclox and Betty Appel and Ruby Huras of Kroehlers shared the runner-up spot with two for four.

Hazel Baynton shaded Isobel Bullock on the mound in the matter of safeties, the count being 8 to 5, but the Peterborough hurler enjoyed a wide edge in strikeouts, racking up ten as compared with only three for her rival. The Stratford pitcher got herself out of a tough jam in the eighth, when the visitors threatened to knot the count or forge ahead. They collected three of their five singles and a walk and still did not score, one runner being trapped between second and third and another being nipped at the plate when she attempted to score from second on single to left. With two away the next two Westclox batters singled, but Hazel Baynton put out the fire by whiffing her mound rival.

Those three runs in the first inning settled the issue for Stratford, because after that Isobel Bullock caused them plenty of trouble and scattered five hits over four innings, both pitchers walked three batters.

Hogan To Meet Colored Athlete

Gentleman Jack Clayborne, the coloured wrestler who has made such a hit here, has decided to come back to Peterborough one more time in the hope of catching a match with his greatest ring enemy, John Katan. Clayborne will come here Monday night to wrestle Dick Hogan as a result of a suggestion made by the Ontario Athletic Commission. The basis for the Clayborne-Hogan match is that if Gentleman Jack gets by Hogan decisively on Monday night, the Commission will put some pressure on the evasive John Katan to take the return match which Clayborne has been demanding ever since Katan slipped a fast one over on him here. Hogan was also very glad to sign to meet the Coloured Comet. When they met before, Rough-house Dick tasted the bitter dregs of defeat, a thing which he claims must and will be wiped out on Monday night. The match shapes up as an exciting one, for Hogan will resort to almost anything to prove he is the top dog, while the popular Clayborne will be fighting for the Athletic Commission backing for the Katan bout. When Dick Hogan out-foxed Irish Pat Flanagan, the other night here, he showed what an opportunist he can be. Following up that line of thought it is not impossible that Hogan will beat Clayborne and go on to tackle Katan himself. What a rough-house that one would be.

Yankees Defeat Tigers 4-2; Senators Split

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer.

New York Yankees, whose pennant possibilities have never been in any serious predicament, have reached the point where they can clinch their seventh American League championship in eight years to-morrow.

The Bombers bowled over Detroit Tigers 4-2 yesterday and now need only three more victories to eliminate Washington Senators and two to dispose of Cleveland. Defeats for the Senators and Indians would hasten the process.

The Yanks showed adequate authority in taming the Tigers with Charley Keller hitting a three-run homer, his 29th of the year, in the first inning and Hank Borowy pitching seven-hit ball for his sixth consecutive victory and 10th in 11 games.

Lose Second Game.

The Senators sailed to their 10th straight triumph in the first part of a twilight-night double-header, as Johnny Niggeling shut out St. Louis Browns 4-0 on two hits. But they were shelled to a 9-1 defeat in the second game.

Cleveland's game at Boston was postponed, making a double-header to-day.

In the National League Mort Cooper chalked up his 21st success against eight defeats, but did not look overly impressive as St. Louis Cardinals beat Brooklyn Dodgers 4-3. Mort gave nine hits.

The Dodgers' defeat tightened the National League scramble for second place as Cincinnati split a double bill with New York Giants. Elmer Riddle came up with his 20th triumph in the opener, which the Reds took 4-2 in spite of four-hit hurling by Rookie Bill Voiselle. In the second game the Giants routed Bucky Walters with a five-run seventh inning and won 10-4.

Boston beat Pittsburg 5-3 with a three-run eighth-inning rally and the Phillies halved a pair of games with Chicago Cubs. Claude Passeau took the first affair 5-1 on seven-hit pitching and Al Gerheauser hurled a six-hit 3-0 shut-out in the second game.

In the other American League Chicago White Sox whipped Philadelphia Atheltics twice 6-0 and 2-1.

Hamlin Fails To Subdue Syracuse Chiefs

By The Canadian Press

Luke (Hot Potato) Hamlin lost that personal bit of magic he has been wielding over Syracuse, after beating them five times during the regular season, he faced them last night in the first game of the best-of-seven final play-off series for the International League's Governor's Cup and suffered a 5-3 loss.

Up until the second inning Hamlin had pitched 46 scoreless innings against the Chiefs, but then the magic spell broke.

Just one inning—the first—did everything run according to form. Hamlin blanked the Chiefs while Toronto rapped Millard Howell for three runs on three bases on balls and a triple by Gus Dugas. Thereafter it was different.

Howell yielded another hit in the second and third innings, but from then on pitched hitless ball, winding up with a neat three-hitter. Hamlin, on the other hand, was hit hard all the way and was replaced by Harry Shuman in the ninth when the Chiefs broke a 3-3 tie on singles by Gar Del Savio and Damon Phillips. Earlier the Chiefs had scored two runs in the second on a walk, Dick West's triple and an outfield fly and tied the score in the sixth on West's single.

After appearing in 13 Blondie films Penny Singleton is ready for other roles. The reason is that Arthur Lake, who co-starred with her, is now in the American navy. . . . The four Henry Aldrich films waiting for release may be the last if the studio can't find someone to replace Jimmy Lydon, who has outgrown the part. . . . The hardest working girl in Hollywood is Bette Davis. She is slated to appear in three of the next four pictures at her studio. . . . And here's a new one. Dinah Shore gave her boy friend, George Montgomery, a ring. . . . Jerry Colonna got $400 for appearing in "Stage Door Canteen" and gave it to the Hollywood Canteen. . . . A real star in the making is Louise Allbritton, whose first big role was in "Fired Wife." She wears clothes beautifully, is stunning, sings and acts well. . . . Ingrid Bergman cut her hair into a boyish style in "For Whom the Bell Tolls." Maybe it will start a style like the pompadour for ladies after the last war.

Cary Grant, one of the screen's more romantic heroes, is pitching romance with a new girl friend.

Cary is pitching and tossing as the skipper of a submarine, the "Copperfin," "Destination Tokyo," and true to the tradition of the sea his craft is his sweetheart. Oh, he's got a wife and family ashore—in the picture—but they come second.

It's all very serious business with Grant, what with the picture being made under the strict supervision of the Navy, and all that.

"We spend most of our time in this show 150 feet or more under water," Grant said, "and there are no women. Take 75 men out in a 300-foot craft for two months with no women, and you bet it's serious."

The "Copperfin" engages enemy craft in the Pacific in manoeuvres based on recent Naval history not yet made public—and aside from no girls, this is entirely serious. So much so that the set has closed against visitors.

Charles Ruggles will play the Otis Skinner role in "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay." . . . Marlene Dietrich will appear as George Sand in the screen life of the famous writer who used a masculine name and dressed like a male. . . . That Sunny Tufts man, who made such a hit in "So Proudly We Hail," will be co-starred with Bing Crosby and Betty Hutton in a musical. . . . Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn, who played together in "Keeper of the Flame," will be seen again in "Without Love" . . . Joan Leslie sold $6,000,000 worth of Victory Bonds on her last tour. Recently her mother bought her a coat for $75. Joan returned it, got one at half the price and bought a Victory Bond with the difference. . . . When Frank Capra, who directed some of our finest films, asked for a raise when he worked for Hal Roach years ago, they let him go. The raise was for $5 and Roach would be immensely rich today if he had granted it.

TORONTO, Sept. 23—(CP).—The National Hockey League has made quite a few changes in rules and has finally decided to take the public into its confidence by explaining the changes. Now that Ottawa has flashed the green light for professional hockey, the N.H.L. governors have thrown aside their unfamiliar cloak of reticence. Henceforth we can expect a great variety of official statements. Probably the Dutton clan will go so far as to issue a statement of welcome to all those wishing to purchase admission to N.H.L. games.

Coach Hap Day of Toronto Leafs outlines a few of the new rules. The anti-defence rule has been thrown out. This rule stated no team could have more than three players behind their own blue line when the puck was in any other territory. Another change is designed to avoid delays in play. Henceforth play shall not be stopped by reason of adjustments to a player's clothing or skates and any player seeking to make such adjustments on the ice shall be given a minor penalty. A player requiring equipment adjustments must retire from the game and play shall continue immediately with a substitute. The exception is a goalkeeper, who may delay the game only with the referee's permission.

Under another new rule a player picking up the puck with his hand to prevent an opponent from playing the puck will receive minor penalty. A penalty shall also be imposed on any player except a goalie deliberately falling on or gathering a loose puck into his body by any means other than playing the puck with his stick to gain possession.

In future the referee shall not announce to the scorer who scores and who assists on a score. Such decisions will rest entirely with the official scorer.

Incidentally:

Winnipeg R.C.A.F. presents a weighty backfield this football season. Johnny Lake weights 250 and Myron Caine, the converted lineman, staggers the scales at 260. But Caine, former Ottawan, can move. In a challenge 100-yard sprint with Lake and Don Durno, 200-pound veteran of the 1942 Toronto Hurricanes, Caine collected the $5 side bet... Bill Westwick of the Ottawa Journal relays the report that Johnny Wilkinson, former Ottawa and Hull defence star, will be with Boston Bruins in the N.H.L. this year.... Disbanding of Canada's 7th and 8th Army Divisions raised the hope in Vancouver that the Army would no longer require the Vancouver forum, thus freeing the rink for hockey this year.

Stalin Boosts United States War Bond Sales

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 — (AP) — Premier Stalin, acknowledging the "great support" which United States munitions and supplies are giving the Russian armies, called yesterday for the successful floating of the $15,000,000,000 United States War Loan.

In a personal message to Americans read by Maj.-Gen. A. I. Belyaev, chairman of the Russian Purchasing Commission, at the Army's "Back the Attack" bond show here, the Soviet Premier said in part:

"Every Soviet citizen is not only assisting his Army and his Government to defeat the enemy, but is giving great financial support to the Soviet Government by buying War Bonds.

"It is desirable that the American people, by successful participation in the War Loan in the United States, promote the growth of the military might of the United States and help the joint efforts of the Allies to achieve victory over the bitter enemy within the shortest possible period of time."

guns, the communique said.

On other sectors along the crumbling front, the Soviet forces were reported to have scored gains of 12 to 15 miles, winning back 864 hamlets and villages from the invaders, and storming outer defence lines before Dnepropetrovsk, Zaporzhe and Gomel, just inside the borders of White Russia and southwest of Bryansk. Units driving for Gomel had reached Starodub, 70 miles to the east.

Moscow advices said that Roslavl, between Gomel and Smolensk, also was under immediate threat from Red Army columns which already had seized Liubovka, but 5½ miles away.

With the Russian forces in the southern Ukraine but three miles from Melitpol, on the Crimean railway, the position of the enemy garrisons in the peninsula likewise was endangered, although it was understood here they have another escape route by way of a single-track railway across the Perekop land bridge leading northwest to Kherson, which they are reported to have built during their occupation of the Crimea.

Island Seizure Opens Door To Balkan Area

By STEPHEN BARBER

WITH BRITISH OCCUPATION FORCES IN THE DODECANESE, Sept. 20 (Delayed) (AP)—The liberation of the Dodecanese and sister islands in the Aegean from German rule and opening of the back door to Hitler's European fortress has begun.

An Allied force arrived unobtrusively during the night on Lero. Castelrosso and Kos and the Greek Island of Samos also were occupied.

These islands are the Germans' outer defense line in Southeastern Europe.

"Our mission is partly to assist the Italians in the Dodecanese to carry out the armistice obligations by defending them (the islands) against German attack and partly for strategic reasons," said the senior British officer commanding this spearhead party, Brig. Brittorous. "It is a race between us and the Boche."

Already advanced elements, including parachutists, an R.A.F. regiment and Commandos have seized key points in several islands.

The first to be occupied was Castelrosso, at the far eastern tip of the Dodecanese chain. The occupation of Samos, Kos and Lero, which Mussolini once called "the Malta of the Aegean," followed.

The Italians appear to be co-operating well on Lero today.

As I write, sitting on a pile of concrete anchors—testimony surely to Italy's steel shortage — Italian heavy trucks and trailers are being loaded with British gear.

Everything has been planned to the last detail. The nucleus of the medical staff is moving into the local hospital. They have brought much-needed medical supplies. A contingent of engineers, radiomen and other specialists accompanied the shock troops, the backbone of the mission.

Police Make Raids

TORONTO, Sept. 23.—(CP). — Five men were arrested and eight others ordered to report to Selective Service offices here following a series of police raids yesterday on a downtown area.

Good Neighbours Also Use Bar Harbor Naval Base

In time of peace the exclusive rendezvous of society and its yachting brethren, Bar Harbor, Me., now is the site of a U.S. navy base and is a favorite port of call for the men who keep the Atlantic sea lanes clear of enemy craft. Here you see Canadian sailors coming ashore on liberty. The warmest of good-fellowship exists between the American and Canadian patrols who use the base.

Red Army Nears Area Held In '41

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Sept. 23—(AP)—History turned back upon itself today in the valley between the Desna and Dnieper rivers as the Red Army pushed on in the direction of Kiev after capturing Chernigov—and then drove down upon Kiev.

(With the Russians pushing on toward the Dnieper, the Germans had been forced back approximately to the line they held two years ago.)

Here in Moscow, where hopes soar with the rockets that arch skyward in salute to the latest victories, there is a feeling among the people that the Russians can duplicate that trick.

Chernigov is the gateway to the Dnieper, 20 miles away. An open road to the Dnieper was ahead of the Red Army as it smashed forward from Chernigov.

As the Russians grabbed that important communications centre on the western bank of the Dasna, they shut off Gomel's last railways to the south and seized a series of highways leading into White Russia.

what has happened to our great ocean fleet." The C.P.R.'s air services pioneered the trans-Atlantic flights of bombers later organized into the R.A.F. Transport Command. The railway also undertook production of tanks and more than 1,400 were built between June, 1940, and May, 1943.

"We shall come, after peace has been restored, to great questions of reconstruction," he concluded. "It is not unreasonable to express the hope that, in these days, the public of North America and of Canada in particular will remember the war-taught lesson, that railway transportation is a vital part of national life."

Beef Shortage Haunts U.S.A.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23—Serious beef shortage, threatening vital supplies for the armed forces and domestic consumers, continues in the making the Livestock and Meat Council reported, following a meeting of its executive committee.

"Ours will be a beef hungry nation by spring or before, faster than many people seem to realize. The situation will become increasingly worse unless quick remedial steps are taken. The shortages threaten to be even more acute than during last spring, when beef disappeared from markets in many parts of the country."

"Shipments of feeder cattle into the eight corn belt States in August are estimated 10 per cent lower than shipments into those States in August, 1942, and 14 per cent below the total for the five months from April to August, 1943, as compared with 1942. We are now entering the season when usually there are large feeder shipments and unless the number placed on feed during the next four months is substantially above normal there will be a serious shortage of finished cattle in the spring of 1944. The decrease in feeder shipments has resulted from unsatisfactory cattle feeding returns and uncertainty as to Government price regulations and feed supplies this fall and winter."

Baruch Says Help Marshall

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—(AP)—Bernard M. Baruch advised a roomful of Congressmen yesterday to give Gen. George C. Marshall what he wants to win the war—including the draft of married men if they are needed—or else "throw him out."

Manifesting the highest respect for the chief of staff, whom he has known for 25 yeras. Baruch laid down this simple formula:

"The man in charge of the job should be given our unqualified support.

"No cheese paring. No trading down. Give him what he needs."

Baruch was invited by the Senate Military Committee to give the final testimony on the bill by Senator Burton Wheeler (Dem., Mont.) to defer from induction for the rest of 1943 men who were fathers before the United States entered the war.

He told the lawmakers that to attain quick and certain victory two steps must be taken.

"1. Improve our efficiency, which we can do in all fields of endeavor.

"2. Take from the civilians as much as is necessary, but leave them at least their needs—not their fancied wants. All must be treated alike. There must be equality of sacrifice."

Bombs Sever Nazi Roads

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, Sept. 23—(AP).—The vital roads along which German troops have been moving in the vicinity of Naples were severed, enemy shipping in the Adriatic Sea was blasted and enemy motor convoys were bombed and strafed yesterday in widespread raids by the northwest African Air Force.

American fighters, branching out into a new field of operations, swooped down on enemy shipping in the Gulf of Manfredonia, 60 miles northwest of Bari on Italy's Adriatic coast, and scored direct hits on the stern of a 2,000-ton ship. Other bombs hit quays and the planes then strafed stores of enemy war material piled on the docks.

Two-engined bombers set the pace for the methodical destruction of supply routes upon which German troops massed in the Naples area and beyond are dependent.

Crews watched their bomb cut railways and highways north and south of a bridge crossing the Volturno River south of Amorosi and one string of bombs was seen to hit the bridge itself.

Roads at Mignano, 40 miles northwest of Naples also were blasted and all avenues of traffic in that area were severed, at least temporarily.

Other planes bombed key bridges and highway bottlenecks well behind the German lines.

Red Cross Shower Aids Hospital Cases

HAVELOCK, Sept. 23.—(ENS).—Untiring in their efforts to do good to the less fortunate, a large crowd attended the shower on Tuesday afternoon, sponsored by the Havelock-Belmont Red Cross Society. An appeal had been made for articles suitable for Christmas cheer boxes for patients in Newfoundand hospitals. The gifts brought in, all new, including $11.00 cash, were a box of 500 envelopes, 36 writing pads, 37 packages of envelopes, 27 chocolate bars, 4 pounds hard candy, 46 large packages of cigarettes, 6 packages of pipe tobacco, and 6 packages of cigarette tobacco and papers, 8 decks playing cards, 5 sets checker boards, 3 jig-saw puzzles, 2 games bingo, 4 books, 9 dozen Readers' Digest, 6 lead pencils, 6 boxes writing paper, 4 packages chiclets and 5 packages of gum, and magazines.

The afternoon was spent in quilting two large quilts, binding one and sewing continued on the quota. Large quantities of wool for knitting and cut-out garments of children's clothing were distributed to any one willing to assist with this work.

The Peterborough Examiner

London In Wartime Marked By A Very Subdued Tone

(James Alexander Roy, Professor of English at Queen's University, is at present on a trip to Great Britain, and he will write a daily series of articles for the Examiner describing Britain in wartime, the first of which is published here to-day.)

By JAMES A. ROY.

London during this war is a very different place from the London we knew during the last war. On the whole it was rather a jolly place then. It is not a jolly place to-day. There were lights and laughter in those far off leaves; now there are no lights on the streets of London after dark and the laughter one hears is the subdued laughter that seems to come from dark ghosts who jostle each other and crush past each other in the unrelieved blackness.

One is conscious of the changed atmosphere the moment the train runs into King's Cross London does not seem to make the appeal it used to do. At first I thought that was because I had grown a lot older since 1939. But I soon realized that that was not what was wrong. There was really nothing wrong. London had not changed fundamentally any more than I had myself. But London has altered a lot in habits and appearance.

The blackout has made one big difference. It has greatly changed the habits of the people. The other evening I dined with an old friend; he insisted on catching his tube at 9. And I was glad to do the same. The place where we dined was one of London's most famous restaurants, but the food was not as good; the company, except for one or two hilarious parties, was dull. The waiters were all old and sad-looking; the beer tasted flat and insipid. We had Minnestrone, an Italian vegetable soup, jugged hare with sauerkraut, which had smell but no taste, and for dessert a small custard with a slice of apple buried in the centre. A small cup of black coffee concluded the "sumptuous repast." And that was in one of London's most famous restaurants. But to-day I lunched in one of London's most famous clubs; the food was admirable. There is plenty of food in London. Food for all purses. You can get a peach for a dollar, or a bunch of grapes for eight dollars. You can get mushrooms at three dollars a pound. But the average Londoner doesn't eat grapes or peaches, or mushrooms. He can't get oranges; he hasn't seen a lemon for years, and he hasn't much milk He dines frugally on the rationed basic food. He looks well and carries on.

The London taxi driver is more spoilt than ever. They say the Americans are largely responsible for that because they tip so lavishly. The other day I had a taxi to Waterloo. The fare was 2s, and I gave the driver 2s 6d. "Lumme, you should 'ave taken a bus," was his comment as he pushed off.

I have just had a chat with Charles, the porter in my club. He is the sole survivor of the prewar staff of servants but that is not his falt. 'I wanted to get back to the minesweepers, sir. That was my job during the last war. I tried and tried, but would they give me a job? I asked Commander B——, 'e belongs to the club. In the Hadmiralty now 'e is. 'I'll let you know about it in a week, Charles', says 'e. 'I'll look after you. I'll see you don't get stuck.' A week went by and then another and I got fed up waiting and spoke to Captain C——, another of our members. 'My God, man,' 'e says. 'You was in the last bloody war. You was in Harchangel and all over the bloody shop. Ain't you 'ad enough?' 'No, I ain't 'ad enough sir.' 'Well, I must say I admire your spirit, Charles, the Captain says. But they keep puttin' me off the whole ruddy time. I tell you, I'm fed up with the lot of them. I wanted my old job back. What was my job? 'Andin' out the rum. A fine job it was, oh, a lovely job. But they won't give it me back. Too old I am, they tell me. Lot of dam rot they talk. The blitz! Which blitz? Oh, the blitz! 'Ow did I get on? I tell you, sir, that WAS a lovely time. Oh, a LOVELY time! I 'ad almost forgot about the blitz till you reminded me by askin' me about it. I went 'ome to me 'ouse one night and when I turned into our street I saw a big crowd. Right in front of the 'ouse they was. The 'ole place was afire and the ruddy roof was off my 'ouse. They wouldn't allow me to go into it—me own 'ouse. 'Where's my Missus,' I asked the copper. 'Don't know,' says 'e ''Ave you got a Missus?' 'I 'ad one when I left the 'ouse this mornin',' I said. 'I dunno where she could 'ave gone. I left 'er in the 'ouse.' 'Well, she ain't in the bleedin' 'ouse now.' Then a neighbor told me she was in a friend's 'ouse 'avin' a cup of tea. I moved to another 'ouse and one night when the Missus was stoppin' with our daughter who 'as 'ad one baby already and was expectin' another and the Missus 'ad gone to be with 'er, Jerry was droppin' a lot of stuff, and just as I was steppin' hinside 'e dropped a big one. I 'eard it comin' and turned to protect my face like when the bloody door was took right off its 'inges and struck me right between me shoulder blades. Right off its 'inges and struck me right between the ruddy shoulder blades. I tell you it 'urt. Oh it 'urt, like 'ell it 'urt. Wot made matters worse, I 'ad to pay two pounds, seventeen and threepence to 'ave me furniture moved out, me own furniture after being bombed out of the bloody place. I told the landlord I didn't like it. But 'e said it wasn't 'is furniture and that 'e 'adn't dropped the ruddy bomb. I tell you it aint right, sir. And now you can't get a hegg in the club for love nore money. I don't know wot things is comin' to. But I've just got back from me 'olidays in the West. Oh we 'ad a lovely time, me and the Missus. I 'ad forty-five quid saved up and I gave 'er thirty. 'We'll go an 'ave a jolly good 'oliday,' I says. I didn't tell 'er about the other fifteen quid as I'd saved. God blimey, we 'ad hverythink there. 'Are and milk—plenty of fresh milk. I got acquainted with the game keeper and stood 'im a couple of pints. And one day 'e says, 'Wot abaht an' 'are? 'Ow would you like to 'ave an 'are?' 'Oh, the wife would love that,' I said. And that night we 'eard a tap on the door. Never saw nobody when I went to open the door, but the 'are was on the doorstep. Me and the gamekeeper used to meet at the village pub in the mornin'. I used to tap on the door and the landlord would pop 'is 'ead out and when 'e seen me and the keeper, 'e would tell us to come hinside and go into the back room and 'e'd fetch us a couple of pints. We stayed there all the ruddy mornin' till openin' time and the wife, when I went 'ome used to say, 'Where on hearth 'ave you been? Wot 'ave you been doin'?' I never let on. But if hever you want a jolly good 'oliday, sir, just go down to B——p and mention my name, and say you're a friend of mine. They'll treat you 'igh, wide, and 'andsome, they will."

I can see more clearly now why the British are somewhat of a puzzle to the non-Britisher. Yesterday afternoon, at four o'clock, I was talking in his office to the secretary of the Empire Press Union. The telephone bell rang and he held a short conversation. When it was finished he turned to me and said: "Good news. The Italians have surrendered unconditionally. We had been expecting to get the news for some days. That's official." Then his secretary asked me whether I liked my tea strong or weak, with milk or without it, and apologized for her wartime cake. "I'm afraid you'll not find it very sweet," she explained. "But we can always offer you saccharine."

That evening, I believe, there was a certain amount of rejoicing in the Italian restaurants in Soho, and some of the Americans here made mild whoopee. But the Canadians and the British received the news phlegmatically. They took the Italian surrender as a matter of course. There was a quiet glow about these Canadians and English all the same; a feeling of satisfaction that the Italian adventure was apparently going well. But there was the feeling that the Italian surrender was only a step and that the mess had not begun to be cleared up yet. There was still Germany. That tough nut had to be cracked; fierce fighting was still ahead. When I was in Reuters this morning the news came in about operations in the Channel. There was optimism in the air. But the people of England have had so much bad news during the past few years that they do not readily go into ecstacies when they hear a piece of good news. They crack a joke to conceal their real feelings of quietly proud satisfaction. This morning a Captain N. R. said to me quite seriously at breakfast: "I believe the next step is to make Hailie Selassie Emperor of Italy." A poor enough joke, but it fitted the occasion; it was an Englishman trying to say he thought things were going pretty well.

There is, despite the good news from all the war fronts, a subdued tone about London life these days. It is not the absence of lights, although cheerful lights have an obviously psychological effect that makes for cheerfulness. It is just the war and the fact that hardly anybody in England is untouched by it. Our milkman tells me he has a boy in the R.A.F. Hasn't been heard of since he disappeared in Burma; a taxi driver lost a boy at Dunkirk. Pride in the son's achievements, sorrow over the loss of so many others, has come to so many homes in London. Crete, Tobruk, Madagascar, these are new names in the annals of the London regiments. But already they are deeply graven in the hearts of the men and women of London.

50 Cords Sold By City From Slab Pile

Orders for fifty cords of slab wood were accepted at the Welfare office yesterday, and delivery was immediately begun using two trucks with a third added to the municipal service this morning.

"We had to suspend the taking of orders to catch upon deliveries," A. G. Metheral Welfare Officer, said this morning. "We will probably be taking orders again on Friday, and the public is asked to call at the office at Simcoe and Queen streets. We cannot take telephone orders, and the cash has to be paid in advance. After all, we have to keep a strict account of the wood we sell and the money we receive. We are using public funds for this service, and have to account to the council for everything."

More than eighty telephone calls were received Wednesday, and Mr. Metheral said the situation looked to him worse than he had anticipated. Four of the applications were residents of North Monaghan and had to be refused.

"Most of the applicants were women, and in many instances they said they were right out of wood."

The price of the hemlock slabs is seven dollars a cord.

A Coal Priority

A new amendment to the coal regulations, as intimated at the Toronto conference, directs the trade to give priority to certain consumers as follows:— "In filling orders for coal or coke theretofore or hereafter placed with him by consumers whose annual consumption is less than fifty tons, every coal dealer shall, consistent with available supplies and the full use of available labor and trucking facilities, give priority, up to the extent of one-quarter of the annual consumption of coal fuel in the premises, to the orders of such consumers for premises for which the quantity of coal fuel on hand is less than the said one-quarter."

That class will obviously include those consumers who have no coal in their bins, and those who have not yet received any of the coal they have ordered.

Another amendment classifies coal in two groups. Class A fuel means anthracite (hard) coal (larger than buckwheat), low volatile bituminous coal such as Pocahontas (excluding mine run and any sizes of low volatile bituminous coal smaller than nut), briquettes and coke (excluding any coke which will pass through a three-quarter inch round hole or square mesh screen)."

And Class B fuel means any coal or coke which is not included in Class A.

Still another amendment directs that if a consumer agrees to accept 25 per cent Class B fuel, by written order, within thirty days, the remainder of his requirements may be Class A fuel. And, no person who agrees to accept that delivery shall refuse to take delivery of such coal. The basic condition in both these amendments is naturally that the dealer has in stock both classes of coal. If he has not the coal on hand, naturally he is not in position to undertake delivery.

Ivan J. Gunter Awarded Medal

COE HILL, Sept. 23—(ENS)—Peterborough and district has a growing list of its men serving in the forces who have been decorated. The newest name to be added to the roster is that of Pte. Ivan John Gunter of Coe Hill, who has won the Military Medal, according to an official government release.

Pte. Gunter was born in Coe Hill December 14, 1920 and is serving overseas with the Hastings Prince Edward Regiment. He was a typist and bookkeeper at Coe Hill before enlisting in the Canadian Army in October 1939 and he proceeded overseas in January of 1940. Pte. Gunter is the son of Richard Gunter at Coe Hill.

Restaurant Worker Changes His Plea

Ping Jung, the Chinese restaurant worker who pleaded guilty in police court Wednesday morning to operating a disorderly house on Charlotte street and who was remanded until Monday was back in court at his own request this morning.

Hon. G. N. Gordon who appeared for him asked that his client should be allowed to withdraw his plea of "guilty" and substitute a plea of "not guilty."

"My client didn't understand the charge sufficiently to allow him to plead intelligently," counsel told the court.

"I was very careful about asking him as to his knowledge of the English language," stated Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C.

"I understand that from the newspaper report," Mr. Gordon said.

"He probably understood English all right but he may not have realized fully the nature of the charge," said Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., who said that he was not opposed to Ping Yung being allowed to change his plea.

The accused was remanded until Thursday, September 30, and was released on cash bail of $500.

Child Grabs Truck Dragged For Block

Dragged behind a truck for nearly a block, six-year-old Johnnie Huard, 492 Elm Street, received painful lacerations on his knees and legs at noon today.

The truck owned by W. J. Robson, and driven by Harold Hoar, had stopped in front of an Elm Street house and apparently the boy had grabbed hold of the back of the machine. The driver was unaware of his presence there and drove off, dragging the little fellow behind the truck.

Shouts from a pedestrian who noticed the boy's plight, finally warned the driver and he stopped his truck.

Jurors' Verdict Clears Driver Donald Gardiner

Donald Gardiner, 20, of 5 Cricket Place, driver of the car which overturned on Park Hill Road, on the afternoon of Tuesday, September 14, causing fatal injuries to Peter Murphy, 18, 424 Donegal St, was exonerated of any blame in connection with the affair by a five-man jury which investigated the death of the young C. G. E. machine shop apprentice at an inquest in the police court Tuesday night. Coroner Dr. Herbert Young presided.

The jury found that young Murphy died as the result of injuries received "while travelling as a passenger in a car which overturned as the result of a blowout."

"In our opinion," concluded the verdict "no blame is attached to the driver of the car as the accident was caused by means beyond his control."

Herbert Campbell was foreman of the jury and the other members were: Harry Kingdon, Albert Dryland, Stanley Bogue and Cliff. Curtis.

Describing the accident which occurred as the two boys were returning from a trip to catch minnows in the Jackson Park Creek, Donald Gardiner, driver of the car, testified that he had intended to have turned south off Park Hill Road at Monaghan Road but as he neared that intersection, a car travelling north on Monaghan Road arrived at the corner.

Swerved.

Gardiner said that he swerved his car to the north side of Park Hill Road to avoid the other automobile and as he did so a rear tire on his car blew out and the machine went out of control and ran into the ditch on the south side and overturned.

The driver said that he had been driving at 20 or 25 miles an hour.

Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure who was on the scene shortly after the accident produced photographs he had taken and they were put in as exhibits. Officer McClure described the marks on the road which he said showed that the car had travelled along the north side of Park Hill Road and then veered across at an angle. There were indications, he said, that the car had skidded sideways on the road and there was a deep gouge mark near the side. Then the marks indicated that the vehicle had made a complete roll and come up on its wheels again.

"What would you say as to the speed of the car," asked Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K. C.

"I would say that the car must have been travelling at a pretty good speed to skid that far sideways and make a complete roll. I would estimate the speed at 35 or 40 miles an hour."

Blowout Secondary.

"Would you say that the blowout caused the car to go out of control?" asked the Crown Attorney.

"No, in my opinion the car was out of control first and the blowout came afterward. However, the blowout undoubtedly caused the car to roll over."

Constables John Stevenson and Harold Mesley of the city police department who investigated the accident described what they had found on arrival at the scene. They estimated the speed of the car driven by Gardiner at 30 or 35 miles an hour, judging from the manner in which the vehicle had skidded and rolled over.

Dr. J. M. McCulloch who had been called to the scene of the accident found Murphy dead by the side of the road when he arrived testified that the boy's death had been caused by internal injuries.

J. J. Murphy, father of the accident victim, William Mantell, owner of the car and Harry Woodbeck, garage mechanic were other witnesses. Woodbeck said that when he was called to the accident he had examined the tires and found both left tires down. There had been a blowout of the rear left tire, he testified.

The jury brought in its verdict after a short deliberation.

Customers Greed Puts Merchants On Spot

Would you say the merchant is telling a lie if he replies to a customer—"no, we haven't any to-day, but we are expecting some this week," and you know all the time that he has a small stock tucked away under the counter or out in the back shop.

"I could pass out all those chocolate bars in one day," said a main streeter to-day, "but I think such things should be rationed in a scarcity. I know most of the people who like to get candy to put in parcels for overseas; and they'd never get any if I didn't put some away for them. So, if that is a lie, and it certainly isn't the truth, it is completely justified, and business can stand a little strain on the essential morality of dealing."

THEFT CASE ADJOURNED

Ernest Graham, Edinburgh street, pleaded not guilty in police court today to a charge of stealing a tire from William Brick, Smith township and the case was adjourned until Friday morning. Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C. appeared for the accused and intimated that it was a case in which the complainant was endeavoring to collect for his tire.

Market Effort Nets $53.50 For War Victims

The market effort Saturday turned out to be one of the finest ever recorded in the raising of money to give assistance to the sufferers from air raids over Britain through the Peterborough and district British War Victims Fund, since the city council made this facility available to the fund management for that purpose.

Undoubtedly this was due to the enterprise of those who worked hard on this particular occasion, and the people of the Fairview Community who undertook this for the fund are to be much congratulated on the success which thus attended their endeavors.

Starting off by selling tickets for a draw on a pair of pillow slips which had been worked and donated by Mrs. Mary Jane Fowler, one of the oldest residents in that community, they realized $8.65 on this one feature, with the prize going to Mrs. Harold Lewis of R. R. 4, Peterborough.

At the stall they sold two quilts which were made and donated by Mrs. Wesley Oliver which between them added another $8.00, and then with the sale of a very wide variety of produce and some homemade baking, together with personal donations in cash from some people in the community, they run up the splendid total of $53.50 which is listed to their credit to-day.

Raise $340.15 for Fund.

A little over two years ago there came into formation what has since been known as the Fairview War Workers Group, which commenced with a social evening held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown of Fairview, for the purpose of raising money for this fund, since which time, their continued assistance has rolled up the splendid total of $340.15. During the period Mrs. W. D. (Mary) Fowler has acted as secretary for the group, and full credit goes to every worker for the splendid results obtained from their efforts.

One personal donation is also listed to-day as coming from Mary Jane and George Horton.

Next Saturday, the stall on the market will again be in operation on behalf of the fund, when there will be tickets available for a draw on a prize donated by Warne's Jewellery Store, besides various produce and some perennial plants, this being an opportune time to place these in the garden. The sale of these will be conducted by two girl guides.

Bingo This Friday.

The Range Pals are a group of energetic young folk who operate largely with some objective for good around Route 7, Peterborough and they have given assistance on a number of occasions to the fund in quite a substantial way.

Their latetst venture to give the fund a helping hand will take place this Friday, September 24 at 8 p.m. when Bingo Games will be sponsored by them at the Rifle Range School, and those who have attended various entertainments put on by this group will vouch that a good time is usually provided for all.

Bewhiskered Transient Demands Free Speech

John Brown, elderly transient, who is well known in eastern Ontario, voiced a loud protest when he was arraigned in police court this morning on a charge of vagrancy.

"There is still liberty of speech and freedom of opinion," he declared.

The bewhiskered old man, wearing a piece of rope wrapped around the outside of his coat as a belt, limped into court leaning on a cane and bellowed "Read the indictment."

Brown was arrested in Smith township Wednesday afternoon by Provincial Constable Price Morris after a farmer had reported that the man had apparently been living in an abandoned house on the 2nd line for several days.

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., remanded the accused until Saturday after Brown had intimated that he might want to get a lawyer to defend him.

800 Women Needed For Part Time Service

Peterborough industry needs the part time service of eight hundred women, Mrs. Rex Eaton of Selective Service told separate meetings of the Council of Women and executives of local manufacturing plants yesterday afternoon.

An appeal from the patriotic point of view is now being made to women throughout the country who have not considered themselves suitable for any of this work outside their homes. Mrs. Eaton told of successful efforts in this direction recently made in Toronto, Ottawa and Halifax, and a committee is being named to bring this need of help to the women of Peterborough.

MILKWEED BONANZA

People in the town of Anoka, Minn., recently collected $15,000 for milkweed stalks they had cut around the countryside. This item recalls the recent appeal by Ottawa for supplies from rural Ontario. Meanwhile the crop grown by contract in this district is being inspected in its first season of growth.

TRAINING FILMS

There will be a showing of new training films by the Prince of Wales Rangers (RF) in the large lecture room of the Armouries at 8 tonight. The movies, which are in sound, are interesting and instructive and include two on the subject of map-reading. An invitation to attend has been extended to members of the 4th Battery, and Rangers who do not customarily attend parades Thursdays may come dressed in civvies if they wish.

FIRE AT RAYBESTOS

Spontaneous combustion in a dust collector at the Raybestos plant set off a large fire early this morning, causing quite a bit of damage, it was stated by Fire Chief Gimblett at noon. The alarm was sounded at 9:50 and it was 10:15 before the Fire Department left the scene of the conflagration. It was too early to estimate exact extent of the damage, it was said. Another alarm this morning was caused by a chimney fire at 521 Parnell street, at 10:25, but in this case no damage was incurred.

TEXAS HURRICANE.

The devastating hurricane which lashed Texas late in July dealt a knockout blow to a Shell refinery, it was recently revealed when the veil of secrecy covering the damage was lifted. A 50 by 1,000-ft. water-cooling tower was completely wrecked by winds reaching 132 miles an hour.

BALL PLAYERS IN ACCIDENT

An automobile driven by Jim Ellis and carrying a number of the Westclox girls' softball team returning from a game in Stratford last night was involved in an accident four miles west of Whitby early this morning. No one was hurt but the Peterborough car was damaged considerably around the front and members of the party had to remain at Whitby as witnesses in a police court case in which the driver of the other car involved was charged.

AN EXPENSIVE DOG

After Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court this morning had explained that the law in regard to dog licenses regarded the harboring of a dog by any member of a household as ownership, Marcus Post, Asphodel township, pleaded guilty to a charge of keeping a dog without having taken out a tag for the animal. Post was fined $3 and $4.25 costs.

MOTORIST FINED

Pleading guilty in police court this morning to a charge of having operated a motor vehcile while his driving permit was suspended, Donald Lloyd of Lakefield was fined $25 and $1.75 costs by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. the charge was laid by Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure. Magistrate Langley warned the accused that he had better get his license returned or quit driving.

SUPER-EXCITEMENT

Apparently they take their wrestling seriously at Brock street in these Monday night encounters. It must be something tremendously more exciting than the old time grunt and groan judging by the noise one could hear at the corner of Aylmer and Hunter streets. In fact it sounded like a riot down town, a vast roaring, which increased in volume as you moved along Hunter. And then it seemed to be off to the north, and you wondered —surely that can't be the big show up in the old rink. That's exactly what it was, believe it or not. You could hear that noise almost down at the Y.W.C.A.

GEESE LAYING

Clarence Crough of R.R. No. 7, east of the city, leaves a note on the news desk that encourages hope of an open winter. You have to be a farmer to understand the details of his prediction, but any way he says he collected two goose eggs the other morning. Back in 1931 the geese did considerable laying and it was an open winter all the way through to the March of spring. This is one of those occult signs, beyond appreciation by most people, but there it is with some authentication in a past observation.

All-Girl Band Will Lead Women's Corps

The first all-girl bugle and drum band in Peterborough, made up of between 20 and 30 members of the Peterboro Women's Service Corps, is in the process of formation, and the drum section was in action Wednesday night at the Armories under the eagle eye of the director, Sgt. Harold Barton of the Prince of Wales Rangers Bugle Band, assisted by Cpl. Bill Scott. Ernie Victor will be in charge of the buglers.

The girls are enthusiastic about the drums, even though none of them have ever beat them before. Small girls and tall girls are arranged in rows with tenor drums, snare drums, and one young woman handles the bass drum with the greatest of ease. There's no fooling when the practice begins. With intent faces and swinging arms, the band fills the practice room with sounds that would shame a German barrage, but which are decidedly more rhythmical. If the early stages are any sign, the other bands will have to look to their laurels before too long.

. Does Sgt. Barton, leader of the Rangers bugle band, like his girls? He says:

"They are 60 per cent better than the boys and much more observant. If someone makes a slip the boys practically never notice and they just keep on going. But it's different with the girls. They are too polite to say anything, but all I have to do is look at their faces. They are steady and most of them have a decided sense of rhythm, even though they may not know a lot about music."

Get It Right.

During the summer some of the drum band have been meeting twice a week, on Mondays and Wednesdays, and this schedule will be continued through the winter. On Mondays, the girls go to the Barton home where their instructor has a padded table around which he lines his drummers, and they go through their paces. They go at it slowly at first and then gradually increase their tempo. If there are mistakes made, the Sergeant stops the entire group and they go over the music until the difficulty has been mastered.

Let no one assume that anyone can pick up a drum and produce

Police Chief's Son Changes Plea

FLAGE LAVAL, Que., Sept. 23 (CP). — Rene Bolduc, 23-year-old son of Police Chief Leo Bolduc of this beach resort near Montreal, last night changed a plea of guilty to one of not guilty when he appeared for sentence on charges of disturbing the peace and interfering with a police officer in the performance of his duties.

The change of plea was accepted by Recorder Desire Desbois after Bolduc said that when he made the guilty plea a week ago, defective hearing had caused him to misunderstand the question put to him. Trial was set for September 28.

At the same time, Recorder Desbois postponed decision in the case of Andre Bigras, 18, on similar charges until the same date.

Bolduc gave himself up a week ago, several weeks after a warrant had been sworn out for his arrest. He explained at that time that he had been away in woods and did not know of the warrant.

The charges arose out of a disturbance at a dance hall here July 25, when 75 persons of the summer colony mixed in a battle in which Moe Herscovitch of Montreal received injuries necessitating hospital treatment. Recorder Desbois described the incident as part of "a racial war between Jews and French-Canadians."

WAR MEDALS READY.

Issue of war medal ribbons is expected to begin soon to all men entitled to the Africa Star and the 1939-43 Star. Large quantities have been made.

Fighting Sunderland Postmaster Prouder Of Job Than D.S.O.

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN SICILY, Aug. 28.—(Delayed)—(CP Cable.)— After brilliantly leading the Canadian 1st Division through the Sicilian campaigns, Maj.-Gen. Guy Simonds of Kingston, Ont., has been awarded the Distinguished Service Order by immediate award in the field, it was announced to-day.

The gallantry of a number of other Canadian officers and men was also recognized in this manner.

The D.S.O. also went to Brig. Harold Graham of Trenton, Ont., who led an Ontario infantry brigade with great nerve, always speeding about the front, many times under fire. in a jeep; keeping in close control of the battle; and to Brig. Chris Vokes of Winnipeg, huge, gruff permanent force soldier whose western brigade put up the finest show of any Canadian formation.

Brig. Vokes was given some of the toughest tasks to carry out and always came through with victory, even if it took two or three days of hard slugging, as at Leonforte and Agira. He is as colorful as the fighting western troops he commands.

Earned Award

Quiet, soft-spoken Lt.-Col. J. C. Jefferson, commanding the Loyal Edmontons, also won the D.S.O. Under his leadership the Edmontons distinguished themselves in the high-class company of the Western Brigade. The Edmontons' exploits shine as brightly as those of any battalion in the line.

Lt.-Col. Bruce Sutcliffe of Trenton and Toronto was awarded the D.S.O. posthumously. He led the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment until he was killed by shellfire while making reconnaissance for an assault by his unit on the Assoro cliffs.

Two officers of the Royal Canadian Engineers also got the D.S.O., one going to Lt.-Col. Geoffrey Walsh of Oakville, Ont., who directed the spectacular work of the sappers throughout the campaign, and the other to Maj. Ken Southern of Port Arthur, who commanded a field company which built the Leonforte bridge under fire at night.

Dangerous Job

Maj. Southern's exploits were not confined entirely to engineering. One story is told of how he was late for a conference at brigade headquarters and was ticked off by Brig. Vokes when he finally arrived. Maj. Southern then explained he had been driving up and down a front-line road in a Bren-carrier, trying to draw fire from a German position which the Canadian artillery was trying to locate.

The fighting postmaster of Sunderland, Ont., Maj. G. A. Welsh, also won the D.S.O. At Leonforte, Brig. Vokes nicknamed him 'Tiger' and it has stuck. A short, unassuming man past the age for most battery commanders, Maj. Welsh led his anti-tank battery with amazing dash at Leonforte and is known throughout the division now for his front-line exploits.

He goes around always wearing a sun helmet that seems to crowd him still closer to the ground. When you meet this artillery dynamo he will probably not talk about the war but first impress upon you that he is the postmaster at Sunderland.

Two officers of Maj. Welsh's Battery won the Military Cross—Lieut. G. C. Evans of McAdam, N.B., and Lieut. C. E. Murdock of MacLeod, Alta., both for the Leonforte action. They say that Murdock is the shadow of "Tiger" Welsh.

C.P.R. President's Son.

Other Military Cross awards resulting from the Leonforte battle went to Maj. Rowan Coleman of Montreal, son of the president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, D. C. Coleman, and Capt. Pat Tighe of Edmonton. Maj. Coleman won the medal for leading his company of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry into the town in the final thrust that led to its capture. Capt. Tighe, just as untalkative as Moj. Coleman about himself, received his award for taking his Edmonton company along cliffs near the town, and showing great personal bravery.

Lieut. Rex Carey, professional middleweight boxer from Vancouver, was decorated with the M.C. for leadership of his Princess Pat's platoon on hills near Leonforte where it went through German positions like a prairie cyclone. He is called "Tiger" now, too.

Lieut. Neil Dickson of Winnipeg was still another Leonforte Military Cross winner, getting his decoration for his part in building the Leonforte Bridge. If his bridge had not been completed in time, the Western Brigade attack on the town might have failed.

Reorganized Unit.

Capt. Bob Waugh, whose wife is living in Cornwall, Ont., won the M.C. for action with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment at Valguarnera. His company making a raid in force ran into stiff oposition and had to withdraw to re-form.

Capt. Waugh skilfully handled the move then went back over the ground to bring out a wounded man.

Born in India, Capt. Waugh has has an unusual life. He was commissioned at Sandhurst and served six years in the Regular British Army. He went to Canada in 1939 and joined the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps as a private after the outbreak of war. He came overseas with the Ordnance, joined the H.P.E.'s, and was commissioned in England in the Canadian Army in April, 1940.

Daring Acts.

A trio of Royal 22nd officers were awarded the M.C. for bravery in the regiment's first action south of Enna when it bumped into strong German positions. One of them was Capt. Leo Bouchard of Montreal who was later killed leading his company with great heroism on Santa Maria Hill outside Catenanouva.

The others are Capt. Maurice Trudeau and Capt. Pierre Potvin, both of Quebec City. Capt. Bouchard did fine work in reorganizing his company when surprised by the enemy, firing from the hills. Largely due to his brave efforts, the company was able to extricate itself and go in to attack again. Capt. Potvin then was a lieutenant commanding an advance platoon, and when the Germans opened fire he decided the best defence was to attack. He led his men up a steep hill toward the German positions.

When he got within 20 yards his snipers prevented the enemy from firing on troops below. Potvin and his platoon stayed in this dangerous position from midnight until the next noon when they were relieved.

Capt. Trudeau, commanding an anti-tank platoon, saw two of his guns under fire and unable to get out. He jumped into a truck and made two trips to tow out his guns which he chained to the rear of the truck, then a third trip to bring out wounded.

Saves Companions.

L.-Cpl. G. E. Patenaude, also of the Royal 22nd, but from Peno, Alta., was another M.M. winner. In the Enna fight he stood up in a carrier firing a Bren gun to cover his companions. He was hit in the leg by a machine-gun bullet, but kept firing until out of ammunition. Even then he jumped from the carrier and with another gun climbed a hill and knocked out a German machine-gun position. Hobbling back to the carrier, he drove it to safety.

Five Westerners also received immediate awards of the M.M. Cpl. Bob Middleton of Winnipeg, stretcher-bearer with the Princess Pats, carried back wounded from the battle zone at Leonforte and also at Agira, under fire all the time.

Another Princess Pats soldier, Pte. Wilfred Reilly, a Neepawa, Man., farmer aged 40, distinguished himself at Leonforte. Reilly wiggled forward to a big house on the outskirts of the town and climbed to the second storey. While he was there, Germans entered downstairs, but finally left without discovering him, and as they moved under a window he grenaded the bunch of them.

Reilly sniped from the house for a while and then Canadian anti-tank gunners, not knowing he was there and thinking it enemy-held, blasted the house. Reilly made his way back to his own lines.

Single-Handed.

Pte. L. J. Tuppin of Pendryl, Alta., won the M.M. when he saved some Bren carriers which were hit by mortar fire in a valley before Leonforte and also pulled three wounded from one carrier.

Pte. Huron Brant, Indian soldier with the H.P.E.'s, from Belleville, Ont., won the M.M. at Valguarnera when he spotted a truckload of German infantry coming in behind his company. He took off down the hill without being ordered and single-handed routed the lot with a Bren gun.

Brant played box lacrosse with Mimico and St. Catharines in 1930-31.

TOTAL-WEAR SHOES ARE WHAT WOMEN OF HOUR ARE DEMANDING

Work Clothes For Women Are Combining Style And Utility

The lady behind the lathe may have to wear overalls, but that does not mean she forgets all about line, fit and femininity in the process.

Work clothes for women have developed rapidly into first-line fashions, with a war to win. The vast numbers of women who have entered our war industries have demanded work clothes that will boost their morale—and more power to them.

Slacks— or rather "pants," are practically the unanimous choice, whether in separates, suit sets, or overall adaptations. Above ankle length has won favor with many workers, as a safety measure in plants where there is moving machinery close to the floor. These short slacks are also cooler in plants of this type, here the floor is always bathed in heat from the dynamos and motors.

Two-piece denim overalls, with tapered pants having ankle button straps are also a popular type. Concealed drop seats, and fly bodice closings to prevent buttons from catching in machinery, are practical features— and they also add to the trim finish for a tailored-look.

Slacks sets with in-or-out shirts are cool but sturdy, developed in navy or tan poplin. Bodice patch pockets with cuff tops having embroidered twin eyelets are an innovation worth considering. A badge or passport pin can be attached or removed quickly and easily—without damage to the fabric, or wear and tear on the nerves.

For bench workers, the jumper dress is just about right—because it is cool, allows the arms plenty of freedom, and can be worn with a change of blouse for freshening up. In fact, there are jumper dresses cut high enough under the arm to be wearable without a blouse on very warm days, or for work in hot places. And then there is the culotte dress, for workers who require freedom but do not necessarily have to wear slacks. The culotte has the advantage of looking like a dress, and being wearable to and from work quite inconspicuously.

Overalls are the answer, when the work is of a type that is likely to soil the clothing. Overalls, like jumper dresses, have the advantage of being wearable with a blouse —and a blouse with button-tab epaulettes just about perfect. The overall straps can be buttoned under the blouse tabs, and will stay-put through thick and thin. And that is a nice little feature any active worker should appreciate.

Work dresses, simple styled and made of studry fabrics are preferred by many women who wear large sizes — and they're usually suitable for these "large women" since their work is seldom of the very active type that would demand slacks. Also, many older women prefer the work dress to slacks —and here again it is usually a logical choice, since these women are also usually employed in less strenuously active jobs.

Whatever the occupation, the figure, the age or the problem, there are work clothes to be found that will stand up to the job at hand, while keeping an eye on good lines and becomingness. Women at work and women at war are synonymous —and when American women go to war and to work, they insist upon doing it efficiently and with the assurance of feeling "properly dressed for the occasion"—as always.

MATCHING buttons and slide "originales" make accessory news. By attaching a safety pin, your slide becomes a brooch. Use ribbon, felt or suede for bow.

Mix-Match Togs Leads With Teens

Perennial favorites with teens for school and play, mix-match separates are smarter, more practical than ever this year. A few basic pieces such as a jacket, slacks, shirt and jumper, plus some interchangeable accessories such as blouses, sweaters, dickeys, and vests, give the teenster a complete and varied wardrobe.

The cardigan style takes top honors in jackets and locks super when bound in a contrasting color or made in a checked and solid combination. Club collar and 3-button classic jackets still reign as favorites.

Skirts, predominantly pleated, still allow plenty of freedom for teen activities. The trouser pleat is the newest version, but box and kick pleats are very much in evidence. Gored skirts will go to school and "coke parties" this season, also.

Jumpers are increasingly popular, both in tailored and pinafore styles. Slacks, of course, have become an essential part of teens' wardrobes, and this season they are more smoothly tailored than ever before.

Blouses, dickeys, and novelty skirts continue to work practical magic as wardrobe extenders. Colorful vests also provide variety in the "separates" picture. Long sleeved boxy pullovers are still top sweater choice for teens.

Mix-match "separates" have lost none of their versatility, despite wartime shortages.

Clothes Stretcher

A PRETTY dickey is a wardrobe stretcher. This one is equally flattering to tailored suits and basic dresses. Double-jabot style with filet lace edging.

Warm Clothes Are A Necessity

Right now mothers are looking ahead to the first cold snap and to winter. Because more than ever, this year, youngsters will need lots of warm, sturdy togs for school and play, indoors and outdoors. Fuel-rationing means chillier homes and classrooms, and the children especially must be supplied with snug clothing to keep them healthy and happy.

You'll find a wide assortment of warm wearables for tots this year, as always. Most popular, are sturdy, long-wearing, corduroys, wool and knitted fabrics—for wear indoors—sturdy fleeces, wools, for year outdoors. Big favorites with youngsters and mothers too are sports "separates" they can mix-match with everything. Warm sturdy slacks, overalls, suits to keep little girls and boys warm indoors — well made snow-suits for play outdoors. Coats are mostly of the toasty warm Teddy Bear variety with gay embroidery for girls and sturdy fleeces in new military effects for little boys.

No Rationing Good Taste In Fall Shows

Ever think you would plan an Autumn wardrobe from the ground up? Neither did we—but it certainly makes sense since shoes are a major concern these days. The woman of the hours wans total-wear shoes, that follow her costume around the clock and around the calendar, and comfort will be a big factor in the the hours wants total-wear shoes These days feet walk and stand a lot. Stand a lot of abuse too! So she's going to pamper them.

In uniform or out, she's going to wear comfortable shoes because she has learned that the arch of her foot is more important than the arch of her eyebrow! She follows a few simple rules such as buying shoes that fit—shoes made on the last best suited to her type of foot. She keeps her shoes in good repair. She wears overshoes in bad weather—she wears a pair and rests a pair. And do you know what else she does? She guards her general health. She knows that her feet are her best friend so she treats them kindly.

In spite of shoe rationing, today's shoes exhibit the fundamental good taste we've always admired. They are a happy combination of style, comfort and conservation of critical materials. Shoe designers have displayed an inventive genius in varying a few basic patterns so cleverly that no one is conscious of wartime limitations. Classic pumps, stepins, open toe models, ankle strap style, hardy perennials in oxfords abound.

Although heel heights vary, the three-inch heel is out for the duration—but active wartime feet won't care one iota. Actually we gals haven't a thing to fret about as a result of shoe rationing. Our big joy is helping to win the war!

JERSEYS ARE THE POPULAR THING IN THIS SEASON'S WARDROBE

Most Exciting Fashion News

THE FUR lined overcoat—most exciting fashion news for Fall, is starred here in rosy-red wool lined with squirrel belly.

Teens Choosing Warm Essentials

Teens really set the fashion pace. Because there never was a time when they didn't prefer good looking sports togs to frippery and folderol, and now that sports clothes have definitely become the No. 1 essential for wartime wardrobes, they're really one up on everyone. Naturally the classic suit rates first in every teen's wardrobe. In 3-button or club collar styles, in smooth corduroys, sturdy tweeds, and Shetlands, they're super for everywhere-wear, and they go through winter snugly under coats, come up smiling for spring again. Coats that are solid with the teen crowd are the classic smoothies that go from campus to canteen, and top everything from date frock to jaunty jumper. Chesterfields officers' reefers, polo coats, and cosy warm teddy coats get top honors and deservedly so. When it comes to mixing their own, teens are still tops, and the rest of the fashion world can look to them for pointers. They make "separates" go a long, long way in endless wearability, giving them new life every time they switch them. Smooth jackets of every variety, with cardigans and blazers, big, trim cut-for-action skirts, slacks that are slick as their beaus' are sturdy standbys and they serve them loyally through thick and thin (volunteering, off to school, fun jaunts after hours).

Jumpers Rate High.

But when it comes to fashion-pathfinding, they've really gone to town with the jaunty jumper. Getting a big hand from everyone these days, it's still a teen specialty. Right for everything, jumpers are ace scene-shifters, looking feminine and dressy with a frilly blouse or neat as a pin with a classic shirtwaist. In corduroy, rayon gabardine, plaid or checked flannel, they're "musts" for every teen wardrobe.

Sweaters and blouses are seasoning teen wardrobes like never before. Cosy pullovers are tops for chilly classrooms, fresh blouses are tonics for suits, skirts and jumpers, and are working overtime for doubly busy teens.

Bright Wools Go to Parties.

For party going and big dates, there are scores of beau-catching dresses for teens to dote on. Frilly jerseys in pastels are warm as they are bewitching.

Jewelry treasures to wear "forever and a day." Ours is a superb collection! Sparkling Glamor Pins and colourful Necklets and Earrings to match your Fall Wardrobe.

Simple Lines Proving All Important

A concerted wail is heard throughout the length and breadth of the land every Fall: "What shall I wear? What shall I buy?" This season it is even more poignant because the Canadian woman must choose her creations for good, honest quality as well as good looks.

When the woman sallies forth money in her hand, she must realize that because a dress looks "cute" or just plain "darling" on the rack, it is no guarantee that it can stand up and take the rigors of Red Cross work, the office, the home and Junior bouncing on and off her lap. She must examine the garment for workmanship and material first. Of course, it must be becoming and it definitely must do something for her face and figure, otherwise she might just as well stay home in a housecoat.

Dressmaker Detailing

There are a variety of materials and colors to choose from despite the war. Government restrictions, as everyone knows, have given us a new silhouette. It is slim, pillar-like, softened by such tricks as pleats, bows, tuckings, drapes, simulated peplums and aprons and innumerable ingenious dodges to fool the eye. There never were more original and interesting clothes than in this Fall's collection.

Lightweight woollens that take to soft handling and dressmaker touches are popular this year. Plaids, stripes, checks and novelty materials are big with the college girl and jersey is extremely popular with her sisters out in the world and earning a living. Jersey is so versatile today! It comes from the market in plain, tailored frocks and also bedizened with sequins, paillettes, bugle heads and all types of decorative trim which takes it right out of the tailored category. One sees "sparkling" jerseys at the smartest clubs.

Pretty Color Important

The color story is a pretty one. For immediate wear and early Fall there are the two and three color prints in place of multicolor ones; more melanges of pastel tints in prints; combinations of one pastel with another; and black and dark penline, scribble and hand-drawn" designs on pastel grounds. Bright colors are combined with pastels, the pastel being the basic color. This combination is extremely provocative and bound to have success because the colors chosen may be sharply differing intensities of the same color, or they may be contrasts. This is new and therefore welcome.

For deep Fall we will see a number of reddish-purples as well as the light and pastel colors, on a high-style calendar. Plum, burnished gold, olive and lime green and Flemish blue are some of the colors to be featured by smart department stores and specialty shops throughout the country. They will look wonderful under furs and with the new furlined coats.

All-over embroidered dresses will also be big. Basic reason for revival of this Victorian frippery is that embroidery is unrationed. In addition to all this glamour of restaurant dresses, the wise woman shopper will look for that inexpensive dress with an air. It may be beige wool and cotton jersey with a little-girl turn back collar, or wool with buttons from neck to hemline and big patch pockets, but always a classic Canadian style that does its duty for town and country. There will be plenty of this inexpensive, well styled dress on the market so no one need starve in the way of clothes.

This Suit an Attention Getter

PLUMED buttons make this suit an attention-getter, worn with blouse, vestee or scarf. The buttons are the new B. E. G. Originales, hollow inside and feather-light.

Good Furs Investment For Years

If you're going to buy a fur coat this year, by all means, remember that it must last. That's why these days, a good fur coat is not a luxury but one of the most sensible things you can buy, definitely a purchase that deserves and should get careful consideration. And no matter how much or how little you plan to spend, remember that casual styling, sturdiness and warmth are all-important things to look for. Then your fur coat will be able to take the day and night wear you'll be giving it, also the all-weather wear! Designed to accommodate all your suits, the new fur coats feature deep armholes, "easy" lines so that they'll top even heavy textured sports suits comfortably. Sable blended muskrat is one of the smartest, most practical fur coats for the smart woman on a budget. Its deep rich brown tones are wonderfully flattering and blend with fashion's newest colors, plus the fact that it is as right for daytime as it is for dressy wear. In the new casual tuxedo style, it's tremendously flattering and its easy lines offer a striking contrast to the slim silhouette. Silver-dyed raccoon is another of the fashionable sports furs which rates high this year. Beautiful sheared beaver, unsurpassed for beauty, for warmth and rugged wear is one of the soundest of fur investments. A very important point is that in both high priced and budget furs, the silhouette is simple, easy, casual—perfectly in tune with today's double-duty simple fashions. Smaller collars, easy body lines, turned back cuffs, and tuxedo front predominate. Grey furs stage a big comeback and they are practical as they are smart. Grey bombay Indian Lamb, grey kidskin as well as silver toned raccoon or muskrat are the grey furs you can count on to go everywhere smartly, to top every costume dashingly—to see you through the duration and beyond.

Short Fur Coats

For smooth sophistication, for endless warmth and wear for the duration, we vote the fingertip fur coat tops! So right for these times, it's long enough to keep you cozily warm, and short enough to cut a dashing silhouette over your suits, to be simply knockout over the new short date dresses or your most exciting dinner dress. Persian lamb, sable blended muskrat, silver fox are particularly wonderful in these fingertip fur coats. Casually styled with slight swing back, they feature turn back cuffs, small collars—and deep roomy pockets. Because of their all-around smartness they rate three stars for fashion, for long life, for multiple wearability. In the fashion headlines are Chinese-inspired fingertip coats, and the strikingly smart double breasted officer's reefer—short style.

Fur Jackets

Still tops in popularity because they're wonderful for year-'round wear, fur jackets are again underscored for big success. The longer fur jacket is newest and marvelously practical because it affords warmth and complete coverage of your suit jackets. Silver fox, sable blended muskrat as well as sable-dyed squirrel and skunk are top favorites. For tiny budgets, the smart guaococ and dyed fox jackets are a wonderful choice.

And because they double the smartness of your suits and untrimmed coats (which are legion this year!) fur accessories will be more in demand than ever. Huge fur muffs, fur scarfs and separate fur collars are especially recommended for the luxury touch—for a little price! Your local stores have all these fur fashions ready for you now. Duration investments in long wear, see them today—and let quality be your "buy" word.

Popular With the 'Teen Age Girls

TOPS with 'teens is this rain or shine cotton poplin raincoat with "Zelan" for water repellency and spot resistance.

NEW FALL HATS ARE SMALL AND SMART WITH FOREIGN FLAVOR

United Nations Are Source Of Inspiration To Designer

They're gay without being ga-ga, they're small and smart and pre-eminently wearable. That's the Fall Hat Story in a few words, but 't takes more words to do justice to the incredibly beautiful creations milliners have turned out this season.

Each top-flight designer has developed her own original ideas and there is no one silhouette, no outstanding color, that will be THE fashion. Variety is the theme for the collections. Every woman can find a hat for her type of face, a style for each suit or dress.

The dipped-down-in-front idea is seen more often than any other silhouette. Some of these hats are very small indeed and seem to be perched forward at a precarious angle, but in reality they are anchored to the head by a shield that is part of the hat.

While pompadour hats are not the big news that they were last season, they are still shown, and there are a few designed to be worn either behind the pompadour, or tilted forward covering it. The "half pompadour" or the hat that comes down over one eye and exposes "half of the pompadour" is another becoming style.

Hats Have Foreign Flavor

The United Nations have been a source of inspiration to designers and many hats have a foreign flavor. Sally Victor's "Chetnik" drape is a debonair side-dip borrowed from the Yugoslav's caps. The coolie beret, the mandarin hat, Russian turbans and Cossack hats, all remind us of our gallant allies.

Rich furs, elaborate embroideries, glittering sequins and paillettes enliven many of the daytime hats as well as the after-five chapeaux.

Contrast Your Hat to Costume

There are plenty of frivolous hats, but by and large, hats are sensible. They fit the head and they fit these times.

Colors run the gamut from the neutral greys and beiges up to high shades of green and red. Wild grape, deep tone of "Shocking Pink" is a popular favorite and so is caramel. Gold will be widely used because it harmonizes with so many fall colors adopted by the manufacturers of dresses and coats.

The new trend in fashion is to mix accessories, not to match them. A hat that contrasts with your dress or suit is much smarter than one which matches. A bright turquoise hat with a brown costume is twice as smart as a brown hat, and twice as patriotic because the government does not want a "run" on any one color.

While all military fabrics and trimmings are non-rationed, the milliners themselves have adopted a conservation program and are voluntarily limiting themselves, trying in every way to eschew materials that might be needed in the war effort. Thus only one yard of veiling is allowed for each hat, and big swooping brims are out. The result is compact little hats that are the neatest tricks seen in many a year.

Rating High

LACY WOOL scarfs will rate high again as ascots and adjustable turbans. This cobweb style comes in soft pastels and high shades.

Clever Uses Of Bright Accessories

The accelerated tempo of wartime living has all but banished the opportunity for leisurely, contemplative dressing. These days we get ready for furlough dates or community meetings in "nothing flat," at the close of busy days devoted to war work and war activities.

Accessories come into their own as the perfect answer to time-saver wardrobe conservation problems. A basic costume can change personality as fast as a chameleon changes color, with the clever use of accessories.

Fashion has a second front, too ....guarding day and night against the use of priority materials and the extravagant use of available facilities. That's why neckwear is in the limelight these days....it's patriotic, non-priority and pretty, three capital reasons for wearing neckwear.

Pep up any dress with a dickey or neckwear and see how 'different" it will look. Just for fun change the neckwear of a dress and you won't take it for the same dress, and neither will your friends.

Color is important this season, and neckwear brings out new color to the very best advantage. White, of course, is always a favorite, and it is best for suit wear in trim little dickeys and spanking white vestees, for dress up, white lace is feminine and fetching..for instance, a square collar of Alencon, Venice, and Val. It's fragile, feminine and —fatale.

Significant Jewellery.

This year you'll be buying costume jewellery for your grandchildren—even if you're a new bride or just waiting for your fiancee to return from service. The finest craftsmanship has gone into sterling silver pins, bracelets and earrings you'll wear now, then pass on to your descendants as heirlooms. This new jewellery is something more than pretty ornaments to accent your dress— though it's prettier than ever and decidedly ornamental.

However, novelty jewellery has not been neglected in the new fall colections. Pins and necklaces, clips and bracelets, that can pick up an old frock and give it a brand new personality, are more important than ever before. Lovely novelty jewellery by Coro includes "Allura," beautifully colored acetate stones in all the gem shades fashioned into trim flower sprays and single blossoms — perfect accents for your suit lapel or basic frock....their "Andree" design in more dressy sets this year combine wood and pearlized beads in smart necklaces with matching earrings and pins.

Handful of Fashion.

Gloves can furnish the one dramatic note for an otherwise simple costume, and colorful gloves will put sparkle into any fall wardrobe. Spike your blacks with vivid color, and put your smartness in good hands.

This year, gloves for shopping and working take on new importance as protection for the hands, and these sturdy gloves are a new addition to many glove wardrobes. Whether fabric or leather, quality is the thing that counts in gloves as in everything else— more than ever, when utility is the aim.

Relaxation Aids For Better Work

Womanpower, like rationing, is a new word to us. Many believe it means that every woman must tax her energy to the nth degree, with no regard to the extent to which her nerves and body can be worked. Uncle Sam realizes the need for furloughs and that should be the example by which every woman in the country conducts her wartime life.

Relaxation is a very important part of that life. The perfect retreat for this furlough is in the bath tub.

Thrifty And Easy To Make

VELVET and plaid suit dress. Thrifty and easy to make, it conforms to new regulations.

Lingerie Caters To Wartime Needs

Billows of lacy lovelies are the treasure trove of every woman's lingerie wardrobe but during wartime there is also a definite wardrobe need for underwear made of "sterner stuff," for war workers and the women in the service.

Whatever the occasion or the occupation, from trousseau to turret lathes, there is lingerie to meet the need—whether strictly feminine or extra-curricular.

Slip collections are streamlined in accordance with the new silhouette, and lovely slim slips for that "poured into" look are being offered in a wide variety. Rayon satins with scalloping details, crepes with net or embroidery trim are favored "suit types"—with lace trimmed crepes and satins for more feminine self-expression!

Dark slips, particularly black or navy, will be brightened for all with tiny floral prints, and their eye appeal adds up to considerable cheer! They are just as practical as solid dark slips, and not nearly so "utilitarian" looking.

Bedtime Beauty

"Take good care of yourself" seems to be the theme song for Fall lingerie, and flannelettes have gone all-out for femininty! There are delightful pajamas, in spring patterns or plaids; solid color, print or polka dot nightgowns—all with wanted, wonderful long sleeves to chase the chills.

The crepe and rayon satin gowns are lovelier than ever, in the new slim-and-slinky silhouette — and many of them have bedjackets to match, priced separately, but economical for ensembled "sets." Separate bedjackets are another cuddly item for Fall lingerie wardrobes, to supplement the warm robes you will find ready for your pleasure and appoval.

Essential Lingerie

For the women in war work, or in the services, easy-care is a first consideration in selecting lingerie. Rayon knit panties, vests, slips and petticoats are sturdy, pack easily, and wash wonderfully; and so they take an important place in the "war time" wardrobe.

Pastel shades are well-liked in knitted rayons, and dark colors also win a vote of confidence. Many women have always preferred knitted rayons, and they will not be disappointed in this season's collection! As a matter of fact, knitted undies will probably make many new fast friends during wartime, because once tried these practical pretties are not readily relinquished!

Stay-at-Home Fashions

The harder we work, the more we need to make the most of leisure, and nothing could be more relaxing than the new "at home" pajama fashions. They're glamorous, colorful spirit-lifting—and just the right tonic after a strenuous day. Be sure to see these new lounging pajamas, and treat yourself to something extra special, for your leisure and you pleasure. Have yourself a pair of "at home" pajamas, and wear them when you're a hostess too!

NOT SUPERSTITIOUS.

Northern Irelands sends 13 members to the British House of Commons.

INVASION ALARM.

MARKET RASEN, England — (CP)— Early one morning the town hall clock at this little Lincolnshire town began to strike the hour and kept on chiming. For half an hour the chimes ran out over the sleepy town. The town's Home Guard, and 2,000 citizens, thinking it was an invasion alarm, turned out. Finally somebody tied up the mechanism, the clock stopped striking and the townfolk went back to bed.

MEN'S AUTUMN STYLES REMAIN VERY CONSERVATIVE AND PLAIN

Odd Tweed Coat Is Popular With Many Men

For young men the emphasis this fall in clothes is on the conservative and plain; in fact the opinion of merchants is generally to the effect that styles in men's suitings are about as conservative and plain as they can possibly be made. Wartime restrictions aiming toward the saving of material and the reduction of the labor supply to an absolute minimum among clothing manufacturers, has made the once difficult task of selecting a style or pattern a fairly cut-and-dried procedure.

There are no new styles, of course, over the fashions which prevailed a year ago. The Clothing Branch of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has seen to that, and about the only way an enterprising young man can contrive to be different is to find himself a loud pattern in a sports coat—if he can do even that.

Perhaps the most popular style—if one can speak of styles today—is the odd tweed coat with patch pockets purchased with the intent of wearing it with different trousers. The average college man, it is said, has a fondness for the 3-button full drape or semi-drape style, and nine out of ten go in for the tweeds.

The quality of woollens imported from the British Isles is about as good as ever, though quantity has been reduced and there is naturally a much smaller variety of patterns. In the case of Canadian woollens, though the supply is considered certain it is not as large as it used to be and there is a definite tendency towards mixing the wool with cotton and other fabrics. Though wearing qualities are not impaired by these substitutions, they make for a lighter and less warm garment.

Perhaps due to the absence of double-breasted coats, the peak lapel, giving the illusion of a wider and fancier lapel, is coming back into favor and replacing the rounded lapel in popularity.

The military influence predominates in the manufacture of overcoats, with fly front and set-in sleeve a feature of the models. But everything, when one looks back at the freakish styles and unique adapatations of college-age youths before the war years and makes comparisons, is very, very plain and conservative.

Casual Dressmaker Suit and Topcoat

Untrimmed Coats For Wearability

This year the untrimmed coats has assumed a significance of far-reaching proportions for fashion-wise women—a significance that promises to be lasting too. Because no other coat fits so sensibly into their double-duty scheme of things, no other coats meets every situation so serenely day or night as the versatile untrimmed coat. Designed for warmth and endless wearability, untrimmed coats this year are smarter than ever before. New on the fashion horizon and heralded with due acclaims is the stunning officer's reefer. Wonderfully efficient, its trim double-breasted tailoring proves a boon of flattery to every figure. Chesterfields of course still hold the spotlight and promise greater popularity than ever before. Box coats with raglan sleeves and soft lines that top suits, top dresses with perfection, are loved by women for their easy wearability. For the younger set there are scores of dashing tie belted coats, polo coats, classic boy coats . . . all of which answer to the needs of the times, and all are styled so datelessly they may be worn smartly for seasons. Fabrics are sturdy and geared for long wear with cozy melton cloths, fleece cloths, chinchillas, tweeds and shetlands favored. And though you'll definitely look for lasting quality and lasting style this year . . . when it comes to colors you may let your impulses run riot. Because the hardiest perennials these days are taking to rich hues.

ROMANTIC LOVE, NOT FOUNDED ON LOGIC, NEVER REDEEMABLE

It Makes Someone IT to Another and When Feeling Passes It Doesn't Return to Same.

DEAR MISS DIX—I don't agree with you when you say that a dead love cannot be revived. That is nonsense, for you can. What's the matter with men, anyway, that they fall out of love so easily with their wives? If a man is supposed to have more brains than a woman and to have more will-power and self-control than a woman has, why doesn't he show some of his wisdom and mental superiority when he is tempted by a vamp? When other women begin to flatter and cajole him, or a glamour girl approaches, why doesn't he say to them: "Get away from me, you disgusting piece of womanhood. I want to be faithful to my wife."

But men don't. They go down before the siren like wheat before the scythe. Don't tell me that when a person falls in love they can't help it. Love can be controlled just like anything else. You can imagine anything if you will let your mind dwell on it. I hope there will come a time that when a man or woman proves unfaithful after marriage the only way out will be the electric chair.

DISILLUSIONED WIFE.

Many Men Fickle by Nature

ANSWER—I am afraid the electric chair would be worked overtime if all of the unfaithful husbands and wives were condemned to sit in it, but that is about the only way you can stop philandering. For unfortunately, there are many people so unstable by nature that it is not in them to be true to anything, or anyone.

No one, not even if he or she possessed every charm of grace and virtue, could long enchain their wandering fancies. No spell could bind them. No subtlety keep them fascinated. They would always be bound to jump the fence and seek new pastures. They would literally have to be dead ones before they ceased their wandering.

And this is why it is so impossible to revive a dead love, because love is a matter of illusion, of appeal, of taste, something that is here, and then has vanished and you cannot call it back.

If a woman loved a man because he was handsome, or because he was intelligent, or good and kind, then as long as he had those qualities she would still love him, but the trouble is that romantic love is not founded on logic. It is a matter of sex attraction, of we do not know what, that makes some particular individual IT to us, and when this feeling is gone, love is gone.

The charm that allured us allures us no more. The personality we found so fascinating bores us. We have just lost our taste for the once loved as we have lost our taste for chocolate sundaes of all-day suckers.

Undoubtedly it would save a lot of trouble if the men and women who are unhappily married would realize that they are in a dangerous mental state in which they are especially susceptible to the love germ, and so would avoid the society of the men and women whom they find particularly attractive, just as a drunkard who really wishes to reform keeps away from the sight and smell of liquor, or a gambler avoids places where games of chance are going on if he is trying to break away from that vice.

Certainly it would be the part of wisdom for the man who knows himself susceptible to feminine charm to avoid the society of Miss Americas, and instead of employing a living picture for a private secretary hire a homely sister with cross-eyes and carroty hair. But perhaps this would be asking too much of human nature, and especially of masculine human nature. Most of us when we pray "lead us not into temptation" depend on the Lord working a miracle in our behalf and taking on the job. We never consider that it is up to us to save ourselves.

DEAR MISS DIX—We are four service wives, all in our late twenties and all happily married for five years or more. Now that our husbands are away at training camps we have no thoughts in our minds and hearts but to do everything possible to show our loyalty and faithfulness to them. We confine ourselves to female companionship and spend many of our lonely hours in war work.

But there are moments when we wonder if our loyalty is being returned by our husbands. What way have we of knowing if this training for war will change our men from lovable, kind-hearted persons we knew into hard cruel men, with the philosophy of grasping what they can when they can, and not caring who gets hurt in the process? What way have we of knowing that while we are waiting for them they are not becoming involved with other women? How can we know that after the war is over we won't find ourselves women who have spent years of their youth waiting for men who have forgotten the love they knew and valued in the past?

FOUR ARMY WIVES.

Service Men May Appreciate Homes

ANSWER — Not being endowed with the gift of prophecy, there is no possible way in which you can foretell what is going to happen after the duration. None of us know what sort of a world we will be called upon to live in, or what altered circumstances will confront us, or how we, ourselves, or those we love, will have changed.

But it seems to me that you are going a long way to hunt for trouble if you are making yourself miserable over speculating about your good, kind, American husbands being changed into Germans or Japs by the war and coming home with a lust for torturing little children and hanging old women, and generally dipping their hands in blood. Instead of war hardening them, the chances are that they will have been so revolted by the cruelty and sufferings that they have seen that they will want to do nothing but kindness the balance of their lives.

You have known many of the soldiers who fought in the last war. You haven't known any of them who developed into slayers, have you?

As for your husbands becoming involved in affairs with other women, there is far less danger of that while they are in the army than it is while they are at home. because there is less temptation. The native females of the jungles have small appeal for men accustomed to the trim and trig girls back home. Nor is there any need, judging from their pictures, for wives to get green-eyed over the unglamorous ladies of the Aleutian Islands.

Anyway, the world is full of women and wherever your husbands go they are bound to encounter them. You can't hold them by the hand to keep them safe, or ride herd on them to prevent their straying into other pastures. In the end, you are bound to trust them wherever they are, at home or abroad, in the war or out of it. So why lose sleep in worrying about something that you cannot possibly help and a situation that you are bound to take on faith.

Of course, every man who goes through the experiences of war is bound to come home changed. He will have been through many experiences that will have developed

GOOD SUIT IS MOST SENSIBLE THING ONE CAN BUY THESE DAYS

Quality Fabrics, Good Tailoring Are Essentials

It has always been good common sense and good fashion sense to buy the best you can afford. Because in the long run, the best costs less. Especially so for suits because these days suits are the duration fashion uniform. They must last, they must give you day in and day out service, and therefore the best suit you can buy is the best buy. Then it will repay you dividends in dependable long wear, dividends in keeping you looking and feeling your best dressed self for every occasion. The smart foresighted woman will look for classic styling, long wearing quality fabrics and expert tailoring when she shops for her wardrobe of suits. And we really do mean "wardrobe of suits." Because more than any other single costume, suits are the backbone of the American woman's wartime wardrobe. Naturally, alert American designers have created superb suits for every daytime and nightime occasion. For non-stop daytime duty, classic suits take top honors, the favorites being the 3-button, 4-button or link button styles. A really solid investment for all women is a good grey flannel suit. Its neutral color is a "natural" for really any color contrast in accessories. For instance for tailored town wear, team your grey flannel with a soft bow-tied blouse, add fresh white gloves, smart black bag and hat and you're bandbox fresh. For casual wear, play yellow against grey—really the smoothest combination of all because it is so refreshingly crisp and young looking. For the girl on the job and college girls, plaid suits are No. 1 favorites with tidy checks running a close second. For a solid wardrobe foundation, add a matching or contrasting Chesterfield overcoat—and you've a team that's on the beam for duration service.

Corduroys Velveteens Click.

Wonderful, wearable wide wale corduroy and velveteens make some of the smartest most practical suits for Fall. Casual yet surprisingly sophisticated, these are the suits that are rugged for day in and day out wear, still they're as smart across the dinner table as they are at business. Plus the fact that they're cozily warm and their soft deep piled texture is rich looking, flattering.

Suits Go On Furlough Dates.

Little dressmaker suits are smash hits for Fall and Winter! Softly tailored, they're completely feminine with short fitted jackets and slim flared skirts adding up to lots of figure-flattery. In smooth broadcloth woollens as well as sheer woollens and velveteens, they have added fashion news in velvet bound small shawl collar, revers, pocket flaps — with the final lady touch in self covered or sparkling jewel buttons. Charming because they give that completely costume look, these little suits mate up beautifully with fur jackets as well as the new fur lined overcoats. And their marvelously simple lines invite endless accessory changes from choker pearls to any of the new costume blouses—wonderful for above the table allure at dinner! A good fashion and value-wise tip—have two casual suits—and at least one little dress suit in your wartime wardrobe — and you'll be set for seasons. Because these days when your clothes must do day and night duty—suits are the natural answer. And again, buy quality, buy carefully, for longer service, smarter wear.

Appeasing Vatican

MADRID, Sept. 23—(AP).—German forces in Rome, according to reports reaching here from Italy, have received strict orders from Berlin to maintain the best possible relations with the Vatican. This was taken as an indication the Nazis are anxious to avoid any trouble which might lead the Vatican to ask that they move out of Rome so it may be considered by the Allies as an open city.

West Enders Defeat King George

Ideal weather prevailed on Wednesday afternoon for the Public School soccer game between King George and Prince of Wales, on King Edward Park, when the West-enders triumphed 2-1 to pick-up two valuable points in the league.

First Half.

There was no advantage in the spin of the coin. Prince of Wales settled down to aggressive tactics to upset their opponents as they endeavoured to get their bearings but not before Dyer had tallied with a smart drive. A little later, Foster on an individual effort, on a pass from Dyer, found the inside of the upright for the second counter. King George forwards individualism proved a detriment in midfield which permitted the winners half-back to break up their method of attack thereby permitting the defence ample time to clear their citadel. Prince of Wales 2. King George 0.

Second Half.

On resuming, play ran from end to end at a rapid pace with Swanson carrying the ball right in on goal but Bob Miller robbed him of the ball as he was going to shoot. Kimberley trapped the ball quickly to send Foster along the wing. Carr, King George, blocked his shot to send Pollock away on the run to the other end. For the next twenty minutes, the East City boys had the West-enders confined to their own half of the field and eventually reduced the count through J. Miller, at outside left. They went right back again to miss the upright by inches in the remaining minutes left. Prince of Wales 2. King George 1.

Goal scorers: Prince of Wales, D. Dyer, and G. Foster. King George, J. Miller.

King George: J. Dockwell, goal; J. Stock and B. Carr full backs; B. Wyatt, G. Rome and R. Munro half backs; R. Pollock, J. Swanson, K. Anderson, A. Payne and J. Miller forwards.

Prince of Wales: T. Kay, goal; D. Burrows and F. McMullen full backs; A. Chalmers, R. Miller and R. Kidd half backs; G. Foster, G. Kimberley, D. Dyer, N. Cullen, L. Hanes forwards. Subs: J. Storey, R. Storey and N. Nisbett.

London Seniors Defeat Co-ops

HAMILTON, Sept. 23 — (CP).— Tommy White, pitching for the London Army, although he is allegedly the property of the Detroit Tigers, fogged it past the Hamilton batters to a five-hit tune here last night, winning the first of the O.B.A. senior final series by a 5-2 score. The two finalists play the second game in London Saturday.

Inglis Horses Placed First

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 23.—(ENS).—Lakefield Fair horse races proved to be a Port Perry day with horses owned in that village taking first money in both 2.17 and 2.27 classes.

A light shower just prior to the start of the race threatened a muddy track, but it stopped in time and all heats were run off in fast time.

Grattan Lee, owned and driven by H. Inglis of Port Perry, stepped in first in all three heats in the 2.17. A second Inglis horse, Patsy McGregor, ran third in the first heat but moved up to second place in the remaining two for second money. Adrian Grattan, the L. Hess entry from Kingston, was third.

In the 2.27 event a third Port Perry entry in the Inglis string, Iroquois Trail, named very appropriately for this district, was never headed, taking all three heats.

The Roseneath stepper, Gratton Iroquois, with A. Pacey driving, held second place in each heat with the Peterborough Lady Q. P. Sutherland piloting, failing to place better than third in any event. Victory, Gire a second Peterborough horse driven by P. Dunford, trailed the field.

Judges and timers were G. A. Dunford, W. Saunders and Charles Quinlan of Peterborough.

Sports Spice

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 —(AP)— Starting off right: On the first night of bowling in a Chicago ladies' league, Laura Stellmacher came through with a series of 205-254-251 —710, the highest score for any Chicago woman in eight years.... When it was announced in the press box that Rookie Joe Soskovic and old man Johnny Cooney wouldn't accompany the Dodgers on their current western tour, the announcer explained: 'Soskovic is going back to school and Cooney is playing hockey."

You pick 'em:

Arthur Metheny, Yankees — He's the kind of player who might be a series star or a bust, depending on how he's hitting against southpaws, who usually trouble him. Once hit .572 at William and Mary but its safe to say he won't do that at Yankee Stadium. Was a .295 hitter at Newark last season and currently is clouting .269 for the Yanks.

Stan Musial, Cardinals — Stan started out three years ago as a left-handed pitcher at Daytona Beach but soon saw the error in his ways. Never stayed in a minor league long enough to win an official batting title but is a cinch for the National League crown with a .356 average. Also leads the league in doubles and triples and has socked 13 homers.

Shorts and shells:

Dick Sipek, Cincinnati farmhand who hit .335 for Birmingham this season, shouldn't have much trouble with umpires. He can neither speak nor hear....And Paul Florence, head-man of the Barons, sees him as the logical successor to two old-time stars who were similarly handicapped, the Reds' Billy Hoy and Luther (Dummy) Aylor of the Giants.

Eliminate Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. —(CP). —Toronto Kiwanis cleaned up on the Falls' Lions 10-4 yesterday in the first game of the O.B.A. final juvenile series at Oakes Stadium, the visitors scoring five runs in both the eighth and ninth innings after the Lions had been coasting along with a 4-0 lead.

Bagby Resents Being Made Goat

By LARRY SMITH
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—(AP).— The major leagues' youngest manager faced his first player rebellion today after Pitcher Jim Bagby announced he is "tired of being made the goat" and is willing to be traded and take a pay cut "to get away from Boudreau."

The Cleveland Indians' slim right hander told a Cleveland baseball writer last night he had asked to be traded after Manager Lou Boudreau had fined him $100 for being out of condition.

"A few weeks ago he left me behind when the team went to Chicago," Jim said, "and the statement he gave to the press was that I needed a rest. Well, do you know what the rest cure cost me? Just $100. He fined me that for being out of condition. That was the last straw. That was when I went to Peckinpaugh (club vice-president) and told him to trade me.

"How can Lou say I was out of condition," he continued. "Look at the records and you'll find I've pitched more innings than any other man in the league. Is that the record of a guy that's out of shape. He says I don't do enough running. I say I run as much as any of our pitchers, more than some. Why does he pick me out as an example?"

The Indians' 16-game winner said he is satisfied with financial terms.

The Tribe's 26-year-old pilot admitted "Jim and I haven't seen eye-to-eye on some things,' but added, "I'd be silly to trade him unless I could get something of equal value for him. I'd like to have him satisfied and happy, but I'd rather have a disgruntled winner than a happy loser."

Minister Condemns Racial Prejudice

LONDON, Sept 23— (CP Cable) —An incident in which Learie Constantine, British West Indies cricketer, was allegedly asked to leave a Russel Square hotel because other guests objected to the presence of a negro, was brought up yesterday in the House of Commons.

P. V. Emrys-Evans, Parliamentary Under-Secretary to the Dominions Office, said the Colonial Secretary, Oliver Stanley, was aware of the incident, but as legal proceedings were understood to be pending he considered it would not be proper to comment on the incident itself.

" I am glad of the opportunity of stating in behalf of the Colonial Secretary that he most strongly condemns any form of racial discrimination against colonial people in this country," Mr. Emrys-Evans said.

The hotel concerned caters largely to Americans.

Felt Fatigued, Tired Out Before Day Was Half Over

Machinist Says He Needed a Good Tonic. Tells How Syntona Built Him Up. Relieved Stomach Disorders, Dizziness, Rheumatic Pains. Sleeps Better; Feels Fine.

"After the good results I have had by taking Syntona I do not hesitate to say it is the best general tonic I have ever used," said Mr. R J. Boswell, 35 Bay Street North, Hamilton, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I don't think I fully realized how badly rundown I was. I knew I wasn't able to do my work right, because I constantly felt restless and fatigued. I couldn't get my proper sleep at night and I got tired on the job before noon of each day. I was troubled all the time with my stomach. I had so much gas, acid risings and sour stomach after my meals that I guess my food wasn't doing me any good. I was subject to headaches and dizzy feelings. I also had a lot of rheumatic pains in my limbs and joints and my back felt lame and sore.

"But all that has changed since I've been taking Syntona. This medicine proved to be just what my system needed. It helped my stomach. I eat more substantial meals and my food digests without souring and causing all that gas and acid risings. I am free from headaches and dizziness and all the aches and pains have gone away. Syntona seemed to build up my whole system. I sleep well and I don't get tired on the job as I used to. I feel more healthy in every way and I will recommend Syntona to any one as the best all-round tonic he can take."

In almost every city block you will find many men and women who are praising Syntona. All because it has given them better results than they had ever expected. Ask anybody who has taken this medicine and they will tell you of the good results that it gives. They'll be glad to tell you how Syntona has helped them. Try it and find out for yourself.

Mrs. James Hatnerly was hostess for the September meeting of the Lily Lake W.A. with Mrs. A. W. Ackison assisting hostess. Owing to the exceptionally busy season the attendance was very small with just seven member and four visitors present.

Mrs. A. Beardsmore, 2nd vice president, presided in the absence of the president and opened the meeting with a hymn. Mrs. Harry Fowler gave the scripture reading and an interesting commentory on the "Lost Sheep" and the "Lost Coin." Mrs. Clarence Ferguson led in prayer. Roll call was answered with an article valued at $1 to sell at the bazaar next month. Next month "Something we have to be thankful for." Mrs. Fowler expressed her thanks for fruit sent her during her recent illness.

Plans for the bazaar and sale of farmers produce were discussed and it was decided to hold the sale on October 2. The lunch was served by the hostesses during the social hour which followed. The October meeting will be held at Mrs. Middleton's. Two quilts were quilted during the afternoon.

Trinity W.M.S.

The opening meeting of the Trinity W.M.S. was held in the Ladies' Parlor of the church. The president gave a cordial welcome to all present and hoped that they had returned refreshed and with renewed enthusiasm from the summer recess.

It was suggested that members who had books from the society's library or any other book that would classify, could give a very short summary to arouse the interest of other members. It was also suggested that members who had such books might lend them to others. Mrs. G. N. Moncrief reviewed "Heaven Knows" and "The Mystery of Mar Saba," and Mrs. H. A. Mitchell reviewed a book pertaining to Mission Band reading.

Members were reminded to get things together for the rummage, sale, that is to be held shortly.

It was suggested that each try to get as many out each month as possible and that the group having the lowest attendance by the end of the November meeting would have to be responsible for the December meeting.

The study period was under the leadership of Mrs. C. Kimberly's group, Mrs. Kimberly giving the final chapter and summary in the current Study Book.

Home and School

KING GEORGE

A splendid crowd was on hand on Tuesday evening to witness the presentation of certificates to the graduating class of King George School. A short business session was held and the president, Mrs. Cunningham, expressed her deep regret at having to retire in the middle of the year, and asked Mrs. Stock, the new president, to take the chair. Mrs. Seymour presented Mrs. Cunningham with a token of appreciation of her excellent work during her term in office. Mrs. Cunningham thanked the Home and School Association and wished them continued success. Mr. Kerr gave a resume of war news.

Noel Easson delighted the audience with a violin solo, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. DeNure.

Mr. Kerr took the chair for the remainder of the program, introducing first the leading girl and boy of his graduating class, Yvonne Weatherstone and Gerald Hillis. Each spoke briefly on behalf of the rest of the graduates, and thanked the teachers for all their aid in the past year.

The guest speaker of the evening Mr. Ian F. McRae, was then introduced. Mr. McRae addressed his remarks first to the pupils and then to their parents. His message to the pupils was to strive to attain perfection in any undertaking. The speaker also advi ed the pupils to remain at school for as long as possible, the better to take their places in the world later on. In speaking to the parents, Mr. McRae reminded them that their sons and daughters were growing up and were no longer children to be tied tightly to the apron strings. He stressed the importance of allowing these boys and girls to shoulder responsibilities.

Miss Nancy Leith sang two songs accompanied at the piano by Mr. J. Telford. Mr. Kerr presented his graduating class with their diplomas.

Pickles Are Not Rationed Give Fillup To A Meal

By MARY MOORE

There's a grim resolve in the letters I'm receiving this month. Housewives are determined to have pickles to keep their meals interesting. Pickles are not rationed and they give a fillip to a meal that nothing else does.

I have given you recipes below for pickles that do not call for a lot of sugar. I have kept in mind our possible supplies and our needs and have given you the recipes most readers are calling for.

Sweet Pickles

Fifty gherkins about 2½ inches long, 3 cups vinegar, 1 cup water, 1½ cups sugar, mixed whole spices. Soak the washed and trimmed gherkins in salt brine overnight using 1-3 cup salt to each quart water. In morning drain well. Boil the vinegar, water, sugar for 10 minutes, then add the gherkins. Just keep hot until they change color, then skim out the pickles and pack into sterile jars in which you have put 1 teaspoon mixed whole spices. Cover gherkins with the boiling vinegar syrup and seal jars immediately.

Note on Sweet Mixed Pickles—If you wish to use small flowerets of cauliflower and onions with the gherkins to make Sweet Mixed Pickles replace one-third of the gherkins by weight with small 1-inch onions, and one-third with small flowerets from cauliflower. Put in brine and proceed same as with gherkins.

Piccalilli (Chow-Chow)

One peck green tomatoes, 5 lbs. cabbage, 6 sweet red peppers, 6 sweet green peppers, 4 medium sized onions, 1 cup salt, 3 pints vinegar, 2-3 cup sugar, ½ lb. mustard seed, 2 tablespoons celery seed, 1 tablespoon ground horseradish. Chop and mix tomatoes, cabbage, sweet red and green peppers, and onion with the salt and let stand 12 hours. Mix vinegar, sugar, mustard seed, celery seed and horseradish. Bring to boiling point and pack into hot clean jars. Seal immediately. This is delicious with cold meats or to flavor and extend meat spread for sandwiches.

Sweet Mustard Pickles.

Two quart small white onions, 2 quarts small or quartered medium sized cucumbers, 2 heads cauliflower, ½ cup salt in enough boiling water to cover the cucumbers and onions, 6 sweet green peppers. Let the cucumbers and onions stand in the salt water overnight. Drain them in the morning and add the peppers and cauliflower broken inflowerets, and 1 quart full-strength vinegar and 1 quart water. Cook the vegetables in the vinegar and water for 10 minutes. Then make a paste as follows: mix 2 cups brown sugar, 1 cup flour, ¼ cup dry mustard, 1 tablespoon turmeric, then add [illegible] cups cold water and stir to make a paste. Stir into the boiling vegetables until thick, then pack in sterile hot jars and seal immediately.

Pickled Beets.

Select beets of uniform size, cut off tops, but allow at least 1 inch of the stems to remain so that the beets will not bleed or lose color and sweetness. Wash and cook until tender in enough water to cover. For young beets this will require about ½ hour. When tender, plunge into cold water, remove the skins by slipping them off, and when cool, cut in dice or thin slices or leave whole if very small. Pack into sterile jars, and to each quart add 1 teaspoon salt, and fill with a mixture of vinegar and sugar in proportions of 2 cups vinegar to 1 cup sugar, and add 1 cup water—bring this to boiling point before pouring over beets. Whole spices such as cinnamon bark, cloves, bay leaf may be added sparingly if desired. Seal jars and store in cool place.

Bread and Butter Pickles.

Six qts. very thinly sliced medium sized cucumbers, 1½ quarts vinegar, 4 cups sugar, 6 medium sized onions sliced thin, 1 cup salt, ½ cup mustard seed, 1 tablespoon celery seed, ¼ to 1-3 teaspoon cayenne pepper (this is optional). Combine cucumbers, onions, and salt and let stand 3 hours. Drain. Combine seasoning and venegar and boil. Add cucumbers and onions Heat to simmering and pack hot. Be careful to avoid boiling as that makes the pickles soft. Pack while hot in clean jars and seal immediately.

Apple Chutney.

Two quarts apples, 3 cups brown sugar, 2 qts. cider vinegar, 2 pounds seedless raisins, 1 oz. white mustard seed, 1 small onion, 1 oz. black mustard seed (if you cannot get black mustard seed use 2 oz. white mustard seed altogether), 2 oz. ground ginger, 1 tablespoon salt, 2 chopped red peppers. Wash, peel and core the apples. Cook them with the brown sugar and vinegar until they are smooth. When the mixture is thick, place it in a crock and add raisins, chopped if they are not small, onion, white and black mustard seed, ginger, salt, and red peppers. Mix these ingredients thoroughly heat them, and let them stand overnight covered. In the morning place the chutney in sterile jars and seal.

Corn Relish.

One dozen ears corn grated or scraped off the cob, 3 lbs. minced cabbage, ¼-½ cup hot red peppers, 3 cups vinegar (this may be weakened with a little water if you do not like it strong, 1 cup sugar, 2 teaspoons salt, quarter tablespoon mustard. Use just enough vinegar to cover the minced vegetables—it may not use up the whole 3 cups. Cook all ingredients 15 minutes stirring frequently. Seal in sterile jars while hot. Good with hot or cold roast lamb.

Tomato Pickle (Uncooked).

Four quarts chopped ripe tomato, 2 cups finely chopped celery, ½ cup chopped hot red pepper, ½ cup chopped onion, ¾ cup sugar, ¾ cup mustard seed, 1 teaspoon powdered cloves, 2 teaspoons grated nutmeg, 1 quart vinegar, ½ cup salt. Drain tomatoes—there should be 3 quarts before chopping and 9 cups after draining. Add all remaining ingredients to them. Do not cook. Pour into sterile jars and seal with paraffin—adding a second coating after 10 minutes. Let stand 1 week before using. This will keep indefinitely if kept in cool basement.

Green Tomato Pickle.

(I am giving you 2 tomato recipes because tomatoes in any form are a good source of several vitamins.)

One peck green tomatoes, 6 medium onions, 9 small green peppers, 1 cup salt, 1 quart mild vinegar, 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons each mustard seed and celery seed, 1 teaspoon each allspice, cinnamon, clove, 1 cup grated horseradish. Clean vegetables, peel onions, chop together, mix with salt and let stand overnight; drain thoroughly discarding juice. Cover with 1 pint of the vinegar, boil, cook slowly 30 minutes stirring. Add remaining vinegar. Seal in sterile jars.

THE ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: My sister has lots of wild grapes on her farm, so I would like to know if you could send me or publish in your column the recipe for wild grape jelly. Thanking you for all the help I have received through your column every week.—O.M.A.

ANSWER: Wild grapes contain a great deal of pectin; they also cause jelly to crystallize a little at the bottom. So from numerous experiments it has been found that the best jelly is made by combining 2-3 of grape juice with 1-3 part of crabapple juice and adding ⅞ cup sugar to each cup of combined juice.

Wild Grape Jelly.

Wash very well, then pull from stem, wild grapes. Put in preserving kettle after weighing, and to each 3 lbs. of grapes add 1 cup cold water. Mash with wire potato masher as it comes to boiling point, and as soon as it boils, cover, reduce heat to simmering point and simmer 10 minutes; then drip through jelly bag. Measure juice. Bring juice to boiling point. To each cup boiling juice add ¾ cup sugar; bring to boiling point, try to see if it jells on cold plate (standing jelly off fire while juice test is cooling)—if it is not ready boil it 5 minutes longer, but do not boil it longer than 5 minutes after the sugar is added.

NOTE: If crabapple juice is used in place of 1-3 of the wild grape juice you will need to use ⅞ cup of sugar to each cup of combined juice.

QUESTION: Would you please help me out? I did some beans (green) in brine, that you had in the paper—1 lb. coarse salt to 4 lbs. beans in crock. I did them three weeks ago and there is no brine on them yet—they are still dry. Would you advise me to leave them that way or put water on them?

Thanks again for all the lovely recipes.—Mrs. V. Moore.

ANSWER: The beans should be submerged in brine. Dissolve 1 cup salt in 1 quart boiling water and chill this weak brine. Pour it over the beans. If this does not form enough liquid to completely submerge beans, make another 1 quart of brine in the same way, being sure to add it only when it is cold. Then cover beans with plate or disc of clean tasteless wood dipped in paraffin, which just fits inside of crock. Hold this cover down with weight (a large clean stone is good) so that beans are covered with brine at all times.

QUESTION: I always read your very helpful and interesting column and to-night I noticed your remarks about pickle recipes. I would very much like to have a basic recipe for a good sweet mustard pickle sauce that I can use to put with any vegetables I choose. For instance, I have a surplus of beans and would like to put some down alone. Also I want to prepare a variety together. I had a good sweet mustard recipe, but misplaced it and since then can't seem to find one to suit me. I like it medium sweet and the general strength also medium. Any pickle done up with the above sauce can be put down in any jar without rings, etc., to fit—I mean I can use a ——— seal for instance? I would like a recipe, too, for a vinegar-sugar solution to put cucumbers and beets in; I would like to know exact amounts of each ingredient. Do I need good sealers for that or would the others I mentioned do?

I do hope you can help me out—I sure will appreciate you answering me.—Mrs. M. Powell.

ANSWER: Please see recipe elsewhere on page for Sweet Mustard Pickles, and the vinegar-syrup for beets or other pickled vegetables.

We prefer to recommend that you salt your pickles in glass sealers with rubber rings, glass tops and metal rings—but there are a great many cooks that seal their pickles with paraffin and as long as the coating is sound and the pickles are kept at a cool temperature, they will keep. They should be poured boiling hot into sterile jars and all directions in the recipe followed in detail.

I think you would be wise to seal your pickled vegetables, such as beets, because a white mould will form over them unless they are kept almost at freezing temperature.

TESTED RECIPES .

By MARY MOORE

Peaches cannot be improved upon, for I think sliced peaches and cream make an ideal dessert—but ....this little custard treatment makes them "different."

Peach Custard.

Two cups milk, 3 slightly beaten eggs, 1-3 cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon of salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-3 cup of cream, 2 cups sliced ripe peaches.

Put 1¾ cups milk in saucepan. Cover and bring to boiling point; reduce heat: Combine eggs, sugar, salt, and remaining ¼ cup milk. Add to scalded milk, stirring constantly. Cook, stirring constantly, until a coating forms on the spoon. Remove from heat and add the cream and let cool. When cool add the sliced peaches and serve in stemmed glasses very cold.

If you take Jersey milk, enough cream that will whip can be poured from the top of the bottles to [illegible] whipped cream with this dessert but it [illegible] very good without it.

The same custard is good with sliced maraschino cherries, shredded almonds, and grated orange rind—when it is called Tutti-Fruitti Custard.

CLEAR THE CAUSE OF BABY'S DIARRHOEA

IT saps your baby's strength. Lowers resistance to disease and other sicknesses. Regulate the bowels and banish it immediately.

Read the experience of Mrs. Edith Stroud, of Brown's Line P.O., Ont.: "I have nine children, have not had one serious illness among them, and owe this to Baby's Own Tablets. For diarrhoea they are invaluable. They quickly clear up the cause."

Equally effective for simple fever, colds, colic, upset stomach, constipation, simple croup, indigestion and teething troubles.

Free of stupefying drugs and opiates. Sweet-tasting—easily crushed to a powder, if desired. Analyst's report in every box. Get a package today. Sickness so often strikes in the night. 25 cents. Money back if you are not satisfied.

I thought my little girl's dress was white

... until I saw it next to Bob's RINSO-WASHED blouse

● It's wonderful to see the whiteness of Rinso-washed clothes. Not a cloudy white. Not a streaky white. But a radiant white.

So easy with Rinso! Rinso is all you need for heaps of richer, longer-lasting suds even in hardest water. With Rinso's lively suds in your wash tub, dirt soaks out without the hard rubbing and boiling that wears clothes threadbare. And if you own a washer, just remember that the makers of 26 leading Canadian washers recommend Rinso for best results.

GRAND FOR DISHES!

Rinso's soak and swish way makes easy work of dishwashing. Just soak dishes in Rinso's rich suds; then swish—they're clean. Grease is gone. Just rinse and drain. They don't need a dish towel. And notice how gentle Rinso is to your hands.

YOU'LL NEVER BE SATISFIED WITH ANYTHING ELSE ONCE YOU SEE RINSO WHITENESS

IN WARTIME OR ANYTIME

NEW Rinso gives the whitest wash

GIVES THE WHITEST WASH

COMES IN THE SAME FAMILIAR PACKAGE

More washing power
Longer-lasting suds
Greater economy

Two former pro hockey players now in training as R.C.A.F. pilots, LAC. Andy Branigan and LAC. Sammy Lavitt, have added much speed and experience to the backfield of the Winnipeg Bombers, according to Coach Reg. Threlfall in an announcement at the Manitoba capital last night on the acquisition of the pair.

On leave from an elementary flying training course at a Manitoba station, they donned grid togs and Threlfall immediately gave notice he would use them at Regina next Saturday, when the airmen open the nine-game Western Conference against the Rough Riders. Branigan was once a defenceman with Brooklyn Americans in the N.H.L. while Lavitt was a forward with the Dallas Texans.

Both were members of the Western team which challenged the R.C.A.F. Hurricanes last fall for the Grey Cup, emblematic of the Canadian title—and lost the thrilling final at Toronto.

It was intimated that Branigan and Lavitt might not be able to play in all scheduled games in the Prairie loop because of their aircrew training, but the Winnipeg mentor is happy for the moment anyway.

Sunshine Returns

At Toronto a big guy walked up to the Balmy Beach club dressing-room and asked for a uniform. It was Harry Sonshine who after five years is starting back up the football trail with the O.R.F.U. club. Harry was a star at middle wing with Queen's University and Toronto Argonauts before a jaw injury forced him out of action. He has been discharged from the army for medical reasons.

Flying Ebony, Kentucky Derby winner of 1925 with Earl Sande in the saddle, was destroyed yesterday on the Alisal branch, near Santa Barbara, Calif., at the age of 21 years. The horse, which had become feeble had a short track career, winning six races in 13 starts.

Still Want It.

Arriving in Toronto to press the claims of Halifax for recognition as the birthplace of hockey, Hon. Harold Connolly, Minister of Industry and Publicity for Nova Scotia, made public a request that a meeting of N.H.L. and C.A.H.A. representatives, as well as Kingston, Montreal and Halifax, hold a meeting to decide the question.

The lacrosse team of No. 5 Manning Depot, Montreal, won its second straight play-off game in the Quebec Senior League last night by setting Lachine back 15-10. Third game of the best-of-five series will be played Sunday.

Joseph B. David of New Orleans, president of the Mid-Winter Sports Association, predicted a capacity crowd of 72,000 for the annual Sugar Bowl football game of New Year's Day without a strain on transportation services. Films of the game are to be sent to the war fronts.

Following two diamond defeats in a row, Halifax Navy came to the fore yesterday in the finals of Nova Scotia Senior League by trimming Springhill, N.S., 9-0 to square the play-offs at two games each. The game was played at Springhill.

LAWN BOWLING

If the weather is favorable it is the intention of the committee to hold our big mixed tournament on Friday evening. Remember it was postponed last Friday, the weather being too cold.

Well, our boys are still taking advantage of the Wednesday half-holiday. Just to have something to do they staged a doubles tournament—all local— and a fair entry was on hand by two o'clock. They played three 16-end games, right through with no supper hour. The winning pairs were: 1, P. Moore and G. Gimblett; 2, J. Fitzpatrick and H. Freeman; 3, R. Payne and R. Burns. All received War Savings Stamps.

Down at Cobourg yesterday afternoon the ladies open trebles tournament, after being held up for a couple of hours on account of rain, got under way with 26 entries, eight going down from our own club. There were rinks from Belleville, Stirling, Port Hope, Peterborough, Oshawa, and Cobourg—real tournament for the wind-up of the season. Two of our rinks were successful in reaching the pay-off station.

Winning Rinks.

Miss G. Patterson, Mrs. P. Campbell, Mrs. F. Staunton — 2 wins, each a pair of bath towels.

a good drum tune. There is more to it than meets the eye. Sgt. Barton does his own arranging and under each note he letters which hand is to be used, and as they improve, he gives them more advanced arrangements of exercises. He got his training with the Scots Guards and is giving his feminine recruits the regulation British Army training.

Cpl. Scott is an expert on the tenor drums. He it is who teaches the girls the method twirling drumsticks and his pupils are showing plenty of aptitude. Jean Powers, who is very fond of her bass drum, and finds it not too heavy, is learning quickly. One of the band confided that they were turned loose in Sgt. Barton's garden this summer and that is where they developed their technique. As these girls work at their twirling between numbers, it behoves a visitor to move with caution if he values his eyesight.

Name Sections.

As each section plays something different, each group has been given a name identifying the place where the girls work, and the music is under the name of groups such as "Brinton," "Aircrafe" or "Tents," and when the name is called the drummers know what's wanted.

The drum section did its first outside marching Wednesday on the parade ground and then around the block. The biggest difficulty was the loosely swinging drums, which male bandsmen wear tied down, ut the leaders said that some system would be figured out to cure the trouble.

Last year the P. W. S. C. had 115 members and this year they are aiming to get 200. Such training is invaluable to a girl intending to enlist and already many have gone from the ranks and are serving as officers in the armed forces. Besides taking Army foot drill, there are courses in map reading, first aid, clerical duties, canteen work, visual signalling, and it is hoped motor mechanics and wireless. This group has just purchased a phonograph and records for the corvette "Peterborough." Miss Flossie Mitchell is chief commandant.

Buglers were being tried out on Wednesday, but those on the drums are: Miss Mary Gregson, majorette; Misses Phyllis Sage, Orpha Sage, Jean Powers (bass drum), Jerry Kelly, Doris Williamson, Hilda Suddards, Jean Edgar, Ruth Sedore, Mrs. Pearl Saunders, Mrs. Pearl Foster, Mrs. Gladys Latchford, Mrs. Bella Bervert, and Mrs. Annie Hobson.

You Must Know Fundamentals of Home Nursing

MAKING BED WITH PATIENT

Today everyone should know a bit about home nursing for one can never tell when an emergency may arise. Particularly in wartime, a knowledge of how to care for a patient at home is absolutely necessary.

Do you know how to make a bed with your patient in it? Some patients cannot be moved out of bed and you have to know what to do. The illustration above is a guide. Full instructions how to do this are included in our 32-page booklet, along with many other necessary things in the daily care of a patient.

Our booklet gives the home nurse the important do's and a few of the don'ts are also in order.

As well as the daily care of a bed patient it gives instructions how to care for a bed patient, how to care for a patient after an operation, a patient with a contagious disease and also how to nurse common ailments such as colds and convulsions.

Baby care is also included.

For your copy of WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT HOME NURSING send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examines Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WORST MAY BE BEST

AMONG ALL possible bad plays on the defense against a suit contract, the worst is ordinarily supposed to be the lead of a suit in which both the declarer and the dummy are blank, so that a loser may be discarded from one holding while the other ruffs. There are rare occasions, though, on which such a lead may be the only possible means of setting a contract. Usually that will be when the partner of the leader is also blank in the suit chosen. That will give him then the option of over-ruffing if the intervening hand trumps, or else discarding one of his own losers.

North: ♠Q 10 6 2 ♥Q J 7 ♦A 6 5 ♣K Q 10

West: ♠K J 7 3 ♥4 ♦K Q J 9 7 ♣5 3 2

East: ♠9 5 ♥A 10 6 3 ♦10 8 3 ♣J 9 8 6

South: ♠A 8 4 ♥K 9 8 5 2 ♦4 2 ♣A 7 4

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1♣	Pass	1♥	Pass
1♠	Pass	2NT	Pass
3♥	Pass	4♥

Upon winning the first trick with the diamond A, South counted up the losers and saw no chance to drop more than three tricks if the spade K happened to be with West. When East came in with the A on the heart Q, which was led to the second trick, the hand appeared to be a cinch. East led back the diamond 10, which held, and then the 8, which South ruffed with the heart 5.

Feeling not at all nervous, South now led the heart 8 to the J, and was shocked when West discarded. This did not seem to worry him, however, after a moment's thought. He then led to his club A and returned the spade 4, hoping West would end his worries by coming in with the K. Sure enough, he did, and all looked salubrious.

But West then led the diamond Q, to which nobody could follow suit. After a bit of brow-knotting, South realized that this licked him. If he trumped in his own hand, that would leave him only one trump to East's two, assuring the setting trick to East. So he ruffed with the dummy's heart 7. East thereupon discarded a spade, and so did South. But North could only take two clubs and had nothing left but three spades. When he led one toward the A, East ruffed, and the contract was killed.

Red Armies Reach Dnieper River

Soviet Forces Are Ten Miles From City Of Kiev

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Sept. 24 —(AP)—The Red Army has reached the Dnieper in force, and other Soviet units northwest of Smolensk have reached the village of Tarasenki, three miles from the border of White Russia, Soviet dispatches said today.

(The German high command said the Russians were making heavy thrusts in efforts to cross the Dnieper, but asserted they were repulsed.

(Although the German high command failed to bear out the report, the Berlin radio said the Germans also were systematically evacuating heavy equipment, installations and civilians from their bridgehead across the Kerch Straits in the Caucasus.)

Smolensk Threatened

With the Red Army nine miles from Smolensk, after capturing Luzanovo, the Germans were in immediate danger of losing their central front citadel, which they have held since the early days of their smash toward Moscow.

As the Russians reached the Dnieper from Novomoskovsk, the Germans threw in everything they had in an attempt to halt the Red Army drive west of Poltava, capture of which was the high spot of yesterday's Russian forward surge.

"The Germans attempted to protect the Poltava district," said the Red Star dispatch, "from whence to some extent they could tie up the operations of our troops who advanced to the Dnieper from the left and right."

German forces are abandoning their Kuban bridgehead in the Caucasus, the Berlin radio announced to-day as surging Russian troops threatened to engulf Nazi positions along the Dnieper and still further north moved within artillery range of Smolensk.

Retreat Steadily.

In a broadcast recorded by Reuters News Agency the Nazi Transocean News Agency said:

"The Germans are systematically evacuating heavy equipment, important installations and civilians from the Kuban bridgehead."

This German admission followed by some 36 hours a Russian announcement of the capture of Anapa, the last Black Sea port held by the Nazis on the Taman Peninsula.

As a result of steady Russian advances in the Kiev sector, meanwhile, the situation of the German forces along the bend of the lower Dnieper appeared to be growing more critical by the hour.

(The BBC, quoting reports from Moscow, declared Russian spearheads have blasted through the outer defences of Kiev to within 10 miles of the Ukrainian capital, capture of which would unhinge the entire German defence system based on the Dnieper valley).

Kiev itself was in imminent danger from Russian columns operat-

Italy's Hill Trails, Town Roads Echo To Canadians' Tread

Moving rapidly up the Italian boot after successful landings with the British Eighth Army on beaches fronting the Straits of Messina, Canadians found their main opposition came from hilly Italian countryside and demolitions left by retreating German forces. Italian troops gave little opposition and the German army fell back to the north. At TOP a Canadian infantry unit marches through an Italian town in pursuit of the fleeing Germans, while a civilian, hands in pockets, watches stoically. Rough mountain terrain facing the Canucks is illustrated BELOW. Mule trains, used so successfully in Sicily, were again called into play and Ptes. W. H. Rose of Montreal and R. M. Corsica Evacuation Costly

By JOSEPH DYNAN—Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, Sept. 24—(AP).—The Germans are continuing their northward withdrawal on Corsica, a French communique said today. Allied forces have occupied Bonifacio and Porto Vecchio, while R.A.F. planes intercepted German attempts at an aerial evacuation.

Bastia, on the northern tip of the 112-mile long island, has been rendered almost useless to the enemy through continued air raids, the French High Command said. Several ammunition dumps and numerous tanks on a quayside, awaiting embarkation, were destroyed.

The occupied towns of Bonifacio and Porto Vecchio are at the southern end of the Napoleonic isle.

French Air Force units are participating in the operations.

Bag 7 Transports.

An Allied communique, issued earlier, told of intensification of the aerial blockade of the island 52 miles off the Italian boot. R.A.F. Beaufighters shot down seven of the German transports evacuating troops.

Meanwhile Gen. Charles de Gaulle, co-president of the French Committee of National Liberation, hailed liberation of Corsica as France's contribution to the United Nations' effort in "one war for one victory."

Gen. de Gaulle said Corsica enthusiastically supported the National Committee, and added in a broadcast that it was only for the committee to decide substitutions among Corsican officialdom and decide punishments for those replaced, once again asserting his view of the committee as the civilian authority over and above the military.

There are reports of sub-surface tensions within the committee over the issue of the treatment of former Corsican officials, some of whom are reported to have been freed by Gen. Henri Giraud after their imprisonment by Corsican patriots. Giraud is co-president with de Gaulle.

5th Victory Loan Bonds Issued In Two Maturities

OTTAWA, Sept. 24—(CP). — Finance Minister Ilsley announced today that Canada's Fifth Victory Loan, opening on October 18 with a minimum objective of $1,200,000,000, will be in two maturities—a 15-year-and-two-months issue and a three-year-and-six-months issue.

He said the new bonds will mature as follows:

An issue bearing interest at three per cent. offered at a price of 100 per cent. and maturing at 100 January 1, 1959, and a shorter term issue bearing interest at 1¾ per cent. at a price of 100 per cent. and maturing at 100 May 1, 1947. Both types of bonds will be dated November 1, 1943.

The bonds will be similar to those of previous loans except that the first interest coupon on the three per cent. bonds will be for a period of eight months, with coupons becoming due every six months thereafter. The reason for this is that the large volume of coupons due in May and November to millions of holders is creating a heavy task which, to some degree, will be lightened by the change of interest dates to January and July.

Conversion Bonds.

Mr. Ilsley emphasized that holders of Dominion of Canada bonds due and payable at par October 15, 1943, and holders of four per cent. bonds due October 15, 1945, which have

4 Hun Cities Blasted During Night

32 Bombers Missing
4 Canadian
1,500 Tons Dropped

By GLADWIN HILL,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Sept. 24 —(AP) — In their second heavy blow in 24 hours against Nazi industrial and transportation centres, a fleet of big R. A. F.- R. C. A. F. bombers blasted four German cities last night, heavily bombing the twin cities of Mannheim-Ludwigshagen and hitting Darmstadt, 35 miles northeast of Mannheim, and Aachen, near Cologne.

Thirty-two bombers are missing, four of them Canadian.

R. C. A. F. headquarters said Halifax and Lancaster bombers from the Canadian group were out in good strength for the second successive night.

Twin Cities Suffer.

The twin cities at the junction of the Rhine and Nekar rivers shuddered under the impact of 1,500 tons in 45 minutes—17 tons a minute less than the record load dumped on Hamburg in a sequel to the Wednesday night attack on Hanover.

American medium bombers carried the latest big-scale aerial assault into its third day with another daylight raid on the Evereux-Fauville air base 45 miles of Paris which they also hit Wednesday.

Other formations of bombers crossed the coast during the early afternoon to continue the daylight attacks.

It was the second big attack in less than three weeks on Mannheim-Ludwigshafen, Germany's second largest inland port through which lareg quantities of coal and other supplies are trans-shipped to Italy. Aachan, hit 16 times before, is a key railroad and highway point through which moves much of Hitler's supplies and reinforcements for the west wall.

It was the 59th attack upon the two cities, which last were subjected to a devastating R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. raid on the night of Sept. 5

1,400 Perished On Italian Ship

MAHON, Balearic Islands, Sept. 23.—(Delayed)—(AP). — Survivors of the Italian battleship Roma said to-day 1,400 crewmen were killed and some 500 others were burned seriously when a German plane scored a hit squarely in the vessel's stack.

Italy's newest and largest warship "exploded like a bomb," one sailor said, as she sped southward toward Malta shortly after the Italian capitulation.

Escorting cruisers and gunboats rescued about 700 of the survivors, some of whom were landed here, and a few others were picked up by launches from the Balearics.

An Italian cruiser and four gunboats are interned here and a German U-boat is reported to be keeping watch from adjacent waters to prevent any break for freedom.

Matera Falls to Eighth Army Torpedo Boats Raid Albania

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 24 —(AP)—The 5th Army launched a full-scale offensive against German mountain positions guarding the route to Naples, it was announced to-day, while Allied motor torpedo boats stabbed into Valona harbor on the coast of Albania and sank two enemy vessels.

Allied Gains On Italian Front

French Commando units, after a surprise landing on Corsica (1), seized the capital Ajaccio and now the Nazis are evacuating the island. Possession of Corsica would place the Allies within fighter range of a good part of northern Italy. U.S. and British forces fought their way along the Sorrento Peninsula to gain heights that dominate the Naples area (2). American Fifth Army units consolidated positions near Salerno (3) by taking Amalfi and Agropoli, while the British Eighth Army captured Gioia del Colle (4), 28 miles northwest of the naval base of Taranto.

On the land front, both the 8th and 5th Armies advanced steadily and captured two towns.

The 5th Army forces of Lt.-Gen. Mark Clark overran the island mountain town of Oliveto-Citra, 24 miles due east of Salerno and 10 miles southeast of Acerno, reported yesterday as having fallen. Matera, 36 miles northwest from Taranto, fell to British forces, Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's 8th Army, representing an advance of 11 miles from captured Ginosa.

Allied bombers last night ranged into Northern Italy to Pisa and attacked the railway yards and airfield, the Air Command announced.

The daring motorboat foray to the Albanian shore marked up an Allied move in a new direction against the German forces in southeastern and southern Europe.

Loaded With Shells

A naval announcement said the larger of the two vessels sunk was laden with ammunition. Shore batteries opened fire on the torpedo boats during their retirement, causing some damage to one vessel, but all returned to base without casualties, the announcement said.

"Along the 8th Army front steady progress has been made against light opposition." the ground communique said. "Considerable delays have been caused by demolitions."

The naval announcement said Allied vessels are still pouring reinforcements into the Salerno area and added that the 8th Army, which includes units of the Canadian 1st Division, is being supplied across the Straits of Messina.

An announcement said Altamura, 42 miles northwest of Taranto and 10 miles north of Matera, also had been captured by the 8th Army.

The drive against Naples, Italy's second greatest port, was launched after a period of consolidation of the Allied springboard and while the Germans were reported engaged in large-scale demolitions, apparently with the idea of making the harbor installations useless when the Allies occupy the city.

(The Allied-controlled Palermo radio, in a broadcast reported to-day to the United States Office of War Information, said Italians escaping from Naples reported residents of the city were battling Germans in the streets, firing at the enemy from the windows of their homes or using stones if without firearms.

("Citizens who rebel are shot without any inquiry by the German officials," the broadcast said. "Numerous Italian officers and soldiers have also been shot on grounds of non-collaboration.")

Driving northward into strongly-defended saw-toothed positions, Clark's troops encountered heavy artillery and mortar opposition as

Canadian Troops Are Believed Not In Close Contact With Nazi

By ALAN RANDAL—Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 24—(CP Cable).—Recent lack of mention of Canadian troops in action in Italy is taken in London to indicate that the Dominion's forces—part of Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's British Eighth Army—are not in close contact with the enemy at the present moment.

The Allied communique continues to mention "steady progress" by the 8th Army against light opposition as it drives northward from its original landing points at Reggio Calabria, on the toe of Italy, and Taranto, on the heel.

It is felt here that while advancing comparatively slowly now, the 8th Army is being regrouped for the next round in the battle for Italy when Canadians are likely once again to engage Germans at close quarters, as they did in the 38-day campaign in Sicily when Maj.-Gen. Guy Simonds' Canadian 1st Division drove northward through the big Italian island.

Gen. Montgomery has said more than once that he regards the Canadians as among his best fighters, so they will surely get the call when

200 Liberals Holding Caucus

OTTAWA, Sept. 24. — (CP).—Prime Minister Mackenzie King told reporters to-day at the conclusion of the morning session of the Liberal party caucus that he would not say whether or not a Dominion election was to be held this year.

Mr. King was asked a direct question about an impending election and one reporter said he understood that Mr. King had said some time ago that no election would be held this year.

"When did I say that?" Mr. King replied. "You show me where I ever said that."

Close to 200 members of the House and Senate attended the caucus, called by the Prime Minister, and it is expected their deliberations will continue throughout to-day and most of to-morrow. The caucus will be followed by a reorganization meeting of the National Liberal Federation beginning Monday.

Well Satisfied.

German Withdrawal Major Disaster

Russian Blows Bend Nazi Lines From Smolensk To Crimea

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The great withdrawal of Hitlerian forces on the Russian front has taken on so much of the nature of a rout as to rank with Dunkirk as one of the pivotal crises of the whole war.

What started out as a planned withdrawal has deteriorated so rapidly under the pile-driver blows of the Red forces that the German high command isf aced with the problem of whether the Nazi armies can reach their prepared defences west of the Dnieper River and avert a major disaster. If they do achieve that, they still must look back on one of the most costly retreats of history, both in men and material.

Line Cracks

As this is written the unbelievable Red armies are at the line of the Dnieper at several points. They're just about where they were two years ago when Hitler was smashing them back with arrogant assurances.

The whole unwieldly German right wing, stretching 750 miles from Smolensk in the north to the Crimea in the south, is shivering and cracking under the fierce Red assaults. The Russians are close to Kiev and Smolensk, strategic strong-points in the Nazi front.

This much must be said for the German retreat: Only generalship of the highest order could have preserved even the semblance of a line in face of the terrific Russian striking power. Morale of the Nazi troops also must have been steady to permit such an operation.

The question now is whether the Germans can steady themselves on the Dnieper line and hold. It would be rash to jump to the conclusion that they can't do this, especially with the fall rains coming to slow the Russians down.

Hitler's Break-up

Whether the Nazis hold on the Dnieper, we are witnessing the breaking up of Hitler's power.

All the signs are that the Fuehrer's role now is to battle for time—time which he hopes may in some way enable him to manoeuvre himself into a favorable position for a negotiated peace. It's a safe bet now that he would jump at any Allied terms which would give him a lease of life and allow him to return to his old boundaries. Why? Because the German war lords, who represent some of the best military brains in the world, know they are beaten.

So far as the Prussian militarists are concerned they wouldn't hesitate to sacrifice Hitler if it would save their own skins. Their trouble is that the Allies have decreed their elimination along with Hitler and his ism. Therefore they too must battle and try to find an avenue of escape.

Health Insurance Practical

Jolliffe Says Present Waste Covers Cost

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 24—(CP).—A system of health insurance for Canada will cost less than "what now is being wasted on patent medicines and avoidable diseases," E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario C.C.F. leader, said last night in an interview.

"Existing health and medical services are not adequate or satisfactory from the point of view of the general public or the doctors."

The remarks preceded a closed meeting at which Mr. Jolliffe outlined C.C.F. plans for health insurance. The press was excluded from the meeting, said Dr. Ivan Smith, president of the London Academy of Medicine, because "we want Mr. Jolliffe to feel free to discuss the question openly."

Health insurance alone is not enough, the C.C.F. leader said. All health services had to be extended and reorganized. "It is necessary to adopt a system which may be described correctly as 'socialized medicine.'"

This involved, he said, etsablishing regional and local health centres, increasing the number of doctors by deliberately subsidizing medical students, increased activity in preventive medicine by educational campaigns and by regular free medical examinations for all.

Appeal To Drew Over Firing

CCF Member Dismissed For Attending Convention

WINDSOR, Sept. 24 — (CP). — George A. Burt, regional director of the United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.) to-day appealed to Premier Drew of Ontario to intervene on behalf of A. Nelson Alles, C.C.F. member-elect of the Ontario Legislature for Essex North, who was dismissed from his job at the Ford Motor Company plant here Wednesday.

While there has been no statement from the company, Alles said he was told he was dismissed because he was absent from his work without permission. He said he had left to attend the Montreal convention of the Canadian Congress of Labor and a caucus of C.C.F. M.P.P's-elect at Toronto, although his request for leave of absence to do so had been denied.

Burt sent a telegram to the Premier saying that although 12 other Ford employees were delegates to the C.C.F. convention, Alles was the only one discharged. The telegram charged the company violated recent Selective Service regulations by dismissing Alles and added that the "view here is that the company is trying to discourage ordinary workers from participating in labor conventions, Provincial or Federal elections, by threatening discharge." The incidtnt "is causing considerable unrest among our members," the telegram said.

GUERILLA FORCES THREATEN GERMANS IN TRIESTE AND FIUM

Yugoslavs Enter Trieste Battle Hun Garrison Fighting Grows At 7 Places

Entire Italian Division Joins Partisans
Rail Facilities Destroyed
Rebels Use Captured Italian Artillery

LONDON, Sept. 24—(CP).—Strong Yugoslav guerilla forces were reported fighting German troops today in the streets of Trieste and threatening Fiume in an apparently co-ordinated drive against the two Italian ports at the northern end of the Adriatic.

The action was part of a series of new flare-ups by partisan armies against Nazi-occupying forces at scattered points along some 400 miles of the eastern Adriatic shore, all conceivably inaugurated with Allied approval.

Yugoslav sources said Slovene irregulars struck some 25 miles into Italy from the Yugoslavian border and penetrated Trieste, with oppressed inhabitants of that former Italian naval base joining their ranks to attack the Nazi garrison.

These same sources reported other Slovene formations had occupied Idria, Italian mountain town four miles east of the Yugoslav border and 28 miles northeast of Trieste, while farther to the east in northwestern Yugoslavia heavy fighting was said to be in progress along a 50-mile front between Bistrica (Feistritz) and Ljubljana.

The BBC, quoting a broadcast by the Algiers radio, said Fiume was being shelled by partisan artillery set up in Susak, 1½ miles away across the frontier.

In a broadcast heard by The Associated Press, however, the Budapest radio quoted a Zagreb dispatch to the effect the Germans had captured Susak.

The partisans, reported engaged around Trieste and Fiume, apparently were operating under command of the Montenegrin guerilla chieftain Josip Broz, familiarly known as "Tito," but the forces of Gen. Draja Mihailovic were said to be fighting further south in the interior.

News of the fighting recalled recent Cairo dispatches indicating Allied senior officers had gone to Yugoslavia to attempt to co-ordinate the activities of "Tito" and Mihailovic with Allied strategic plans.

2 Separte Armies.

Yugoslavs here, however, said that while there evidently was some co-operation between the two guerilla armies they were not operating under a joint command or with unified plans.

Madrid dispatches quoted Italian and Balkan reports as saying that not only Fiume but the whole German grip on the Istrian Peninsula, which juts into the northern Adriatic between Fiume and Trieste, was threatened by swift-moving, well-armed guerilla bands working in harmony with other partisan forces said to be holding Susak and part of the Adriatic coast, including the port of Split, 150 miles to the southeast.

Yugoslav authorities here reported other new fighting in Bosnia and along the Montenegrin-Albanian border.

Croation divisions, operating in a wide section of Bosnia around Banjaluka, were said to have destroyed German railway facilities at Nova Gradiska and Novakapel.

German planes and artillery, apparently striking at one major centre of resistance, virtually destroyed Novomesto on the Krk river, 50 miles north east of Fiume, this information said.

Near the Montenegrin border 56 miles above the Albanian town of Durazzo a force of Montenegrins was reported to have a large area under siege after capturing the Coasttoln Oinj and the summer resort of Petrovac.

cess he met reporters outside the Commons railway committee room where the sitting opened shortly after 10 o'clock this morning.

"There was a full-frank discussion of the existing political situation," he added.

A reporter asked the Prime Minister what importance could be attached to Prime Minister Churchill's comment in the British House early this week to the effect that all the Dominions had recently held or were about to hold general elections.

"You will have to ask Mr. Churchill," the Prime Minister replied.

So far as could be learned there was no discussion of election prospects at this morning's discussion which was thrown open to the members for whatever they wanted to say.

Members appeared in excellent spirits as they left the chamber and one said "I feel better about the whole thing than I have felt in months," but he did not say why.

Sat 5 Hours.

There was discussion of the possibility of a general election at preliminary caucuses held yesterday by the Liberal members and Senators from Ontario, Quebec and Saskatchewan, sitting separately.

Ontario members sat for nearly five hours, morning and afternoon, and Quebec members sat from eight o'clock last evening until well after midnight.

From both meetings came reports that the majority would not want an election for a year or more but would support any decision that might be reached by Mr. King.

Quebec Liberals attending the caucus were some 40 strong and one of their number said virtually all that were expected from that Province had attended. A number of those who have frequently voted against the Government refrained from attending the regular party caucuses, including Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, former transport minister, were absent.

Poultry Market Shows Activity

TORONTO, Sept. 24.— (CP).— The dressed poultry market has shown more activity, the Department of Agriculture reports. Prices being at ceiling levels remained unchanged. There has been considerable increase in receipts of chicken and fowl although not enough to take care of outside requirements. Dealers are storing some here for future commitments, these storage operations cutting down what otherwise would have been available for out-of-town buyers.

The quality of arrivals is fair but there are still Grade C arrivals in excess of demand.

Approximately 1,500 lbs. of fresh young turkeys, averaging about 12 lbs., and about 1,000 lbs., young Tom turkeys, 15 to 20 lbs., arrived on the market.

There has been a good demand for ducks which are scarce.

been called for payment at par on October 15, 1943, will be able to convert their holdings of those bonds into Fifth Victory Loan issues.

Bonds of these two issues will be taken in payment for Fifth Victory Loan Bonds at a price of 100⅛.

Mr. Ilsley expressed hope that all holders of the two earlier issues would take advantage of the conversion offer.

"The loan is not just another financial step in a series—it is a great blow to be struck at a powerful enemy by Canadians at home," he said. "It is larger and more important than any previous Victory Loan and I ask my fellow-Canadians to accept its challenge.

"Now, when all branches of our armed forces are at grips with the enemy, we at home must try to match their spirit as best we can. I urge Canadians to buy Fifth Victory Loan bonds to the utmost of their ability so that we may truly achieve the slogan of the Loan — 'Speed the Victory.'"

The new loan will have a minimum objective for individuals of $525,000,000.

The Fifth Victory Loan is just twice the size of the First Victory Loan of the present war, launched in June, 1941, with an objective of $600,000,000.

The $1,200,000,000 objective completely overshadows any First Great War loan undertaking. The First Victory Loan of that war in 1915, was for $50,000,000, and the second in 1918, was for $300,000,000.

the army comes to real grips with the enemy.

An advance by any army may be likened to the forward movement of a giant caterpillar.

Advance elements stretch out to the extent the main body of the army can allow. Then the rear must inch up before the forward elements can make a further push with lines of supply established behind them.

As the Germans withdraw this is the manner in which the 8th Army is making the headway which resulted today in the capture of Matera, 36 miles northwest of Taranto.

Correspondents in Italy have not been permitted to name Canadian units who landed there but it is taken for granted in London that they are the same as fought in Sicily with the 8th Army—that is, nine battalions of the 1st Division plus artillery, tank, machine-gun and other support.

William Stewart, Canadian Press war correspondent in Italy, said late last week that mountainous terrain which made fast movement of troops and supplies difficult was one of the greatest problems. His dispatch was dated Sept. 13 and since then there has been nothing through London from Canadian Press War Correspondents Stewart and Ross Munro to indicate the Canadians are actively engaged.

Munro's most recent dispatch, dated Sept. 18, told of the Canadians as they marched through Italian towns seeing devastation caused to railway communications by Allied bombing. He made no mention of any Canadian fighting, but it was obvious that as they move forward the Canadians must soon see action again.

Early last week a London dispatch said it was probable that units of the Canadian 1st Army Tank Brigade had joined Lt.-Gen. Mark Clark's Anglo-American 5th Army in its campaign from the Salerno beachhead south of Naples. But as that campaign ends its second week the report has not been confirmed. This brigade saw fighting in Sicily.

The German propaganda machine has several times stated Canadian troops are in the Salerno area, one such report asserting the 1st Division had been moved by sea from the tip of Italy to Salerno to join Gen. Clark. But this also lacks any confirmation and Allied newspapermen with Gen. Clark have not mentioned Canadians as being in the area.

well as minefields, and a spokesman said they were making slow progress.

"The fighting is bitter and severe," he said.

"The enemy obviously intends to hold onto Naples as long as possible."

The attack, which had been in full progress from the first light of day yesterday, also was supported strongly by artillery and mortars.

Ferocious Attack

While Clark threw nearly his full Anglo-American strength into the ferocious attack, the Germans were forced to concentrate almost entirely in that area and the British 8th Army in the south was able to advance swiftly and almost at will.

"The enemy has had to reconstruct his whole line and put strength where it is needed," said the spokesman. "The 8th Army has been able to advance 30 miles northward because of Gen. Clark's operations."

(The German communique broadcast at Berlin said strong forces had attacked at Salerno and Contursi to the southeast. It claimed the Contursi attack was repelled but admitted that the attack still was in progress in the Salerno area.)

The opening of the Adriatic to Allied naval forces was vividly pointed up by the foray into Volona Harbor across the Straits from the Italian heel. This was the first time Allied naval forces had struck in that direction since the fighting in Albania and Yugoslavia in 1941 when Admiral of the Fleet Sir Andrew Cunningham's cruisers and destroyers made daring dashes into the Straits. The bold raid coincided with the campaign of Allied forces in the Middle East who have seized Samos and two islands in the Dodecanese, Kos and Leros.

The communique said two enemy vessels were hit beside the two sunk.

Air Battles Numerous.

In the air, Allied aircraft still were striking heavily at enemy troop movements and concentrations back of the Salerno battle area. Medium bombers hit at roads and road junctions around Cancello and in the area of Capua.

Fighters and fighter bombers patrolled the Avellino and Venevento areas, smashing at motor transports, gun positions and bridges. Both the tactical and strategic air forces paced the ground attack in the Salerno region. Bombers blasted a bridge at Cancello and fighters wiped out 10 motor trucks on the Avellino-Benevento road.

Dive-bombers were credited with breaking up a German counter-attack with a barrage of 500-pound bombs which fell among infantry east of Salerno.

Mosquito intruders also plastered parked aircraft at Viterbo airdrome north of Rome.

French Fleet Near Corsica Carried Invasion Forces

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 24—(AP).—Two French cruisers—including one recently based at Martinique—six destroyers and three submarines helpe land the French forces now driving the Germans from Corsica, it was announced today.

The disclosure came as Gen. Henri Giraud, French commander-in-chief, declared on h return from a two-day flying trip to Corsica that he expected all the Nazis on the island t be ousted or slain within 10 or 15 days.

Among the French ships participating in the invasion landing, an official announcement said, was the 6,500-ton training cruiser Jeanne d'Arc, one of the naval units based at Martinique before that Caribbean island severed its ties with Vichy.

From Martinique.

It was the first information that any of the vessels from the Martinique squadron were operating in Mediterranean waters.

The large destroyers Le Fantasque and Le Terrible, which have attained speeds of 43 to 45 knots, also were used to run troops into Ajaccio almost under the noses of the Germans. Both formerly were stationed at Dakar.

Other ships which participated were the 7,600-ton cruiser Montcalm, and the submarines Casablanca, 1,479 tons. The Casablanca, which escaped to North Africa from Toulon last fall, is one of the world's fastest submarines.

Through his spokesman, Gen. Rene Chambe, Giraud paid high tribute to the Corsicans who planned and executed the military revolt to rid the island of the Nazi invaders.

Chambe said Giraud flew to Corsica last Tuesday night against the advice of his staff that the trip was too hazardous.

Arm 10,000 Corsicans

(Gen. Charles de Gaulle, co-president with Gen. Giraud of the French Committee of National Liberation, was quoted by the Algiers radio yesterday as saying French forces now were ready to take part in the Battle of Italy.

("The whole of France rejoices because Corsica is basking in the sun of liberation," De Gaulle said, "but the battles in Corsica are only an episode in the Battle of the Mediterranean.")

Capt. Colonna D'Istria, young scion of one of Corsica's oldest families, organized the revolt, Chambe said. On Giraud's orders he landed on the island in February of this year from a French submarine and maintained constant radio contact with Giraud in Algiers until the actual fighting began.

Today the captain is ill in an Ajaccio hospital where he was decorated by Giraud just before he left for Africa.

Chambe said that enough tommy-guns had been dropped by parachute or landed by submarines on the island since February to arm 10,000 Corsicans.

When the French troops first began to land on Corsica, Chambe said, the Germans attacked with tanks in an attempt to capture Ajaccio. The Corsican partisans, however, beat off the attack at Cauro and the Germans started a retreat which never stopped.

The Corsicans all wore helmets with the initials "FT" (Franc Tireur) and knew if the Germans caught them they would be shot.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 24 — (CP). — Substantial losses in early wheat trading yesterday on the Winnipeg Grain Excxhange was partially recovered in later dealings and at the close values were off 1 to 1⅜ cents.

Wheat futures broke shortly after the opening bell on heavy selling influenced by unconfirmed rumors that the Federal Government was considering changes in grain trading policy. However, good general buying made its appearance in the market and declines were checked and losses were almost a regained.

Rye futures broke in sympathy with wheat and at one point values dropped 1 cent. However, as in the wheat, losses in rye were wiped ou when American houses re-entered the market on the buying side. Final quotations were 1 to 1⅛ cent down.

Golf Club Plans Field Day

The annual closing field day of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club will be held Saturday afternoon September 25, with all available members taking part in what appears to be the last handicap sweepstake of the season. At 6:30 Mrs. Hugh Mason has arranged a dinner which the members are certain to tackle with relish.

Excellent prizes have been secured by the committee for the low gross in each of three flights—handicaps of one to ten—eleven to twenty—twenty-one to thirty-six. Prizes of equal value will be awarded for the low net in each of the above mentioned groups also. A Tombstone tournament will be the feature of the day. In this tournament a player armed with a handicap and a small stake on which his name is printed starts around the course and plays as far around the second time as his handicap permits then drives his stake into the spot where his last shot stopped rolling and returns to the clubhouse. The player who manages to get the furthest distance around the course the second time is the winner.

Another prize has been set aside for the players using the least number of putts on the first nine holes. Three more valuable prizes will be awarded on blind scores for the eighteen holes.

The Club championship playoff between Mr. R. Abbott and Mr. S. Payne will take place Sunday morning and afternoon—thirty-six holes of championship golf anyone should enjoy watching. It is rather difficult to predict in advance which one of these gentlemen will be the winner this year, both having shared the honors in the past, but although Mr. Abbott carries into the field years of experience as a campaigner, Mr. Payne let it be known last year that he was taking a back seat for no one.

No Air Lost In Plastic Tube

Yes, we'd like to go on looking at Mildred Cook, too, but the story is about the plastic inner tube she's holding at the Glenn L. Martin plant, Baltimore, Md. Built entirely of a new plastic material called "Marvinol," the tube is said to excel rubber in many ways. Plane-builder Martin himself said that Marvinol, developed in his laboratories, is "destined to outmode rubber in auto inner tubes as completely as the auto itself outmoded the horse and buggy." There is no loss of air from the plastic tube, whereas rubber tubes lose about two pounds a week.

6 Rugby Teams In Action On Saturday

(By The Canadian Press)

Hamilton fans have an opportunity Saturday to test the theory that it doesn't matter for whom you cheer at a football game, just so you cheer. They'll root for two strange teams while the home club performs 50 miles away.

This unusual situation resulted when Toronto Indians and Toronto Balmy Beach, slated to meet under floodlights in Toronto next Wednesday, decided instead to meet in Hamilton Saturday. Meanwhile, Hamilton's flying Wildcats invade Toronto to meet Coach Ted Morris' Navy entry.

In the third game on Saturday's Ontario Rugby Football Union card, Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes meet Coach Dave Sprague's Combines at Ottawa.

In each case, teams which lost their opening games last week will be pitted against clubs which won on opening day.

Ottawa Tough

Of the three, the stoutest contest should develop at Ottawa. Combines dropped a 25-12 verdict to Beaches last Saturday but members of the Toronto club were unanimous after that conflict that the Capital City Club played for keeps and will be hard to beat when they reach peak form.

Beaches will be solid favorites at Hamilton. Ed Jakubowski, injured against Ottawa, probably will be the only casualty. The game will mark the first appearance of Annis Stukus against Indians since he left that club for Beaches.

Flying Wildcats (the adjective denotes the sprinkling of R.C.A.F. personnel on the team) will be similarly favored over Navy at Toronto. Regarded as a definite threat for league honors following their one-sided victory over Indians, the Mountain City entry will be strengthened by the return of Doug Smith, former Kitchener-Waterloo Panther star who was kept on the sidelines last week by a bad ankle.

Cheese Output Shows Decline

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 24 — (ENS).— The continued decline in production was seen again on the Cheese Board last night as thirty factories from the Campbellford and Peterborough district offered for sale a total of 2,130 boxes for a decline of 76 from the production of the same plants two weeks ago. All of the cheese was white and ten buyers divided the offerings at the fixed price of 20 cents f.o.b. Campbellford. Buyers took the following quantities:

W. S Cook & Son 220, H. Tremaine for Swift Canadian 189, W. S. Stiles for P. W. McLagan Ltd. 205, Roy Walker for Olive & Dorion, Montreal, 209, W. D. Bedell for A. A. Ayer Co. 212, P. J. Murphy for Hodgson & Rowson 220, W. H. Bailey for Lovell & Christmas 226, A. J. Meyers for Flavelles Ltd. 219, V. Spencer for Belleville Cheddar Cheese 220, G. Anderson for Silverwoods 210.

Offerings of cheese were as follows:

Avonbank 98, Beaver 76, Brae 23, Crow Bay 74, Cedar Creek 75, Empire 77, Hoards 76, Ideal 165, I.X.L. 22, Kimberley 52, Menie 103, Percy (Warkworth) 69, Rylstone 94, Stanwood 24, Trent Bridge 83, Trent Valley 127, Woodlands 70, Maple Leaf 79, Bobcaygeon 71, Burnley 93, Daisy D 86, Indian River 47, Killarney 69, Ormonde 74, Pine Grove 65, Selwyn 45, Warsaw 67, Warminster 47, Oakdale 20, Port Perry Creameries 50.

Three Riots Carded For Monday

Rough-House Richard Hogan is wrestling fans' No. 2 Public Enemy around these parts. They still reserve the No. 1 spot for John Katan. But the way Hogan is going these days even Katan will have to look to his laurels if he is to keep Hogan from ousting him as the Rough-House King. Hogan has been matched with that spectacular piece of ebony musculature Gentleman Jack Clayborne for next Monday night. If Diabolical Dick can flatten Clayborne (and he certainly won't get away with it if the fans here can stop him) the logical thing would be to match him with Katan and settle this "bar room title" once and for all. On the other hand, if the splendid negro wrestler can inspire himself to a decisive win over Hogan, he has the assurance of the Ontario Athletic Commission that it will be "suggested" to Katan that he give the negro that long-delayed return bout. The situation is full of tense possibilities for Monday night's battle and the contest itself should be one of the hardest the Brock Arena mat has held.

A newcomer in the person of Joe Christie of California will be introduced in the semi-final and he will wrestle Strongman Bunny Dunlop. Dunlop is still challenging all other strongmen of Canada to match him in the power department, but maybe the arrival of Christie will silence some of Dunlop's boasting.

Doc. Tony Felice, who is one of the greatest fan-disturbers we have yet seen, comes back against tough little Joe Maich of Brantford. Felice is a weird type, but in spite of his Serbian bandit methods, the Yugo-Slav heavy is in constant demand in the bigger wrestling centres.

COBOURG

Sgt. J. Creighton Dies In Crash

COBOURG, Sept. 24 (ENS) — Sergeant Air Gunner John Creighton of Cobourg, was killed in a flying accident a few days ago in Nova Scotia, his wife here has been advised in a telegram from Ottawa. He was 28 years of age. It is believed that five others, who were with him, went to their deaths when their plane crashed during night flying.

He was born in Belfast, Ireland, and came to Canada 14 years ago. He enlisted in the R.C.A.F. at Toronto in 1941 and was married two years ago while a member of the Air Force. He graduated from Mountain View. He is survived by his mother in Ireland; his wife, who was Mary Boswell of Cobourg, and one child. He will be buried in Cobourg Union cemetery on Monday afternoon.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

(By The Canadian Press)

Described by the London Daily Mail as "the most remarkable in the history of the game," a cricket match overseas was practically turned into a razzing baseball bout by teams of the U.S. 8th Air Force who, with their supporters, applied a liberal coating of Bronxism to the astonishment of reserved British bystanders.

The inter-station match was attended by British coaches and cricket columnists who raised the proverbial eye-brow at the cheers "and loud and derisive comments." Three British airmen had been inveigled into teaching the Americans some of the rudiments of the crease sport, to which the visitors added former diamond skill bleacher-style. Britons were left both startled and amused, according to the cabled report.

The Americans proved adept with the bat. Top scorer was Maj. John R. Mitchell from Maryland who ran up a total of 60 runs. There was no record of which team won the game. Or why.

In the first of the Pacific Coast League final play-offs, San Francisco Seals disposed of Seattle by the narrow margin of 6-5, with the winners staging a four-run rally in the last half of the ninth to work out a victory.

Navy Wins

Once again the Navy nine administered a trouncing to the Springhill Fence-busters by winning the fifth game of the Nova Scotia Senior baseball finals 13-2 last night. The tars are now within one game of the Provincial title with a 3-2 standing in the best-in-seven series.

With a possibility of finishing fourth or better in the National League standing, the Pittsburg Pirates yesterday voted 30 allotments of their World Series split to Manager Frankie Frisch, all team regulars, the trainer, two groundsmen, and the club secretary. Eight new players were awarded half shares.

Golf Winner.

Mrs. J. C. Whitelaw of Laval-Sur-Le-Lac came through with her third victory in the Seigniory Club's 12th annual invitation golf tourney yesterday by completing her two-days' play with 177 for 36 holes, 18 strokes ahead of the runner-up, Mrs. G. E. Hackney of the Seigniory Club.

William Boyd McKechnie yesterday was signed by the Cincinnati Reds to manage the club in 1944 for his seventh year as pilot, the longest term in service for any manager in the 59-year history of the club. McKechnie is said to have taken a cut in salary in view of the reduced patronage this year.

Three Teams Out.

Three college football teams of the Pacific Conference yesterday jointly laid down their helmets for the duration, leaving only four of the 10 original schools in the loop. University of Idaho, Washington State, and Oregon State withdrew in a body, and the Conference is expected to fold.

As a result of an indefinite suspension by the Michigan Racing Association following positive saliva tests on their horses, Trainers W. G. Sparks and Bruce R. McIntyre were yesterday barred from racing their stables at Thistle Down Track in Ohio. The Commission of that State recognizes rulings of the Michigan body.

COBOURG

Court Acquits Three Charged With Stealing

COBOURG, Sept. 24 —(ENS)— Breakdown of the Crown's identification, resulted in the acquittal yesterday of Norman Spence, Henry Peterson and Gerald Gouldby all of Toronto. They were charged jointly with breaking and entering and theft at Orono Creamery on August 18.

They were arrested when some "hot" money, taken from the creamery, turned up in Toronto.

Magistrate R. B. Baxter presided.

James Haxton, manager of the Danforth and Coxwell Bank of Commerce, Toronto, testified that his teller, Miss Florence Moore, had brought to him five two-dollar bills on the morning of August 20. Miss Moore had recognized the numbers on the bills as being listed as money wanted by the police. The bills had been turned in by a Mr. Babcock in payment of a telephone account of Morris Steinburg.

Identified Bills

Harry Babcock, Toronto car salesman, identified the telephone account slip and the five two dollar bills. He said that Steinburg had given him the phone bill to pay on August 20 and that he had taken them to the bank. Witness described a car transaction on August 18 in which he sold a Buick coupe to a man whom he identified in court as Patterson, $50 being paid as a deposit and $275 to be paid on delivery. Babcock added that he didn't complete the transaction as the final payment had been made to Steinberg.

Morris Steinburg told the court that two youths had paid him $275 in bills of small denominations for the Buick, some of the bills being old and some new. Steinberg was unable to identify the men who had paid him the money. The sales slip was not signed "Peterson" but "Jackson." Witness told of giving Babcock the five $2 bills to pay his telephone account.

Asked by Crown Attorney Harry Deyman if he could identify the five $2 bills as part of the money he had accepted in payment for the Buick, Steinberg said that he could not, declaring that he was accustomed to carrying large sums of money and therefore could not be sure.

At this point Mr. Deyman said that he would offer no further evidence, in view of the testimony of the last witness, and the accused were discharged.

Red Birds Win

COLUMBUS, O. —(AP)—In the third set-to of the semi-final playoffs in the American Association last night, Columbus Red Birds measured the league-champion Milwaukee Brewers 6-1 when Preacher Roe, recently purchased by Pittsburgh Pirates, fanned 10 of the visitors. The Birds now stand 2-1 in the games of the series.

The Pulpwood Crisis

The acute shortage of manpower for the pulpwood industry is one more crisis which throws a bright light on our lack of a satisfactory manpower policy. Pulpwood is one of Canada's most important products, and in normal circumstances about half a million men are engaged in producing it. It provides newsprint for Canadian and American papers, and it is used extensively in manufacturing articles vital to the war effort and to civilian life. But at present this industry is threatened, for no men are available for work, and it is not high on the priority list of manufactures.

However, the Government appears to be about to make a test-case of the pulpwood industry, and it is possible that some re-adjustment of our manpower allotment may result.

Our trouble in Canada has been that we have had no over-all planning of our war effort which has seen to it that manpower is available for all essential work; our individual departments have done fine individual work, but the competition for manpower has been of the dog-eat-dog variety. The armed services want every man they can get; war industry wants every man it can get; many industries, like the pulpwood industry, have been stripped of workers because they had no one to defend them, and their claim on manpower was unheeded.

We have proceeded with our war effort as though there were no bottom to the manpower barrel; in our nation of eleven millions, the bottom is soon reached. We have taken on everything that we were asked to take on, not only in the provision of trained men in all three services, but in industry and agriculture as well. Our generosity of spirit has been admirable, but we have not shown good sense or realism.

The farm labour situation has been acute for almost two years; farm labour has much to do with pulpwood, for many a farmer has been accustomed to do some winter work for that industry. If farmers are taken for the army both agriculture and the pulpwood industry suffer in consequence; neither form of work has a high enough priority to demand exemption for its men. Yet without food and without pulpwood we shall be in a serious situation; people must eat, and they must know the news, unless national morale is to take a sickening downward drop.

Complaints about the lack of over-all planning have been made now for two years, with no appreciable result, and the competitive spirit among the various ministries has pulled the country this way and that; but now it appears that a revision of the system of priorities, at least, may be expected. Pulpwood, important in itself, may be merely the final problem which will bring the realization that our manpower resources are not limitless, and that we can only do our best when each man is in the place where his effort counts for most.

The Woman Who Named "It"

Elinor Glyn is dead. That news will convey little meaning to most of the younger generation, but when they are told that she was one of the earliest writers of those shockers called "sex novels" they may recall having heard her name. She was born on the Island of Jersey 78 years ago, of Canadian parents, they being Douglas and Elinor Sutherland of Toronto. Such exotic flowers do not usually blossom from Canadian seed.

As a young woman Elinor Glyn led the fashionable life of her time, and had her full share of adventures. She had beautiful red hair and green eyes, and plenty of the quality which she later made famous as "it". In her later years she was wont to recall how on one occasion four young Englishmen of high birth and fortune quarrelled over her, and then leapt into a lake in full evening dress. A girl who could inspire such excesses of devotion was no ordinary clay. Among her suitors she numbered a Duke and a millionaire, but she did not accept either of them. She married, instead, a man called Clayton Glyn.

She wrote several novels, all closely related in theme. She delighted in tales of violent passion, high life and exotic surroundings. Her first great success was with Three Weeks, which she produced in 1907. It was condemned by moralists and clergy in the strongest terms, and it sold like hot-cakes; it was republished in many languages, and had a long life in the Tauchnitz library, which made it familiar all over the Continent. Six Days was a similar success; she provided the stories for the most successful of Rudolph Valentino's screen appearances. But it was in 1927 that Mrs. Glyn created her greatest furore with It, a term which was soon accepted as a synonym for sex-appeal. Many movie-goers will remember that Clara Bow was widely advertised as "the It girl".

Much of the condemnation of Elinor Glyn's books came from people who had obviously not read them. They were not salacious or suggestive except to readers who had prurient minds. Undoubtedly they laid extreme stress on physical passion, and faithfully urged upon the public the belief that romantic love is the most important thing in life, and that it should be sought at whatever cost. But to a reader of tolerably well-balanced mind Mrs. Glyn's raptures were either amusing, or to be enjoyed with a large pinch of salt. As a writer she possessed great, if uneven, talent, which she did not trouble to discipline; but she knew how to tell a story, and in that she was the superior of some of her more eminent contemporaries. She gave much pleasure, and her novels will serve as examples of the imaginative fare most popular during her era.

About Lighting Furnaces

The Minister of Munitions and Supply has said that the time for lighting furnaces must be decided by thermometer readings, and not by Government order. That is plain common sense, and it should not have been necessary for the Minister to say it. But it appears that many people have an idea in their heads that they may not light their fires until they are told to do so, and that they may be penalized if they disobey. Precisely how they think that the Government could enforce such an order, even if it existed, we do not know, but the belief is quite widely accepted.

It is by means of such simplicity—not to call it stupidity—one the part of a section of the public that Fascism grows. Great numbers of people have entirely baseless ideas of governmental power, and never doubt that a thing must be so if they are told that the government has ordered it. Public discipline is one thing, but this sort of sheepishness is quite another. Anyone who thinks about the matter for two minutes must see that the government cannot prevent him from burning coal which he has bought for his own use. He is free to light his furnace when he likes.

Sensible citizens, however, will wait as long as they can before they begin using up their coal, unless they belong to the small and fortunate minority who have their winter's supply already in the bin. The coal shortage is severe, and every lump of the precious stuff must be made to do its full work. There is little wisdom in lighting the furnace when putting on an extra coat would give the same warmth.

Although few private homes have their full supply of coal, many public buildings and office buildings have their winter stock on hand. There is no reason why employees should be uncomfortable under these circumstances; a low fire now would warm up the buildings in no time.

It must be stressed, however, that employers cannot be expected to heat their buildings so that female employees may be comfortable in light summer clothes. The girl who shivers and takes on a blue tinge because she is wearing too few clothes may easily warm herself by putting on a sweater. Sweaters are fashionable and attractive, and it is no hardship to wear one during the autumn.

We shall do much to beat the fuel shortage by using our common sense.

Older women are being accepted in war industry. Ah yes; aunts in our plants.

It isn't climbing the ladder of fame that makes men dizzy, so much as the looking down.

Britain's Railways Supply Russia

By
JOHN R. HIND

Note: Mr. Hind for past 10 years has been responsible for official bulletins issued by Britain's railways. Since the outbreak of war has carried out similar work for Britain's Railway Executive Committee. Well-known contributor to national and trade papers on transport matters and author of "The Book of the Railways."

As soon as it was known that the transport of war supplies for Russia could pass through Iran, British railway experts travelled by air to investigate the requirements of the Iran Railways to enable greatly increased tonnages to be handled. Their reports were quickly approved and recommendations carried out, and cargoes of necessary equipment, as well as medium and heavy locomotives and wagons were collected or constructed and despatched. Locomotives were withdrawn from traffic on the London and North Eastern and London Midland and Scottish Railways.

The London Midland and Scottish Railway provided locomotives of their standard Class 8, 2-8-0 freight tender type, which, before being sent to the Middle East and with the assistance of the Great Western and Southern Railways, were equipped with oil burning apparatus for using oil fuel. The locomotives are fitted with Westinghouse pumps and brake valves so as to be able to work trains equipped with air brakes, but retained the steam brake on the engines and tenders.

Two-8-0 freight tender engines to the London Midland and Scottish design were also supplied to Turkey by Britain's Ministry of Supply, being shipped in parts for assembly in the Turkish Railway Administration Workshops at Sivas.

The gradients on which these locomotives are working are heavy, involving long banks of one in sixty and even one in forty. On the one in sixty gradients the engines are loaded up to 450 tons. They pull fitted freight trains up to 450 tons, and passenger and mixed trains are also hauled.

The coal in use in Turkey has a low calorific value and a high ash content, as well as a tendency to powder. At first steaming was difficult and it was found necessary to alter the blast pipes. After a slight modification good results were obtained, and for their size the engines did excellent work. These locomotives soon became popular with their drivers abroad, and the neat design, clean lines, workmanship and finish of all parts were much admired.

Several diesel locomotives fitted with 350 h.p. engines with electric drive in the main, identical with those which have been developed by the London Midland and Scottish Railway and used in Britain in considerable numbers for shunting purposes, have also been supplied for use in places where the steam locomotives would introduce fire hazard, or where the supply of suitable water is difficult.

Special features have been introduced to enable these locomotives to work in dusty conditions and high atmospheric temperatures.

The London and North Eastern Railway also withdrew locomotives from traffic; 92 of Class 0.4 were supplied, formerly a Great Central Railway design by Mr. J. G. Robinson. These 2-8-0 engines weigh, with their tenders, 120 tons in working order. Their cylinders have a diameter of 21 inches and a stroke of 26 inches, and their tractive effort is 31,326 lbs.

These locomotives are one of the most numerous freight locomotives classes possessed by the L.N.E.R. and are amongst the most useful and powerful. During World War I this type was chosen, because of the high tractive effort, the extreme simplicity of design and accessibility, as the standard freight locomotive for services with Britain's forces overseas.

At the present time 92 of these engines have gone overseas, and of these 61 served in the last war.

In addition to locomotives, the British Railways undertook the construction of 1,000 steel-framed open 12-tons wagons, which were built in the record time of ten weeks in the works of the Southern Railway. The London and North Eastern Railway helped by cutting wagon timbers from logs and supplying ironwork details for the wagons, and the London Midland and Scottish Railway provided stampings of the wagon parts and considerable quantities of timber.

Each wagon had 1,792 parts, every piece being numbered to correspond with photographs previously sent overseas, to assist assembly at destination. Rubber springs were also provided to save wear and tear. 130 Men, 19 boys and 22 women workers, each averaging 67 hours per week, assembled the wagons at the rate of one every 37 minutes.

A report received from a South African Unit who assembled the wagons abroad recorded high appreciation of the manner in which the various component parts were jigged and the able way in which the wagon parts were packed.

No time was lost in assembling the wagons, and their assembly at a rate of 45 minutes each was only achieved by the good workmanship at the Southern Railway Operating Company with no workshop facilities, only a limited number of trained artisans and no wagon builders on its establishment.

The twenty working weeks from the date that manufacture of the first wagon began to the time that the last wagon was actually in service 12,000 route miles away is thought to constitute a world record.

Is The End Near?

When will the war end?

Everybody is groping for the answer to this question. Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that no Allied merchant ship has been sunk in the last four months. This looks like a very good sign, because just before the end of the last war the German U-boat campaign flopped.

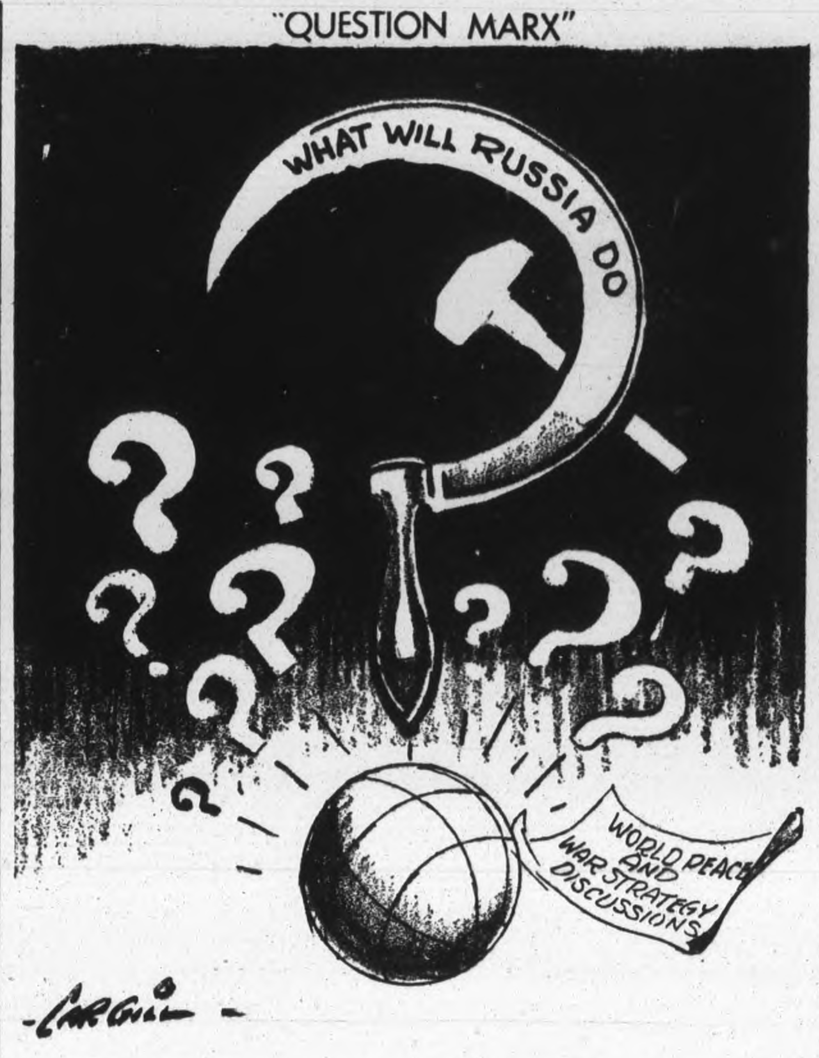
Here's a little story, which can be taken as indicating that the end is near.

In the last war a Sarnia district man, who was a prisoner in Germany, wrote home to his family instructing them not to send him any more food parcels, because he was now receiving a plentiful supply of food of good quality. Six months later the war ended.

Recently the daughter of a prominent Sarnia business man received a letter from her fiance who is in a German prison camp as a result of the Dieppe raid, telling her to discontinue food parcels as food is now quite plentiful.

Perhaps we will have a real armistice celebration in 1944.—Kitchener Record.

"QUESTION MARX"



Washington Spotlight

(By J. F. SANDERSON, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (CP)—An exploratory conference of five or six of the United Nations on the broad question of post-war commercial aviation is scheduled to be held in Washington before the end of the year. Canada will be represented.

The U.S. War Production Board reports that some of its employees are quitting their jobs and going back home to permanent employment, believing the war just about ended and wanting to get settled while they can. This general exodus has been pronounced since the Allied victories in North Africa and Sicily.

Other wartime agencies in Washington report they haven't experienced any exodus of workers.

STILL FAINT ONE

Two important events occurred here this week, each vitally important to the progress of the war and the peace to follow. In the first place, the House of Representatives passed a resolution pledging the United States to participate in post-war collaboration with her Allies. Secondly, Congress apparently is in the mood to accept the advice of military leaders and order the drafting of fathers of military age to start Oct. 1.

The post-war resolution now goes to the senate, where it may be pigeon-holed for a time in committee, but its ultimate acceptance seems assured.

The best quip on the 360-29 vote by which the resolution was accepted by the House, was made by Claire Boothe Luce, the acid-tongued Republican from Connecticut who said:—

"Isolationism is dead but I don't think that it's buried yet. That accounts for the faint odor around sometimes."

On top of enormous domestic demand, the United States may have to ship coal to Italy this winter. The problem of supply may not be serious, but shipping is another matter.

Meanwhile, American coal operators see no acute shortage of bituminous ahead but the anthracite situation may be tight.

LIFE IN WASHINGTON

At an army show here, a demonstration of weapons and equipment to show war bond purchaser what their money is buying, a grim-faced, fully-equipped sentry marched up and down outside a prefabricated metal hut.

A man and boy approached.

"Daddy," the youngster asked, "why must he guard an empty, tin hut?"

"Son," the man replied, "this is Washington. Without that guard, someone would be sure to move into it."

The department of agriculture has prepared a confidential report showing vastly increased demands for American-produced food next year—much greater than the demand this year which, in turn, is greater than the record production of 1942. The increases are due to military needs and relief programs abroad.

A Confusion of Tongues

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

One of Mr. Donald Gordon's aides recently told us that with the end of the war in Europe, and perhaps even before that, "we should, and I believe we shall, follow the procedure of removing restrictions as soon as we find ourselves able to do so." Now another lieutenant publicly declares that "planned economy, based on a methodical and progressive plan, will assure the best possible development of natural resources, industry and commerce when the war is over." Both these officials cannot be right. Both cannot be expressing the views of Mr. Gordon himself, the head of the Wartime Prices and Trades Board and the man who is most concerned in keeping on good terms with his public.

The first quotation above is from an address delivered before an Ottawa service club ten days ago by E. G. Burton, Retail Trade Administrator under Mr. Gordon. The second is part of a speech delivered on Monday to the Eighth Congress of La Federation des Chambres de Commerce des Jeunes de Quebec at Sorel by Hon. Cyrille Vaillancourt, M.L.C.

Mr. Vaillancourt, who manages the Federation of the Credit Unions of this province, became special adviser to Mr. Gordon last May, particularly on matters affecting French Canada. He was one of Canada's delegates to the United Nations Food Conference at Hot Springs. Mr. Burton is General Manager of the Robert Simpson Company Limited in Toronto and on loan to the Prices Board.

It would be interesting to know which of them speaks the mind of his chief when addressing commercial or service bodies. Mr. Burton believes that "within a very short period after hostilities cease in Europe we should give serious consideration to the removal of most of our restrictions." Mr. Vaillancourt declares that "the war will have proven that planned economy is superior to economic liberalism in obtaining a production superior and better adapted to real needs, and a more rational and equitable distribution." He looks upon planned economy as a "social necessity."

The future of wartime controls will not be determined by all or any of the Prices Board personnel but by whatever government is in office when the war ends. What most people expect is a gradual removal of these controls, the pace being as fast as conditions will permit. That pace may not be as rapid as Mr. Burton has suggested but when Chairman Gordon's special adviser, Mr. Vaillancourt, tells us that controls must be perpetuated—since that is what is meant by a planned economy—we are left in doubt as to the kind of freedom, certainly as to the degree of freedom, for which we are pouring out so much blood and treasure. Conflicting policies enunciated by Mr. Gordon's assistants do not, moreover, facilitate the program of the Prices Board.

Meantime the continued support of organized business for unrelaxed maintenance of wartime price controls and stabilized living costs, to brake the upward swing of prices and avert the danger of inflation, has been reiterated in a telegram to Prime Minister King from R. P. Jellett, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. The majority of business men favor careful, selective and gradual lifting of necessary wartime controls and regimentation eventually, but only when the danger is clearly past of inflation from a runaway spiral of soaring prices and wages.

It may not be possible to lift all controls for several years after the war, including the Pacific phase, is over. Until then it is sound policy to exert every effort to "hold the line" against present and future threats to the price-wage anti-inflation curb. Mr. Jellett's message should be welcome support for whatever measures the Government may have to take to hold a firm rein on the situation.

Letter To The Editor

THE NAME, "CANADA"

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—This is in answer to your request in yesterday's paper regarding the origin of the term "Canada." I hope it will fill the bill. It is taken from the Encyclopaedia of Canada.

"Canada, the name applied to the northern half of the North American continent, excepting Newfoundland and Alaska. There have been many fanciful derivations suggested for it, one from the Portuguese, another from the Spanish, and one even from Sanskrit; but the word is almost certainly derived from the Huron-Iroquois Kanata, signifying a town. It is first met with in the narrative of Jacques Cartier in 153[illegible], where it seems to have reference to the Indian village of Stadacona. The name was thence applied to the St. Lawrence river (which is described as "that famous river of Canada" in Robert's Merchants' map of commerce in 1638), and so to the whole country. It became the popular designation for the colony of New France, as distinct from Acadia; and it continued in popular usage after the British conquest, though from 1763 to 1791 the official description of the colony was "the province of Quebec." In 1791 the term Canada came into official usage with the passage of the Canada Act (or Constitutional Act), which divided the province into Upper and Lower Canada. In 1867 with the passage of the British North America Act, the term was extended to apply to the federation of Upper Canada (Canada West), Lower Canada (Canada East), New Brunswick, and Nova Scotia, which became the Dominion of Canada."

I hope this may meet your requirement.

A Bible Message

Now when Jesus was risen early the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven devils. And she went and told them that had been with him, as they mourned and wept. And they, when they had heard that he was alive, and had been seen of her, believed not.

After that he appeared in another form unto two of them, as they walked, and went into the country. And they went and told it to the residue. (Mark 16: 9-13.)

And they told what things were done in the way, and how he was known of them in breaking of bread. And as they thus spake, Jesus himself stood in the midst of them, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you. But they were terrified and affrighted, and supposed that they had seen a spirit.

And he said unto them, Why are ye troubled? and why do thoughts arise in your hearts? Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have. (Luke 24: 35-39.)

That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit. (John 3:6.)

Passenger Cars Allowed Retreaded Tires

OTTAWA, Sept. 24 — (CP) — Munitions Minister Howe announced to-day that all passenger car owners now may have their tires retreaded with passenger type camelback without a tire ration permit.

The new order does not affect the conditions governing the sale of new tires for essential passenger cars. Applicants must continue to certify that their tires or tubes are completely unusable and cannot possibly be repaired and kept in service.

"Canada still faces a serious transportation problem and, as a result, we want to keep as many tires as possible in service for the longest period," said Mr. Howe.

Reclaimed rubber, which is made from old tires and tubes, is used primarily for mixing with other rubber in making military or essential vehicle tires. Small quantities, however, now can be diverted to the retreading of passenger car tires, the minister said.

"The collection of old tires and tubes must continue if we are to satisfy present and future demands for reclaimed rubber," said A. H. Williamson, Rubber Controller.

Non-essential civilian passenger car owners are not expected to obtain any kind of new tire until after the war, Mr. Williamson said.

Dr. Vivian Wants Low Insurance

KITCHENER, Sept. 24. —(CP).— Dr R. P. Vivian, Ontario Minister of Health, said last night that he hoped through some form of low-cost sickness insurance "every citizen of the province would be able to obtain medical and surgical care and hospitalization."

"The government of Ontario intends to investigate the sickness insurance field," he told the annual meeting of the North Waterloo Medical Society. A "re-organization of the functions of the Department of Health" was one of the "broad principles of policy of the Provincial government."

He stressed that health insurance is a measure which can arrive only through co-operation of the medical profession. "We have given that co-operation in the past and we will do so in the future."

Dr. Milne Harvey of Kitchener was elected president, succeeding Dr. Douglas Spohn. Other officers named were: Dr. George McTaggart, vice-president; Dr. H. J. Shoniker, secretary, and Dr. Frank Harvey, treasurer, all of Kitchener.

Squadron Of Air Cadets Enlists Thirty Recruits

Recruiting week in Peterborough for the 164th Squadron of Air Cadets of Canada coincides with the beginning of its second year of operation. Authorized now to double its strength, the Squadron has enlisted over 30 recruits so far this week and its recruiting depot on George street will be open three more evenings from 7 to 10 p.m.

At the end of its first year in existence the Peterborough Squadron numbered 75 boys, including a brass band of 13. With the authorized increase and the high probability of its quota being filled in the current recruiting drive, the 164th will take on sizable proportions and its band is going to be expanded to 22 members.

At present approximately half of the boys in the squadron are graduates of the first year's training, and through successful completion of examinations which were held in May and June they hold the rank of Leading Air Cadet and are entitled to wear the distinctive insignia, "the props," on their sleeves.

Ten In R.C.A.F.

No less than 10 of the boys will shortly be enlisted in the R.C.A.F. and then be granted indefinite leaves to finish their Air Cadet training and their high school studies. Their year of training with the squadron here will enable them to go directly into aircrew duties when the R.C.A.F. calls them up, thus skipping the basic six months' period of ground duties which is the ordinary lot of the Air Force recruit.

Those entering their second year of training with the squadron will pursue studies in navigation, meteorology and math, and will finish the work in signals they began in their first year's course. The fact that there are now trained LAC's in the Squadron is going to mean that boys this year can qualify as substantive NCO's, and it will no longer be necessary for officers to pick out cadets to serve as acting NCO's, as was the case in earlier days.

It was on Sept. 22, 1942, that the Rotary Club was granted a charter by the Air Cadet League for the purpose of forming an Air Cadet Squadron to assist boys in preliminary training for the R.C.A.F. and for peacetime as well as wartime service in aviation. It was a week later that recruiting for the new squadron, to be known as the 164th, was begun, and towards the middle of October actual training got under way.

Three Flights

This consisted of class instruction and drill Tuesday and Friday nights, with three classes for three flights each evening and a period of R.C.A.F. drill. Through the co-operation of the Board of Education classroom facilities were provided in the Collegiate, and the Reserve Army permitted the Squadron to use the Armouries for drill. The training plans included courses in R.C.A.F. administration, knots and splices, airmanship and theory of flight, signals, aircraft recognition and first aid. The latter course was taught by instructors of the St. John's Ambulance Corps, and the others by regular instructors.

Necessary training equipment was supplied by Air Force authorities, which resulted in a high standard of training, and from time to time R.C.A.F. officers from Command Headquarters came and inspected facilities and were pleased at the results obtained. The first annual inspection, conducted by Group Captain R. McBurney, occurred in June and officers expressed pleasure in the squadron's work and in the efficiency reached in the ceremonial drill.

At the same time the Air Cadet Ensign was presented to the squadron by Douglas Boyd, Provincial Secretary of the Air Cadet League, and the climax of the inspection and ceremony was a dance given at the Staff House for squadron members and their lady friends.

Visited Station

In July the squadron entrained for Mountain View Air Station and a two weeks' summer camp, receiving further training and being given an opportunity to witness the conduct of training in a bombing and gunnery school. They saw bombs dropped, machine guns handled, and the planes services—and did all but fly in the planes themselves. This they may do next year, as parents have expressed themselves agreeable to such a project.

Fears of parents that boys taking part in the Air Cadet training program might lose out in their school work have proved groundless by events of the first year. Examination results in the spring saw the Air Cadets uniformly passing in their school studies, and doing it in some cases with honors.

Four of the Squadron's officers attended qualifying courses at Trenton Air Base during the first year and four Air Cadet instructors have qualified in respect of their particular subjects at Jarvis.

Reserve Army Has Workout

BANCROFT, Sept. 24 (ENS) — "A" Company of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment 2nd Reserve Battalion had a big day Sunday when they held a workout and picnic near Bancroft on the John Anderson farm.

The boys were on deck Sunday morning at eight o'clock and departed soon after by truck and car to the chosen site. After the Marquee and bell tents were erected and headquarters established the men were called on parade and spent the morning until early afternoon on scouting and outdoor instructions from C.S.M. Earl Hawley of the A. and T. instructing staff. A tasty boiled dinner was prepared over open fire by Sgt. Cook L. Robbins. After dinner firing practice was the program with both rifles and Bren guns, in which keen interest was shown when prizes were given for accuracy and speed.

During this time the wives and familes of the troops and also many visitors were entertained by games of bingo and races. The kiddies had a real time and enjoyed the chocolate bars and coca cola. The whole program was under the supervision of Captain A. Scott, who is in charge of the Company at Bancroft.

Court Delivers Securities To Catholic Curate

TORONTO, Sept. 24.—(CP). — Securities are money, according to a judgment of the Ontario Court of Appeal delivered at Osgoode Hall yesterday.

The court reversed a decision of Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier, in which the latter held that Rev. J. Kinlin, curate of St. Michael's Roman Catholic church, Belleville, was not entitled to receive stock valued at $2,997.75 in the estate of Margaret Murphy, who died in that city.

In her will, drawn by herself, the testatrix, after making provision for the payment of her debts provided that all her money should go to Father Kinlin for masses for herself, her father and mother and other relatives. Mr. Justic Chevrier held that the priest was entitled to the cash in the bank, amounting to $1,853, but there was an intestacy so far as the shares of stock were concerned.

F G. Cushing, Belleville, appealed on behalf of Father Kinlin against this decision, contending that under a House of Lords case the word "money" had been given a wider meaning so as to include securities.

J. M. Simpson, K.C., Napanee, opposed the appeal on behalf of twelve next-of-kin. E. O. Butler, Belleville, represented the executrix, Anna M. Hurley, who had asked for an interpretation of the will.

Allowing the appeal, the court ordered that the costs be paid out of the estate.

Giant Crucifix Leans Toward Honor Roll 460 Soldiers So Guarded Still Safe In Action

GLEN COVE, N. Y., Sept. 24 — (AP). — A supposedly immovable wooden crucifix, which has turned and bent slightly toward an honor roll of men in the service, attracted hundreds of persons of Italian descent to St. Rocco's Catholic Church today.

The crucifix, atop a marble block and a concrete base, is about 20 feet high and stands in the churchyard.

Slightly behind and to one side stands the honor roll of names of 460 parishioners now bearing arms for the United States.

The movement of the crucifix it was noticed several days ago and word spread swiftly in the Italian colony.

"There is no doubt that this is a phenomenal thing, but it might have been caused by the weather warping the wood," said Rev. Dante del Fiorentello, pastor of the church.

He said he preferred not to speculate upon any miraculous connotation unless such a possibility were recognized by higher ranking members of the clergy.

Many of those who came to kneel and pray before the crucifix showed no such reluctance.

Some expressed belief it had some bearing on the fact that none of the 460 men listed on the honor roll has been reported killed or wounded.

Agnes Macphail Is Pallbearer

TORONTO, Sept. 24 — (CP — Miss Agnes Macphail, C.C.F. member-elect of the Ontario Legislature for York East, was a pallbearer yesterday at the funeral of Fred B. Utley, 78, known on the stage as Ralph Gordon. It was believed to have been the first time a woman acted as a pallbearer in Toronto.

Mr. Utley, who died last Saturday, was widely known throughout Canada and in the United States as an entertainer. Born at the village of Eastwood, near Woodstock, Ont., he started in the entertainment field in amateur theatricals. Later he joined a Chautauqua company.

SEVEN TEAMS ARE EXPECTED IN THE LADIES' BASKETBALL LEAGUE

St. Louis Tops Yankees In All Depts.

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP). — The St. Louis Cardinals go into this year's world series in the same position as the guy who leaves his umbrella and rubbers home because his bunions aren't aching and that's a "sure sign" there'll be no rain.

On the basis of the official 'numbers' in the book, Billy Southwoth's symphony from St. Loo nas an edge on paper over the Yankees in practically every department of the industry—hitting, fielding and pitching.

The set-up looks almost too perfect for the St. Louis swifties to hold on to their world championship.

Yet, the gambling guys have installed the Yanks the betting favorites in the first call-over of the series. They're doing it because, while the Cards cut the pie their way most of the season, the eight Yankee regulars slated to start the fall fuss make up a greater run-producing engine than the National League champions' eight-cylinder job. In addition to the fact that Marse Joe McCarthy's men are specialists in knocking those runs home, they're backed up by pitching that at times is the hottest in either league.

This corner thinks they'll get "hunk" for all the lumps the Cards raised on them last year, and that they'll do it in five or six games, with Spud Chandler and Borowy the big men of the pitching line and Keller and—honest—Flashless Flash Gordon, the bum of the 42 set and weak-sister of this campaign, stealing the socking show.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Westclox, Peterborough girl champions and Stratford Kroehlers, conquerors of Guelph and St. Catharines will battle it out at Riverside Park at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon in the second game of their provincial playdowns and the fixture looms up as the softball classic of the year so far as the girls are concerned. Westclox have to win to tie up the series and if they do the round will be decided by another game to be staged at 5.30 o'clock, so there should be plenty of excitement in the vicinity of Riverside Park Saturday. Westclox are confident of the outcome despite the fact that they admit that the Stratford team is strong with a very effective pitcher in Hazel Baynton whose fastball pitching gave the Big Bens plenty of trouble in Stratford Wednesday. The Westclockers, however, declare that they might have won the argument if it had not been for a couple of bad breaks. Stratford got three runs right off the reel because with two out a play was made too late at the plate when all that was needed to have retired the side was to take the batter out at first base. And then the Big Bens tossed away a great chance later on when two runners were caught on the bases after which the next two batters came through with hits.

* * * * * *

Kroehlers have a smart battery in Hazel Baynton, a steady pitcher and Jean Aiken a hard-hitting catcher. Betty Appel who plays nice ball at shortstop for the Stratford girls is a daughter of Chick Appel, well known sports editor of the Stratford Beacon-Herald. Betty not only is effective defensively but hits well too. Doris Harloff in right field is a ball hawk and Evelyn Easson at second base covers a lot of ground. It is a well-balanced squad and Westclox will have to play heads-up ball to knock them off here tomorrow. The Big Ben ssay that they will turn the trick however and it looks like the biggest crowd of the season to see them battle the Kroehlers. The batting order of the rival clubs will be as follows: Stratford Kroehlers—Evelyn Easson 2b, Doris Harloff rf, Jean Aiken c, Hazel Baynton p, Greta Harmer lf, Helen Doubrough 1b, Betty Appel ss, Ruby Huras cf, Gladys Heinbuch 3b. Westclox—Aggie Anderson cf, Viola McLean 2b, Isobel Bullock p, Marg. Hawthorne 3b, Marg Watson ss, Beryl Dobbin c, Barbara Rome lf, Jean Castle 1b, Doris Walker rf. The umpires will be Page, Stratford, and Herb. Payne, Peterborough.

Thumbs Down For Hogan

Rowdy Dick Hogan may have managed to put one over Pat Flanagan here Monday night but local wrestling fans cannot see him repeating the stunt at the expense of Gentleman Jack Clayborne when the two meet in a return match at the Brock Street Rink Monday night. They figure the Black Comet not only moves too fast but thinks too fast for the rough-house gentleman from the coast. Flanagan fell a victim because he lost his temper. Clayborne is not likely to make that mistake. He will probably get angry because Hogan's deliberately rough tactics would get anybody's goat but anger will just make the Ebony Flash a more deady opponent and we have an idea that the back-alley fighter is going to have a whole lot happen to him here next Monday night. Hogan has been asking for it. He has kicked and punched and gouged every opponent he has faced and wrestling rules do not mean a thing. The Housepainter in fact has been getting away with murder and Peterborough fans are hoping that justice will catch up with him Monday night. Clayborne is a clever and speedy wrestler but so far as the bout with Hogan is concerned local enthusiasts don't care whether the colored grappler shows any science or not so long as he hands out a liberal dose of the medicine the coast badman has been giving all and sundry in his recent appearances. With two other good bouts on the card the Monday bill promises to supply plenty of fireworks and there should be few dull moments.

* * * * * *

Officers and players of the Brinton softball team probably don't know it but Brintons were billed to play the Stratford Kroehlers in Stratford the other night in the provincial playdowns. Members of the Westclox team during their visit to the Classic City Wednesday picked up the Stratford Beacon-Herald to see what was being said about the evening game and found that the sport sheet had a very nice advance story. The only thing wrong with it was that it didn't mention the Westclockers at all but announced that the Brintons, Peterborough intermediate champions would be there to battle Kroehlers and it even gave the batting order of the Brintons as used in their last playoff game with Generals. The mistake is, of course, easy to understand. The Stratford sports writers haven't been paying any attention to the softball situation down here but when they heard that a Peterborough team would be the Kroehlers next opponents and read in The Examiner that the Brintons had captured the local intermediate title they naturally arrived at the conclusion

Basketball Loop Organized Officers Named

Mary McPherson was elected president of the Ladies' Basketball League at an enthusiastic organization meeting held in the Y.W.C.A. Thursday night. This is the first occasion since the league was launched that it has been headed by a girl.

The officers chosen to look after the affairs of the loop this season were: Hon. president, Mrs. J. H. Vernor; president, Mary McPherson; vice-presidents, Eleanor Craig and Jean Castle; secretary, Isobel Crary; treasurer, Shirley Mortimer; advisory committee, Miss C. Littlefield, Quirt McKinney, Howard Macdonald, Hymie Smith, Bill Siddall, Helen Miller, Beryl Dobbin.

Howie Macdonald was appointed to look after the refereeing department during the season.

It was announced that the C.G.E.-Genelco would enter two teams this season and that other sure entries were the Normal School, Y Gym, Y Cadets, and an outside team, the sponsorship of which has not yet been decided. In addition St. John's may be back this season and Johnson Motors girls may enter a team.

It was decided to start the schedule on November 5 or 12, some three weeks earlier than usual.

There will be a meeting of the executive next Thursday night by which time it is hoped to have complete reports as to the teams entering the loop this season.

To Coach Brantford

BRANTFORD (CP)—The hockey pot began to simmer yesterday with the news that George Hainsworth, former goaltender of the Toronto Leafs, was a visitor in Brantford to confer with officers of the local club which is entering a team in the junior "A" series of the O.H.A. Hainsworth is expected to coach.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP)—For the 10th time in 11 years hoss-trainer Hirsch Jacobs had saddled his 100th winner—the other year he had only 98.... Fans with mathematical minds will now start figuring what a $2 parlay would be worth.... Lefty Gomez, who used to be a $20,000 a year pitcher, now collects $100 a game from the Bushwicks — and doesn't have Grandma Murphy waiting in the bullpen.

You pick 'em:

(Putting the World Series catchers on the receiving end.)

Bill Dickey, Yankees—One of the game's great catchers, Bill has played in seven World Series and seven All-Star games since 1932, so there's not much more to say.... Got a late start this season but has made up for it by hitting better than .360.... Only thing against Bill is that he's 36 years old.

Walker Cooper, Cardinals—Does the talking and hitting for the Cooper-Cooper battery.... He's another of the rarest of species of 1943 baseball bird—a .300 hitter.

Service Dept.:

Freddie Apostoli, ex-middleweight champ, sends word from the South Pacific that he has been at sea 10 months and "sometimes it feels like 10 days, other times like 10 years."

LAWN BOWLING

We are writing this column early Friday morning with the thermometer hanging around 42 degrees. Now about to-night's mixed tournament, our advice to the bowlers is this: Call the club house, and if no one answers then you will know that the tourney has been cancelled.

Playing the last half of the consolation finals in a drizzling rain, and also playing it in the record time of 1 hour and 55 minutes, Bob Hendry's rink skipped by Norman Hambly defeated J. Harrison's rink skipped by A. McWilliams 18-17.

Considering the lateness of the season, the weather, and the condition of the greens the bowling was well above the average. Many nice shots were made and were applauded by the dozen spectators. The game as over before ten o'clock and so another 1943 competition goes on the records.

The ladies are contemplating holding an open rink tournament on Wednesday, September 29. Here is hoping they get a break in the weather.

There will be no more night bowling after September 30.

STRINCEVICH HURLS 5-HIT BALL AS TORONTO LEAFS EVEN SERIES

Syracuse Chiefs Blanked 6-0 In Second Game

TORONTO, Sept. 24 (CP)—The best-of-seven Governor's Cup final series which resumes in Syracuse tomorrow apparently is to be almost solely a test of pitching strength.

Millard Howell pitched three-hit ball in leading Syracuse Chiefs to a 5-3 verdict over Toronto Maple Leafs in the series opener here Wednesday night and last night the story was the same as Nick Strincevich rationed five blows to give Toronto a 6-0 victory before 9,000 fans.

Strincevich, a 15-game winner in the regular season, scattered the 5 hits with so marked effect that only one Syracuse player reached third base.

Meanwhile, Leafs bounced nine safeties off Tom De La Cruz. Seven of them were bunched in the third and fifth innings, good for three runs in each frame.

In the third, singles by Strincevich, Lee Handley, Gruzdis and Gus Dugas brought two runs home. Van Harrington then miscued on a grounder by Harry Davis, loading the bases. De La Cruz forced in the third run by walking Tim Tyack.

Tyack also figured prominently in the fifth-inning rally by Toronto, spanking a triple to right field to score Dugas and Davis, who had singled. Tyack kept on going when he reached third and crossed the plate safely when Garton Del Savio allowed the throw from the outfield to elude him.

Sauer, Syracuse first baseman, was the only visiting player to take liberties with Strincevich, obtaining a double and a single. Mele, Phillips and Harrington shared the other Syracuse safeties.

BOORMAN'S BEVERAGES
384 QUEEN STREET
PETERBOROUGH

September 24th, 1943.

TO THE PUBLIC:

War-time regulations have made it necessary for us to ration and then sub-ration Kist Beverages and Pepsi Cola, until at the present time our dealers are only receiving a portion of their orders. The tremendous increase in the popularity of Boorman's Beverages has been indeed gratifying to us, but present regulations prevent us from enlarging our production. In an endeavor to supply the summer demand we used up extra sugar, and now we find it necessary to close down our Queen Street bottling plant for one week, September 27th to October 2nd. All commercial deliveries will be cancelled this week. Our plant will re-open Monday, October 4th.

We have no alternative. Our ration of sugar is used, and consequently we have to close down until more sugar is available.

We wish also at the present time to heartily thank our dealers for their loyal support, and also the users of our beverages for their loyalty to their favorite drinks. We also wish to state that the purity and high food value of Boorman's Beverages will not be impaired, and, regardless of what happens, when you order Kist or Pepsi Cola, you know you'll be getting the best.

Yours very truly,

Retains Souvenir

ALBANY —(AP)—Former second-baseman Johnny Evers of the Chicago Cubs revealed yesterday he still had the ball with which he touched second base after Fred Merkle of the Giants committed the famous bone play 35 years ago in a crucial league game by running to the clubhouse after getting what should have been the pennant-winning hit. With the Merkle "out," the game ended 1-1 and the Cubs won the re-play and title.

CAMP BORDEN (CP)—The baseball squad of a training regiment here won the opening tilt of Knights of Columbus Baseball League with a 7-2 decision over the Ordnance detachment. Harber, winning pitcher, also helped with a homer.

Yankees Able Take Pennant With Win Today

(Associated Press Sport Writer)

The long delayed day on which the New York Yankees can clinch the American League pennant under their own power in one game has arrived.

All the Bombers need now to nail up their seventh flag in eight years, and 14th in history, is to beat Detroit Tigers this afternoon.

They smothered the Tigers for the second straight time yesterday with Lefty Marius Russo showing World Series form in a two-hit 1-0 shutout. The only run of the game came on three bingles in the first inning and caused Rufus Gentry his second 1-0 defeat since joining the Tigers earlier this month.

This success and Cleveland's split of a doubleheader at Boston eliminated the Indians mathematically and Washington Senators, who had held on stubbornly to a remote pennant possibility, collapsed before St. Louis Browns 12-3 for the second straight time in a night game.

Got 16 Bingles

The Browns made 16 hits and knocked out Buck Newsom with nine of them in the first five innings for his first defeat since St. Louis traded him to Washington.

Cleveland Indians were defeated by the Red Sox 13-7 with Gord Garrison getting a homer, a double and two singles to bat in four runs in the first game, but the Tribe took the nightcap 6-4 with a 15-hit attack of its own.

In the other American League game Orval Grove pitched Chicago White Sox to a 5-2 verdict over the Philadelphia Athletics.

In the National League, Alpha Brazle gave up three runs and Harry Brecheen a fourth as the Dodgers defeated the Cardinals 4-3 for Whitlow Wyatt's 10th consecutive triumph and 14th of the year. Wyatt allowed just eight hits.

Pittsburgh was beaten 2-1 by the five-hit hurling of Jim Tobin of Boston Braves and Chicago Cubs scored six runs in the sixth inning to nose out Phillies 8-7. Bill Nicholson hit his 25th and 26th home runs of the year.

TORONTO, Sept. 24—(CP)—Armand (Bep) Guidolin figures he can take the National Hockey League grind in stride if he can stand the gaff on a modern dance floor. So Armand is training on jive. Guidolin, Boston Bruins' prize rookie of last season, was right in the groove in North Bay the other day but wasn't even breathing hard after a tough session of bump and bounce. "I find it a good way of keeping my legs and lungs in the best of condition," he explained.

If this theory works Guidolin should be a hotshot puck workman come winter. He was plenty promising a year ago and although he's not yet turned 18, the Timmins boy tips the scales at 175. And if he doesn't win recognition for his hockey he'll certainly get prizes for his dress. At North Bay Guidolin startled the natives with a brown semi-zoot suit, blue shirt and bright red tie.

Hockey Hub:

Andy Lyle of the Toronto Star says he's informed that Lester Patrick is trying to make New York's Madison Square Garden the world's post-war hockey headquarters with offices of the N.H.L. and International Ice Hockey Association centred there. Andy suggests one of the major N.H.L. interests in the I.I.H.A., headed by Dr. W. G. Hardy of Edmonton, is the control of overseas hockey traffic at the war's end. There have been warnings that hockey will boom in Europe after the war with overseas interests draining Canada's player pool.

Joe Shewchuk, 16-year-old brother of Jack Shewchuk, former Boston defenceman now in the Army, has been asked to report at Boston Bruins training camp in October. Joe lives in Brantford, scales 190 pounds... There's some indication Don Grosso, Detroit Red Wings centre star, will not return to action this winter but will remain at his Sault Ste. Marie home... Elmer Ferguson of the Montreal Herald says Nels Stewart and Hooley Smith have indisputable claims to a place in hockey's hall of fame, Stewart as hockey's all-time high scorer and Smith as the most durable who ever played in the N.H.L.

Wildcats To Use Same Line-up

HAMILTON, Sept. 24.—Proposed changes in the flying Wildcats' lineup for Saturday at Varsity Stadium against Navy will not be made, according to Manager Len Back, and all because the men counted on will not be available for Hamilton's first Queen City skirmish of the 1943 campaign.

Jim Folwell, former Argonaut backfielder, who is now stationed at Dunnville with the Y.M.C.A., was expected out to practice early this week, but the speedster failed to show up, and he would not have time between now and game time to pick up the signals. Another man being counted on was a former Balmy Beach wing man, now located at Hagersville with the air force, but examinations which started on Wednesday will keep him busy for the next 10 days.

This means that Timmis will start with Smith at the pivot position, and Krol, Lawson and Murray Crowe on the backfield. Crowe, a native of Sarnia, never played in an organized league until last Saturday, but his debut convinced more than 4,000 Hamiltonians that he is a star in the making. Jimmy Simpson and Jimmy Fumio will handle the outside wing positions, with O'Breza at snap, Remegis and McDonald at insides, and Zvonkin and Withers as middles. Doug. Smith, Kitchener standout of last year, will most likely be found at flying wing. Smith was on the injured list for the opening game with a bad ankle, but has fully recovered and is anxious to get into action.
